

David Jacoby, President of Boston Strategies International, directs the company's consulting practice. Before founding Boston Strategies International in 1998, Mr. Jacoby consulted to manufacturers, carriers, and supply chain service providers for over a decade. He was based in Brazil, Hong Kong, and France with A.T. Kearney, where he led a benchmarking center of excellence and conducted viability studies related to acquisitions, strategic alliances, capital investments, equipment, and infrastructure. He also developed and implemented strategic sourcing engagements covering purchasing best practices, supplier selection, consortium buying, and outsourcing. Before joining A.T. Kearney, David constructed forecasting information systems for shipping companies in the Maritime and International Trade Group at Mercer Management Consulting and served as an economist for the World Bank.

Mr. Jacoby holds an MBA from The Wharton School, a Masters in International Business from the Lauder Institute, and a Bachelor of Science in Economics from the University of Pennsylvania. He is a Certified Fellow in Production and Inventory Management (CFPIM), Certified in Supply Chain Management (CSCP), Certified in Integrated Resource Management (CIRM), Certified in Purchasing Management (Lifetime C.P.M.), and Certified in Transportation and Logistics (CTL). He is President of APICS Boston and a Past President of the Council of Supply Chain Management Professionals' (CSCMP)'s New England Round Table. He also is a Director of the Institute for Supply Management (ISM)'s Logistics and Transportation Group, a member of the International Supply Chain Education Alliance (ISCEA)'s Ptak Prize Selection Committee, a member of the American Society of Transportation and Logistics (AST&L) and serves as co-chair for the Northeast Supply Chain Conference 2007 \(NECON\). He is a Contributing Editor at The Economist Intelligence Unit, regularly contributes to thought leadership through trade journals on transportation, logistics, and procurement issues, and is a frequent speaker.

Click here for descriptions of David's current topics or
Click here to send David an email.