Junior Girl Scout Troop No. 29 —

Investiture Ceremony Is Held

Junior Girl Scout Troop 29 held a Fly-Up and Investiture Ceremony at their regular meeting Tuesday, Oct. 25. The ceremony began with the presentation of the colors by Temple Davis and Roxanne Lloyd. Mrs. S. W. Brown, Jr., Brownie Leader, assisted in the Fly-Up ceremony by presenting "wings" to the Fourth grade girls who were members of the Brownie troop last year. "Flying-Up" from Brownies to Scouting were Marcia Angell, Sharon Cranfill, Wanda Daniel, Kathy Howell, Mary Brook Martin, Athena Redmond, and Lisa Roberts. Upon receiving their Fly-Up wings the girls left the Brownie circle and were welcomed into Troop 29's horseshoe by the leader, Mrs. Robert Lloyd.

Girls being invested into scouting for the first time were introduced by Mrs. Ervin Daniel, Assistant Leader of Troop 29. These girls were Cassandra Dalton, Gloria Jones, Judith Monsees, Vivian Rivers, and Jane Steele. Transferring from other Junior troops were Joy Dart, Pam Pressness, and Kathy Steelman.

After all girls had entered the horseshoe formation Mrs. Lloyd lit the three candles representing the 3 parts of the Girl Scout promise. The first candle represents being true to God and Country, the second shines as a symbol that a Girl Scout's greatest desire is to serve, and the third candle shines as a symbol that Girl Scouts are true to their ideals as interpreted by the Girl Scout laws. Ten former members of the troop then came forward, lit a small candle from a large one, and recited one of the Girl Scout laws. These ten girls then lighted a candle held by each of the new members of the troop. All girls then joined in the giving of the Girl Scout Promise and the singing of "When'er You Make A Promise." The Leaders then presented Girl Scout pins to all of the new members of the troop. Troop Camper badges were also presented to several of the girls. The ceremony ended with the singing of "Taps."

Refreshments were served the Scouts and a number of Mothers present. The Troop Committee, under the direction of Mrs. Dart, had prepared a refreshment table attractively decorated with a Hall-o-wen theme.

Davie Under The Fire Warden Program

Brush Burning Permits Required

On October 1, the North Carolina Brush Burning Permit Law came into effect again, through June 1 of next year. It means that all persons planning to do any burning after four o'clock in the afternoon and before midnight will have to have a burning permit, if the area to be burned is more than 100 feet from an occupied dwelling house or within 500 feet of woodlands protected by the forest service.

Due to the expanded Warden and Permit Agent program, Davie County residents will have little trouble getting the permits this year.

The Fire Warden program provides for resident fire fighters, on a temporary basis, in the more distant areas from volunteer fire departments. Their locations are easily spotted by the vivid yellow sign posted at the roadside. Each Warden is responsible for fire suppression in his district, in cooperation with other agencies, and can also issue burning permits and will provide burning information for those who need it.

The Wardens in the program are David Essex, in the Mocksville township; Wade Groce, of Farmington, who is also Fire Chief of the Farmington Volunteer Fire Department; Edward Beck of Clarksville township, on the Liberty Church Road; Jerry Reavis of Sheffield; Larry G. Stephens in the Jerusalem area, who also services as the Assistant County Ranger for the entire County. Each Warden is equipped to fight forest fires with tools and equipment provided by the N. C. Forest Service. Forest Fires should be reported to these district wardens, as well as to the Davie County Fire Control.

The Burning Permit Agents in Davie County are designated by the Davie County Forester to provide permits for residents who need them, and there is one in each area of the county. The Permit Agent locations are: Baileys Shell Station at Fork; D. D. Bennett & Sons Grocery at Cornater; Cartner's Sinclair Service on the Statesville Highway; Cooleemee Hardware Store in the Cooleemee Shopping Center; County Agent's Office in Mocksville; County Forester's Office in Mocksville; Dunn's Cash Store on U. S. 159 near Smith Grove; Johnson's Gulf Service at Farmington; Sheffield Grocery & Hardware at Sheffield; Red's Grocery and Service in Advance.

Paul J. Bonardi Davie County Forester, urges all residents to become familiar with North Carolina's burning laws, to safeguard the County's forest production areas, and to avoid violations which are punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both. Mr. Bonardi cites fire as the greatest threat to North Carolina's woodlands and said that careless burning practices caused all but two of the Davie County forest fires last year.

With the current Warden and Permit Agency program, all persons have an ample opportunity to read the law and have it explained to them, and to secure a burning permit, without cost, whenever they need it.

MRS. DAVID LEE OWINGS

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH IS SCENE OF EVANS-OWINGS CEREMONY SUNDAY

Miss Laura Mae Evans and David Lee Owings were married Sunday, October 30, in the First Methodist Church. The Rev. Gilbert Miller officiated at the 3 p. m. ceremony.

Wedding musicians were Mike Hendrix, organist, and C. W. Duncan of Winston-Salem, soloist.

Mrs. Owings is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ellard Pierce Evans. She attended school in Winston-Salem until 1961. She is a graduate of Davie County High School and attended Brevard College one year where she belonged to Nu Epsilon Mu Omega sorority. She made her debut at the sub-debutant ball at Lexington in June 1965.

Mr. Owings is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson Owings. He is a graduate of Davie County High School and served two years in the United States Air Force. He is employed at A. M. P., Inc., in Clemmons.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of bridal satin, Alencon lace and champion velvet that she designed. The gown was styled with long sleeves and sweetheart neckline of re-embroidered lace. The fitted bodice was trimmed with lace appliques and seed pearls. The bouffant skirt of velvet was enhanced by a chapel train of velvet with side drapes of satin. Her illusion veil fell from a tiar of pearls and sequins and she carried a white prayer book with a white orchid.

Miss Nancy Ann Sheek was maid of honor. Mrs. Russell N. Hodges of Norfolk, Virginia was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Wanda Herrell of Asheland, Va.; Miss Joelle Kelly and Miss Judy Carroll of Winston-Salem; Miss Glenda Owings and Miss Shelby Owings, the bridegroom's sisters.

Mr. Owings was his son's best man. Ushers were Richard Perryman and Leon Byerly of Winston-Salem; James R. Hodges of Norfolk; J. Ronald McClamrock of Chapel Hill; Bobby Shelton and Calvin C. Jones.

Candlelighters were Robert Hodges of Norfolk, Va., nephew of the bride, and her cousin, Thomas Hutchins of Winston-Salem.

All of the bride's attendants wore empire gowns of velvet and peau. The sleeveless bodices of moss green velvet had scooped necklines. The slim skirts were lime peau with sling coats designed with elbow sleeves of velvet topped at the shoulders with velvet bows. Their headaddresses were of lime double illusion with pearl trim. They carried cascades of bronze and yellow mums.

Reception

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church.

The bride's table, overlaid with a white linen cloth, was centered with a pyramid of yellow and white mums and gladioli flanked by silver candelabra with lighted white tapers. White wedding bells tied in tulle bows decorated the table corners. Mrs. J. W. Pennington poured orange punch from a huge silver punch bowl and Mrs. J. W. Hutchins of Winston-Salem, aunt of the bride, served the tiered wedding cake. Assisting in serving tiny heart-shaped cheese straws, nuts and decorated mints was Mrs. John McGee Jr., the bridegroom's sister. Presiding at the register was the groom's sister, Mrs. Bobby Shelton.

After a honeymoon in the mountains, Mr. and Mrs. Owings will live in Mocksville.

Dynamic Changes In Textile World

Startling changes are taking place in the textile world today, notes Mrs. West, extension home economics agent, Davie County. In fact the changes in fibers, fabrics and fabric finishes are occurring so rapidly, it's small wonder the consumer is confused when she selects new garments and house furnishings.

According to Mrs. West, "the purpose of all this change is to achieve fabrics that need minimum care, yet lose nothing in beauty or attractiveness and to develop garments that can be laundered at home, yet need little or no pressing."

Mrs. West believes the consumer can purchase easy-care garments and fabrics with more confidence if she:

- 1. Learns to identify new fibers and finishes.
2. Looks for the manufacturer's hang tags. They are her best guide.
3. Realizes that fabrics made with 50 per cent or more synthetic fibers need the least pressing and have the best "easy-care" properties.
4. Saves the hang tags. The homemaker may wish to pin hang tags near her washer or file them nearby so she can refer to care instructions just before laundering a garment.
5. Realizes that although a fabric may be washable, the garment may not be. She should be especially aware of trimmings and buttons; they may have to be removed for successful laundering.
6. Looks for well-constructed garments.
For the latest consumer information about new fabrics, finishes and notions call or write Mrs. West at County Office Building, Mocksville. There is no charge for this service.

"WHAT DID YOU DO IN THE WAR DADDY?"

Tattle-Tales

By Gordon Tomlinson

Robert L. Randall, a professor at Appalachian State Teachers College and the Democratic candidate for the North Carolina Senate from the 25th Senatorial District, was present at the regular meeting of the Mocksville Rotary Club on Tuesday. He was introduced to Fred Barnes. A short time later during the course of the meal he heard Roy Collette refer to Fred as "being our minister".

"What kind of minister are you", asked Dr. Randall.

George Shutt quickly piped in with: "Oh... he's a little better than average!"

This happened at a local eating establishment... and the persons it happened to may not even be aware of it.

One night last week this family went into the restaurant and ordered fish. The waitress urged them to try a new mixture of tartar sauce... which they did.

Upon completing their dinner, the waitress asked "how they liked it". Although appearing a little hesitant... they did respond in the affirmative.

This waitress then decided she would try this tartar sauce she had been boosting so. She did so... but ugh!

Someone... by mistake... had mixed the tartar sauce with requested cheese dressing.

So one family in Mocksville really did try out a "new" mixture of tartar sauce.

More than 20,000 physicians now practicing in the United States received training in VA hospitals during 1961-66, the Veterans Administration reports.

Social Security In Davie County

Some medical bills may be counted twice, said Robert C. Thomas, of the Salisbury social security office. October, November, and December are special months under the medical part of the Medicare program he explained. These months are special because some bills for medical treatment received during the months of October, November, and December could be counted toward the $50 deductible for this year and next year as well.

Anyone who has $50 or more of Medical bills at any time during the year should make a claim with the Pilot Life Insurance Company on the claim form found in the Medicare Handbook. Many doctors have extra claim forms available for their patients' convenience, or they can be obtained at the local social security office. Anyone who needs help filling out the form or needs more information should contact the social security office at 105 Corriher Avenue, Salisbury, phone 633-6470. Office hours have been extended to 9 PM on Friday evenings for the convenience of those who cannot visit during regular working hours.

SCOPE OF SPORTS

By Woody Durham / WFMV-TV Sports Director

Once you've passed the "point of no return" there's just no turning back, and that's exactly where the 1966 college football season finds itself. Most of the teams across the nation played either their sixth or seventh game last Saturday which means the season will be all over in about four short weeks.

There's still a lot of exciting football left in the Atlantic Coast Conference during November, but the league's eight member teams have reached this "point of no return" with a pretty-miserable record against outside opposition.

So far this year ACC teams have played twenty-three clubs from outside the conference including a good many of the nation's best from the Big Ten, the Southeastern Conference, and several top notch independents, and they have won only five. This figures out to a 21.7 percent which is just a little better than winning one out of every five games played.

Two of the five wins belong to Duke. The Blue Devils blasted West Virginia 34-15 in the season's opener, and then the following week they jumped Pitt 14-7. Maryland also owns a victory over West Virginia—28-0—while Virginia beat V. M. I. 38-27, and Carolina upset Michigan 21-7 to account for all five of the ACC victories against non-league opponents. The Carolina victory over Michigan up at Ann Arbor before more than 88,000 fans was by far the best of the lot. At the time the Wolverines were ranked sixth nationally, but the Tar Heels outplayed them all the way.

Out of the eighteen defeats in those twenty-three games four of them have come at the hands of Georgia teams. Georgia Tech edged Clemson 13-12, and then last Saturday the Yellow Jackets humiliated Duke 4-37. Georgia topped South Carolina 7-0, and then Bulldogs whipped North Carolina 28-3 last weekend.

During the remainder of the season the eight ACC teams will face eleven more outside opponents in an effort to improve their overall record which comes at the expense of being the best academic athletic loop in the country. But most of these games coming up are against the same clubs, for the most part, that have been so rough in the earlier part of the campaign.

Maybe I'd better correct myself. Seven ACC teams will face these eleven non-league foes. Clemson is through playing outside the league and the Tigers have only family opponents left on their schedule. But after losses to Georgia Tech, Alabama, and Southern Cal. it's easy to see why Coach Frank Howard says he's glad to be out of the "knuckle-head league" and back in the "education league."

Another NFL Doubleheader comes up this Sunday on Channel 2 at 1:45, following the Bill Tate Show, with the Redskins playing the Colts in the opener, and the Vikings meeting the Packers in the nightcap.

Uncle Dave from Davie Says:

The fellers at the store Saturday night was dealing in high finance and trying to keep everything in round figgers.

Clem Webster of the Great Society was trying to balance the national budget. He reported he had saw where the Government had saved $11 million last year by buying less typewriters and not buying no more filing cabinets.

Ed Doollittle said he was mighty glad to hear the Democrats had found out they was more to economy drives than cutting out a few lights at the White House. He allowed as how, now that they was operating less typewriters and filling up less filing cabinets, they might cut down on hiring new Federal employees from the present rate of 675 a day to around the 500 mark.

Furthermore, reported Ed, he was in hopes the Neighborhood Youth Core, that has spent $290 million up to now to train 1,061 people, could cut the cost per graduate from the present $270.00 to maybe around $100,000 even. He said the Job Core folks has announced they had cut the cost for one trainee down from $13,000 to around $10,000 and this was mighty encouraging. He predicted that in another 10 year they would git it down to where it was as cheap to git a Job Core degree as to git one from Harvard.

And while the fellers was in the middle of trying to git the Federal budget trimmed down, Zeke Grubb's preacher come by to git some pipe smoking tobacco. He got to talking and reported his daughter was fixing to git off fer college. The college had wrote him that the rising cost of everything has forced them to hike their fees another 10 per cent. He said he had look to worrying about how he was going to put that girl through college and got to smoking too much and now he's worrying one day about gitting cancer and the next day about raising that 10 per cent.

Ed butted in to say that from the best he could recollect the $600 tax deduction the Government set up fer ever child in 1939 was the only figger holding steady in Washington. He said the Government could spend $10,000 a year for each young'un in the Job Core, but the taxpayers that coughed up the money couldn't take but $600 off fer educating their own children.

The good Parsons allowed as how Ed had a good point there, claimed most country preachers was eligible for the poverty program anyhow and he was serious considering just letting the Government educate his daughter.

Personal Mister Editor, if I was the Parson I'd put my wife in the Women's Job Core, my daughter in the Neighborhood Youth Core, git me one of them $100 a day "consultant" jobs and cut down on the smoking.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dave

Health Tips

FROM THE American Medical Association

Almost all of us have warts at some time in our lives. Ordinary warts are not dangerous to health. About half of all warts eventually disappear even if untreated.

In a new pamphlet the American Medical Association reports that a wart is a viral infection of the skin. It also can be described as a virus-caused growth. Ordinary warts are not malignant and do not become so.

Adults are less likely to have warts than children. This may be the result of an acquired immunization—a build up of antibodies—that occurs as a person grows older. And, of course some people never get warts, while others have dozens of warts covering extensive areas of the body.

Warts are contagious. They can be transmitted from one person to another. Scratching or picking at warts sometimes causes them to spread. They can also be spread by shaving over them or by brushing and combing the hair if there are warts in the scalp.

Warts can occur on any part of the skin, but most often appear on the hands, fingers and on the soles of the feet. Those on the soles—plantar warts—cause the most trouble. Because of the pressure of shoes and walking, they are pushed inward instead of bulging outward, sometimes causing sharp pain.

Usually warts are treated medically only when they are tender or painful, when they interfere with functions of the body or when they are so located as to be unattractive cosmetically. There are several methods of treatment. Your physician will select the best method for you, or possibly recommend a combination of methods. The techniques vary. With any method, several treatments may be required. The least drastic method usually is tried first, especially with children.

The spontaneous disappearance of warts has often been linked in literature with suggestion therapy. Tales of "witching" away of warts are hundreds of years old.

Several investigators are now doing research on warts. Much more knowledge is needed to answer important questions about wart viruses.

Varicose veins are a common health problem for millions of Americans. Sometimes they are merely unsightly. But often they can cause health problems.

Varicose veins are dilated, tortuous, venous blood vessels lying just under the skin. They occur most frequently on the inner side and back of the calf and on the inner side of the thigh.

The veins have lost their elasticity and their function of maintaining return flow of blood is impaired. This leads to impaired circulation and consequent decreased nutrition of tissues.

Varicose veins often are a hereditary characteristic, says Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association. Pregnancy and prolonged standing contribute to the condition in predisposed individuals.

If varicose veins "run in the family," you probably will develop them despite any preventive measures. However, there are simple measures which can delay their occurrence and make them less bothersome.

If possible, choose an occupation that doesn't involve long hours of standing. Avoid clothing that might constrict the veins at the groin and knee and interfere with blood flow.

When sitting, minimize venous pressure in the legs by elevating them on a stool or chair. When you must stand for long periods, elastic stockings or elastic bandages may be worn, but only on the recommendation of a physician, since complications can develop in persons with additional circulatory conditions.

Varicose veins not only are a hindrance to health, they also are undesirable for cosmetic reasons. Early treatment may prevent complications such as dermatitis or ulcers of the leg. A physician will determine the most appropriate treatment, after considering the size and locations of the veins and the age and general health of the patient.

"On The Front Lines of Service"

In 1966, as they have throughout our history, young men are called to the front lines of service . . . to the hot war front lines of Viet Nam . . . to the cold war front lines of Europe . . . to those vital front lines of public service at home where freedoms are defended and challenges of personal courage are a part of the day's work.

BOB BINGHAM is a young man who believes, as Thomas Jefferson did, that "A debt of service is due from every man to his country."

BOB BINGHAM has been on the front lines of the Cold War in Europe. Now he seeks the opportunity to serve the people of North Carolina as their representative for the 9th Congressional District.

A native of Boone, BOB BINGHAM attended public schools and the University of North Carolina.

During his military career BOB BINGHAM completed Ranger School, one of the toughest of training programs, at the top of his class. As recognition for his ability to lead men in times of stress, he was given the General Douglas MacArthur Award.

Now BOB BINGHAM wants to put his ability to work for you. He believes that the children of North Carolina must have a better education . . . that there must be more job opportunities through new industry . . . that federal assistance for highway construction is vital to the tourist business. Above all, he believes, that North Carolina must continue to be a progressive state.

Help BOB BINGHAM carry out these goals by electing him to Congress on November 8.

- ★ Jim Broyhill serves you not only as a thoughtful and careful legislator, but as the spokesman for the people of the 9th District. He has dealt promptly and effectively with hundreds of Federal agencies as he has assisted thousands of people of the District with personal problems they have had with the Federal government.

Early Voters Braved Jeers Of Opponents

Voters in the general election on November 8 will take balloting in privacy for granted, but the practice was once considered unmanly.

Voice voting, widespread in the American colonies, continued in some states after the Revolution, the National Geographic Society says.

Citizens gathered at a polling place to announce their choices aloud to an election judge, usually the mayor, sheriff, or coroner. A bullying crowd reacted to each voter's preference with cheers or jeers.

The noisy spectacle was replaced in New York State by a secret ballot in 1852, but privacy was discarded the following year on the ground that it "insulted the manliness and independence of the laboring man."

Secret Voting
Secret voting in national elections became federal law in 1875, but the absence of official ballots still left the individual voter without privacy. The voter had to provide his own ballots.

When ballots grew longer, it became the custom of political parties to print them for the convenience of their supporters. Each party produced its ballot on colored paper so poll watchers could see at a glance whether the party faithful were indeed faithful.

A law requiring uniform white ballots did not stop the chicanery. Some parties used paper of different textures so that party observers who handled the ballots at the polls would know how a person had voted.

In an effort to bring integrity to polling, the United States went to Australia for a new system. It borrowed the Australian ballot, officially printed with an honest listing of candidates and intended to be secretly marked.

"Kangaroo voting," as it was first called, was adopted by Louisville, Kentucky, and by Massachusetts in 1888, then by New York, Michigan, and other states. The ballot is still used, even in voting machines.

Variety of Days

Originally, each state could fix its own national election day. In 1884, 15 states voted on the first Monday in November, two on the second Monday, four on the first Tuesday, and so on.

Lack of uniformity led to scandals such as "pipe-laying" — the practice of sending political gangs across state lines to vote more than once on the different election days.

In 1845, Congress passed a law setting the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November as presidential election day. In 1872, this same Tuesday was set aside for the Nation to vote for Members of Congress and, in 1913, for Senators.

Originally, November was selected as the most convenient time for a rural nation to go to the polls.

"Harvesting is over then, and winter has not yet made the roads impassable," said Ohio Representative Alexander Duncan, in writing the 1845 law.

Davie County Seeks To Join—

The Red Cross Blood Program

The Davie County Chapter of the American Red Cross has instituted a move designed to bring this county into the Piedmont Carolinas Blood Program of that organization. If enough support and interest is manifested within the next few weeks, the county will probably be accepted into this program on a provisional basis, with full acceptance dependent on how the county actually participates.

The Piedmont Carolinas Regional Blood Program was established in September 1948 for the purpose of collecting, processing and distributing blood to meet the needs of patients in the hospitals served by the program. The regional center is located in Charlotte, N. C. at 2425 Park Road.

There are 44 Red Cross chapters participating. Blood and derivatives are provided to 80 hospitals served by the program. Blood is also supplied to four Veterans Administration Hospitals in North Carolina.

All hospitals in this region, except one, receive blood to meet their total needs. Any bonafide resident of the regional area can have his blood needs met by the Piedmont Carolinas Regional Blood program anywhere in the United States . . . provided the hospital concerned will accept Red Cross blood on a pint-for-pint and type-for-type basis.

A person giving blood through the Red Cross program will receive a card which entitles him and his immediate family and dependents to receive blood as needed for a period of 12 months after date of donation. Credit card holders are not asked to replace blood used. Two gallon donors receive lifetime card.

If 40% of the employees of a company employing less than 1,000 persons give blood once every 12 months, the blood needs of all the employees will be met and no replacement will be necessary. Companies employing 1,000 or more persons need only 30% to qualify for coverage.

A participating county must replace all blood used under this program. Based on the population, blood program officials feel that Davie County will use around 500 pints per year. This will be collected in four visits by the bloodmobile at which time 125 pints will be taken.

Over 80,000 pints of blood each year are required to meet the needs of the 2,000,000 population served through the Piedmont Carolinas Regional Blood Program.

This program is endorsed by the North Carolina Medical Society, the South Carolina Medical Society, and various other medical organizations.

WASHINGTON REPORT

BY CONGRESSMAN JAMES T. BROYHILL

Since January 4, 1965, the 89th Congress turned its attention to any encyclopedic list of subject material dealing with hundreds of aspects of American life. The record books will not be closed until President Johnson can give final attention to the stack of bills the Congress sent to the White House in its final days. However, the box score of these past two years shows the dimensions of the activity that has taken place on Capitol Hill.

A total of 26,566 bills and resolutions were introduced in the House and Senate, constituting a blizzard of ideas for new laws and declarations of purpose. Of these, 4,156 measures were passed by the House and Senate. All this has resulted in 694 new public laws, the figure to increase considerably when the President signs the measures awaiting his attention. More than 387 private laws will soon have been enacted to assist individuals in matters where special legislation is passed because the application of the general law would mean unfairness or undue hardship.

Each Congressman and Senator cast several thousand votes. There were 407 roll call votes in the House of Representatives and 497 in the Senate.

So far, the President had vetoed nine bills. Neither the House nor the Senate has overridden a veto during the two years.

The debates which spread through the 3,361 hours of the formal sessions of the House and Senate are contained in 55-326 pages of fine print in the Congressional Record. Hearings of the legislative committees total another million printed pages. Several thousand explanatory committee reports complete the historical record which will be poured over by the courts, administrators, and students of government in the future as questions arise about what Congress intended.

Among the essential responsibilities of the Congress is the appropriation of funds to operate the Federal government. This function plus the responsibility for tax laws are part of the complicated process of "paying the bill." In the session just ended, Congress appropriated $130.5 billion to run the government, primarily from July 1, 1966 to June 30, 1967, $883 million less than the President had requested. Over the two years, $284 billion was appropriated, setting a new record as it exceeds by $59 billion the $205 billion appropriated during the first two years of World War II. To accommodate the requirement for funds, the national debt limit was necessarily increased, the abolishing of old excise taxes was cancelled, and collections of personal and corporate income taxes were speeded up.

There will be arguments for many years about the effectiveness of the past Congress. These are value judgements which, like beauty, are in the eye of the beholder. However, there is no question that the massive "shopping lists" of legislation must now be studied in terms of requirements and costs. The Federal government has taken on vast new commitments. Whether the promises the Congress has made can be fulfilled is a serious question that demands study.

One year ago, after a hectic ten months of mass-produced legislation, it was concluded that second session of the 89th Congress would need to refine and resubmit much of what it had hastily enacted. The need was urgent. However, last January Congress embarked upon a huge new list of legislation which has, until recently, absorbed its attraction completely, leaving virtually no time for the Congress to exercise another of its essential responsibilities — the vigilant overseeing of administration.

Woodrow Wilson's analytical comment about the oversight function is being recalled in Washington. Wilson observed: "It is the proper duty of a representative body to look diligently into every affair of government and to talk much about what it sees. It is meant to be the eyes and the voice, and to embody the wisdom and will of its constituents. Unless Congress have and use every means of acquainting itself with the acts and the disposition of the administrative agents of the government, the country must be helpless to learn how it is being served; and unless Congress both scrutinize these things and sift them by every form of discussion, the country must remain in embarrassing, crippling ignorance of the very affairs which it is most important that it should understand and direct. The informing function of Congress should be preferred even to its legislative function."

There will be disagreement about whether the informing function is more important than the legislative function. Still, there must be a healthy balance of both.

There must be a healthy balance of both.

News and Comment from Our Raleigh Bureau

PETITION . . . Into the Legislature some eight years ago came a bill admittedly written to put a crimp into the trading stamp business in North Carolina.

It was estimated that passage of the measure would reduce the cost of groceries between two and three per cent. A feature of the bill fixed it so that the stamp companies would annually turn over to be Escheats Fund of the University of North Carolina an amount of money equaling the value of unused stamps; stamps never turned in by the housewife for appliances, pillowcases, etc.

There were other tax gimmicks tied to the bill. In general, legislators seemed to like it. But Smith, Leach, Anderson, and Dorsett, the Raleigh law firm employed by the stamp companies to kill it, said it was strictly punitive and would run the stamp outfits out of this State. This was doubtful. But it was rough legislation, no doubt there.

Jim Vogler, then as now, a Mecklenburg County representative in the House, was also head of the N. C. Food Dealers Association. His people supported the bill. A large percentage of those using stamps to help sell groceries wanted out; and the competition from other stores took them into stamps and kept them there.

Then one fine weekend the legislators went home. They felt as if they had stepped into a hornets' nest, and they had. The housewives swarmed all over them. Not only that, but at the checkout counters these lovely women signed petitions asking that the Legislature not take from them the fun of the stamps. Hang the cost.

On Monday night when the General Assembly convened after that terrible weekend those long petitions piled like cordwood on lawmakers' desks. The grocers gave up. The Bill died aborning.

Now trading stamps have become a way of life in all types of firms. Only Kansas of the 50 states has a law against them. With the support of the women, they have brought in more business wherever used. And those who signed the petitions in yesteryear are on the boycott today.

Daniel . . . The current issue of Esquire Magazine has two paintings of E. C. Daniel, Jr., native of Zebulon and managing editor of the New York Times.

The article about Daniel is as long as from here to the street — and twice as interesting. It should be required reading for every Tarheel.

Harold Hayes, nephew of Judge Johnson J. Hayes of North Wilkesboro, is editor of Esquire.

AT THE FAIR . . . When the State Fair opened up its exhibit booths ten years ago to political advertising (Democrats, then Republicans, then various candidates), it opened a bag of trouble.

The rumor here is that if it is left up to Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham (and his Board of Agriculture), future State Fairs will have absolutely none of this.

Watch developments here.

OUT OF HAND . . . What is good and what is not good in fair booths and exhibits.

Recently, thousands and thousands of people visited the great Greensboro Fair. While there they saw the exhibit known as "Universal Crusade for Christ."

But the North Carolina State Board of Public Welfare in a release dated October 18 said: "The North Carolina Board of Welfare is officially requesting that the Universal Crusade for Christ refrain from further solicitations in North Carolina until it has qualified for and received license issued in accordance with the provisions of the North Carolina solicitation law."

In other words, it is difficult for anybody—even you—to tell what is right and what is wrong in this modern day.

SEEMS REASONABLE . . . Information reaching this corner indicates that East Carolina College Board Chairman Robert Morgan—and not President Leo Jenkins—is the person back of the postponement of the trustees' meeting to November 3.

It had originally been set for mid-October. Morgan had to leave on October 15 for active duty as a Lt. Commander with the Naval Reserve in Puerto Rico. He was scheduled to return this past October 31. This adds up as the real reason—and not any row between President Jenkins and the trustees—for the delay.

NOTES . . . Prosperity Note: The Farm Bureau will hold its national meeting this year in Las Vegas, Nev. . . . the second week in December . . . incidentally, one of the largest state groups—and probably the best-managed—is the Farm Bureau in North Carolina . . . State Agriculture officials point to the fact that a five-pound turkey this Thanksgiving . . . oven-ready . . . will be about 75 cents less than at same time in 1965 . . . about $1.86 as against around $2.75 in '65 . . .

An important meeting of the N. C. Highway Users Conference is set for Raleigh . . . Thursday, November 3. Big news in highways every day!

Senator
Sam Ervin
Says:

MORGANTON — The second session of the 89th Congress which turned out a volume of legislation, also was noted for what it did not do.

On many legislative proposals, Congress said "no" in emphatic fashion, and to a degree there was a change of mood against launching new controls over individuals and state governments.

The so-called civil rights proposals were indicative of this mood. The measure failed for many reasons, but generally there was the feeling that the provisions would place federal controls over areas that ought to be reserved to individuals and their local governments.

Title II of this poorly drafted bill sought to control state juror selections. This would have made a serious inroad into fundamental principles that have governed our court system since the founding of the Republic. Title IV provisions were unpopular because they undertook to specify that every American owning any residential property or any rental property for residential purposes should be robbed of a basic right to determine for himself to whom he wished to sell or rent his property. This forced housing section of the bill would have curtailed a basic liberty and a right that ought not to be abolished by Federal law. For months during the session, I battled against this measure. I am pleased that Congress did not enact this unwise piece of legislation.

Congress preserved liberty in another area of the law. Section 14 (b) of the Taft-Hartley Act was not repealed even though a major battle occurred when proponents undertook to repeal state right-to-work laws. I fought against the repeal of Section 14(b) because I believe that every man should have the freedom to decide for himself whether he will join or refrain from joining a union.

The proposal to federalize standards for the unemployment compensation system was rejected by Congress. I opposed the federalization of state unemployment benefits, because I think the power to prescribe the award of this compensation should be left in the states. I am a great believer in unemployment compensation insurance, but I think there is a danger in concentrating all rules and regulations governing such benefits in a central government located on the banks of the Potomac. Governmental reform was sought in many legislative proposals, most of which were not approved. Home rule for the District of Columbia, a constitutional amendment to permit the states to apportion one house of the state assembly on a basis other than population, firearms control, four-year house terms, and electoral college revision, all failed to win approval. Most of these reforms are likely to be on the Congressional calendar next session.

Left over too is the question of what to do about inflation and a host of monetary problems growing out of the Vietnam War. The long session which ended October 22nd brought some stern tests. The 90th Congress will have its share too.

60-Second Sermon

By FRED DODGE

TEXT: "Leisure is only a cup. What we fill it with, is what counts." - Anon.

"Mummy," the little girl asked, "what is leisure?"

"Leisure," was the reply, "is the spare time a mother has in which to do some other kind of work."

Everyone strives for leisure, yet know what to do with it. Most people with leisure feel so guilty that, in the name of "recreation" they employ speed and noise and physical exhaustion to hide their shame. They are afraid to be alone with themselves. It would bore them to death to rest, read, re-create their resources and enrich their lives with the leisure at their command. Shallow, surface living is responsible for the continual upset in most troubled lives. They have no depth, no calm sanctuary into which they can withdraw to restore their strength. Living only on the surface, they ruffle easily and tire quickly.

Leisure can be a blessing or a curse. It is with what we fill our leisure that counts. Back in 1776, Charles Lamb wrote of his leisure, "I no longer hunt after pleasure; I let it come to me." Play "hard to get". Don't knock yourself out, seeking pleasuring. Let pleasure come to you. You'll live longer and be a lot happier doing it.

HOPE FOR HEARTS

A new discovery on the function of the heart, which originated in the theory of a first-year UNC medical student, was disclosed today to scientists attending the American Heart Association's 39th Annual Scientific Sessions in New York.

Reporting on the findings of a year-long study, Dr. Benson R. Wilcox, assistant professor at the UNC School of Medicine, said that the vena cava, one of the large veins returning blood to the heart, had been found to have muscle tissue similar to that of the heart itself, and that the vein's muscular tissue actually aids the heart in its blood-pumping action.

The discovery, Dr. Wilcox said, was the result of a theory developed five years ago by Hugh A. McAllister, Jr. of Lumberton. McAllister, who received his M. D. degree from UNC in June, reported his observations, suggested further investigation and assisted Dr. Wilcox in the research during his last term as a senior medical student. Dr. McAllister is now on active duty in the Army.

In making their discovery, the UNC research team attached metal strips, called strain gauges, to the superior vena cava and two of the heart chambers—the right atrium and right ventricle—of laboratory animals.

As pumping contractions occurred, electrical impulses generated by movement in the strain gauges were relayed to a timing device.

The experiment showed that the superior vena cava does contract rhythmically in the manner of a muscle, partly closing just before the contraction of the right atrium and occasionally at the same time.

That part of the vein which contracts appears to function in the manner of a sphincter or doughnut-shaped muscle, slowing down the backflow of blood into the vein and helping to maintain a favorable pressure to assist in filling the heart's right ventricle with blood.

The researchers plan further study of the new discovery to determine whether the human vena cava functions in the same manner as those in the laboratory animals used in the study.

The research was supported by a grant from the National Institutes of Health.

Hints For Savings On Household Equipment

really needs and will use all pieces in the set.

Buy only convenience features that are worthwhile to the family. Standard models will perform the same basic job as deluxe models. Convenience features save labor, but are they worth it? Deluxe models cost more to buy and more to repair.

Pay cash for equipment and save

North Carolina consumers can realize savings on household equipment. But it takes careful planning when buying, operating, and repairing equipment, Mrs. West, extension home economics agent, Davie County, observes.

Basically a consumer can save household equipment dollars by buying a quality product that meets the family's needs, using it in an efficient manner, and giving equipment the care and repair it needs.

Here are some guides that may help:

Buy a well-known brand from a reliable dealer who offers service locally. This is especially important for major appliances. Service calls from a distance may increase the cost.

Money can usually be saved by buying from a local dealer, Mrs. West points out. Household equipment sold door-to-door is usually more expensive to buy and to get serviced, she explains.

Buy only equipment that is needed and that can contribute to the family's needs. Much money can be wasted on small household tools and gadgets that are never used. A consumer should buy "sets" of equipment only when the family the costs of credit. If using credit, shop around for the best source. Make as large a down payment as possible and pay the remainder as quickly as possible to cut down on the costs of credit. Mrs. West recommends.

When possible, buy equipment during sales, or after new models are out. Last year's equipment does not depreciate so fast as last year's automobile.

Follow the equipment manufacturer's recommendations for use and care. Proper use and care will prolong life.

Trade-in value on equipment is low so save money by using equipment as long as it gives satisfactory service rather than replacing it with a more modern model.

Davidson Community College Sets New Classes

Davidson County Community College announced today that two new MDTA (Manpower Development Training Act) programs have been approved and funded by the federal government effective October 19, 1966.

These are programs in Welding and Machine Shop. Classes in each will start on November 14 and last until August 11, 1967. This will amount to 36 weeks of instruction with the students attending school from 8:00 a. m. until 5:00 p. m. 5 days per week. All classes will be held at the Community College's Vocational-Technical Building.

Tuition for these programs is paid in full by the federal government which also provides a subsistence stipend for the students. Each class will be limited in size; however, there are still openings. Recruitment is being handled by the North Carolina Employment Security Commission. Anyone interested in either program is urged to contact the Employment Security Commission.

Catawba College Chapel Carillon To Be Dedicated

The 75-bell "America" carillon in the Catawba College Chapel will be formally dedicated with a public recital Sunday, November 13 by the world-famous carillonneur John Klein. The carillon was a gift to the college and the new chapel in memory of Lotan A. Corriher and Mrs. Ida Linn Corriher of Landis by their family. Mr. Corriher was a long-time member of Catawba's board of trustees and benefactor of the school.

The dedication service and recital will be held in the chapel November 13 at 4 p. m. and the public is invited.

John Klein is musical director-consultant for Schulmerich Carillons, Inc. who built and installed the instrument. Klein travels widely about the world performing concerts and advising on carillon design and installation.

He was musical-director-consultant for the Coca-Cola pavilion at the New York World's Fair where he, along with other carilloneurs, presented daily recitals on the giant 610-bell carillon specially installed in the pavilion.

Klein's program for the dedication recital at Catawba will include works by Dvorak, Grieg, Mendelssohn, several hymns, the college alma mater, and an original composition, "The Bells of Peace."

Catawba's carillon is an instrument utilizing electronics to produce a sound comparable to that gained with full-sized bells and equipment weighing thousands of pounds.

The local instrument is known as an "America" carillon and consists of 75 miniature bell units of bronze bell metal, which are struck by metal-hammers producing exact true bell tones almost inaudible to the human ear. These bell vibrations are then amplified over one million times by means of specially designed electronic equipment producing true bell music with all the depth and richness of traditional cast bells of massive proportions.

The carillon is played from a special keyboard located in the chancel of the chapel. The instrument also has a special automatic feature that plays selections via a roll at predetermined times of the

Eight Local Families To Get Door Delivery On U. S. Mail Service

Congressman James T. Broyhill has been advised by Postmaster General Lawrence O'Brien in Washington that mail service for 7,653 families in the 9th Congressional District will be converted from curb-line to door delivery. The conversion will be authorized immediately where eligible patrons desire it. Communities affected by this order are Concord, Kennapolis, Granite Falls, Mocksville, Landis, Salisbury, Spencer, Albemarle, Elkin, and Boone.

According to Congressman Broyhill, the number of eligible families in each community as follows: Concord (3305), Kannapolis (469), Granite Falls (173), Mocksville (8), Landis (182), Salisbury (1176), Spencer (22), Albemarle (1862), Elkin (224), and Boone (232).

The cost for this new service is $51,000. Details of how the conversions will be made will be announced locally by the postmasters concerned. The Post Office Department's plan applies only to city delivery service and does not apply to rural route delivery. An eligible home is one located within a residential area that is at least 50% developed and is inside the service area of the specific post office.

Congressman Broyhill, a member of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee, expressed approval of the action by the Postmaster General. "I have been concerned," he said, "that new residential areas in many of our towns and cities have not been receiving fair treatment in mail delivery service. The normal expansion of door-to-door delivery has been forbidden under a Post Office Department order issued in May 1963. I think the Postmaster General's conclusion is right that this ban has been inequitable and a contributing factor to mail service problems. The rescinding of the ban is an important step in improving postal service and it will certainly be welcomed by the many families affected."

Mrs. Gordon Maddrey Is State Christmas Seal Chairman For 1966

Mrs. C. Gordon Maddrey, former president of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs, and an organizer of the North Carolina Council of Women's Organizations will be the 1966 State Christmas Seal Chairman. The announcement was made by Dr. W. H. Gentry, President of the North Carolina Tuberculosis Association.

MRS. C. GORDON MADDREY

In making the announcement, Dr. Gentry said, "We are indeed honored and fortunate to have Mrs. Maddrey lend her support to the Christmas Seal Campaign this year. Mrs. Maddrey is one of North Carolina's finest citizens with a genuine interest in people."

A native of Ahsokie, now living in Raleigh, Mrs. Maddrey is a graduate of Meredith College with a M. A. degree in Political Science from Columbia University.

For thirty years, Mrs. Maddrey has been active in the work of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs. She was Chairman of the Fine Arts Department, General Federation of Women's Clubs, 1962-1964. Under her direction several states ended $1,000 seats in the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts. She is currently serving as President of District 8 of the North Carolina Federation and Chairman of the Public Affairs Department of the Raleigh Woman's Club.

Mrs. Maddrey's interest in people is further shown in that under her leadership, the Scholarship Fund of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs was increased by $20,000. She also chaired a committee which raised $15,000 for the North Carolina Training School for Girls (Samaracand). She served for 7 years as a member of the Board of Trustees of the North Carolina Orthopedic Hospital in Gastonia.

Mrs. Maddrey is a devoted church worker, being a member of the First Baptist Church of Raleigh; member of the Board of Deacons; teacher of the Women's Bible Class; and President of the Woman's Missionary Union.

For five years Mrs. Maddrey was President of the 160,000 member North Carolina Baptist Woman's Missionary Union and was the only woman elected to membership of the Executive Committee of the Southern Baptist Convention, a position she held for 9 years.

"The participation of Mrs. Maddrey in the campaign will help draw the attention of the state once more to the significance of people and the Christmas Seal in the fight against tuberculosis, emphysema and other respiratory diseases," Dr. Gentry stated.

Mrs. Maddrey is the wife of C. Gordon Maddrey, Executive Secretary of the North Carolina Baptist Foundation and they have two sons.

Draft Registrants Have Rights Under Law

Ignorance of the law excuses no one.

That is something everybody has heard, and it applies to a draft board's deliberations and actions, as well as to any other agency set up to administer public law.

The law makes it the responsibility of the individual registrant to do everything that the law requires of him. The law requires him to do these things within a certain time limit. If he doesn't do them, he can lose many privileges and rights given him under the law.

"It is the duty of every man registered with a draft board to be alert and protect his rights under the law," advises Mr. S. M. Call, Chairman, Local Board No. 30, Davie County.

"Certainly it is the moral responsibility of parents to have their sons make themselves aware of the necessity of complying with all provisions of law and regulations," he says.

"It is too bad that registrants, parents, and employers often sleep on their rights until it is too late, or extremely difficult under our regulations, to do anything about their cases," he says.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Glasscock visited Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Anderson at Center Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Call says that sometimes a registrant, parents, or an employer never request anything at the board until after an order to report for induction is issued.

Registered men, parents, and employers should begin to concern themselves about the Selective Service law and regulations immediately after men register, Mr. Call points out.

The Chairman reminds all registrants, their parents, employers, public officials and citizens in general that the personnel of North Carolina draft boards are always available to tell the people how to get information and help with draft problems.

The modern production facility will employ 600 persons when it reaches full operation, according to Mr. Leonard Stein of the BVD Company. Mr. Stein further stated that they were extremely pleased with their selection of Mocksville which is an ideal community and location for this operation.

"Mocksville was selected after a survey covering many towns over three states. "We expect to have this plant in operation by early summer," stated Mr. Lee R. McClure, Executive Vice President of Kahn-Southern, the firm which made the plant location study and is also designing and building the $2 million facility. According to Mr. McClure, this will be a completely modern air conditioned facility featuring high level lighting and many other conveniences. ASCS News

J. N. Smoot, Chairman of the Davie ASC County Committee, announced today that Davie County Committee, announced today that Davie County has been designated as an emergency area. Under this designation farmers in the county may apply at the ASCS county office for the purchase of surplus OCC corn at a rate equal to 90% of the base price where corn is to be used in feeding foundation livestock herds and 115% of the base price for secondary livestock. The price for corn for primary livestock in the county is $1,2240 per bushel and for secondary livestock the price is $1,5840 per bushel.

Interested farmers may visit their local ASCS county office at any time during office hours and make deposit for the amount of corn they would like to receive. There is a possibility that there might be a waiting period while the corn is being shipped into the county.

This program was requested by the local county USDA disaster committee of which Mr. Smoot, Chairman of the ASC county committee is chairman. The sale of corn should not help farmers at a time when livestock feed is vitally needed, but it will also help reduce Government stocks and thereby reduce storage costs.

Library News

The library will be closed on November 11, for Veteran's Day, and November 24 for Thanksgiving.

STORY HOUR SCHEDULE CHANGED

Because of the large number of children who have enrolled in the Play School-Story Hour, the group is being divided as follows:

- 1. 5 years old (children starting to school next year) will come to the library at 9:30 a. m. the second and fourth Tuesday of each month.
2. 4 years olds (starting to school year after next) will come to the library at 9:30 a. m. the first and third Tuesday of each month.

Both groups will move on to the Methodist Church where they will finish at 11:30 a. m. The children will continue to check out books and keep them two weeks.

If there are those parents who can help one time a month or who would be willing to be "in charge" of one of the above age groups, facilities may be worked out to have all the children each week. Until further notice, please bring your child every other week.

Mrs. Don Wood and Mrs. J. E. Kelly, Jr., direct the Play-School-Story Hour. On November 1, Mrs. Walter Graham told the children a Thanksgiving story.

Tattle-Tales

By Gordon Tomlinson

One confirmed liquor drinker of this area may today be cured from the practice of chug-a-lug.

According to the story of a local woman, this is what happened.

She was supposed to take a specimen to the doctor. Searching the house over, all she could find in the bottle line was a pint whiskey bottle. This she used for her specimen.

She laid the bottle on the front seat of her car and on her way to the doctor she stopped by the grocery store. When she came out . . . the bottle was gone.

Somewhere in this land there is probably a man today that agrees with the statement . . . "Some liquor tastes like . . . !!!"

Steve Blackwelder broke his wrist playing football . . . and of course it was put in a cast.

Then one day at school he was scuffling around . . . and used his arm in the cast to break his fall.

The cast cracked . . . and so did his wrist again.

Steve is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Blackwelder which he says explains everything.

"Being Lester's son . . . anything can happen . . . and usually does!!!"

MOHAWKS SEEK ACTION

The Central Davie Mohawks who are on a District Championship winning streak are determining to continue it by putting forth another year of audacious victories.

The team is now in the process of practicing and shaping up for the season.
Due to the fact of eligibility, there will be two returning seniors, that will not be able to play until the second semester. They are Lewis Peebles and David Dalton.

Coach Studevent said that the eligibilities will make a difference, and the success of the team is due to the fact of how well the other boys shape up.

Returning for more action this year will be the two back court aces Eric Hudson, and Elliott Wilkes.
The Mohawks will seek their first season action Tuesday night Nov. 8, against Unity High School.

The Mohawkets are now in the midst of shaping up. Coach J. E. Sultar stated that they are looking forward to a most exciting as well as victorious basketball season. They are scheduled to play 18 games this season.

The Mohawks, with an undefeated home court record dating back to 1964 will be out to strengthen it Friday night Nov. 11, as they will battle against the Green Hawks of Unity High School.

The BVD Company - - - Our Newest Citizen

The official announcement this week by the nationally known BVD Company of their plans to locate a large plant in Mocksville is most welcome.

The construction of this new 160,000 square foot manufacturing and distribution facility is already underway on Milling Road. Plans are to have this plant in operation by this summer.

This plant will be of the most modern design & feature modern air conditioning, high level lighting & many other conveniences. The estimated construction and equipping cost will be around $2-million.

This modern production facility will employ 600 persons when it reaches full operation. Items to be manufactured from this plant will include knit shirts and other apparel of the nationally advertised BVD line.

All citizens of Davie can take great pride in the fact that this community was chosen as the location of this modern facility. In making the announcement, Leonard Stein, an official of the BVD Company said:

"We are extremely pleased with the selection of Mocksville which is an ideal community and location for this operation. Mocksville was selected after a survey covering many towns over three states. The main factors leading to the selection of Mocksville were the availability of a good labor force, favorable geographic location for distribution purposes, a good plant site, and, far from least, the very friendly community attitude that made us feel wanted".

It is always a great compliment when others want to join you and become a part of your way of life. The complimentary words of Mr. Stein therefore are given the utmost emphasis when accompanied by the fact that his company is already expending time, effort and money to locate here and become a part of our community life.

So it is with great pride and eager anticipation of a promising future that we extend a most hearty welcome to the BVD Company. The people of Davie County will do all in their power to justify your faith.

An Occasion To Be Observed By All—

Veterans Day Is November 11th

Veterans Day . . . November 11, 1966 . . . is a day which can be of great significance to the citizens of this community and all Americans. This is a day, set aside by a grateful nation, to honor the men and women who have met the greatest obligation of their American citizenship — honorable service in the armed forces of their country in time of war.

Millions of America's sons and daughters have valiantly served their country in time of war, demonstrating the capability and willingness of our ordinary, private citizens to make any sacrifice necessary for the cause of freedom.

Upon their return to civilian life, America's veterans have demonstrated an exemplary stability and responsibility in our society . . . as compared with the unrest experienced among veterans in other lands . . . reflecting their respect for the precious heritage they have helped to preserve.

Their example should give confidence to all Americans. It proves our nation's capability of meeting the challenges of both today and tomorrow. When the survival of this nation and its ideals is at stake, Americans must continue to show the same courage, loyalty, and sacrifice on the peace already set by our veterans.

This is a day for each of us to not only reassert our pride in being an American and our will to maintain this country's military, economic, and spiritual strength, but also dedicate our endeavors toward world peace with honor.

American veterans know full well the horrible price of war and also the value of an honorable peace. It is indeed appropriate that the Congress . . . in setting aside November 11 as Veterans Day, should ask that the day be used to honor the veterans of all wars and to express our nation's dedication to peace with honor.

This occasion deserves the participation of every man, woman and child in this county if the nationwide observance is to transmit the message of Veterans Day to the entire world.

In Theodore Roosevelt's Opinion

Nine Reasons For Going To Church

First: In this actual world a churchless community, a community where men have abandoned and scoffed at or ignored their religious needs, is a community on the rapid down grade.

Second: Church work and church attendance mean the cultivation of the habit of feeling some responsibility for others.

Third: There are enough holidays for most of us. Sundays differ from other holidays in the fact that there are fifty-two of them every year . . . Therefore on Sundays go to church.

Fourth: Yes, I know all the excuses. I know that one can worship the Creator in a grove of trees, or by a running brook, or in a man's house just as well as in a church. But I also know as a matter of cold fact the average man does not thus worship.

Fifth: He may not hear a good sermon at church. He will hear a good sermon by a good man, who, with his good wife, is engaged all the week in making hard lives a little easier.

Sixth: He will listen to and take part in reading some beautiful passages from the Bible and if he is not familiar with the Bible, he has suffered a loss.

Seventh: He will take part in singing some good hymns.

Eighth: He will meet and nod or speak to good, quiet neighbors. He will come away feeling a little more charitable toward all the world, even toward those excessively foolish young men who regard church going as a soft performance.

Ninth: I advocate a man's joining in church work for the sake of showing his faith by his works.

The above is a scene of the excavation on Milling Road for the new BVD plant. This new plant was announced for Mocksville this week. When completed, employment is expected to be around 600. The plant will manufacture knitwear products. The plant is being constructed by Kahn-Southern, the firm which made the plant location study and designed the $2-million facility.

News and Comment from Our Raleigh Bureau

THREE NEXT? . . . The inspection of your auto this year did not amount to a great deal, as you know. But it was a beginning—and all the 1965 Legislature felt you would put up with at the start.

Now as it moves smoothly along, however, it is obvious that the average Tarheel is ready for inspection. So, you have had a sampling—and you reacted in the right way—so start preparing for the real thing.

Just how extensive the next inspection round will be nobody knows, but the 1967 Legislature will sharpen the test. This is certain—and prepare for a rigid tire inspection next year as one of the musts.

THE WEDDING . . . Wake Forest College officials and alumni will tell you in private—or in public—that the very nicest thing that has happened to the old school in recent years is their securing former Gov. Terry Sanford to be general chairman of the $77,000,000 drive to convert the institution into a university.

Much of the credit for this coup is given to State Sen. Bert Bennett of Winston-Salem, one of Sanford's oldest and most loyal friends.

Bennett and Supreme Court Justice Joe Branch are heading the Wake Forest Stadium drive. Branch is a Wake alumnus, but Bennett like Sanford is an UNC graduate.

Terry Sanford, also, is a Methodist, and has been—and may still be—chairman of the Board of Trustees of the new Methodist College at Fayetteville. He was the moving spirit behind its establishment.

Thus you see Sanford ever broadening his base of operations. This is much the same way J. M. Broughton worked a generation ago. Although as Baptist as John, he did not confine his interests to that denomination. He had a wide and diverse following of church people.

If the Sanford affiliation is good for the Baptists—and it is—put it down as doubly good for the man who plans to run against U. S. Sen. Sam Ervin a year from next spring.

TRAVELERS . . . As keepers of Variety Vacationland, North Carolinians like to welcome tourists to our midst—and are doing a better job of it all the time thanks to some projects of Gov. Moore.

Now, not only are we good greeters: but we—more and more all the time, seems—like to travel ourselves. Right now we have about 100 Tarheels in various sections of Europe, whooping it up and advertising North Carolina as a good place in which to live, die, do business.

Now coming up, and sponsored by the N. C. Travel Council, will be a week's trip into Florida—January 21-23. Gov. Moore is in Europe. The Florida come-visit-North Carolina promotion will be headed up by Mrs. Moore. N. C. Traveling was begun by Gov. Hodges . . . and is continuing.

IN OLD MISS . . . Now that Mississippi has at last gone wet, legally, they are coming up with all sorts of mixed drinks never heard of before by the natives. But the tourists love it—

It seems this traveling salesman, back in Mississippi after several months' absence, was surprised to see this sign, "Bar and Grill".

Dying of thirst, he jumped out of his car, went in, and asked: "Is this really a bar?" Told it was, he wanted more information.

"I mean a real bar—serving things like martinis?"

"Why certainly sir," replied the waitress.

The salesman was so overcome that he decided to hang around and celebrate. "Could I have a martini very dry?" he asked, still not quite sure whether to believe it.

"Certainly sir," the waitress answered, "how would you like it with or without grits?"

CAR SALES . . . Ford led Chevrolet, 3,726 to 3,061, in new car sales in North Carolina this past September. Total sales of all makes were 13,456, lower than the 16,220 for August, but higher than the 13,027 for September a year ago.

In September of five years ago total sales were 7,902.

Truck sales in September were 3,065—down sharply from the 4,174 in August—but, again well over the 2,981 for September of last year.

THE WOMEN . . . When it comes to speaking for the greatest geographical area in the 1967 Legislature, Mrs. Mary Faye Brumby of Murphy, State Senator from the 33rd District, will be on top of the heap.

Her counties are Cherokee, Clay, Graham, Jackson, Macon, Swain, and Transylvania. She had no Republican opposition.

LARGEST . . . The largest Senatorial District, however, has two men to speak for them. This is the 1st District, with the counties being Bertie, Camden, Chowan, Currituck, Gates, Hertford, Northampton, Pasquotank, Perquimans, and Washington counties. There are several Congressional Districts in North Carolina much smaller total land area. The Senators are J. J. (Monk) Harrington of Lewiston, in Bertie County, and George Wood of Camden.

Uncle Dave from Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Our preacher give us another sermon on optimism, which he allowed was just a fancy word for hope. He told the congregation folks has got to hope every day that the next day will be better or they was in bad shape.

I bring this item up at the country store Saturday night and the fellers was a little divided on the matter. Bug Hookum said hope depends on who was doing the hoping. For instance, he said he had saw where gamblers lost $166 million in Las Vegas last year, which was good for the optimism of them that owns the gambling places. And he said they was giving Federal workers a three per cent cost of living pay raise in this election year and then was raising the cost of living three per cent for the rest of us. According to Bug, this was hard on the home business.

Ed Doolittle, that has voted the straight Republican ticket since he was 21, which was 54 year ago, said the Government was now operating 100 per cent on the hope theory. For instance, he pointed out that all the fellers at the store was past 65 and was now enjoying Medicare but none of them had used it. The Government, claimed Ed, was hoping the old folks would fill up the hospitals but old folks was a little hospital-shy. Farthermore, he claimed the Great Society was jut getting started in the hope business, that he had saw where he spent $5 million Judicare to give the pore folks free legal service. He perdicted we would soon git Headicare so's folks could git free service from a sykitrist, and after that we would git Shedicare to help folks gitting a divorce, and afore long the Great Society would give us Dededicare to help pay fer funerals.

Zack Grubb announced that the older he gits the less hope he has got. He reported he had saw where he spent $5 million last year to improve tobacco farming and marketing methods and $3.3 million doing research on how tobacco causes cancer. He said he had also saw a piece in the papers where 14 states was asking Congress fer $1 million to git rid of redwing black-birds that was eating 20 per cent of the corn crop in some places. But they was running into a problem because the birds cats the beetles that eats the corn. He figured the Congress would end up giving $1 million to fight the birds and another $1 million to fight the beetles and hope the taxpayers could raise the money.

Personal, Mister Editor. I got to listen to my preacher and keep on hoping. I'm hping the Congress will just let the farmers, the ranchers, the birds and the beetles fight it out amongst themselves and save this money to put in the Dededicare program.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dave

So This Is New York

By NORTH CALLAHAN

Should a man in public life be rich? This is a hard question to answer, especially for the person involved. A recent American Heritage Magazine study points out that Lyndon Johnson is the richest President we have had so far, although the Kennedys had access to more family wealth. George Washington was called the greatest businessman of his time, his average annual income being $15,000. Woodrow Wilson saved $100,000 while he was President but Franklin D. Roosevelt found that it cost him $175,000 annually out of his own pocket to stay in the White House. Herbert Hoover, like Washington, did not accept any salary while being Chief Executive.

Books received lately include several which are of special interest. Charles Scribner's Sons has published, among others, one entitled "Behind the Golden Curtain" by Susan Cooper a young Englishwoman who lives in this country and who views it with a critical eye. "Americans are a wonderful people and have a wonderful country, but what are you doing to it?" she asks, aptly. "Enjoying Opera" by Olga Maynard opens the way for a broader understanding and enjoyment of this art. William A. Owens has written a fascinating book about Pin Hook, Texas where he was born and had to struggle like Lyndon Johnson against natural elements, including the people. Otto Hahn, the "father of nuclear chemistry," has written an autobiography under his own name in which he interestingly reviews his work in atomic fission for which he received the Nobel Prize in 1944. In "The Man Who Stole Portugal" Murray T. Bloom describes how a 28-year-old man, Alves Reis, managed almost to wreck the economy of an entire country by clever counterfeiting money and helped to bring on the most enduring dictatorship of our time. As if to augment the idea of material values, P. J. Fisher in his new book, "The Science of Gems" reveals their rich legendary background, their real value and their importance in industry as well as in jewelry. In the world of novels, there is Leslie Garrett's, "The Beasts" which has been selected in honor of Maxwell Perkins, famous Scribner's editor who felt a good author needed little editing. Then there is "The Price of Blood" by Doris Adams which tells about the England of King Alfred when the Vikings raided the coast of England. In "Sour Cream With Everything" by Joyce Porter, the author re-creates the most loathsome detective in fiction, though entertainingly funny.

In keeping with the forthcoming Bicentennial Celebration, David McKay Company has published the excellent and helpful "Encyclopedia of the American Revolution" by Mark Boatner, which is certain to be a standard work. Admiral E. M. Ellender fittingly calls my attention to

Sam Ervin

Says:

WASHINGTON—The 89th Congress enacted several measures which were of particular significance to North Carolina.

Revision of the tobacco price support programs, abolition of the two price cotton system, and adoption of the Clean Rivers bill augur well for the progress of our State.

North Carolina has a great stake in these programs. At the beginning of the 89th Congress the tobacco program had serious overproduction problems. Along with Senator Jordan and Congressman Cooley, I introduced a new acreage-poundage bill to revise the tobacco allotment program which became law. The importance of this measure stems from the fact that North Carolina leads the Nation in cash receipts obtained from tobacco. For this reason, this legislation along with legislation which abolished two price cotton represented important milestones in our State's agriculture and industrial progress.

The Clean Rivers bill, which I co-sponsored, brings new emphasis to our State and to the Nation in the effort to purify our streams and lakes and improve sanitary conditions. Individuals and industry both will benefit from this program to clean up our water supplies. I think the Clean Rivers bill portends more for the good of our Nation than any other single piece of legislation enacted by the 89th Congress.

Water projects for many areas of our State won approval and represent a strengthening of our water resources and coastline protection against the ravages of hurricanes. Another measure of significance to our State is the extension of the Federal-Aid Highway Act. The link-up of interstate highways in the region will mean much to North Carolina.

Two national measures of long standing interest to me were the Immigration Act and the Presidential Succession Amendment, both of which were approved by the Congress.

Revision of the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act was a task of major importance. I have always believed in the National Origins Quota System, but it soon became apparent that the revision of this system would take place. I decided to try to get the best immigration law obtainable under the circumstances and worked toward that goal. As a result, I succeeded in securing an amendment to the bill to restrict immigration from the Western Hemisphere. Two years from now, this provision will go in effect, and I think it will aid our country in keeping population within reasonable bounds and in the battle to continue good living standards for our people.

The Presidential Succession Amendment to the Constitution was a measure that I worked on a great deal. I trust that it will become a part of the organic law of the Nation, because it closes a gap in our Presidential inability and succession laws.

Next week I will review other measures which I proposed which were approved by the recent Congress and also some of the unfinished measures which I expect to press for action at the next session.

TEXT: "Each man has an aptitude born with him." - Emerson.

Two men were discussing talent. One said, "The most creative thinker, the most talented and greatest man who ever lived was Billows. He was brilliant, broad-minded, tolerant, generous, impetuous; yet, he died with his talents unsuspected by the world."

"Well, how did you find out about him?" asked the friend. "I married his widow."

Few people think they have a special talent until someone believes they do. Even then, genuine talent rarely is convinced. Actually, we aren't as mediocre as we think we are. It is said that we use less than 10% of our powers. Think of (Continued on Page 3) what tremendous talent lies hidden in our idle 90%.

A discerning teacher once said that many boys and girls do not realize that they are exceptionally bright, simply because neither their teachers nor their parents have discovered the talents that are born in them.

Do not count yourself out of the talent competition because your talent hasn't been discovered and developed. You are born with an aptitude. Keep straining to find it. Then use it. Don't carry it to your grave, unsuspected by the world. And if you discover talent in someone else, tell about it. The world needs your talent for discovery, too.

What a wonderful feeling to live with flameless electric heating

(why not change over now?)

Now, clean invisible electricity at a cost you can easily afford. And what a wonderful feeling. You have no sensation of heat. Its gentle warmth is just there. It saves you money on redecorating and maintenance. And you live with a sense of well-being that makes you feel like a million all winter long. More than 2,500,000 families like yours have already discovered that flameless electric heating is reasonable to own and operate. 20 Seniors To Play Final Game Friday Night At North Rowan

The Davie County High School Rebels will close out it's 1966 season Friday night at Spencer against their arch rivals, North Rowan.

Twenty seniors will close out their high school football careers in this game. They are:

Don Williams, Tom Bruebaker, Eddie Legans and Lewis Isaac, ends; Romie Chaffin, Virgil Bright, Mike Holcomb, David Frye and Hugh Frost, tackles; John Ferebee, Ronnie Sain and Ronnie Riddle, guards; Rick Cartner and Edgar Osborne, centers; Tom Cook, Steve Walker and Phil Deadmon, quarterbacks; Garland Allen, Randall Ward and Jerry Hendrix, halfbacks.

Last Friday night Central Davidson exploded for 12 points in the third quarter to overcome an eight-point halftime deficit and went on to beat the Rebels, 18-14.

Davie scored first when Randall

Ward went over from the one-yard line with 4:39 left in the first quarter. Jerry Hendrix added the extra point on a run.

Central Davidson came back to score on a 34-yard pass play. Cross to Brewer. The kick for the extra point failed.

In the second quarter, Jerry Hendrix intercepted a pass on his own five and returned to the 20 to ignite a Davie drive. Ward again carried over for the TD and Garland Allen added the extra point on a run.

Central Davidson came back after halftime to explode for two touchdowns and held Davie scoreless to rack up the victory.

Davie had six first downs, five of which were in the first half. Central Davidson had 12 first downs.

The loss left Davie with a record of 3 wins, 2 losses, and 3 ties for the season.

One Foot in Heaven from the Novel by Hartzell Spence, dramatized by Anne Coulter Martens, will be presented by the Junior Class of Davie County High School, Monday, November 21 in the auditorium of the Mocksville Elementary School at 7:30 P. M.

This is a very unusual play as the vigorous Reverend Spence and his high school age children are a typical American family with all of the extra troubles which happens to a preacher's family. There are up-riarous complications, with a delightful whirlwind conclusion which makes for a wonderful laugh-packed evening.

Bill Campbell plays the part of the minister. The role of the minister's wife will be played by Shirley Young, Hartzell, the minister's son, will be played by Kenny (Kenneth) Eaton. Janie Howard plays the role of Eileen, the minister's daughter. Other characters who add spice and enjoyment to this play are:

Dr. Romer played by Bill Johnson; Louise played by Pat Gales; Maria played by Darlene Godbey; Molly played by Betty Durham; Ronny played by Arnold Harpe; Letty played by Cathy Spry; Mrs. Sandow played by June Harris; Mrs. Digby played by Janice James; George played by Eddie Tomlinson; Mrs. Cambridge played by Bellinda Potts; Mrs. Jellison played by Suzanne Martin; Major Cooper played by Michael Seamon; Bishop Sherwood played by Gene Johnson; Reverend Frazer Spence played by Michael Barney.

The play is directed by Miss Claire Wall, Mrs. Jo Beam and Mrs. Joyce Hart.

ONE FOOT IN HEAVEN is produced by special arrangement with the Dramatic Publishing Company of Chicago.

At Bryan Cabin Site Near Pino —

Historical Ceremony To Be Held

A ceremony that may have some historical significance will take place next Wednesday, November 23rd, in the Pino section of Davie County.

Historical tradition has established that Morgan Bryan settled in that general area of the county in the 1740's. His son, William Bryan married Mary Boone, daughter of Squire and Sarah Boone. The cases of manslaughter and operating a car intoxicated against James Cleo Baugess were non-suited by Judge Hubert S. May in Davie County Superior Court this week. Baugess was charged with manslaughter and operating a car intoxicated as the result of an accident on Hunting Creek Hill (US 64 West) on April 30th in which Paul C. Grubbs of Mocksville was killed.

Judge Hubert E. May allowed a defense motion of nonsuit at the conclusion of the state's evidence in the case in which Paul Cashwell Grubbs, 58, of 437 Salisbury Street was instantly killed.

Baugess' contention was that he was not driving the car in the accident. The car was owned by Jack Higgins, 32, of State Road, who was a passenger in the car. Both Baugess and Higgins were injured.

State Highway Patrolman R. L. Beane testified that he found Baugess under the wheel of the car in the accident eight miles west of here on U. S. 64. Higgins testified he was knocked unconscious in the accident and did not recall what had happened. However, he said his recollection was that Baugess was driving.

Beane testified that the Higgins car veered over the center line and struck the Grubbs car head on. Grubbs, an insurance man, was alone in his car.

May said that the evidence was not conclusive enough that Baugess was driving the car. For that reason he dismissed the two charges. Baugess had been at liberty under $2,200 bond.

The case of Edward Lee Bowles, charged with manslaughter and driving to the left of center, was continued for the term.

Other cases disposed of were as follows:

Frank Elbert Wood, failure to reduce speed, nol pros.

Willford Horne capias, nol pros.

Tony Dwayne Mullis, hit and run, 18 to 24 months suspended 3 years on conditions and pay $100 fine.

Tattle-Tales

By Gordon Tomlinson

A prominent Mocksville dentist had the two major seats of county and town government in an uproar recently trying to find his "long-handle" underwear.

Having an afternoon off and wanting to rake leaves in the yard on a chilly afternoon, this man went to the most logical place to find his "long-handles" . . . his drawers. (This is no pun . . . we mean chest-of-drawers).

However, they were not there so he looked in all other logical places . . . and some (according to him) illogical places. But find them . . . he couldn't.

He went to the telephone and called for his wife at the courthouse. He was told there that she had gone to the Town Office . . . so he called there. By that time she had left and gone back to the courthouse where she was told:

"Better get in touch with your husband. He sounded urgent!" Well to shorten the "long-handle" story . . . she called her husband who asked her the question of: "Where did you put them?"

"Oh! They are in my drawers (chest-of-drawers)", she said. "Why didn't you look there?"

Several people in the line at the grocery store the other day thought that Mrs. Gladys Allison had taken up either "sniffing" or "dipping", the reason was a large can of snuff that she purchased unknowingly along with her other items.

The can of snuff was discovered by Mrs. Allison when she arrived at home and began unpacking her groceries.

"O' my gosh! . . . what in the world can I do with this snuff!", she said to herself. She realized that someone must have put the snuff with her items by mistake, but inasmuch as she had paid for it, she didn't want it to go to waste.

Although she may deny it, no doubt a trial dipping of the snuff went through her mind. However, this was promptly discarded as not too tasty. Then she thought about using it on her Gardenia bushes. This too was soon forgotten.

Well, she carried the snuff back to the grocery store and traded it in on what Gladys was more palatable.

Dianne Anderson (Mrs. Jerry Anderson) know better. She knew better than to leave her 1963 Ford parked with the keys in the switch. However, this is what she did.

Sometime later she went out behind the office where she works . . . and no car.

The missing car was reported to the Mocksville Police Department and the hunt began. In a short while it was found . . . in fact about the first place they looked.

Her husband, Jerry had needed the car and came by and drove it to his new plant near the overhead bridge.

Five women were escorted down the middle aisle in Davie County Superior Court on Tuesday.

All, well dressed, appeared to be clearly out of place. And, some of them appeared to be well known to Judge Hubert E. May.

However, court adjourned for the day before their cases were heard. The judge indicated he would hear their pleas later.

Two of the women were Mrs. Dora Brown and Mrs. Charles Stevens of Salisbury (sisters of Mrs. Eugene Bowman); two others were also from Salisbury; and the fifth was Mrs. Hubert E. May.

The women stopped by the session of court on their way back to Salisbury from Winston-Salem. Judge and Mrs. May are house guests of one of the women while he is holding court here.

Mohawkettes Are Undefeated — Central Davie Defeats Unity

By HENRY SCOTT

Can Opener Is Termed Necessity

The can opener is no longer considered a gadget, it's a necessity. For the average homemaker opens about two cans of food each day.

According to Mrs. West, extension home economics agent, Davie County, canned goods, one of the first convenience foods, is still one of the most popular. Today there are over 500 different canned food items on the market, not counting the various brands or can sizes.

For consumers wishing to get the best value for the money they spend, Mrs. West offers these shopping suggestions:

Read the label. It should tell the name of the product, net weight or volume, ingredients, and name and address of the processor. Other information, such as type of pack, grade and directions for use may be included, although these are optional.

Notice the price. Canned foods may be priced singly or in units. They may be packed in different size or weight cans. Also, since they are packed under different brand names, the budget-wise shopper should figure the cost per serving. She will also do well to keep in mind the way the food will be prepared.

If shelf space is available, the wise shopper can take advantage of "specials" and quantity buys. Having canned foods on hand not only adds to the convenience of meal preparation; it may mean the difference between balanced meals and just meals, Mrs. West concludes.

Yadkin Valley News

Black Venture Farm Joins Angus Association

Black Venture Farm registered Angus cattle breeders from near Mocksville, have enrolled their herd in the American Angus Association's beef improvement program. The herd is scheduled to be classified in December 1966 by an official representative of the American Angus Association.

The program, called Angus Herd Improvement Records (AHR), is designed to help cattlemen do a more professional job of breeding by measuring and recording the type, production and carcass producing qualities of their herd. All AHR records are kept by the American Angus Association on a Honeywell 400 computer. These records are sent regularly on special forms to each Angus breeder enrolled in the AHR program.

The official classifier will compare every animal in the herd against the ideal type Angus. Each integral part will be analyzed and a total score ranging down from an ideal of 100 points will be assigned to each heifer, cow and bull over one year of age.

When the classification is complete the American Angus Association's breed improvement department will compile a graph showing how the herd averaged on each part, such as feet and legs, head and neck, rump, loin, etc. A graph of each bull will also be made up on a transparent sheet of acetate. By placing the bull graph on top of the herd graph a breeder can quickly determine if his herd bulls can be expected to sire calves that are better on all points than the average of the herd.

In line with the production measure portion of AHR, the Black Venture Farm had made provisions to weigh and grade the calves produced in their herd each year. This will allow them to measure and work improvement in the "mothering ability" of their cows and production of their bulls.

1967 CROPLAND ADJUSTMENT PROGRAM ANNOUNCEMENT

The Cropland Adjustment Program for 1967 is geared to the changed need for agricultural production, W. B. Denny, State Executive Director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said recently.

North Carolina has received an initial allocation of $905,000.00 for the 1967 Cropland Adjustment Program, Denny said, and the signing of farmers who wish to take part next year will start between November 15 and December 1.

Denny pointed out that, nationally, about 30-35 million base acres can go back into production under the 1967 wheat and feed grain programs along with more than 2 million acres from expiring Conservation Reserve contracts.

For 1967, CAP provides generally higher rates (except for cotton) for putting cropland not presently needed for agricultural production under long-term agreements - 5 to 10 years.

Adjustment payment rates in North Carolina for land that would otherwise produce corn and grain sorghum will be .58 cents per bushel for corn and 45 cents a bushel for grain sorghum.

After placing all of the acreage of one or more of the above crops or tame hay in the program (except acreage for home use of corn and grain sorghum) farmers may include other row-crop and small-grain acreage.

In addition to the adjustment payment related to the value of crops normally produced on the land, participants will also be eligible for conservation cost-sharing on land put under the program.

The program should be of particular benefit to farmers who want to retire or take jobs in industry, or for other reasons want to change their production pattern.

B. L. Bentley, Librarian, Dies In Grimsby, Canada A former resident of Mocksville died recently at his home in Grimsby, Ontario, Canada.

Burton Lockhardt Bentley, who served as chief librarian in Grimsby for 25 years, lived in Mocksville for four or five years. He was married to the former Flora Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Allen of Mocksville Rt. 5.

Although not a graduate librarian, Mr. Bentley was said to have built one of the finest small town libraries in Ontario.

A native of Halifax, he served in the first World War. He was gassed while on active duty and as a result spent considerable time in hospital at various periods.

"He was devoted to his job as librarian and worked for an extremely low salary. It was said that at times he decided against asking for a salary increase in hopes of continuing to build the libraries book budget. He relied on his small army pension to supplement his income."

Mr. Bentley was honored by the library board at a banquet last year to mark his 25th anniversary as librarian. The National Film Board also commended him for starting a film library, one of the few known to exist in a small town.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by two sons, John, at home and Allen of Fredericton, N. B.; one daughter, Mrs. George Cure (Elizabeth of Mont Clair, New Jersey).

Then came the Cavalier's famed "Leroy Play" (so-called from the story of the football game in which Leroy didn't want the ball). Davie kicked off to North Rowan and was taken by a Cavalier on the 15. Immediately the entire Cavalier team ran and huddled around him. With the Rebels scrapping to get into this huddle to the ball carrier, the ball suddenly came squirting out and was recovered by Davie. In three plays, Davie had scored with Ward driving over from the one. Jerry Hendrix attempted at the extra point was short and Davie led 13 to 0.

A scoreless third quarter followed with both teams turning in fine defensive performances. At one time North Rowan moved to the Davie three where a penalty ended the drive and a possible score. Early in the fourth quarter North went 73 yards for six points but the boot or the extra point was wide.

Three plays later Drinkley of North scooped up a Rebel fumble and raced 57 yards for a score only to have the run nullified when an offside penalty was called. Melvin Brinkley's passing paced a North Rowan drive a few minutes later... which aided by an interference call... resulted in the second score by the Cavaliers. The kick for the extra point was good but was nullified by an offside penalty. Their second attempt was wide and Davie had a slim 13 to 12 lead.

Following the kickoff, Ward a stubborn defense by the Rebels halted the drive as the clock ran out. STATISTICS North Rowan had 23 first downs to 9 for Davie County. Davie had 448 yards rushing to 83 for North Rowan. Davie completed 3 passes out of 7 attempts for 72 yards. North Rowan completed 29 out of 45 passes for 240 yards. Davie intercepted two passes. North Rowan none. North Rowan punted 5 times for an average of 42 yards per kick. Davie kicked 7 times for an average of 33 yards per kick. Davie was penalized a total of 85 yards; North Rowan was penalized a total of 40.

UNICEF Cards Now Available

Children dancing gaily before a village church, children hugging their favorite pets, children lighting festive candles, children listening delightedly to Christmas carols. What more inspired and delightful themes could have been chosen to celebrate the twentieth anniversary of the United Nations Children's Fund, under whose auspices these greeting cards are sold? The UNICEF offering for 1966 includes fetching designs donated by some of the most talented artists from Argentina, Canada, France, Germany, Haiti, Hungary, Japan, Lebanon and the U.S.A.

Uniformly brilliant and highly imaginative, the new designs will further the work of UNICEF, which was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1955 for saving millions of young lives every year.

he beauty and feeling of the UNICEF cards is more than enough to make them sought after as greetings for the coming season. But more important is the message that goes with them. Each box of UNICEF cards sold means that some underprivileged child, somewhere in the world, will be helped. In more than one hundred lands - millions of boys and girls have been given the gift of life because of the aid UNICEF has provided. Children of every race and color have been saved from malnutrition and disease. They have been spared the curse of illiteracy. They have been given dignity, purpose and hope for the future. By purchasing and sending UNICEF cards, we are all able to contribute to this much-needed work. With the proceeds from one box alone, 50 children can be protected from tuberculosis.

Places Second In N. Piedmont Conference Davie Defeats North Rowan 13-12

The Davie County Rebels exploded for two touchdowns and an extra point in the second quarter last Friday night and then hung on to eke out a close 13 to 12 victory over North Rowan. The game was played at Spencer.

Following a scoreless opening quarter during which time both teams threatened by driving deep into the other's territory, Davie hit paydirt. About midway of the second stanza, with the ball resting on the Rebel 40 after Randall Ward had Quarterback Phil Deadmon threw to end Ed Leagans who raced over for the score. Born Yesterday Is At Showboat Theatre

"Born Yesterday," Garson Kanin's all-time comedy great, will open Wednesday, Nov. 16, at the Showboat Dinner Theatre near the Greensboro-High Point-Winston-Salem Airport for a four-week engagement.

Showboat's current hit, the musical "The Fantasticks," will end a four-week run Sunday night, Nov. 13.

The "tough and tender" comedy, "Born Yesterday," brought stardom to newcomer Judy Holiday and ran for 1,642 performances on Broadway, the fifth longest-run non-musical in American stage history. It was made into one of the most successful motion pictures ever filmed.

Leading characters are Harry Brock, the powerful junk dealer who thinks people care for pushing around; Billie Dawn, his dumb girl friend who think "peninsula" is that new medicine; and Paul Vertrall, a reporter hired by Brock to teach Billie to think.

Dana Hardwick, whose Broadway shows have included "Babes In Arms," "Ethan Frome" and "Iron Men," will portray the ramrod Harry Brock. He has appeared most recently on stage with Dana Andrews, John Payne and Larry Parks.

The equally comic role of Billie Dawn will be played by red-haired Lynda Ivey, who left a successful New York revue when she won the role in the American Scene Dinner Theatres Production for Showboat. Duke Howze, who resembles Tony Randall, will appear as Paul Vertrall, who proves to be a more expert teacher than Brock had bargained for. His New York appearances include "Private Lives" and "Consider the Lilies."

George Colton, who portrays the Senator "bought" by Brock, has no less than 24 Broadway plays to his credit. He also has appeared widely on network television. Delmar Neutzman's face will be familiar to TV fans, as he has appeared on "The Nurses," "The Defenders," "Edge of Night," "As the World Turns" and "Road of Life." He will portray Ed Devery, Brock's attorney. Lee Sanders, whose experience in theatre and television is vast, will appear as the Senator's wife. Walter Flesch, whose New York credits include "Death of a Salesman," will portray Brock's brother Eddy. Donald Carter, who directed the hilarious "Pajama Tops" and "Boeing-Boeing" for American Scene and produced the musical "Stop the World," is directing "Born Yesterday." Stage design and lighting are by Jody Briggs.

Doctor in the Kitchen

The nutritional needs of the body fall into three main classifications: a) a steady supply of the necessary materials for replacement of wear and tear (mainly proteins); b) a steady supply of material essential for body metabolism (such as vitamins, minerals); and c) a variable amount of fuel for energy and heat maintenance (fats and carbohydrates).

The first two classifications do not vary much with the seasons. Just as much rebuilding material, and about as much of the vital chemical entities needed by the body, are required at any time of year and in any climate. These are also relatively unaffected by the amount of activity, which varies from season to season.

In frigid climates, such as that in which the Eskimo resides, the need for conserving heat is greater. This is reflected in the high-fat diet of the blubber-eating Arctic dwellers. In the more temperate zones, especially where there is indoor heating, the need for more fuel and energy foods is much less. Even so, there is room for more carbohydrate and fat in the diet during the colder months.

This additional requirement should be supplied by a moderate increase in the energy foods, without disturbing the necessary supply of the basic nutrients in the first two classifications mentioned earlier. In many instances it is possible to combine the additional calories with the essential nutrients. Many fatty foods and meats carry vitamins; many of the vegetables with higher carbohydrate content also supply vitamins and minerals. Whole milk, half and half, cream, butter, cheese, ice cream and eggs are among the foods which contribute both energy and an array of needed nutrients. Peanut butter, beloved of the younger generations, is another excellent example. Now, is the season when olives, avocados and artichokes add fuel calories along with vegetable values.

Now is also the time for the heartier vegetables which have had less appeal during the hot weather - all kinds of beans (navy, red kidney, lima and soy), split peas and lentils add protein as well as carbohydrate to the diet. Nuts provide protein and fat. Enriched bread and potatoes are sources, often unrecognized, of vitamins and minerals.

While there is some greater energy requirement during colder weather, the conditions under which most people live today are not such that this increase need be substantial, except for those in sports or doing heavy work, or those exposed to outdoor winter conditions.

While the dietary fuel is increased, caution is necessary to insure against too great a decrease in activity.

U. N. C. Around The Old Well

By JOAN PAGE

The "who," "what," "when," "where" and "how" of foreign aid were discussed here recently by an authority on constitutional law and American and state government.

"Foreign aid is a relatively new and young instrument of world peace which has developed in a span of 25 years," Political Science Prof. David G. Monroe told over 450 state high school teachers and students attending a debating conference on the UNC campus here.

"We did not go into foreign aid in any major way until 1943, following World War II," he said. "As an instrument for world peace, foreign aid has grown up fast."

Citing arguments "for" and "against" foreign aid, Monroe told the debaters that the United States is "at a crossroads" today.

"There are two schools of thought on foreign aid," he said. Some say we have spent billions for blunders and ought to withdraw foreign aid. Others argue that with the exception of Viet Nam, we do have peace and that foreign aid is a major reason we have been able to avoid world catastrophe.

Beginning with the United States' humanitarian entry into foreign aid following World War II to offer "emergency relief" to war torn countries, Monroe traced the development of aid programs up to the present. The "economic recovery" and "self-help" facets of the 1947 Marshall Plan, and the expansion of these concepts into united world-wide co-operative efforts, were reviewed.

Pointing to the 1947-48 Truman Doctrine's technical aid to Greece and Turkey and the 1957-53 Eisenhower Doctrine's military aid to the Near East, Monroe showed how emergency relief and economic recovery assistance were soon supplemented with technical and military aid designed to contain aggression in foreign countries.

"By 1961," he recalled, "President Kennedy was saying we could not escape our moral obligations as a free nation to preserve freedom and peace in the world through foreign aid."

President Johnson, he continued, is today adhering to the Kennedy stand on foreign aid. Such aid is viewed as "a great moral and spiritual obligation if we are to have a community of nations at peace through economic co-operation. The underlying theory is that we must fight poverty throughout the world because poverty leads to instability and war."

Through military and economic aid in Viet Nam, Monroe illustrated, President Johnson is continuing the American foreign aid tradition by defending Viet Nam against aggression and developing its economy.

Monroe then discussed some basic elements of the "foreign aid complex." He told the visiting teachers and high schoolers that foreign aid "may even necessitate a form of sheer bribery."

To illustrate this point, he explained that the United States gave aid to Yugoslavia on the condition that Yugoslavia stay out of the Communist bloc.

"The United States renders its services for a price," he said. "The receiving country must agree to certain practices in return for aid."

He described the "internal" and "external" characteristics of foreign aid.

"We lend aid to promote stability within foreign lands — to secure domestic tranquility," he illustrated. "We also seek to protect nations from forces without by containing aggression."

The "substance" or "self-help" nature of foreign aid were examined. Monroe explained that by building dams, offering farm equipment and technical advisors, the United States enables foreign countries to provide for their own needs.

A "prestige factor" is involved in foreign aid too, the group was told. By financing projects within a country at the proper time, the United States enables a friendly ruler to maintain respectable status within his country. At the same time, the United States enhances its own image in that country.

Monroe stressed the fact that military aid is increasingly accompanied by social, welfare, economic and health assistance.

"We have learned that a stable economy and absence of poverty contribute to peace within a country," he explained.

"A good economy is dependent on the development and accumulation of capital within a country and the presence of technical know-how. Once we got capital organized in a country, we provide the technical aid ourselves or we educate the country's own people."

The United States' foreign aid programs, Monroe concluded, are based on the premise that peace within one country removes a world tension that might possibly explode into outward strife and eventually lead to war. "Foreign aid provides us with a major and perpetual debate," he observed.

"The continuing questions are whether there is a better way than foreign aid to promote international peace, and whether we are doing the right things at the right time and getting our money's worth."

The University of North Carolina here has been selected as the first foreign institution to be allowed to send scholars to study in residence at El Escorial, one of Spain's most revered monuments.

The U. S. Office of Education has awarded an $86,000 grant to the University's Romance Languages Department to finance a unique overseas institute for secondary, school Spanish teachers.

Announcement of the National Defense Education Act grant is made by UNC President William C. Friday and Chancellor J. Carlyle Sitterson.

The money will finance an institute this summer on the campus here and at El Escorial. This marks the first time that the Spanish Government has agreed to let a foreign lay group of students and professors study in residence at Escorial.

A royal monastery built by Phillip II in celebration of his victory over the French in 1567, Escorial houses world-famous art treasures, plus a library with rare volumes, ancient manuscripts and texts.

It is also the burial place for Spanish kings. A mammoth undertaking, it took 21 years to build the Escorial, which has some 90 miles of rooms and corridors.

Forty teachers from this area of the United States will be selected to participate in the institute June 19-Aug. 22. Dr. Anthony G. LoRe, assistant professor of Spanish at UNC, has been named program director. Though the groups will use Escorial facilities, its teachers for the entire project will be furnished by UNC.

Only two or three overseas institute grants are made by the Office of Education each year. UNC's Romance Languages Department has sponsored four NDEA Language Institutes on campus here in recent years—two each in French and Spanish. The Spanish Department is recognized as one of the best in the country and was recently ranked eighth in the nation by the American Council on Education.

Courses to be offered during the nine-week institute here and in Spain include advanced methodology, literary and linguistic workshops, culture and civilization, conversation and composition. To qualify for the program, teachers must have attended a first level institute, or must have equivalent training. They must be teaching secondary Spanish classes, at the third year level or higher.

Dr. LoRe credited UNC's language laboratory and other foreign language facilities with attracting this grant to Chapel Hill.

"Our facilities are unequalled in the South and have enabled different departments here to obtain Peace Corps programs, as well as various NDEA institutes. The laboratory has been instrumental in bringing to the University well over $100,000 in indirect cost or overhead funds," LoRe stated.

"This grant indicates Washington's confidence in our program and its recognition of the work we are doing here in Chapel Hill."

The institute will stress new teaching methods, especially the presentation of visual materials along with audio-lingual materials of the types now in use. Chapel Hill facilities will be used to familiarize teachers with new equipment and materials in their field, prior to their trip to Spain.

Other than LoRe, Chancellor Sitterson and President Friday, those who worked to obtain this overseas institute for UNC included Romance Languages Department Chairman Jacques Hardre, Associate Dean of Arts and Sciences Frank M. Duffey and Dr. Claiborne S. Jones, assistant to the chancellor.

Health Tips FROM THE American Medical Association

More than 2,000 children die every year in home fires.

Yet, most of them could walk swiftly away from death if they were given the most elementary fire instructions, says Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association.

A parent would be horrified to discover his child's school did not hold fire drills. But a child is 200 more times likely to be trapped in fire at home than at school.

Here are some pointers from Today's Health for setting up your own fire drills at home:

Map out, with the children helping, two separate escape routes from each room — a main route and in case that is blocked an alternate. Main exits usually are doors and stairways. Alternates usually are windows.

A portable ladder provides an excellent escape from upper windows. These range from an inexpensive rope ladder to those of light weight aluminum. A study trellis outside a window may be ladder enough for an agile child.

The most important lifesaving command to impress upon children is: Escape immediately. Don't let them try to put out the fire or pause to gather up possessions. Minutes, even seconds, are crucial. Fires can spread unbelievably fast. And set a specific place outside to gather promptly for a quick head count.

If the window is jammed or frozen shut during a fire, children may not think of the obvious: break the window. Show them how to smash the pane with a loose shoe, and then run the shoe around the inside of the frame to clean off jagged edges before climbing out.

Impress upon the children the deadliness of smoke. The majority of fire victims are asphyxiated by smoke long before the flames touch them. Warn the children against braving a smoke-filled hall, or flinging open a door and letting the smoke pour in. Wet handkerchiefs over the mouth do not filter out poisonous gases in smoke.

Once you work out your family fire drill, make a note on the kitchen calendar to repeat the drill at regular intervals. Some households feel once a month isn't too often.

Adults also die in home fires and these same basic rules apply to all ages and both sexes. Practice drills will help much to reduce the natural panic that grips most folks when they realize abruptly that their house is on fire.

French Trip Is Unique Experience For Mr. Hatcher

(Editor's Note - The following article was written by David Haffner, editor of THE REBEL, the Davie County High School newspaper. We appreciate his letting us reprint it for this edition.)

JOHN R. HATCHER

During the course of the summer, the Federal Government, in connection with Ohio State University, sponsored a program for the study of the French language and French culture. This program enabled the participating French teachers to spend approximately nine weeks in France. Mr. John R. Hatcher, Jr., accompanied forty other French teachers from various states on this trip.

The first week of travel was spent sightseeing in Paris, a city full of history which has kept its historical relics well preserved. Mr. Hatcher considered the Le Louvre Museum, L'Arc De Triomphe (commemorating Napoleon's victories in battle), Cathedral Notre Dame De Paris, and the Eiffel Tower to be the most outstanding points of interest in Paris.

The group took an excursion on the Seine River on a vedettes (sight-seeing/boat). From this river, which runs through Paris, most of the city's sights are visible.

Mr. Hatcher related to us what he thought to be an odd thing about Paris. "You hear as much English as you want to." This is true more so in the summer than any other time because summer is the tourist season.

The group of Americans took a train to Lyon, the third largest city in France, where they were to stay for the next eight weeks. There they lived with French families. Breakfast and dinner were eaten with the family each day. Shopping trips were made with them, and they attended plays and concerts.

During the day they had classes on the Campus of I. H. S. A. (a college of applied science). Mr. Hatcher commented on the nice language labs. They were very spacious, with accommodations for every teacher.

The courses studied here included—French literature, French teaching methods, French dictation, and French writing.

On four of eight weekends, the group traveled by bus to various parts of Southern France. They went to the Riviera and also saw many ancient cathedrals and small towns which were built by Romans in early times.

Switzerland was their destination one weekend. Many people bought Swiss watches and clocks at a discount.

Mr. Hatcher and the family he stayed with went by car to Italy one week end. During their visit to Venice, they took a gondola ride around the city. While there, he bought Mrs. Hatcher a handmade Venetian tablecloth.

Saint Mark's Square, located in Milan, was especially interesting because of its ornate architecture elaborately trimmed in gold. An orchestra played on the square to entertain the people in sidewalk cafes.

If you think we've got traffic problems, listen to this! France is totally lacking in stop signs! Of course, there are fewer cars there than in America. Whoever approaches on the right has the right-of-way. There are quite a few hang-ups.

France puts no limits on speed. (Bet our boys wish America would take the hint.)

Most France students at freshman age have studied English for two years. By the time they finish high school, they have completed six years of English. Usually they take two or three years of another language (German or Spanish).

They attend school from 8:00 to 5:00. They have only one afternoon break. Their studies are more rigorous than ours.

Their likes and dislikes are similar to Americans. They become involved with new singing groups. They especially like the Dave Clark 5, Sonny and Cher, and of course, the Beatles. Vast numbers of English records are found in record shops. You can always hear English records on the radio. They seem to prefer these English records to the French records. They spend their time listening to music and watching television, and like us, they have little time left for studying.

In France, more students are interested in politics and authors of books. They carry on a more intellectual conversation than do most American teens.

French people would always ask the American tourists "Do you speak English or American?" To them, there is a big difference in the two.

Teens do not have driving privileges. They date in groups until they are considering marriage, then they date in couples.

Since cars are not available for dates, the dating groups travel by bus or else they "hoof it". A usual dating activity would be to attend a concert, go to a movie or go to a sidewalk cafe.

Mr. Hatcher said that he saw a lot of Mustangs and some Chevrolets. Only the wealthy have cars because they're very expensive. Gas is eighty cents a gallon.

To quote Mr. Hatcher—"I think my trip was more valuable than any schooling you could receive in the United States. You get to understand their temperament and feelings. You make friendships that last. It makes it easy if you want to return — then you know someone. Their door is always open to you."

STILL IN THE FIGHT FOR FREEDOM

(Editorial from the Wilmington Morning Star)

Symbolically, the USS North Carolina fights on.

The gallant battleship transcends the limiting role of a huge museum piece whose peace-time duty is merely to lie quietly at anchor while tourists tread her decks.

This ship, the great fighting machine that took part in every major naval campaign in the Pacific during World War II, continues on a career that has made it a living memorial to the 10,000 North Carolinians who died in that war.

SINCE she has been moored in her own harbor on the Cape Fear River, the North Carolina has been visited by more than 1,700,000 persons from every one of the 50 states and from many foreign countries. To all these persons she has indeed seemed "alive," at the ready to go back on active duty in the continuing fight for freedom.

This week the big ship fired still another salvo for freedom, albeit figuratively. From the receipts collected from her many visitors, the Battleship Commission which now steers her course purchased a $10,000 U. S. Savings Bond.

HERE are the words of Rear Admiral Robert B. Ellis, USN (Ret), ship's superintendent, linking this bond with the Viet Nam war: "I know the boys over there would like to see the North Carolina bombarding the enemy with live shells, but since the ship can't do that, we are doing the next best thing by purchasing savings bonds to support our fighting men."

Thus, the USS North Carolina, which in a few days more than four years has become one of the outstanding tourist attractions in the country, keeps her course set against any enemy that would threaten freedom anywhere.

The above is a picture of the Town of Mocksville of many years ago . . . looking up North Main Street from the square. There may be some who can recognize many of the buildings and stores that lined the unpaved street. Some believe the above to depict Mocksville around the turn of the century. It was the property of F. M. Allen formerly of Mocksville and was turned over to the town's historical files by his daughter.

News and Comment from Our Raleigh Bureau

UPSIDE DOWN . . . Death and decay . . . in all around I see. Thus begins an old Christian song: and this seemed somehow to fit the occasion as the Election returns rolled in on the evening of November 8.

Also, as British General Cornwallis moved the remnants of his proud, spit-and-polish troops in at Yorktown for the surrender proceedings to the American Revolutionary Army, his band struck up the tune, "The World Turned Upside Down".

And that's about the way it was Election Day . . . death and decay . . . and the world turned upside down . . . or so it seemed.

MAJORITY . . . In county after county in North Carolina—and in state after state in the nation—you found (after the smoke had cleared) more Democrats had voted Republican than the total number of registered Republican voters in the area.

Good example: Durham County, States: Georgia, Tennessee.

Very few—and maybe not one—Republicans voted Democratic. The Democrats voted Republican by the million in this county November 8.

WILL HE OR WON'T HE? . . . The question being asked in whispers among shocked Raleigh Democrats is:

Will President L. B. Johnson seek a second term? He has been in office exactly three years. To many a good Southern Democrat it seems 50.

Even before the Election debacle there was some conjecture that LBJ was weary, tired, and sick. In Washington, D. C., where you can hear anything—especially if you ride by taxi—you can learn "on good authority" that the President has this and that disease. There seems always to be more uneasiness in Washington than anywhere else in America.

And, this time it is a fact that the President is worried lest that growth in his neck might lead to cancer. You hear that the physicians will issue a statement on this by December 1.

STILL ON TOP . . . The one governmental leader in North Carolina apparently unhurt in the political shakeup is Lt. Gov. Robert Scott. The young man makes few enemies, many friends. One political leader—former Democratic Chairman Bert Bennett—is regarded as unfriendly to Scott. He was beaten in his bid for a seat in the State Senate.

But on these things—you hear of no gloating from Bob Scott. Frankly, he seems to be growing stronger day by day . . .

COURSE . . . It may be that two young men—one a Republican born in 1927 and the other a Democrat born in 1929—may right now be running on a collision course for November of 1968.

They are, of course, Jim Broyhill of Lenoir and Bob Scott of Haw River.

Broyhill is the Congressman from the Ninth District. Smooth as silk. But, as of right now—despite the Election's shock—it looks as if Scott would easily be the winner. The Republicans don't have much money as a party in this State—in fact, still owe for some 1964 campaigning. They are now expected to get well in a hurry.

Republican Charles R. Jonas, Congressman from the populous Charlotte area—the Eighth District—will turn 62 on December 9. He will be urged to run for Governor, but there are persistent rumors that he would like nothing better than to get back to some nice quiet law practice in Lincoln.

He has been in Congress since 1952.

NOTES . . . James C. Gardner, winner over Harold D. Cooley, is—like Broyhill—a young man of means. His people are not related to the Cleveland County Gardners—were pioneers in the dairy business in the Rocky Mount area. Gardner is one of the chief owners of Hardee's, hamburger drive-ins. New Congressman Gardner's father-in-law is Millionaire Arthur Tyler, partner in a dozen Belk-Tyler stores throughout Eastern North Carolina—and one of the State's religious and civic leaders . . .

The oldest man—in point of service, in the 1967 Legislature will be Senator Claude Currie of Durham, who will be 76 on December 8 . . . and representative Jim Vogler of Charlotte, who was 71 this past April . . . Vogler has been in 16 regular and special sessions of the Legislature. Both are even-tempered, easy to know and to like. Senator Currie was born in Candor, Montgomery County . . . Vogler is a native of Charlotte . . . is semi-retired, but has broad real estate holdings in the Charlotte area . . .

Democrats hereabouts admit that the main reason the Republicans did not score even more legislative victories over the State . . . is that they didn't have more running. More of them would have announced for office . . . but they just had not recovered from the Goldwater catastrophe two years ago . . .

Many a Republican out there wanted to run for the State Senate or the House—particularly so in view of the redistricting, etc. — but they could get no promise of financial aid . . . and felt they were not able financially to carry the load . . . and its gets more expensive all the time . . . by themselves . . . Election results should make the 1967 Legislature even more conservative (no new taxes) than projected early in the fall.

Senator Sam Ervin Says:

MORGANTON — Several significant pieces of legislation which I introduced in the 89th Congress won approval and have been signed into law by the President. One of these was the Ball Reform Act of 1966 which became law on June 22, 1966.

The defects of the old ball system as administered by the Federal Courts came about, in large part, from the fact that ball decisions relied primarily upon financial inducements to insure the presence of the accused at trial, rather than upon more relevant considerations, such as character, employment, residence or community ties.

In order to alleviate the inequities of relying solely on money to determine pretrial confinements or liberty, the Ball Reform Act provides judges of Federal Courts with a wide range of pretrial release methods. Therefore, the Act makes it possible for many persons accused of Federal offenses to be released pending trial without having to post bail.

Reform of administration of criminal justice is — and should be — a slow and painful task. Ball reform came about after five years of study by the Senate Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights, and I believe this is the proper way to make necessary reforms. The Miranda decision of the Supreme Court which set up judicial bars against voluntary confessions by criminal suspects is a prime example of judicially "hazardous experimentation," to use Mr. Justice Harlan's phraseology.

The Ball Reform Act, however, proceeded toward enactment upon the basis of a careful, objective study of the entire complex structure of law enforcement before any changes were made.

Another area of legislation which merited reform was that of disposition of claims by individuals against the Federal Government. Last March I introduced four bills designed to provide an even break for individuals having such suits. When he signed these bills on July 18th, the President called them "long overdue reform measures" which "promise a more reasonable, effective and efficient approach to controversies with the government." I, of course, agree with his statement.

The first of these bills provides for awarding of costs to individuals when they prevail in their case against the government. The second bill amends the Federal Tort Claims Act to permit settlements of claims against the government out of court where the amount in question is in excess of $2,500. Previously, individuals were required to file suits in all claims in excess of $2,500. The third bill imposes a statute of limitations on the Federal Government in suits which it brings against a private individual, and the fourth bill allows Federal agencies to compromise claims against it.

Remains Of Earliest Man Found In Africa—

THE SEARCH FOR PREHISTORIC MAN

Erosion has cut through layer-cake sediments of two million years at Olduvai Gorge, Tanzania, and laid bare the camp sites of earliest man.

Primitive man and his cousins camped, hunted, and died there. Giant animals roamed the region until overwhelmed by the doom of extinction. The fossil record of all these creatures, painstakingly extracted from the soil by Dr. Louis S. B. Leakey and his wife Mary, reads like a biography of time itself.

A National Geographic Society special about the Leakeys' work at Olduvai, "Dr. Leakey and the Dawn of Man," was presented on CBS Television Network Saturday, November 5. The hour-long color film inaugurated National Geographic's 1966-67 season of four real-life adventures produced in association with David L. Wolper. Olduvai Gorge forms a 35-mile-long scar on the southeastern corner of Tanzania's Serengeti Plain on the flank of the Great Rift Valley.

The gorge was discovered in 1911 by a butterfly-chasing German entomologist named Kattwinkel. He stumbled upon fossil bones that he took back to Berlin. German scientists sent an expedition in 1913, but World War I interrupted their excavations. Dr. Leakey, a Kenya-born British anthropologist, made his first visit in 1931.

Since then, Dr. and Mrs. Leakey have spent much of their time on their hands and knees digging in Olduvai. Says Dr. Leakey: "Olduvai is a fossil-hunter's dream, for it sheers 300 feet through stratum after stratum of earth's history as through a gigantic layer cake. Here, within reach, lie countless fossils which but for faulting and erosion would have remained sealed under thick layers of consolidated rock."

Until recent years, Olduvai Gorge was one of the loneliest places on earth—hot and dusty except in spring. Water generally must be brought from miles away. Once, during the brief rainy season, Dr. and Mrs. Leakey shared a water hole in the gorge with two rhinos.

"To those who have never lived on rhino bath water, I can only offer congratulations," Dr. Leakey has commented.

Now, tourists on safari are visiting Olduvai to see the place where man's story may have begun.

English-speaking Kikuyu guides take visitors by car down into the gorge to the major fossil sites. Dr. Leakey has found the remains, some mere fragments, of 18 prehistoric individuals.

These include Zinjanthropus (East Africa man), who lived about 1,750-

000 years ago. He belongs to the group of near-men called australopithecines. Zinj's massive, heavily worn teeth indicate a diet of rough vegetation. His proper name is Australopithecus boisei.

Homo habilis, nearly 2,000,000 years old, is more important. His name means "man with ability." He possibly is the world's oldest tool-maker. Some scientists believe that Homo habilis may be a direct ancestor of modern man.

The most ancient fossils of Homo habilis are older than those of Zinj, but, oddly, he was a more advanced creature with a bigger brain. The size, shape, and wear of the teeth suggest that Homo habilis was a meat-eater. He may have been able to speak, as Zinj certainly could not, since the broad U-shaped inner curve of Homo habilis' jaw would have permitted free movement of the tongue.

In time, Homo habilis and Zinj jointly occupied the shores of a long-vanished prehistoric lake at Olduvai. The Leakeys think that Zinj vanished and Homo habilis survived to become one of man's ancestors.

The Leakey camp stands on a rim of Olduvai Gorge. A three-sided thatched shelter serves the family as a mess hall and dining room. There is a rough wooden table. A gasoline lamp flares from a roof support. The Leakeys are ardent conservationists, and they don't shoot any game for food.

But they take care to protect themselves from the wildlife that abounds in the area—lions, leopards, elephants, giraffes, rhinos, zebras, wildebeests, poisonous reptiles.

"We often find animals right in the gorge," Dr. Leakey says. "Once when Mary was working, she heard furious barking and looked up just in time to see our Dalmatians pursuing a huge black-maned lion down the gorge."

As a prehistoric site, Olduvai Gorge has become famous for its fossil giants—giant pigs, giant rhinos, monstrous sheep, huge ostriches, and immense baboons.

Olduvai's deepest explored level is 2,300,000 years old, according to potassium-argon dating. The deep site hasn't yielded any fossils of man or manlike creatures, but Dr. Leakey has found "several hundred beautifully shaped stone implements, as well as shattered animal bones that the tool-makers cracked open for the marrow."

Kingston, Jamaica, with a population of 123,500, ranks as the Western Hemisphere's largest English-speaking city south of Miami, the National Geographic says.

Uncle Dave from Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The fellers at the country store Saturday night was in a powerful strong session that caused the storekeeper to be 30 minutes late closing up.

Ed Doonille got it started when he claimed they was plenty of proof that this country was educating itself plumb out of the working world. When you run out of doctors at one end of the road of learning and you can't find enough garbage men to keep the trash picked up at the other end, they was some-thing bad wrong somewhere in between, was the way Ed put it.

And he kept pushing this item fer quite a spell. You know, Mister Editor, when Ed gits his head set, aside of him a mule is a real agreeable critter. Ed reported he had saw this piece where this country was bringing over doctors and bricklayers from England. He said the doctors was coming to git rich quick and the bricklayers was coming to git rich a little slower. What Ed wanted to know was how come we can't lay our own brick and doctor, our own sick when the Office of Economic Opportunity says we got millions of people with nothing to do?

Furthermore, allowed Ed, this country had better start paying more attention to making a living than on figgering out Government plans on how to git the other feller to make it fer us. What everybody in this country was after was a good paying job with all the work cut out, Ed said, and all them jobs was already took by the Democrat politicians and their kinfolks.

Zeke Grubb was agreed with Ed in some of these matters. Zeke claimed it was dangerous to force a education on anybody. A whole lot of the labor shortage, allowed Zeke, was caused by folks who git too smart to work for a living. Fer instance, he said, you take a man that's contented to work on the garbage truck and ride the back end of the truck to the dump, and send him to a Government sanitation school and when he comes back he's a sanitation engineer and wants to drive the truck to the "disposal gardens."

Clem Webster of the Great Society claimed the problem was like a iceberg, they was more to it than meets the eye. He allowed as how you can't fight the problem by paying 1932 wages so money won't be so plentiful and more folks was willing to work.

Ed said he remembered them days, and he backed off a little, was agreed that too much money was probable better than no money at all.

Personal, Mister Editor, I agree with Clem that they was two ends to the iceberg. But I think it would help things if we'd put them high salary folks running Government schools on plain welfare instead of paying them big money to talk other people out of working.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dave

So This Is New York

By NORTH CALLAHAN

It has been an exciting election hereabouts, altho at times one wondered just what the issues were. People with names which figure nationally, such as Rockefeller, Roosevelt and Kennedy fiddled and fussed with small affairs as if they were of immortal importance. Every trick in the bag - and there was a lot of money in that receptacle too - was used until many conscientious citizens stifled yawns before saying wearily, "Oh, yeah". Still, ours is a democracy in some ways, at least, and no one has yet found a better way to elect our public officials. If so, it has not been enacted. So, we look to the future and say collectively, "just wait until 1968, even if it does rhyme."

Frank Gruber, the mystery story writer, tells of a time when he went around to three publishers here on a Friday afternoon and picked up checks totalling $800. Then he went down to a hotel where Fred MacIsaac, the most prominent of the mystery writers, was staying. "We chatted for awhile," recalls Gruber, and he asked how I was doing. I could not resist trying to impress MacIsaac, one of the real giants of the business, so pulled out the checks and showed them to him. "This week's," I said with restrained modesty. He looked at the checks and commented, "I wouldn't mind having a couple of those myself." I thought he was being indulgent with me, Gruber continued, and thought no more of it at the time. But six weeks later, MacIsaac shot himself through the head and the story came out. He had not sold a story in more than six months and had not saved any of the huge sums he had made during the years . . .

That same afternoon, MacIsaac took me to a cafe where the great Thomas Wolfe did most of his writing. He introduced me to Wolfe and we sat at the table and listened to a three-hour monologue by Wolfe. The subject was how great a writer he was. I did not like Thomas Wolfe and I still think fondly of Fred MacIsaac who had a million readers for every thousand who preferred Wolfe.

Teenagers are said to live the perfect life today. They have an inexhaustible supply of money - Father. They have built-in maid service - Mother. They have something to take their hostilities out on - Everybody. They have the final word on everything - and if you should prove them wrong, they look at you and say, "What do you expect? I'm only a kid!"

Now is the time of year when high school seniors are trying hard to get into colleges and universities. The information office of New York University, largest private educational institution in the country, has many odd queries, some of them off the subject. For example, a woman phoned that her husband had read an article in a local newspaper claiming that Alcoholics Anonymous does not really help alcoholics give up drinking. Whereupon he promptly dropped his AA membership and headed for the nearest bar. She wanted to know if she could sue the writer of the article - and was referred to the Legal Aid Society. Often the staff of the office is asked, "Where can we find the beatniks?" One question was, "I just received my diploma. Now how do I open it?" A note came in stating, "Could I please have some information and pictures, thank you."

Maybe President Johnson would like to have somebody figure out how much it now costs to kill an enemy soldier. In the reign of Julius Caesar, one estimate says, war cost 75 cents for every enemy killed. In the Civil War, the expense was $5,000 a man. In World War I, the cost was $25,000; and in the second World War, the outlay for destroying an opposing warrior was $50,000.

60-Second Sermon

By FRED DODGE

TEXT: "Success has many parents, while failure is an orphan." - Unknown.

Annie was returned from the Home for the Feeble-Minded to the Orphan's Home, because the doctor's examination proved her to be merely "subnormal." In a burst of confidential gossip one of the girls in the home told another,

"Annie was sent away to be an idiot, but she couldn't pass and had to come back."

There are many definitions of success. To some it is the amassing of wealth and comfort; to others it is the building of empires; others find it in business accomplishment; some in the arts and sciences or the spiritual world. Whatever is considered success, there is little hope of attaining it without a well-defined purpose. It is estimated that 98 out of 100 persons have no aim or objective. They may have a notion of which direction they might like to take, but they detour on the first attractive by-path. Failure to choose a definite direction causes ineffective living more often than any other short-coming.

If you would have your life useful and effective, choose an objective. Follow it resolutely. You'll pass 98% of the rest of the world the moment you start.

BUYING GUIDES

If you're planning to buy kitchen towels at white sales or any time here are a few shopping reminders from Mrs. West, extension home economics agent, Davie County.

Although kitchen towels should be highly absorbent and sturdy in construction, they should also be soft and flexible for easy handling. If you wish, select towels that will add a colorful note to the kitchen.

Kitchen towels are usually made of cotton, linen and spun rayon. Linen has natural characteristics that make it desirable, as it absorbs moisture readily, dries quickly and is lintfree.

Cotton is less expensive than linen; yet when given special finishes, it acquires the same characteristics. Spun rayon, combined with cotton and linen, adds to a towel's absorptive and non-lint qualities. Towels made from this blend cost less than towels made from pure linen, Mrs. West explains.

Most kitchen towels contain a sizing when new, she adds. A small amount of sizing is not objectionable.

For efficiency in drying dishes, select towels that are 28 inches long or longer. Also, read the label to find out what service a towel should give.

Buying suggestions for other types of household linens are available upon request from Mrs. West. Call or write to her at the County Extension Office, Co., Office Building, Mocksville.

New business consisted of the Halloween Party to be held at the Community Building on October 29th. We discussed the food and whether or not to dress up or not. It was decided that you could have your choice.

The meeting was adjourned by the president, Faith Barnes. Refreshments were served by Donna and Pete Barnes and was enjoyed by all.

CLUB CONGRESS

Sixteen hundred of the nation's finest youth will open the 45th National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago on Sunday, November 27. They will represent the 50 states and Puerto Rico. A group of Canadian 4-H'ers will be special guests. About 700 adults associated with 4-H Club work also are expected to attend.

The Congress will open with an impressive program based on the 1967 theme; Pursuit of Excellence.

The keynote speaker will be a woman who has pioneered a long list of "firsts" for women, and who will add yet another "first" to her record. She will be the first woman ever to keynote the opening assembly of the National 4-H Club Congress, now in its 45th year.

She is Mary G. Roebling, chairman of the board of Trenton Trust Company, Trenton, N. J. She is first board chairman of a major commercial bank and the first woman governor of the American Stock Exchange.

Mrs. Roebling is one of the nation's outstanding women in finance, public service, social and educational activities. A widow, she has a married son and daughter and five grandchildren, so she seems to be well qualified as a parent to speak to a teen-age audience.

Before the 4-H'ers leave home, they are oriented as to what they will encounter on the trip to Chicago, which for many will be the first time away from home. They will travel by bus, train or plane. They will be briefed on staying in a large hotel, social events, educational tours, sightseeing and shopping on their own.

The delegates main session will feature talks and panel discussions on the pursuit of excellence. Every boy and girl who attends the Congress is sponsored by a business concern or private enterprise. The sponsor also is host to the young people during the week-long event.

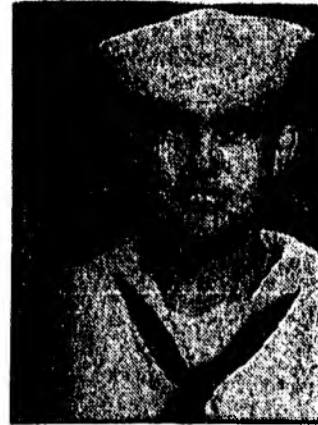

It is traditional that the 4-H Congress be held during the same week as the International Live Stock Exposition, although none of the delegates show animals there. Some may have in previous years, but it is a Congress rule, the delegates cannot be exhibitors.

However, they do visit the Exposition on Wednesday afternoon and evening as guests of the International management. They will travel by chartered bus from the Conrad Hilton Hotel, Congress headquarters, to the International Amphitheatre where an impressive evening program will take place.

Among the nearly 60 sponsors of 4-H Congress trips and other awards are: Allied Chemical Corporation, Chevron Chemical Company, John Deere, E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Company, Eastman Kodak Company, General Foods Corporation, Heidsdorf & Nelson Farms, Inc., Homelite, a Division of Tectron Inc. and Humble Oil & Refining Company.

Others include: International Minerals & Chemical Corporation, Eli Lilly and Company, Edwin T. Meredith Foundation, Moorman Mfg. Co., Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation, Oliver Corporation, Pyrofax Gas Corporation, Ralston Purina Company, The Singer Company, The S&H Foundation, Inc. and The West Dend Company.

It is time now, if you haven't done so, to arrange for material for your Christmas program at the Davie County Public Library. This is especially true of ordering the 16 mm. films you want, and booking them and the projector for required dates.

The library has seven Christmas film strips in the library ready for your use during the Christmas season, so book them early to avoid disappointment.

On Monday, November 28th at 7:30 p. m., two films will be shown in the library. "THE GREAT UNFENCED" is about Australia and "CORAL WONDERLAND" shows the underwater beauties of the Great Barrier Reef. We think you will enjoy both of these.

Richer than Spices, by Gertrude Thomas will be Mrs. Knox Johnson's subject on Radio Station WDSL's library program, Friday, November 18th, 10:30 a. m. This is an entertaining book, and Mrs. Johnson presents it in a most interesting manner.

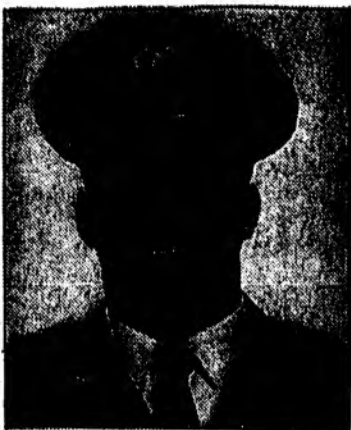

The library invites you to use all its resources. Its collection is constantly being enlarged. Come and find what interests you most. We stand ready to help you!

Jerry Lee Miller Is New Marine Enlistee

Mocksville furnished another United States Marine today when Jerry Lee Miller enlisted at the Marine Corps Recruiting Sub-station in Salisbury.

The new Marine Private is the son of Mrs. Hattie Mae Neely of Rt. 1 Box 248 Mocksville and is a 1966 graduate of the Central Davie High School.

Private Miller enlisted for 4 years under the 120 Day Delayed enlistment plan which allows a young man to select, months in advance, the date he will leave for active Marine Corps duty.

Sergeant Hurst, local Marine recruiter, explained some of the advantages of the 120 Day Delay program. The new Marine can make plans and get his affairs in order because he is certain of his active duty date. Since he is already a Marine during the delay period the time counts toward his total service obligation, his first pay raise and his first promotion.

Private Miller has chosen to leave for active duty on Mar. 1, '67.

Donald Wade Beck Enlists In Navy

Donald Wade Beck son of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Carlton Beck of Route 4, Mocksville, N. C., has enlisted in the U. S. Navy under the Navy's 120-Day Program.

This program authorizes the Navy to enlist qualified young men and give them up to 120 days delay in reporting for active duty. By enlisting under this program, Donald has gained several advantages over other enlistments in that the delay time prior to reporting for active duty counts toward completion of military obligation, builds up longevity for pay purposes and affords four months seniority prior to entering recruit training. No attendance of drills or meetings is required during the waiting period. Upon completion of the 120-day period, Donald will be transferred to the U. S. Naval Training Center at Great Lakes, Illinois for recruit training.

Petty Officer Collins, local Navy recruiter for this area invites anyone interested in this program to contact him at the local Navy Recruiting Office located in the Post Office Building, Winston-Salem, N. C.

NARROW STRIPS FIND FAVOR WITH TOBACCO FARMERS

Conservation-minded tobacco growers have adopted the practice of stripcropping to the intensive farming methods their crop requires with good results in soil protection and yields.

The main feature of tobacco stripcropping is the use of narrow strips to accommodate the number of tobacco rows best suited to the farmer's operations. Cooperators in soil conservation districts, working with conservation technicians, have generally settled on 6 rows as the best width, although fields of 4- and 8-row strips are common.

These studies showed that 4- to 6-row strips usually reduce labor costs the most. The narrow strips also enable the farmer to get maximum use of his machinery.

In 1962, the information gathered from the field studies was put into use throughout the State in conservation planning. Since that time the practice has spread rapidly.

Some of the advantages of narrow contour strips for tobacco are: (1) Narrow strips give near maximum protection from soil erosion.

(2) The land can be prepared for planting tobacco as it is needed, since each strip is a complete field.

(3) Alternate strips of sod allow easier access to all parts of the field to service the farming operation and in hauling the tobacco to the barn.

(4) The narrow strips provide better air drainage through the field and under the lower leaves, thus reducing leaf drop.

(5) Recent data from the University of Tennessee Experiment Station indicate the quality of tobacco grown in narrow strips placed bigger percentage of the crop in higher price grades than tobacco sown in a solid block.

The report also indicates a slight increase in yield from tobacco grown in narrow strips, due mainly to reduction in leaf droppage.

PHILMONT EXPEDITION The Camping and Activities Committee of the Uwharrie Council of the Boy Scouts of America met last week to plan an expedition to the Philmont Scout Ranch in New Mexico next summer.

Any Scout or Explorer wishing to participate in this Highlight Adventure must be at least fourteen years old and at least a First Class Scout. Only thirty five vacancies exist they will be filled on a first come first served basis.

The total cost of the entire Expedition, including Transportation, Food, and lodging will be $250.00. A check of $25.00 must accompany the application blank to hold your reservation. Air Force Sponsors Special Nurses' Course

The Air Force will sponsor undergraduate and Master's degree training for selected registered nurses beginning in January, Sgt. Raymond Asaro, local Air Force Recruiter, announced today. Applications are already being taken, he said.

To qualify, a nurse must have completed her Registered Nurse requirements and be within twelve months of her degree. Those who are selected will be commissioned as Air Force officers. Their first assignment will be the Air Force Institute of Technology, and their duty will be to attend the civilian college or university of their choice to work on their degree.

"Nurses will receive the full pay and allowances of Air Force officers, but they'll wear civilian clothes to class, just like the other students," Sgt. Asaro added.

If a nurse accepts an appointment under this program, she must agree to serve for three years as an Air Force nurse after she graduates. Applying for the program, however, carries no obligation at all, Sgt. Asaro said.

Interested nurses may contact Sgt. Asaro at 514 North Trade St. Winston-Salem, N. C. or call 723-7014.

First Class Military Airmail To Be Air Lifted

Postmaster Roy H. Cartner of Mocksville today announced that henceforth all first class mail, personal sound recordings (voice letters), and parcels weighing 5 pounds or less and measuring not more than 60 inches in length and girth combined, will be airlifted on a space available basis between the United States and all military post offices overseas.

Also, under Public Law 89-725 - The Dulski Military Mail Act - which was signed by President Johnson on November 2, 1966, second class publications such as newspapers and magazines published weekly or more often, and featuring current news of interest to the military, will be airlifted from San Francisco to the armed forces serving in Viet Nam.

Postmaster Cartner explained that parcels weighing 5 pounds or less and not exceeding 60 inches in length and girth combined, paid at surface rates, will be moved by surface transportation within the United States from the points of mailing to the port of embarkation. To speed up separation and delivery of these smaller parcels falling within this category, Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien directed that all parcels be clearly marked upon acceptance at the post office with the letters SAM (surface airmail mail).

This will eliminate the task of reweighing and measuring the parcels at the San Francisco Concentration Center prior to dispatch to Viet Nam or other overseas military post offices.

Postmaster Cartner also reminded mailers that Christmas parcels weighing 5 pounds and under, though they are given airmail priority from San Francisco to Viet Nam on a space available basis, should be mailed no later than December 1. Airmail, he said, should be sent no later than December 10.

The deadline for Christmas packages weighing more than 5 pounds going to Viet Nam and other overseas military post offices by surface means is November 10.

Contracts To Be Let In February—

I-40 Construction Is Scheduled

Construction of Interstate 40 through Davie County should begin by next spring.

This was the word given last week by F. Babcock, state highways administrator.

However, delays are still possible concerning the availability of federal funds.

Earliest probable date of completion is estimated for late 1968 or early 1970.

Babcock said that the previously estimated time schedule for the 28-mile missing link of the east-west highway has been off because of the slowdown of federal funds.

Previously, the state highway commission estimated that contracts would have been let by last September and October.

Babcock said the interstate construction would be let in three portions: the first a section from the Forsyth County line west to Mocksville; second state from Mocksville west to the Iredell County line; the last portion, from the Iredell County line to where I-40 now ends at Statesville.

The first section contract should be let in February. Contracts for the second and third stages should be let in March or May, Babcock said.

Honor Society Enrolls 14 New Members

Fourteen junior members of the National Honor Society were installed at a meeting held at the Davie County Public Library Monday, November 14. There are eighteen senior members making a total of thirty-two members.

To qualify for membership a junior must have an average of ninety-four and must maintain a ninety-three average to continue membership.

Larry Boger presided at the meeting and Keith Hamrick expressed a devotional thought on the importance of honesty and true happiness in success. Brief presentations on leadership, character and service—the essential qualities of a National Honor Society member—were made by Linda Burgess, Eileen King, Brenda Forrest and Larry Boger.

Membership cards were presented to the junior members by Jim Wall, who is advisor to the Society.

Miss Mary Martin Etchinson, an honor graduate of Davie County High School, who has just completed her master's degree in Asian Studies at the University of Hawaii, introduced through slides and accompanying explanations the government sponsored program of Asian studies. She talked about the customs of Asian people and how the differences in customs of their land and ours caused misunderstandings. She also displayed articles from there.

Refreshments were prepared and served by Mrs. Robert Hendricks, Vickie Hendricks, Adeline Short and Janet Ridge.

Would-be burglars fled from Heffner's Land of Food Saturday night amid the wails of the alarm they had set off.

Arriving shortly there after on the scene, Mocksville Policeman Lonnie Tutterow found the front door "jimmied" open and in front of the door an 18-inch wrecking bar they had used.

The incident happened between 10:30 and 10:45 p. m. Saturday night. The alarm was heard by Calvin Ijames who called the police. Policeman Tutterow said that although the door had been opened, no entry had been made. They fled when the alarm went off.

Investigation is continuing.

State Highway Dept. Warns About Construction Of Fences

Property owners of Davie County have again been instructed to erect new fences at least 30-feet from the center of any State maintained road, as the right-of-way extends at least 30-feet from center each way on all State roads and more in certain cases.

R. Neil Kearns, Road Maintenance Supervisor for Davie County, said that due to lack of prison labor, it has become impossible for State Highway Commission forces to trim around fences and other obstructions by hand any longer as was done in years gone by. Now all cutting of right-of-way must be done by machine. This is accomplished by use of special type mowers with an extended reach. These machines can reach and mow beyond ditches and up and down embankments, and obstructions such as fences prevents them from performing as well as they should.

"In any case where there is some doubt about where to place a fence, sign, etc., the property owner should call Mocksville 634-2400 and a Highway Representative will be glad to come out and assist the property owner in any way," said Mr. Kearns.

It is also asked that builders of new homes maintain proper roadside drainage when grading yards.

"All too often yards are graded so that water flows onto the roadway instead of along the ditch thereby creating a hazard during rainy weather and especially during the winter when melting snow flows onto the roadway during the day and freezes at night, creating dangerously slick spots. Highway Commission forces do not furnish but will be glad to install driveway pipelines where the correct size is purchased," said Mr. Kearns.

Mr. Kearns said that representatives of the Highway Commission are always happy to advise or assist property owners with these and any other problems along the roads "so that they may be continually made safer and more attractive."

Mrs. Paul B. Blackwelder has resigned as Davie County Librarian to accept a position in Charlotte with the Public Library where she will work in the reference department.

Her resignation, submitted to the Davie County Library Board of Trustees on Monday night, will become effective in 30-days.

Mrs. Blackwelder has served as Davie County Librarian since September 1959. During this period the library grew from 10,000 volumes to 20,000 volumes. Also during this period the library moved from their quarters in the basement of the County Office Building to the new library building on North Main Street, adding many extra services and facilities.

Mrs. Blackwelder is a native of Mocksville, the daughter of Mrs. E. P. and the late Mr. Bradley. She graduated from the Mocksville High School & Queens College, receiving her library degree from the University of North Carolina Library School.

Prior to her marriage to the late Paul B. Blackwelder, she taught in Cooleemee and then worked in the high school library in Amelia, Virginia. She established the high school library in Rock Hill, S. C. and served as librarian there for two years.

She is a member of the Mocksville Presbyterian Church, the American Library Association and the North Carolina Library Association.

Mrs. Blackwelder plans to move to Charlotte around the first of the year. Her daughter, Mrs. Claude Sanford, Jr., also lives in Charlotte.

Two Cars Collide In Wreck On US 64

An accident occurred on US 64, ten miles west of Mocksville, at 3:20 p. m. Sunday. Involved was a 1965 Pontiac operated by John Hamilton Bryson of Asheville, N. C. and a 1964 Pontiac operated by Ray Lingafeldt of Morganton. The vehicle operated by Bryson attempted to make a left turn when the 1964 Pontiac skidded into the rear of the Bryson vehicle.

Tattle-Tales

By Gordon Tomlinson

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Madison thought Christmas had arrived early last week.

Going to the post office for their mail, they received a large package from a foreign country.

Opening it they found a camel saddle.

Ornamental, it can be used as a footstool, as well as a saddle.

It was from their "Tour Guide" in Cairo, Egypt. It was sent as a memento of the camel ride to the pyramids of Giza, Egypt while they were there this past summer. They and 28 others made the fun ride.

Isn't it funny about firsts! Monday morning they said we had the first snow this fall. People were actually counting the flakes they saw fall. In another month or so, we will probably be counting the snowfall in inches rather than flakes.

These cold, frosty mornings in November brought about some reminiscing on the part of Arthur Daniel last week.

Mr. Daniel recalled that on cold-frosty morning when he was a young man he would take his two rabbit dogs and go sit on a rail fence and listen to them run rabbits.

"The sweetest music you've ever heard came from those two dogs in pursuit of a rabbit. One of those dogs had a deep coarse voice and the other a higher, more tenor-like bark. Together they could really make sweet music early in the morning," he recalled.

Mr. Daniel also recalled "our old gang" and said:

"With Blanche's death . . . I am the only one of the old gang left" . . . referring to the death of Mrs. Blanche Hanes Clement.

"Blanche and I were talking about it a short time ago that we were the only two of the old gang left," he continued. He went on to name over the "old gang" and told how they used to enjoy life together with hayrides, parties, picnics and the like.

All which just goes to remind one that life is just a continuous passing parade.

Little Susan Lagle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Lagle of Pine Street, was a model in the Fashion Show last week. She was to wear a pretty "Peacock Blue" dress which of course had been the topic of much conversation around the house.

However, in talking to her brother Hugh . . . she was overheard by her mother saying "I love the 'Turkey Blue' dress that I'm going to wear tonight. Hugh . . . in the fashion of most men . . . just didn't dig all this fashion-talk stuff, so he didn't argue with Susan.

This prompted the moderator to announce the "change" in color.

And it always happens. In the excitement of getting the models dressed and ready back stage . . . invariably someone will put on the wrong outfit. This happened last Tuesday.

As the narrator beautifully described the regalia of a young man's suit being worn by David Speer, this young man could hardly have been more casual as he strode across the stage in a colorful sweater and pair of slacks. A few minutes later he was back in the white shirt, tie and dark suit . . . and he was being described as "casual and carefree" in a colorful sweater and slacks.

As someone observed: "It was simply a matter of the participants not following the script".

Our observation was: "There can be bo-boos in other things as well as the newspaper!"

County Court

Olis Odell Myers, speeding, $10 and cost.

1967 COTTON QUOTAS UP FOR VOTE

Just what a "yes" or "no" referendum will mean in the upcoming referendum on upland cotton marketing quotas was explained today by J. N. Smoot, Chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee. Producers who shared in the 1966 upland cotton crop or its proceeds are eligible to vote; where no cotton was planted in 1966 on an allotment farm, only the owner and the operator may vote. Questions about eligibility to vote should be referred to (the) ASCS County Office (s).

For the first time in a quota referendum, balloting will be by mail. Ballots may also be returned to the ASCS County Office in person. The vote will be conducted during the period December 5 through 9.

The Chairman said that the basic program choices are: 1. If at least two-thirds of the growers who vote in the referendum approve of quotas, the quotas will be in effect for the 1967 upland cotton crop, price-support loans will be available, and marketing penalties will apply to any excess cotton produced on a farm. The 1967 program will be very similar to the 1966 program. Farmers will earn diversion and price-support payments if they reduce their cotton acreage at least 12.5 percent below the effective farm allotment, put the diverted acres in a conserving use, and meet other provisions. Special acreage-reduction exemptions apply to "small farms." Growers who elect not to participate in the reduction program may apply for a share of the export market acreage reserve and produce for export only, without Government subsidy or marketing quota penalties.

2. On the other hand, if more than one-third of the growers who vote oppose the quotas, then there will be no quotas and no penalties applicable to the 1967 upland cotton crop, no "domestic allotment" program providing price-support and diversion payments and no export market acreage reserve. Price-support loans to farmers who do not exceed their acreage allotments will be available at 50 percent of parity, as directed by law. Acreage allotments will remain in effect as a means of determining eligibility for the available price support.

The lease or sale of cotton allotments is provided for the 1967 crop; however, transfer documents have to be filed with the county office no later than January 3, 1967. The outcome of the marketing quota referendum will have no effect on this part of the cotton program.

Mr. Smoot pointed out that, while the Secretary of Agriculture is directed by law to proclaim quotas for the next crop when the total upland cotton supply exceeds normal, the growers themselves decide whether or not quotas shall be used. Previous votes on the subject have been outstandingly favorable. Marketing quotas for the 1966 upland cotton crop were approved by 94.8 percent of the growers voting.

Program details for individual farms will be made available to growers within the next few days, so that farmers may have the information prior to voting time. The 1967 program under quotas would be very similar to the 1966 program.

Cotton farmers will also vote during the same period on whether they approve a research and promotion program, as provided by recent legislation. The vote is entirely separate from the vote on marketing quotas for the 1967 upland cotton crop.

Health Tips

FROM THE American Medical Association

Have your friends and family got the "mumbles" lately?

Are you they just not talking loud enough for you to hear them?

The chances are that the others are still the same. It's likely that your own hearing is beginning to fade.

Or do you notice someone in the family or a close friend who is often asking you to repeat words or sentences? Even when you are reasonably certain that you spoke distinctly? Perhaps this person is suffering a hearing loss.

Your physician may find that the hearing loss is due to impacted wax in the ear canal or some other obstruction, says a pamphlet of the American Medical Association. Or there may be an infection that can block the transmission of vibrations inside the ear or affect the nerves of hearing. Certain drugs and industrial chemicals can affect hearing; mumps or scarlet fever, a cold or acute sinusitis frequently cause swelling of the mucous membranes associated with the ear. A very loud noise or sharp blow may damage the eardrum.

The physician can determine by a variety of tests whether loss of hearing is due to nerve damage or to an interference with the transmission of sound waves. If there is obstruction he can tell whether it is due to infection or another cause. He will determine whether treatment will help or correct the hearing problem. Several surgical procedures are used to help the deaf to hear, and there also are medical treatments.

In many cases, however, treatment cannot restore hearing, and a hearing aid may be prescribed. There are many types of hearing aids on the market. Your physician will guide you in finding the aid that gives best results for you. Or he may advise you that a hearing aid will be of little or no help in your case.

In cases of severe hearing loss it is frequently necessary to complement a hearing aid with lip reading to secure maximum communication. Most larger communities and many small ones today have therapists qualified to give instruction in lip reading. Your physician can help you find one. Many hard of hearing people find that they already are lip reading to some extent without realizing it.

Ignoring a hearing loss will never make it disappear. As soon as the hearing loss is recognized, seek medical help. Often there is much that can be done to help the hard of hearing continue to fill a normal place in society.

Casserole Cookery

Casserole cookery has been a joy for homemakers since the first oven proof dish was invented. The convenience of combining several compatible foods in one dish for baking and serving is appealing to the busy homemaker as well as the one who has unlimited time for experimental cookery.

Corned Beef with Rice Bake should appeal to the short-of-time cook as well as her more leisurely counterpart. The all-in-one dish meal is easily and quickly assembled — a boon to the busy homemaker — and derives its excellent flavor from the carefully chosen ingredients, which should please those who are more concerned with taste than time.

Cooked rice is the important ingredient of this casserole for it absorbs all the goodness of the zesty flavored foods with which it is combined — corned beef, onion, parsley, Cheddar cheese and curry powder — and mellows them in the most palatable way.

Corned Beef With Rice Bake
1/2 cup finely chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped fresh parsley
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 can (10 1/2 oz.) condensed cream of chicken soup
1/2 cup milk
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon curry powder
1 package (10 oz.) frozen green peas, thawed
3 cups cooked rice
1 can (12 oz.) corned beef, chilled, diced
1 cup grated Cheddar cheese

Cook onion and parsley in butter until tender. Stir in soup, milk, eggs, seasonings and green peas. Heat until hot, but do not boil. Add rice and corned beef. Turn into a greased 2-quart casserole. Top with grated cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white street-length dress of wool with matching accessories. She carried a white prayer book with a white orchid.

Saving Bonds

"When you make up your Christmas gift list, don't overlook U. S. Savings Bonds. They're better than ever this year." That's the opinion of Knox Johnstone, Davie County Volunteer Chairman.

"Savings Bonds now pay interest at the rate of 4.14 percent when they are held to maturity - and they mature in just seven years," Mr. Johnstone pointed out.

"I can't think of a better gift for our loved ones," he said. "Not only do Bonds 'keep on giving' over the years, but they help support our men fighting in Vietnam."

"When you buy Bonds," Mr. Johnstone added, "you also solve your gift-wrap problem. Attractive gift envelopes are again available at your bank. They are easy to mail, and can be slipped into a Christmas card envelope or tucked into a Christmas stocking."

Mr. Johnstone is President, Bank of Davie.

Around The Old Well

By JOAN PAGE

The author of the first full-length biography of Josephus Daniels met his subject only once and that was but a chance exchange of greetings. Yet, he has come to "know" and to admire the noted Tar Heel editor, Navy Secretary and Mexican Ambassador as if he were a close personal friend.

For seven years, University of North Carolina Professor Joseph Morrison has been reading and writing about Joseph Daniels. In the preface of his latest book, Morrison salutes Josephus Daniels "for the good and amiable company his has borne me these past years."

JOSEPHUS DANIELS: THE SMALL-D DEMOCRAT has just been published by the UNC Press. A breathing portrait of the Tar Heel statesman and founder of The News and Observer, the 320-page volume is packed with anecdotes and teeming with personality.

Morrison's earlier book, JOSEPHUS DANIELS SAYS, is a factual account of Daniels' life as a newspaper editor. An expansion of the author's doctoral thesis in history, it is a scholarly and detailed study. His latest book concentrates on human interest.

"Mr. Joe loved people and got along with all types of folks," the author explained. "His whole career was a testimonial to his rank as a great human being with a first-class temperament. I've simply tried to present the man as he was."

Morrison's interest in Josephus Daniels was stimulated years ago. "As I investigated history, politics and the press, I gradually came to realize that among North Carolinians who stayed in the state, yet were prominent on the national scene, Josephus Daniels was the single most important individual the state had produced. Long before I entered graduate school or decided to write a book, I picked him as my subject."

Morrison cited Daniels' key positions in the administrations of three American presidents, mentioning his service as Secretary of the Navy and as Ambassador to Mexico. "Equally impressive were his 20 years as North Carolina's Democratic National Committeeman and his 47 years as a University trustee," Morrison added.

Though Daniels completed a five-volume autobiography before his death, Morrison felt there were some stories that needed to be verified and some "gaps" in the record that needed to be filled in. He believes his book helps fill some of the "gaps" in the record. In addition, he has uncovered some facts hitherto unknown by even some members of Daniels' immediate family.

For example, letters written by young Daniels to his mother disclosed that he was once engaged to another woman named Addie, prior to the time he met Addie Worth Bagley, his wife of 55 years. The earlier romance was with a Wilson school teacher, Addie Marsh.

Plowing through early editions of The News and Observer, Morrison discovered Daniels was the first person to go on record in print as favoring a Consolidated University of North Carolina.

The Feb. 14, 1919, edition of the paper quoted Daniels as suggesting that North Carolina establish a Consolidated University "composed of Chapel Hill, State College at Raleigh, Woman's College in Greensboro and the teachers' colleges at Boone and Greenville." He pioneered the idea in a guest appearance before a joint session of the General Assembly while he was Navy Secretary.

Morrison's research has taken him through stacks of love notes, family correspondence and official documents. Personal family papers, including 40 years of correspondence between Daniels and son, Jonathan, his successor as editor of The News and Observer, provided much grist for the scholar's mill. The book also contains quotes from Daniels' unfinished memoir, begun at the age of 70 and appropriately titled "Life Begins at 70."

Franklin Roosevelt's papers at Hyde Park and Josephus Daniels' papers at the Library of Congress were the principal sources for the present book. Daniels' four sons, his grandchildren, newspapermen, government officials and diplomatic associates were solicited for their recollections of "Mr. Joe," along with Spurgeon Fields, Daniels' long-time valet and chauffeur. Fields is now employed at THE News and Observer.

"Josephus and Addie Daniels were affectionate and sentimental. They had a closely knit family. They were the type of people who cried . . . the type who celebrated their wedding proposal date as well as their anniversary day." The book includes the amusing fact that Daniels never learned to

By W. W. Bauer, M.D.

WINTER SPORTS

What have winter sports to do with the doctor in the kitchen? Well, it's like this.

The more inactive you are in the season when the temptation is to hole up and keep warm, the more likely you are to get fat if you keep on eating as you did while you were water-skiing, swimming, hiking, playing golf or tennis or working in the garden.

Winter exercises is just like eating less, and it can be a lot more fun.

Maybe you're tired of hearing that the calories you take in must remain in balance with the energy you put out if you wish to maintain that desirable weight which keeps your clothes fitting and your silhouette attractive, instead of looking like the fat woman who was described as having double chins — all the way down.

The growth of winter sports in the United States is one of the more encouraging signs of the times. It proves that there is fun to be had outdoors as well as in, without necessarily spending the winter on a tropical beach. Skating is available almost anywhere, and there is speaking Spanish, though he served nine years as Ambassador to Mexico.

"His translator and secretary at the Embassy told me Daniels didn't have to speak Spanish," Morrison said. "His wonderful, expressive face spoke for him and Mexicans showered him with affection."

After years of study and research, Morrison believes his book's title, "Small-D Democrat," best sums up Josephus Daniels as a person.

"Though he was a 'capital-D Democrat' in the life of his state and nation, he was a 'small-d Democrat' in his relationships with people," the author explained. "Josephus Daniels was for equal rights for all and special privileges for none. He used the same tone of voice for the janitor as for the governor or president. He never lost the common touch."

skilling with easy distance of many localities. For those tied too closely to their work, these sports are possible only on the weekend. But there are other alternatives.

For the city dweller, there are municipal and other pools for swimming, and moderately priced facilities for handball and other regular gymnasium activities. And there is always walking and tramping, in the country, if possible. As a last resort, one can always do formal exercising in his bedroom, if he has the will power.

Lists of activities have been published which show the amount of walking, stair climbing, piano playing, horseback riding and a score of other activities necessary to burn up a given number of calories. At first glance these are very discouraging, but actually they are not so bad if one realizes that the given activity does not need to be carried out all at once. It adds up.

For the average person who is not situated so as to be able to take time for sports or regular exercise routines, the best winter activity is walking. Obviously the suburban dweller cannot walk miles to work or back home, but he CAN walk to the suburban station instead of having his wife drive him, and he can walk back home from there. Maybe he can even persuade his wife to walk with him. Instead of driving on short errands, walking is better. Even the shopping can be done on foot with the aid of a cart for heavy packages. We all did it during the gasoline shortages in wartime, and it did us more good than harm.

The undeclared dividend from more winter activity is a more liberal diet without the penalty of those added pounds. This dividend is payable as you go for a "thank-you visit" to your Church or Synagogue

Thanksgiving Day will be a happier, more meaningful day...

It's a story we all know and love—the first Pilgrim Thanksgiving. The excitement in their little homes must have been pretty much as it is today—the tantalizing smells of roast turkey and pumpkin pie—the bustle and rush of eager children—it must have been a wonderful day!

But before the Pilgrims sat down to their feast they observed the true meaning of Thanksgiving. They all gathered together in their meetinghouse to give thanks for the good they had received, for survival through a long year of hardship, and to pray for the strength and courage to keep their faith in this strange, new land.

This Thanksgiving, why not take your family to your house of worship. A quiet hour of prayer and thanks will make your holiday so much more meaningful.

Wherever you are . . . whatever your beliefs may be . . . take time to offer your words of thanks . . . just as the Pilgrims did more than 300 years ago.

Our Thanks And Our Complaints

We earnestly hope that if and when some visitor from another planet arrives on earth, "it" doesn't happen to show up in this country on THANKSGIVING DAY. If it does, it's going back home with a very erroneous report on how things are going on this planet.

Our visitor will find families on Thanksgiving Day with heads bowed giving thanks for their many blessings. They will give thanks for freedom, for their health, their good jobs, their comfortable homes, their loving families, and the many other things that we in this nation hold dear and important. Our visitor would probably be quite impressed by this outpouring of humble thanks and might be amazed that so many persons living with such abundance could still appreciate their good fortune.

We would wish, however, that someone would take it aside and carefully explain that this day is one that is especially set apart called "Thanksgiving Day", as it only occurs once a year. It is the day on which we give thanks for what we are and what we have. It should be explained to our visitor that for many of us this is the only time of the year when we feel compelled to give thanks — for the remaining days of the year we are free to revert to a more favorite pastime — that of complaining.

Some of us complain about the problems of remaining free, high taxes, being asked to vote in elections, or to serve our country. We complain about the state of our health and even when we are in perfect health some of us prefer to act sick. We do considerable complaining about our jobs and having to work, and when we don't have jobs, we naturally complain even more. Our houses supply us with a good number of complaints, from the amount we have to pay in real estate taxes to the fact that our wealthy neighbor has a split-level swimming pool and we are still getting along with a conventional one.

If our visitor gets on intimate terms with the family, it'll get a good barrage of complaints from wives who have husbands that don't understand them and from husbands with wives who are not understanding. Get the parents together and they'll complain about their children — their children will complain about the parents.

There can be little doubt about it - we do manage to do a lot of complaining in this country - always have and always will. But there is one point we do hope this visitor will not lose sight of, and that is, regardless of how we do act throughout the balance of the year, we have set one day aside for giving thanks. That is far better than none at all.

It now has a place of honor in the Smithsonian Institution's new Museum of History and Technology.

A Modest Leader Of Many Talents—

Mrs. Blanche Hanes Clement

"The greatest person is one who chooses the right with invincible resolution; who resists the sorest temptations from within and without; who bears the heaviest burdens cheerfully; who is calmest in storms, and fearless under menace and frowns and; whose reliance on truth, on virtue, and on God, is most unflinching" . . . Channing. Just such a woman was Mrs. Blanche Hanes Clement.

The daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Hanes, she moved back to Mocksville at an early age when her father sold out his tobacco interests in Winston-Salem. Her father supervised the cutting of timber and the construction of what was to become the Hanes home just outside of Mocksville on US 158. This is the house in which Mrs. Clement and her sister made their home for so many years.

She, along with her contemporaries, went to school at the Sunnyside Seminary and then went on to what is now UNC at Greensboro. Following graduation, she taught at Wilson, N. C.

Marrying J. Frank Clement, a railroad engineer, they lived for sometime at Taylorsville and then moved back here. Mr. Clement's health failed and he died undergoing a serious operation in the early 1930's. At that time their only daughter, Hanes, was in school at Duke University.

Always active in church, civic and public affairs, Mrs. Clement was appointed to the Davie County Welfare Board in 1925. She also taught school in Davie County . . . at Smith Grove and Coolemeec.

Mrs. Clement also served as General Supervisor of Women's Activities of Davie County, heading the WPA sewing room. In 1936 she was organizing a meeting to discuss a public library project for Davie County.

Mrs. Clement was named to the first board of trustees of the Davie County Library when it was organized in 1943. She served in this position until 1945 when she became Librarian of Davie County. At that time the library was located in the basement of the courthouse. She was still serving as librarian when the library moved into quarters in the new county office building in October of 1954.

She served as county librarian until 1959 and under her leadership the library continued to grow and improve.

Blessed with a pioneering spirit, Mrs. Clement had a lot of firsts. She was the first woman foreman of a Grand Jury in North Carolina. She served in this capacity during a term of Superior Court here in November of 1954 at which Judge Hubert E. Olive presided.

She was most active in the Methodist Church and served her church and Sunday School in most all official capacities.

Mrs. Blanche Hanes Clement was a woman to whom Davie County and its people meant much. She never hesitated to serve and to lead in the effort to make life better for all.

Bismarck once said:

"A really great person is known by three signs — generosity in the design, humanity in the execution, moderation in success".

Thus was Mrs. Blanche Hanes Clement.

News and Comment from Our Raleigh Bureau

LUCKY . . . The headline in the local daily went as follows: "President Says He's Just Sore After Operation."

Well, little wonder he was sore. In that Republican operation—in which a record-breaking midterm deal of 56 million ballots had likely lost him Congressional control—he was lucky he wasn't running himself.

"YES, MR. STEELE" . . . Although he won without serious difficulty, Fifth District Congressman Nick Gallifianakis of Durham had his moments of worry, too, on Election night.

Looking back on his fall campaigning with friends last week, he humorously remarked that he had probably put in some good spade work here and there for his opponent, GOP Fifth District Candidate Fred Steele.

In the Primary battle last spring Gallifianakis had gone all-out, visiting check-out gates at mills time and again. His picture had been run and rerun—and he figured everybody knew his face. But, obviously, not so. The name, of course, was impossible.

In October he was busily revisiting the old places, shaking the same hands, etc. And, to let the voters know he was not taking things for granted, he would remark something like, "Well, I'm still at it" . . . or perhaps: "I'm still campaigning."

But along toward the shag end of the month he noticed that one person he was shaking hands with said: "Glad to meet you, Mr. Steele." Then a day or two later came this: "Yes, Mr. Steele—we're for you."

"What goes on here?" thought Nick. He finally figured it out. His face wasn't as well known as he had thought; and many people had somehow made "Steele" out of "Still". To many, he was Steele campaigning.

CITIZEN COUNCIL . . . This may be denied in some places, but the N. C. Traffic Safety Council—once headed by the late Phil Ellis and recently by Dwight Fee—will soon cease to exist in the form established in 1961. Ellis voluntarily left the Council a year before his death. The annual meeting of the Council will be held on December 7, and Gov. Moore has invited board members to a luncheon at the Mansion on that date. Officers and directors will be elected.

But the Council in the future will cease to function except as a group of citizens supporting the ever-enlarging safety programs of the State and Federal governments. This will be helpful.

A few months ago the Council was laying plans to add six to eight safety assistants to work in special areas over the State. This was scratched during the summer. Now it looks as if the entire staff of the Council may soon be looking for other jobs.

LARGE SUMS . . . However, naturally, Dwight Fee—and he is a very, very capable person in all phases of public relations—writing, radio, television, etc.—would like to see the Council continue as in the past . . .

But Council President Council R. P. Holding, pointing to the tax-supported safety programs, says it is difficult to see the need for a highly staffed Council supported by large sums of money donated by private firms and individuals. He raises a point hard to answer.

When the Council was conceived five years ago, the Federal Government was spending next to nothing on highway safety. Next year it will spend $1,750,000 in North Carolina alone! And, since each State must match the Federal amount, a total of $3,500,000 will be expended to curtail injuries and deaths on North Carolina highways each year. Terrific.

AUTHORITY . . . There seems to be a move under way here to establish a big, broad N. C. Traffic Safety Authority. The work of this body would dovetail into that of the national program coming out of Washington.

Ralph Howland, former editor of the Associated Press in Raleigh and more recently director of safety for the Chatham Manufacturing Co. in Elkin, is Mr. Highway Safety in North Carolina. Howland is not only one of the top men in the N. C. Department of Motor Vehicles, he is the contact man between Washington and Raleigh on the (Continued on Page 6)

Senator Sam Ervin Says:

MORGANTON — School aid programs financed by the Federal Government and administered by religious institutions have been a subject of governmental concern for some time. Last week's U. S. Supreme Court ruling which refused to review a Maryland Court of Appeals decision nullifying state aid to a Methodist college and two Catholic colleges casts more doubt on the constitutionality of Federal aid to church-related schools and colleges.

The issue is of such significance that I plan to renew my fight for a judicial review bill which won Senate approval, but died when the House failed to act on it at the last Congress. The move for new action on the measure will come when Congress reconvenes in January.

Last July 29th the Senate passed the judicial review bill which I co-sponsored. This bill would permit private citizens to contest the constitutional validity of Federal aid to church-related schools and colleges and certain other Federal programs on the ground that such aid violates the "establishment of religion" clause of the First Amendment.

The measure allows private citizens to obtain a Court determination of nine Federal and acts which fund education, health, and welfare programs administered by religious institutions by giving the complaining taxpayer "standing to sue" in Federal court.

State taxpayers have always been permitted to challenge state programs which seek to operate through religious institutions on the ground that such expenditures violate the First Amendment. However, Federal taxpayers are blocked procedurally in their efforts to test the validity of Federal grants-in-aid and loans. The problem arises by reason of a 1923 U. S. Supreme Court decision, Frothingham v. Mellon, which makes it doubtful that any Federal taxpayer can challenge Federal spending of any kind.

The measure which I plan to sponsor came to the Senate last session after extensive hearings in which educators, noted scholars of the problem, and church representatives urged that Congress provide a method for Court review of Federal tax-supported programs administered by religious groups.

Federal spending for aid to church-owned and church-related institutions has risen to a substantial amount in recent years. More than $250 million was expended by the Federal Government in fiscal year 1965 for such aid. The Department of Health, Education, and Welfare advises me that in that year approximately $178 million was spent by its agencies alone through 2,113 church-related institutions.

Congress is concerned about the issue as the recent Senate action indicates. But until Congress provides the procedural remedy and the Courts take jurisdiction of the issue, Congress is compelled to legislate in constitutional darkness on the appropriation of these funds.

In an age when judicial review is much lauded as to virtually every other aspect of the Bill of Rights, the commission of judicial review on the grounds that Federal funds handled by religious groups violate the Bill of Rights is passing strange. Like the State taxpayer, the Federal taxpayer ought to know whether his tax dollars are being spent legally or illegally for such purposes. For this reason, I expect to press for action on this measure at the next Congress.

Uncle Dave from Davie Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR: I come to town last week to haggle with my banker about gitting my semi-annual loan. He's always mighty interested at these times in my health, my crops, how I was paying my bills, if my old lady was in good health, if my Social Security checks was coming regular, and if my land titles was still clear.

They ain't nothing like having a good friend like this that was so interested in yore welfare. Anyhow, after these preliminaries was took care of and he was figuring out the interest, I picked up one of them Wall Street Journal papers off his desk and was giving it a glance. I run into some interesting items right off and my banker gives it to me to bring home.

After I got home and while my old lady was checking up to see if he had run the interest up proper and was cooking supper I started reading in this Wall Street Journal.

The piece that impressed me most, Mister Editor, was about a feller in Atlanta, Georgia, named Joe Jones, Jr. Joe wanted to start a trucking business but he didn't have no money. He went to that Government agency called the Small Business Administration, outlined his plans for a trucking business and they loaned him $25,000 to git it underway.

Joe, so this piece said, then went around and come up with a chemical company and a candy manufacturer that was willing to give him all their hauling. On account of most of their stuff had to be carried across state lines, he had to go get a license from the Interstate Commerce Commission, that had a office in the same building with the Small Business Administration office. They turned him down. In fact, by the time this piece was wrote in the Wall Street Journal they had turned him down seven times. And ever time it was for the same reason, that they already had enough truckers in the Atlanta area.

This piece said Joe was mighty shook up over the matter. One Government agency loans him $25,000 to start a business and another Government agency won't let him operate it. He wrote a letter to President Johnson about the situation and ask him if this was the "free enterprise system" he fought for in World War II and his Pa had fought for in World War I. According to this piece in the Wall Street Journal, he ain't heard from the President yet.

I was reading this piece in a paper where newspaper folks has more stomach ulcers and

60-Second Sermon

By FRED DODGE

TEXT: "Two or three things at a time are less than one thing at a time." Tom Batman.

A group of students were discussing the trials of the missionary in savage lands. After an hour's discussion of the obstacles to giving up the comforts of home for duty, one student rose to leave saying,

"It all boils down to this. You cannot force predestination and shirts on the heathen at the same time."

Do you try to do too many things at the same time? Isn't it frustrating? Our helter-skelter world with its increased leisure and labor-saving devices instead of making our lives more fruitful, involves us in so many things that we accomplish less and are more unhappy about what we do attempt.

Concentration is the secret of success in any undertaking, yet we over-load ourselves with tasks. We like people. We want them to like us. They ask us to accept honors, titles and obligations. We don't want to say "no", so we spread ourselves thinner, become less effective and more harassed. Recently, I began turning down added responsibilities. Oddly, I find that my friends envy me.

Choose something you really want to do. Concentrate on that. You'll be happier, accomplish more and be the envy of friends who cannot say "no".

Will that succulent Thanksgiving turkey be carved into beautiful, mouth-watering slices, or will the man of the house hack it into a mangled wreck? Carving a turkey is an annual trauma for some people, but is simplicity itself for others. As with so many things, it's easy when you know how. Drawings taken from World Book Encyclopedia show you how. First, remove the leg by turning the turkey on its side with its breastbone away from you. Hold the end of the drumstick and pull it forward as the knife cuts through the joint. (Figure 1.) Next, carve the drumstick into lengthwise slices by standing it on its thick end and holding the thin end with your hand. (Figure 2.) Carve the thigh after the leg. Expose the thighbone by slicing down to it. Remove the thighbone by running the point of the knife around it and lifting it up with the fork. Then finish slicing the thigh meat. (Figure 3.) If you want only a few large slices from the breast, carve with the grain. Slice lengthwise until you reach the wing joint, then remove the wing. Continue slicing until you have carved all the white meat on side of the turkey. (Figure 4.) If you want several small slices from the breast, carve across the grain. First remove the wing, then slice at an angle of about 45 degrees. Continue carving slices until you reach the breastbone. Loosen the slices by cutting along the bone under them. (Figure 5.) And that's all there is to it. Provided, of course, that you have the proper tools. The article on "Meat and Meat Carving" in World Book says: "The well-kept carving set is very important to good carving. A good carving knife needs to be sharpened only once in a while, but it should always be steeled before using. "A meat platter or carving board allows more room for cutting and makes carving easier. A large carving fork holds the meat much more firmly than an ordinary dinner fork." Bon appetit, and don't forget the cranberry sauce.

Cars Attempting To Pass Wrecked

Two cars attempting to pass - one passing a hay baler and one the car - were involved in an accident on Wednesday, November 16, at 10:45 a. m. on US 64 3 and 4 tens miles from Mocksville.

Involved in the accident were Mrs. Elizabeth Hendrix Husser, 55, of Route 2, Advance, driving a 1963 Ford, George Epharim Barnhardt, 79, of Route 2, Advance, driving a 1950 Chevrolet, and Willie Sanford Howell, 54, of Route 5, Mocksville, operating the hay baler.

State Patrolman R. L. Beane investigated the accident. He reported that all three vehicles were going west on US 64. Mrs. Husser pulled out to pass Mr. Barnhardt just as he pulled out to pass the hay baler. Mr. Barnhardt's car struck Mrs. Husser's car in the right side. The Barnhardt car then struck the hay baler. Mrs. Husser's car went off on the shoulder and back onto the highway and to the right also striking the hay baler.

Barnhardt was charged with failure to see movement could be made in safety.

Damage to the Husser car was $450, to Barnhardt's car $50, and to the hay baler, $15.

Superior Court Ends Nov. Term

Cases disposed of in Superior Court last week after publication were as follows:

A 19-year-old Negro defendant was sentenced to 25 years after entering pleas of guilty to two felonious charges.

In another case, a young man charged with manslaughter was ordered to pay the deceased person's mother a total of $2,400 over a five-year period as a part of suspended sentence conditions.

Charles Evon Dalton, 16, received the 25-year sentence at conclusion of testimony Wednesday. Dalton originally was charged with assault on a female and also with breaking and entering with intent to commit a felony, at the home of Mrs. Mae Recvis.

Dalton, through his attorney, entered a plea of guilty to assault on a female with intent to commit rape a lesser charge than breaking and entering with intent to commit a felony. Judge Hubert E. May gave the youth a sentence of 15 years.

On the charge of assault on a female, he entered a plea of guilty to felonious breaking and entering and was sentenced to 10 years.

The charges resulted from a daytime breaking and entering of Mrs. Recvis' home in rural Davie County. Dalton was wearing a paper bag over his head and attempted to assault the woman, who was alone in the home at the time.

In another case, Judge May ordered the defendant to pay $40 monthly for five years to the mother of a youth who was killed in a motor vehicle accident.

Bobbie Ray Laird, 18, of Rt. 3, Mocksville, was charged with manslaughter and operating a car intoxicated after the July 7 accident in which Casey Rodwell Cartmell, 18, of Mocksville, was killed.

Testimony showed that Laird was driver of a 1957 Chevrolet which struck the rear of Cartmell's motorcycle. Laird's car, with the motorcycle and rider locked to the front, skidded into the rear of a car.

Laird, who had no previous record, entered pleas of guilty to both charges. He was sentenced to seven to 10 years suspended for five years.

Judge May ordered that, in addition to $5,000 paid by an insurance company to the deceased youth's mother as beneficiary, Laird must pay $40 monthly for five years to Mrs. Cartmell. This amounts to $2,400 for the five-year period.

On the charge of operating a car intoxicated, Laird was ordered to pay $100 fine and court costs, and to surrender his drivers license for one year.

An unusual aspect of the case was revealed in testimony in that Laird, just prior to the accident, had requested a friend to telephone an acquaintance to drive Laird's vehicle home.

Laird, it was revealed, had recently begun to drink and he had been drinking on the night just before the fatal collision. However, there was no answer when the telephone call was made, and Laird continued to drive. Shortly after the unsuccessful call was made, the accident occurred.

Davie Ray Miller, charged with driving while license was revoked permanently, pled nolo contendere to the charge. Judge May ruled that the court found it a fact that the defendant had violated a previously imposed 60-day suspended sentence.

Judge May ordered the 60-day suspended sentence invoked and then sentenced Miller to 18 months on the latest charge. Sentences were stipulated to be served concurrently.

John Pruitt, charged with manslaughter and reckless driving, was ordered to be committed to the state hospital at Goldsboro for a period not to exceed 90 days for observation and examination.

After the 90-day period, Pruitt is to be returned to court to await further judgment.

Other cases heard Wednesday include:

Ray Holleman, larceny, pled nolo contendere and was sentenced to two years in prison suspended for five years on condition he pay $100 and costs, and to reimburse Mrs. Louise Cartner $125, and on a charge of larceny, nol pros with leave; Larry Phillips Long, reckless driving, six months suspended for five years, pay $100 and costs; Frank Barnes, operating car intoxicated, 12 months suspended for two years, pay $100 and costs, surrender license for one year.

Also, Frank Jackson Gough, two charges of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, entered pleas of nolo contendere to assault with a deadly weapon, prayer for judgment continued until Jan. 16; Charlie Thomas Williams, failure to yield the right of way, case remanded to justice of the peace court to comply with lower court judgment; Eloise Alexander, false pretense, continued; Gerald Gray Booe, assault with a deadly weapon, reckless driving and hit and run driving, continued.

An uncontested divorce, Hilary Powell vs Carolyn H. Powell, was granted.

George Kelly (Squirrel) Payne, originally charged with murder in the death of Henry Austin, had the charge reduced by grand jury action which found a true bill of manslaughter.

Payne's case was continued under a $2,000 bond.

The grand jury also commended Judge May and Solicitor Allie Hayes in the fair and impartial way in which they conducted superior court.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

The gullies shown above can be shaped and seeded to grass and serve as grass waterways to provide a safe outlet for water disposal systems in Davie County.

Uncontrolled gullies . . . such as those pictured above . . . advance to a point where they cutup fields and whole farms.

size of waterway needed.

LAND LEVELING can be done during the construction of waterways. Soil removed from the waterway can be used to fill in small depressions and eroded places in the field.

Hubert Boger, Rt. 2 Mocksville having trouble with row drainage in field for several years, decided to solve the problem by constructing waterways through depression to provide safe outlet for excess water. Mr. Boger says this solved this problem. High quality topsoil which has accumulated in places where waterways are constructed. After waterways are constructed they are seeded to adapted grasses and mulched with straw.

All residents of Davie County will be benefit by the construction on watershed area. Total acreage in waterways in the county is now approximately 400 acres. Waterways serve the major purpose of controlling sediment in the streams and providing a safe outlet for water disposal systems.

Proper Water Disposal Necessary—

Waterways Boost Davie County Economy

Construction of waterways by Davie landowners, on farms, golf courses, hunting preserves, residential and industrial sites topped the 100 mark for 1966. Construction costs were estimated at $15,000. Most of the cost was paid for by the landowner. Several public conservation and credit programs encourage the waterway construction with technical and financial cost sharing. Earthmoving vendors provide essential services.

PROPER WATER DISPOSAL system is necessary on all land where runoff occurs. The natural processes of erosion have created natural drainage patterns. The next time you have a heavy rain, take a good look at the natural drainage ways and drawson your land. Is there erosion in these low places where runoff water collects and flowsdown hill? If so, you may need a waterway. Landowners have found that waterways do not cut up the field and crossing waterways with modern machinery is easy. Power lifts simply the job of raising and lowering tools during the crossing. Waterways needed near the home or buildings can be used as part of the yard since they are seeded to grass.

LOCATION and SIZE of the waterway depends on the topography and drainage area. The best location is a depression or draw that is part of the natural drainage system. These places require a minimum of shaping. If the field has no natural depression, construction will be necessary. The waterway should be wide enough to hold the largest flow from the heaviest rain expected on an average of about once in 10 years. The Soil Conservation Service assisting the Davie Soil & Water Conservation District can give you the information on the location and

By NORTH CALLAHAN

For some good reason, Thanksgiving reminds me of the Salvation Army. Both are officially about a century old but of course thankfulness and organized devotion existed long before this in many forms. The Pilgrims themselves who observed the earliest thanksgiving on our shores locally, were much like the Salvation Army in composition, being a tight-knit, firmly disciplined group of devout people who were determined to win over adversity and evil. The heritage of the Pilgrims is our liberty; and if every army in the world were like the Salvation Army, ours would be a peaceful place of loving souls upon this earth.

The Salvation Army was born on the streets of London and still lives in such places around the world. But instead of inciting riots, they hold prayer meetings and play the sweetest sacred music one can hear. General William Booth started the organization and set forth a simple, redeeming religion based on self sacrifice for the salvation of others. His successors have ruled with a firm if benevolent hand. Like sensible persons elsewhere, they disdain the idea that God is dead and give little heed to the current arguments among so-called theologians over the trivial niceties of religion, but adhere to a plain faith in God himself, which anyone can understand and appreciate.

The soldiers of the Salvation Army are drawn from all classes and walks of life and serve under majors, captains and lieutenants who expect proper discipline, since it has been found that this is an efficient way to get things done without delay and question. Each general appoints his successor and in the case of General Booth, his son took his father's place. There was some dispute about this but about 30 years ago, the daughter of the founder, Commander Evangeline Booth became head of the organization and showed that a woman can rule a modern army with the aplomb of a modern Joan of Arc. She had led the Salvation Army in the United States for years before, and under her leadership, great advances were made in the provision of free meals for the deserving indigent as well as night shelters, evangelistic meetings, caring for unmarried mothers and their children, family welfare, aid to prisoners and their families, free meals for the deserving indigent as well as night shelters, evangelistic meetings, caring for unmarried mothers and their children, family welfare, aid to prisoners and their families, free employment bureaus and search for missing relatives. Commander Booth endeared herself to people all over the world.

Outstanding was the work of the Salvation Army in World War I, a time when saving grace was really needed. The whole resources of the organization were placed at the disposal of the Allies, and Salvation Army women ministered day and night to the comfort of the soldiers right up to the front-line trenches. The hot coffee and tasty doughnuts of the group became a symbol of cheer and long afterward, veterans were heard to sing the praises of this fine work and never forgot it. In the next world war, the Salvation Army was again active, though by now such organizations as the Red Cross and USO were doing some of the work formerly done by the religious body. The Salvation Army expects a high code of personal behavior from its members. The officers accept comparative poverty receiving only that which is sufficient for their needs. The uniform indicates to the world that the wearer has separated himself or herself from the mundane world and is now dedicated to a sacred cause. Even so, the members appear to lead a balanced, rational life and often seem happier than those who are still attached to the more material pursuits. Nothing is more inspiring on a quiet Sunday afternoon than the tuneful strains of a Salvation Army band duly performing its meaningful mission on a street corner in most any town.

MORE ABOUT Capital Clipboard

Highway Safety Act of 1966. He and Motor Vehicles Head A. P. Godwin are getting results, too. Appointed by Gov. Dan Moore, Howland stands like a Colossus building an empire of and for highway safety in North Carolina. And the Federal program requires that the governors of the respective states be responsible for the new program.

So, all appointments to the N. C. Traffic Safety Authority - or by whatever name it may be called - will come directly or indirectly from the Governor's office. But few states - thanks to some pioneer work by the privately supported Council - are as ready as North Carolina for the new program.

And probably no other state has a man as well equipped by education, training, personality, and experience for the top post as Ralph Howland.

NOTES . . . A private meeting of leading citizens from throughout the State was held here a few days ago to look into the formation of a N. C. State Chamber of Commerce . . . Average crowd at football games in which UNC was one of participants (Notre Dame, Georgia, State, etc.) this fall 40,000 plus!
