

Competency exams may follow

School board okays objectives program

The Cass City School Board asked the school administration to start a goals and objectives program for the system that hopefully will be in operation at the start of the second semester of the 1983-84 school year. The action was taken at the regular board meeting Monday at the school.

Trustee Dick Albee presented the plan that was adopted. It calls for a monthly progress report on the new program.

The school board objective is to correlate each class and course from elementary school through high school so that teachers will know what the student is expected to learn.

After that is accomplished the board would probably look favorably on a type of competency examination for graduation.

Principal Russell Richards reported that a survey indicates that there are no known schools in Michigan with school-wide testing programs to coordinate curriculum.

He said that two schools do have tests. One is Coldwater and the other is Sturgis. Sturgis is rated as one of the five best systems in Michigan.

Students there must score between 75 and 100 percent on the Michigan Association of School Boards tests or pass a functional evaluation test to graduate. If they fail both tests they are given a certificate of achievement instead of a diploma.

BUY EQUIPMENT

The board authorized the purchase of several pieces of equipment for the farm shop after Dave Milligan presented the requests as spokesman for the agricultural council.

Authorized without question was $150 for fencing for the tool crib and $150 for improvements to the electrical board.

A request for $1095 for a wire welder was approved but not before considerable debate. Trustee Albee figured that the welder was more than the farm shop warranted. He pointed to the skill center in Caro as the place for this training.

Eventually the purchase was approved by the entire board. A determining factor was that the state is expected to reimburse 70 percent of the cost.

A report by Lou Horner from the citizens' advisory committee was highlighted by a request to change the tardy rule at the school.

After meeting with the student council and the administration the committee feels that the rule should be changed so that it does not pile up points under the current discipline system. The issue will be decided at the next regular board meeting. Horner also reported that the committee is planning a meet the candidate night and is finalizing a new survey about substance abuse, crime and vandalism.

OTHER BUSINESS

Trudy Muszynski reviewed the elementary art program for the board, showing examples and slides of the work in her classes.

A budget hearing will be held at the next meeting, but the figures won't mean much until the revised budget is presented later after state aid and revenues are finalized.

The board went on record as being willing to meet with groups to explain the current financial situation at the school prior to the millage vote that will request a 16.9 mills renewal.

A fact sheet has been compiled by the superintendent.

HOSPITAL TOUR -- In conjunction with National Hospital Week, first graders toured Hills and Dales General Hospital. Giving Cindy Bader, LPN, their undivided attention Friday as she explained how the air-driven saw works, used for cutting off casts, was the class of Polly Pakonen (rear).

Property transfers return

Delinquent taxes arrive, O-G paydays to resume

Paydays will resume in the Owendale-Gagetown schools, the school board was told Monday evening.

That was the good news. The possible bad news is that the state Board of Education is starting to consider some long dormant property transfer cases again.

Supt. Ronald Erickson announced that $101,000 in delinquent property taxes were received last Thursday from the Huron County treasurer's office. Usually, the payment isn't received until June.

Receipt of the money will enable the district to make up the two missed every-other-week payrolls and to resume the normal pay schedule.

Still to come is about $65,000 in delinquent taxes from the Tuscola County treasurer. If that is received in time, Erickson said, he will be able to put the money in the bank temporarily and draw some interest.

Whether any payrolls this summer are missed, he explained after the meeting, will depend on how soon the district can sell tax anticipation notes, that is, borrow money to be paid back from property taxes.

During the meeting, he said the procedure has been changed, that school districts no longer have to receive permission from the Municipal Finance Commission to borrow, provided they meet certain criteria. It appears Owen-Gage meets the criteria.

TRANSFERS

The state board has asked its property transfer hearing officer, Ray Godmer, to conduct supplemental hearings on three property transfer requests it has had on hold because of the Goslin case before the Supreme Court, which was decided last year. (Owen-Gage still has an appeal pending regarding collection of property taxes from the territory.) The state has asked for the new hearings because its information about the three parcels in question is old.

Consideration of transfer of the Schaper-Kain parcel from Elktion-Pigeon-Bay Port to Owen-Gage, state equalized valuation of $172,889, was tabled in 1976, as was the Welchman appeal to transfer from Owen-Gage to E-P-BP, which had a SEV of $10,390. (SEVs are as of the date listed.)

Consideration of the transfer appeal of Dietzel parcel property owners, from Owen-Gage to E-P-BP, was tabled in 1979. It had an SEV of $369,430.

In addition, Erickson explained, the state board approved the transfer of three parcels in July, 1976, which have remained in Owen-Gage because Ingham County Circuit Judge James T. Kallman put a stay on the transfers until the Supreme Court ruled.

They are the Voelker and Belk parcels, both to Cass City, with SEVs of $157,000 and $306,100 respectively, and Parker-Hallock to E-P-BP, $13,500.

The superintendent expects Attorney General Frank Kelley will file a motion with Kallman to have the judge remove his stay so the transfers can be made.

When that happens, Erickson said, Owen-Gage's attorney, James F. Schouman, will file a motion asking for a rehearing because it has been seven years since the state board approved the transfers.

It was mentioned the district is two years behind in its payments to Schouman for services rendered.

1983-84 BUDGET

The board approved a preliminary 1983-84 budget, with Erickson cautioning, "As all budgets are, there will be a lot of changes."

It projects total general fund expenditures of $1.26 million, an increase of $32,532 over what the district is expected to spend this year. The new fiscal year starts July 1.

The budget predicts a surplus of $19,783. Erickson is predicting a $12,056 surplus as of June 30 this year.

There are several unknowns, one of them being passage of the 6.5 mill renewal June 13.

Another is the state equalized valuation of the district, which determines how much Owen-Gage will collect in property taxes. Erickson figured a 4 percent increase for purposes of preparing the budget.

The teachers will be negotiating a new contract, the present three-year pact expiring June 30.

The Tri-County Bargaining Association, which represents Owen-Gage teachers in contract bargaining, has appointed its bargaining committee and requested the start of negotiations. No

Village drunk driving law difference may not matter

Although Michigan's new drunk driving law went into effect March 30, Cass City police are still enforcing the old law.

They will be doing so until Monday, when the village's new ordinance, similar to the state law, goes into effect.

The reason for the delay, explained Clinton House, the village's attorney, is that Cass City chooses to enforce its own motor vehicle code, which is patterned after the state code.

House prepared revisions to bring it in line with the new drunk driving law, which the council approved April 26. The revised ordinance, published in this week's Chronicle, goes into effect 20 days after it was approved.

The penalties are the same in the state law and the village ordinance for first offense operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor or operating while impaired, which are misdemeanors.

For OUIL, the penalty is a fine of $100-500 and/or up to 90 days in jail and suspension of driver's license for 6 months to 2 years.

For OWI, the penalty is up to $300 fine and/or 90 days in jail and suspension of driver's license for 90 days to one year.

THE ONE SIGNIFICANT difference between the village ordinance and the state law, which ultimately may be meaningless, is in the penalty for second offense OUIL and OWI (within seven years of the first offense). The penalty is less severe under the village ordinance.

The reason for the difference, House explained, is that state law only gives municipalities the power to regulate misdemeanors, for which the penalty can be no more than 90 days in jail and/or a maximum fine of $500.

Accordingly, an OUIL (2nd offense) conviction under village ordinance carries a maximum penalty of 90 days in jail, fine of $300-500 and revocation of driver's license for at least one year.

Under state law, the penalty is a fine of up to $1,000, up to one year in jail and revocation of license for at least one year.

OUIL is defined as a blood alcohol content level of .10 percent or higher (or other evidence of intoxication). OWI is a blood alcohol content of .08 or .09 percent.

Under village ordinance, the penalty for OWI (second offense) is no more than 90 days in jail, a fine of no more than $500 and 6-18 months' suspension of driver's license.

The penalty under state law is up to $1,000 fine, and/or one year in jail and 6-18 months' suspension.

VIOLATIONS OF village ordinances, shoplifting, speeding, or whatever, are normally handled by House.

In the case of drunk driving violations, however, either he can handle the court proceedings or the county prosecutor's office can do it.

If the latter does it, however, the person is charged under state law, even if the person was arrested by Cass City police. The prosecutor's office used to handle all drunk driving offenses, no matter where they occurred.

Prosecutor Artis Noel said he doesn't have enough staff to still prosecute all such cases. In addition to Cass City, Vassar and Caro also have their own such ordinances. "Obviously, I can't do all of them," he said, but he is willing to handle some of the first offense drunk driving cases.

However, Cass City Police Chief Gene Wilson said he discussed the matter with House and they felt it wouldn't be fair to the accused to have some cases handled by the village's attorney and some by the prosecutor's office, so House will prosecute all of them.

NOEL SAID IT'S UP to the local police department to decide whether his office or the village attorney

Pole vaulter Jim Gravenmier in serious condition

Jim Gravenmier was reported in serious condition Wednesday morning at St. Mary's Hospital in Saginaw, where he was taken after being injured while pole vaulting Monday afternoon. He is in the intensive care unit.

The Cass City High School senior was vaulting in a home meet against Unionville-Sebewaing.

According to a fellow vaulter, Joe Leeson, who witnessed the mishap, Gravenmier's hands slipped on the pole as he was leaving the ground.

He started falling to the right and hit the crossbar. His vaulting pole knocked down the support post.

Gravenmier's feet landed on the pit, but his head hit the concrete on which the support post stands.

Leeson said the vaulter was unconscious for about 1½-2 minutes, but was conscious by the time he was put in the ambulance.

Gravenmier was taken to Hills and Dales General Hospital and then transferred to St. Mary's.

Assistant track coach Donald Markel, who also witnessed the incident, said no one was close enough to try to catch Gravenmier when he fell.

He was in his first year of vaulting. The mishap occurred on his third attempt to clear the bar at 8 feet, 6 inches.

MEMORIES -- Among retiring kindergarten teacher Eva Rochefort's prized possessions are the annuals for every year she has taught at Owendale-Gagetown, starting in 1955-56.

Retirement near for long-time O-G teacher Eva Rochefort

Getting ahead in education for Eva Rochefort originally meant moving from a school with outdoor plumbing and a furnace she had to feed with wood or coal to one with indoor plumbing and an oil furnace.

But once she got Owendale to teach -- Owendale-Gagetown came later -- she was content to stay, except for the one year it took her to realize her mistake.

Having been a teacher for 40 years, 27 of them at Owendale and Owen-Gage, Mrs. Rochefort, 59, has decided it's time to retire. Her last day with her students will be June 3.

She will be guest of honor at a tea to which the public is invited, starting at 2 p.m. Sunday, May 22, in the Owen-Gage High School cafeteria.

Growing up near Bad Axe, Mrs. Rochefort attended a country school through the eighth grade. Her mother didn't think she was old enough to go out in the world after that, so gave her two choices -- either take the eighth grade a second time or go to high school.

She chose the latter and graduated from Bad Axe High School in 1940, at the age of 16.

After that, she did house work for a year and then worked at the Dibble store in Bad Axe for a year. It was while she was working in the store that a friend came in and said she was going to attend Tuscola County Normal School in Caro, which was a one-year school to train teachers.

In the back of her mind, Mrs. Rochefort said, she had long thought, "I sort of wanted to be a teacher."

She enrolled at the school and graduated in June, 1943.

SHE TAUGHT A TOTAL of 12 years in various one-room country schools, always trying to better herself, she explained, for instance moving to one with oil heat, instead of one where she was responsible for building the fire, and to ones with indoor plumbing.

One of those schools is still operating, the Big Burning School, near Bad Axe.

The school is the site of Mrs. Rochefort's once-a-month refunders' meeting. "Refunding, that's my hobby," the often jovial coupon clipper said. "Saving all that junk."

She notes the building now has gas heat and indoor plumbing, but when she taught there, there was an outhouse and the heater burned coal.

Students who did something they weren't supposed to might be assigned the task of bringing scuttles of coal inside.

The coal heater did have one advantage, Mrs. Rochefort recalled. Students would bring potatoes, put them on top and by lunch time, the spuds were ready to eat.

In 1950, the teacher married Lyle Rochefort. They have lived in the same house in Bad Axe since 1954 and have two sons, Alan, 24, and Gary, 21.

HER CERTIFICATE from Tuscola Normal was only good for six years. In order to get a state limited certificate, she had to start taking regular college classes and to get a permanent certificate, she had to get a college degree.

She enrolled at Central Michigan University and took evening extension classes in the area during the school year and on campus in summer. She received her bachelor's degree in 1956. (She continued taking classes and received her master's degree from CMU in 1970.)

In 1955, AS SHE NEARED completion of her B.A. degree, she decided it was time to get a job in a "town school." She applied at Owendale and the then Elktion School District.

She recalled that Owendale Supt. Henry Moes came to her home one evening to offer a contract. She accepted and started teaching kindergarten in Owendale in the fall of 1955.

She taught there two years, then got a job teaching third grade in Bad Axe. "My husband always said, 'You're halfway to Bay City' (going to Owendale)," plus Bad Axe paid $200 more a year.

But she wasn't happy there and when the new kindergarten teacher in Owendale left after the first year, Mrs. Rochefort grabbed the opportunity to get her old job back. "You got to be happy doing your job," she explained. "Money isn't everything."

Given in marriage by Ervin Depcinski, brother of the bride, and her mother, the bride wore a polyester organza gown designed with a high cluny, lace collar, fitted yoke bodice, high-lighted with cluny lace, point d'esprit, and pearl trim. It had long, puffed sleeves, and fitted cuffs accented with a cluny lace ruffle. The full princess skirt fell from an empire waistline with a cluny lace ruffle hemline which flowed to a chapel length train.

Her fingertip veil of white bridal illusion was secured by a small cap and accented in cluny lace and pearls.

The bride carried a fan bouquet of white sweetheart roses, baby's breath, and white miniature carnations tipped light blue.

Elaine Depcinski, Cass City, sister of the bride, was maid of honor.

She wore a long gown of medium blue triestri knit. It featured long lace cuffed sleeves and a fitted waist accented by a tie belt. A high neckline of silk venise lace complimented a re-embroidered illusion insert in the bodice. A soft gathered waist accented the long peplum wrap skirt.

She wore a blue silk flower headband in her hair. She carried a fan bouquet of white sweetheart roses, baby's breath, white daisies, baby's breath, white daisies, baby's breath, and dark blue tipped miniature carnations in a cascading effect.

Bridesmaids were Barbara Engel, Ypsilanti, sister of the groom; Bonnie Holdwick, Lansing, cousin of the bride, and Linda Glaza, Westminster, Colo., friend of the bride.

The bridesmaids wore gowns identical to the maid of honor's, only in a powder blue. They also wore blue silk flower headbands in their hair.

The bridesmaids carried fan bouquets of white sweetheart roses, baby's breath, white daisies, and light blue tipped miniature carnations in a cascading effect.

Frank Kincaid, Port Hope, friend of the groom, was best man.

Groomsmen were Albert Depcinski, Cass City, brother of the bride; Steven Schubring, Port Hope, friend of the groom, and Myron Muter, Port Hope, friend of the groom.

Ushers were Mark Woolford, Caseville, cousin of the groom, and Charles Depcinski, Bad Axe, cousin of the bride.

The bride's mother wore a floor length gown of seafoam knit. She wore a corsage of sweetheart rose, white daisy, and baby's breath.

The groom's mother wore a floor length gown of peach knit. She wore a corsage of sweetheart rose, white daisy and baby's breath.

The reception was conducted at the Ubyly Fox Hunters' Club for 550 guests attending from the Thumb area, Bay City, Detroit, Ohio, and Colorado.

The bride is a 1979 graduate of Ubyly High School. She is employed as a secretary at MacEachin Insurance Agency in Ubyly.

The groom is a 1976 graduate of Port Hope High School.

After a two-week honeymoon to Florida and the eastern states, the couple is residing in Port Hope.

Disarmed students

By Jim Fitzgerald

According to the well-publicized "report card" recently slapped on U.S. schools by the National Commission on Excellence in Education, our nation has committed "an act of unthinking, unilateral educational disarmament."

"If an unfriendly foreign power had attempted to impose on America the mediocre educational performance that exists today, we might well have viewed it as an act of war," the report said.

The analogy strongly suggests that the well-educated student is a human weapon important to the arsenal of any nation aspiring toward world domination. And the classroom dunce, possibly influenced by enemy agents, is a blank bullet without enough firepower to dominate a rural village.

Those U.S. Catholic bishops and others who yearn for military disarmament might be well advised to study how our nation achieved educational disarmament. What do our schools do to graduate students with no warheads? Would the same methods produce similar results in Washington bureaucracies?

Why not? According to the commission report, students don't go to school long enough to learn how to be human weapons. The traditional six-hour school day and 180-day year should be expanded to seven hours and 20 days, the commission said. Conversely, one way to wipe out military weapons is for federal government officials to work fewer hours and days.

President Reagan shouldn't go to work at all. He should spend all his time visiting Claudette Colbert, the former movie actress, in Barbados. When he went to see her last year, for only a few days, it cost taxpayers $3.5 million. If he vacationed in Barbados all year, there might not be enough tax money left to build MX missiles.

What about the generals and admirals who keep buying cost-plus armaments from munition firms so those firms will give them $500,000-a-year jobs after they retire on fat pensions from the military? Congress should pass a law forbidding air conditioning in the Pentagon. That would stop the brass from coming to work seven months a year.

Another way for schools to produce smarter human weapons, the commission report said, would be stiffer requirements — four years of English, four years of math and science, etc. So, continuing on the flip side, chances of military disarmament would be improved if federal employees faced easier requirements.

As it is now, for instance, persons hired to negotiate military disarmament for the United States must be adults. But a 10-year-old Maine girl recently wrote to Soviet leader Yuri Andropov and received an answer pledging that the Soviet Union will never be the first to use nuclear weapons.

That's a lot more than our adult negotiators ever got in writing despite never-ending series of disarmament meetings that are usually held in charming cities containing many tourist attractions for public employees old enough to know enough not to let the threat of a nuclear holocaust interfere with their good times. Let a little child lead us.

The commission report also suggested one way to prevent educational disarmament would be to pay teachers more money but also make it easier to fire them — the murder of the school board president wouldn't be the only grounds for dismissing a tenured teacher.

So, flip-flopping to military disarmament, should the federal officials involved be paid less money but never be fired? If you think that's a half-bad idea, don't blame me. I didn't start this stupid analogy, the National Commission on Excellence in Education did.

Moral: When there is no educational disarmament anywhere, no military disarmament will be necessary because we'll all be smart enough to realize how dumb it is to hurt each other. The talks that always end wars will prevent them instead.

When excellence in education prevails, weapons will give way to words, and the only physical danger will be tripping over plowshares. And in the meantime, all of us dunces better watch where we step.

Elkland Twp. firemen help at Caro fire

Elkland Township firemen assisted the Caro Fire Department in extinguishing a fire last Wednesday night in downtown Caro.

Damage to Uncle Mel's Village Cafe was estimated at $25,000. The fire started in the kitchen, but the cause was not immediately determined.

The Elkland pumper truck was dispatched after the call was received at 11:05 p.m. The Vassar Fire Department also assisted.

The Cass City School Board is ready, willing and able to speak to your organization about the current school situation.

They did this last year when the campaign was on to secure needed operating funds.

There is a difference this time around. Last year board members were asking for a chance to speak. This year if you want a speaker you have to do the asking.

The reason for the switch, of course, is that this year the board is not seeking an increase in funds, simply a renewal.

Sometimes the zip codes do work. (Coming from a small town probably helps, too.) Anyway, the other day I received a letter from Mont-Treblant, Quebec, Canada, addressed to Hohn Haire at Cassaty, Mich. USA 48726.

All of this proves two things. One is that the zip code works and the other is that my writing is as horrible as the staff claims it is. The letter was from a hotel we stayed at this winter and I signed the register.

Cass City agriculture students will be planting corn with different population counts and different amounts of fertilizer on the experimental plot at the school.

The students will be trying to determine if more seed per acre will result in higher net yields.

The program is a direct result of the interest shown by area farmers who are working on the ag advisory council at the school.

The Haire Net

A time worn cliché is that you can prove anything by statistics. It's a little rare to doubt the statistics, but still agree with what the numbers are supposed to prove.

That's my position when surveys reveal the worth of a college education. The U.S. Census Bureau released one that said that college graduates will average 40 percent higher lifetime earnings than high school graduates. There's no reason to believe that those figures aren't accurate. What is open to question is whether or not it's the education that is the deciding factor in the money derby.

There's no proof, of course, but the thought persists that it's not the education but the people involved that make the difference.

As a group, kids going to college have to have a little more going for them than the kids that don't. A little more ambition perhaps, a better start because parents are likely to have more and can make the path a little less rocky than parents with less.

Given equal ambition and opportunity, the opinion here is there would be little difference in the average lifetime earning of a high school or college graduate.

Some persons are born money makers. One of the shrewdest I ever knew never went past the eighth grade. All of you must know one or more persons like this.

If you plan to enter one of the professions, college is mandatory. If your aim is just to pile up the dough, it's doubtful if going to college means all that much.

Our universities miss the boat by sticking to the dollar values. There's a lot to be learned at college that can't be measured by the number of bucks that come your way during a lifetime.

It's impossible to attend college for any length of time and not be affected.

There's no guarantee that you'll have a job after four more years of education. Any college student will tell you that these days.

But it is guaranteed that you'll come out with different values. A different perspective.

College is more than a broadening experience. It's a humiliating experience. Rubbing shoulders with persons better than you are in whatever it happens to be that you excel is part of what it's all about.

You can't measure what that experience is worth, but most folks that have it will tell you that it was as valuable as the knowledge picked up in the classroom. Maybe more so.

While visiting in Argentina

John Graham brings Alvarezzes together

"Every time I tell this, it kind of amazes me the nerve I had to do that," says John Graham.

What the retired farmer had the nerve to do was introduce Ernesto Alvarez to Rosana Berri, who in March became husband and wife.

The "nervy" part stems from his having introduced them in Argentina, where he was a guest. Graham doesn't speak Spanish, but that didn't stop him from becoming an international matchmaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvarez, 31 and 19 respectively, who were married March 4, visited Graham and his wife, Mildred, during their three-month honeymoon. They left the Graham's Colwood Road, Caro, home May 2, headed for Toronto. After 9-10 days there, they will go to Spain and then return to Argentina June 8.

The story begins in April, 1981, when a Rotary study exchange team from central Argentina -- one Rotarian and five business and professional men, ages 25-35 -- arrived for a six-week visit to the east central Michigan Rotary district. One of the six was Alvarez. (A Rotary team from the district later visited Argentina.)

Graham, a Rotarian, volunteered to chauffeur the Argentinians to their various stops in his motor home.

The result was they became quite friendly and, "They kind of wanted me to come to Argentina."

GRAHAM ACCEPTED their invitation and arrived in the South American nation Oct. 15, 1981.

He first spent three weeks with Alvarez at his home in the city of America. Although Alvarez lives in town, he and his parents operate a 12,000-acre ranch, with 5,000 cattle, about 20 miles from America.

"Ernesto had this nice house," Graham explained, but, as he soon noticed Alvarez was the only one in it. Finally, he told his host, "I've been here two weeks and you haven't introduced me to a young lady yet."

Alvarez responded there wasn't one. "I'll see what I can do about it," Graham promised.

After leaving America, he spent one week at the home of each of the other Argentinians who had visited Michigan.

One of his stops was at the home of Mario Orlando, Marcos Juarez. Orlando didn't speak much English, so took Graham to the farm of Teresio and Gabriela Berri, outside of town. Berri was born in Canada, so speaks English.

The Argentinian had a daughter, Rosana. At first, Graham said, "I had no thought, except just that she was a nice young lady."

A WEEK LATER, WHEN he was in another town, 70 miles away, he thought that Rosana might be the right young lady for Alvarez, so he called him.

Ernesto replied he was still interested, "so I was in trouble then."

Graham got a ride back to the Berri farm to ask Berri if he minded if he (Graham) introduced Rosana to his friend, Ernesto. The father said okay (Rosana was a little reserved, but willing, Graham said) and the arrangements were made.

At the last place Graham visited, his six hosts got together to give him a farewell party.

The next day, he and Alvarez went to the Berri farm -- 70 miles away -- where Graham introduced him to Rosana.

GRAHAM RETURNED home after that, but the rest as the saying goes, was history.

If absence makes the heart grow fonder, it certainly proved true in this instance. Alvarez and Miss Berri lived about 300 miles apart. He visited her about once a week, so in their 14 month courtship, he figures he drove about 30,000 miles.

Following their marriage, they first visited Mexico. They arrived in Los Angeles March 27, where they met Mr. and Mrs. Graham, who had spent two months there with their daughter.

The four of them drove back to Michigan in the Graham motor home, with stops including the Grand Canyon and Greeley, Colo., where another Graham daughter lives.

They arrived in Tuscola County April 14.

NEWLY WED -- Ernesto and Rosana Alvarez, who were married March 4 in Argentina, and the man who introduced them, John Graham. They were visitors in the Graham home.

In Argentina 12,000-acre ranch no big deal

A 12,000-acre ranch with 5,000 cattle may sound mammoth, but by Argentina standards, according to Ernesto Alvarez, it's "a little bigger than medium size."

All 12,000 acres are fenced with smooth wire (no barbs) and one man's full-time job is to keep the miles of fences repaired.

Alvarez and his parents live in the city of America, about 20 miles from the ranch, where the foreman and workers live. He said there is no set pattern. Many ranchers in Argentina live on their ranches.

Keeping track of 5,000 cattle and their marketing requires a lot of bookkeeping and that is Alvarez' primary job. "I'm more involved with paper than with cattle," he explained.

Fifty percent of the land is planted in alfalfa, with corn, sorghum and sunflowers being grown on the rest.

Although some alfalfa hay is baled for use during dry spells and in winter, the cattle mostly graze year-round. They always stay outside. There are no barns. Instead of harvesting the corn and then feeding it to the cattle, the animals graze on the crop in the field when it is still green.

Half the corn crop is used for grazing. The rest is harvested (at an average of 108 bushels an acre) and sold.

The cattle graze in the alfalfa fields in fall and spring.

Horses are used for rounding up the cattle. "A horse is still very important," Alvarez commented.

ALLOWING THE CATTLE to graze not only is cheaper, he said, it also has the advantage that they spread their own manure naturally. No tractor-drawn manure spreaders are needed.

No fertilizer is used, other than manure. Nutrition is added to the soil by growing alfalfa in a field for four years at a time, which adds nitrogen, then switching to another crop.

There are strictly cash crop farms in Argentina. Alvarez' new wife, Rosana, comes from one. Her parents (who live on their farm) grow 1,500 acres, primarily corn, soybeans and wheat.

THERE ARE SOME similarities raising cattle in Argentina and the United States.

The Alvarezzes buy feeder steers from other farmers. Once fattened, the animals are either sold directly to slaughterhouses or at an auction. Although there are small livestock auctions, the Alvarezzes prefer to ship their cattle, when not being sold to a slaughterhouse, to the livestock yard in Buenos Aires, possibly the world's largest.

It's 300 miles by railroad to Buenos Aires and 344 miles by highway, but it pays to ship the cattle that far, Alvarez explained, because cattle bring the best prices there.

EVERY CENT THEY get is very important because of the astronomical inflation rate in Argentina. Since the military took control of the government in 1976, the lowest annual inflation rate has been 80 percent. Last year, the rate was 180 percent.

(The military government is scheduled to be replaced by a civilian one to be elected this October. It will be the first such election in Argentina since 1973.)

The price ranchers receive for their cattle has kept up with the inflation rate in steps. The price may stay stable for as much as two months, then jump up again.

With prices continually rising, Alvarez said, it's necessary to buy feeder steers as soon as any fed cattle are sold.

Although cattle ranchers haven't been hurt too much by inflation, the Argentinian commented, members of the middle class, such as clerks and policemen, have been hurt "very much" the last few years.

Whereas at one time they could look forward to buying a new car or a house, the interest rates the banks now must charge to keep up with inflation have made it prohibitive for the middle class to borrow.

However, wages are indexed to keep up with increases in prices.

The average American man is five feet, eight inches tall. The average American woman, five feet, four inches tall.

Okay 20-year Tuscola County solid waste plan

The Tuscola County 20-year solid waste management plan was given final approval last Wednesday by the 13-member committee that prepared it.

The next step, according to Caro Village Manager Donald Duggar, chairman of the committee, is to have new copies of the plan printed, which will be sent to the 34 municipalities (villages, townships and one city) in the county.

Provided two-thirds of the governing bodies of those units approve it, the plan will then be submitted to the state Department of Natural Resources for its okay.

Once it approves it, the plan goes into effect.

When it does, it won't mean any changes, at least for the first five years, since the plan calls for continued use of present disposal methods.

It is estimated that 12 percent of the 176.4 tons of solid waste generated in the county each day goes into the three landfills in the county, one of them being Cass City's, which is located in Novesta Township.

The rest of the trash either goes to landfills in other counties, usually taken by private haulers, or disposed of by rural residents on their own property.

The plan, required by state law, must be updated every five years. The state paid the cost of preparing it. Most of the work was done by the Human Development Commission.

Once the municipalities receive their copy, their governing bodies will be asked to act on it within 60 days.

Pedaling Around Stay in Michigan

By Mike Eliasohn

Being a cynic, I think the world would have been better off if the area in Florida that is now Disney World had remained an orange grove.

I have never been to Cedar Point, which probably makes me a rarity. Rare is the exchange student I have interviewed in Cass City who hasn't been to Cedar Point.

I am aware of two high school groups in the area who are going on trips this spring -- one to Cedar Point and the other to King's Island, near Cincinnati.

I must confess I have been to Disneyland, but I was 14 years old at the time.

I would like to visit Boblo Island some day, but more so for the boat ride than the amusement rides.

What's more exciting? Riding to Boblo in a boat listed on the National Historic Register or parking your car on 20 acres of phalt at Cedar Point.

Boblo is on the Canadian side of the Detroit River, but it has been American owned and its new owner is the Automobile Club of Michigan. Many of its employees are from Michigan.

That means money spent there aids Michigan -- and our state certainly needs it -- not Ohio or Florida.

And Boblo doesn't pretend to be anything except an amusement park. (Which is also true of Cedar Point, I must admit.)

But visit Busch Gardens and it's just like visiting darkest Africa, according to the television commercials.

Persons who want to see what Africa is like should go to Africa, not to what a beer company thinks people think looks like.

Church group meeting draws 40 persons

Forty persons attended the noon meal last Wednesday in Salem United Methodist Church of the Dorcas group, which included United Methodist Women friends.

For the opening, a book by Barbara Burrows, "Why God Gave Us Friends," was read.

The minutes of the previous meeting and the treasurer's report were read. Get-well cards have been ordered.

The kitchen has two new ovens, one a gift from the Stoutenburg family in memory of their mother, Hazel Stoutenburg. The other was purchased by the Dorcas group.

Esther McCullough pronounced the benediction. Some quilting was done.

EPCOT, Disney's newest creation in Florida, has an English village and a German one.

England and Germany have real English and German villages.

It's a question of the artificial versus what's real.

I wonder how many families have been to Cedar Point or Disney World but have never seen many of the wonderful attractions in Michigan.

Did you know, for instance, there are 115 waterfalls in the Upper Peninsula?

Want to see history as it really was? There is Mackinac Island, of course, but there is also Fort Michilimackinac at the Straits and Fort Wilkins at the tip of the Keweenaw Peninsula.

Want to see what life was like at the turn of the century and ride a steam train to boot? Visit Crossroads Village near Flint.

The 19th Century iron smelting village of Fayette in the Upper Peninsula has been restored for visitors.

Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn have such attractions as the Wright Brothers bicycle shop (the one in Dayton is a recreation -- take that, Ohio), Thomas Alva Edison's workshop, a wood burning locomotive, a paddle wheeler boat and fascinating collections of antique automobiles, airplanes and farm equipment.

Islands have a special fascination for me. I've been to Belle Isle, Mackinac Island and Beaver Island. I haven't yet been to North and South Manitou Islands, Bois Blanc, and Drummond Islands and Isle Royale, all of which can be reached by ferry.

Detroit is the last place most persons want to visit, but there are many fascinating places there. There is the restored 18th century Fort Wayne.

On Belle Isle, there is the Dossin Great Lakes Museum, an aquarium (if it swims and is smaller than a whale or a shark, it's probably there), an arboretum and a children's zoo.

In the basement of the Detroit Historical Museum, there is a turn-of-the-century street, complete with cobblestones and shops.

I am a cultural slob, which is why I have never been to the Detroit Institute of Arts. I also haven't been to the Detroit Science Center.

For those who think they have been to all the conventional places, how about visiting such Michigan towns as Felch (which is close to Felch Mountain), Dollarville, Rattle Run or Hodunk?

YOUNG AUTHORS -- Among the workshops students had a choice of attending Saturday were ones in which they cut out and pasted together faces (left), taught by Joann Rummel of Vassar, and another in which Campbell Elementary teacher Nancy Walker animatedly told stories.

143 attend young author conference

A total of 143 first through sixth graders from upper Thumb elementary schools attended the annual Young Authors Conference Saturday at Cass City High School.

Each student needed to write a book in order to attend and each one who did so, following lunch, received a certificate from the sponsoring Thumb Area Reading Council.

Featured speaker was Marilyn Lyman of Birmingham, who has written two books for teenage slow readers which have sold a total of 250,000 copies.

The students were divided into two groups. While one group was listening to Mrs. Lyman in the auditorium, the others had a choice of one of various workshops intended to encourage their creativity. After the first half-hour, the groups switched.

After that, they attended a "sharing time" sessions divided into small groups. That was followed by lunch.

Presenting the sessions were: Newspapers, Jackson Telfer, Bad Axe; calligraphy, Joanne Telfer, Bad Axe; journal writing, Martha Bidlack, Caro; music, Fran Lovejoy, Cass City; folk music, Brenda and Tom Fulcher, Cass City; art (three separate sessions), Marilyn Killian, Vassar, Joanne Rummel, Vassar, and Polly Pakonen, Cass City, and storytelling, Nancy Walker, Cass City.

Participating school districts were Cass City, Kingston, Akron-Fairgrove, Bad Axe, Elkton-Pigeon-Bay Port, Harbor Beach, North Huron, Millington, and Vassar, plus St. Michael's Lutheran School, Richville, and Our Lady of Lake Huron, Harbor Beach.

Attending from Kingston Elementary School were Tawnia Bruce, Cindy Adamczyk, Chista Farnum, Shawn Grow, Nathan Miller, Shari Nelson, Chad Phagan, Stephen Scott, Stephanie Slater, Dan Wenzlaff and Denise Zyrowski.

Around the Farm Home use insecticides

By William Bortel

There must be close to 100 insecticide formulations available in the stores and at lawn and garden centers throughout the area.

How do you choose when even professionals can have trouble remembering which product controls what insect on what plant?

Unless you work with insecticides day in and day out, I recommend you pick one general-purpose insecticide and stick with it. A general-purpose insecticide is a single product that controls a variety of insect pests on a variety of plants or vegetables. In addition to simplifying the problem of insect control, general-purpose insecticides are often among the least hazardous to use.

Now that you've saved yourself the trouble of buying and storing a whole collection of insecticides, learn to use your general-purpose spray properly.

A couple of sensible rules apply. First, identify the insect where possible. Second, spray only when you see the insect itself or the insect damage. Third, always follow the product label instructions to the letter.

One final word. If you raise vegetables or fruit, be sure to check the listing on the product label that says "interval between last spray and harvest." Look for a low number, about three or four days, if possible. What you are looking for is the time necessary between the last spray and when you can safely consume the fruits of your harvest. This is an added convenience when choosing an insecticide for edible crops.

If you have any questions, give me a call at 673-5999, ext. 228, or stop by the office at 420 Court Street, Caro, in the basement of the sheriff's department.

Check for insects in grain bins

Insect problems are increasing in many on-farm storage bins this year because grain is being held longer than usual.

Farmers inspecting bins may find insects on the roof or sides of the bin or in grain that is run out of the auger, says Bob Ruppel, Cooperative Extension Service entomology specialist.

Farmers should also look for leaks in the roof, especially if they find moist grain in the bin. Moist grain will encourage insect development. Leaks in the bin should be repaired and damp grain should be removed.

Farmers should frequently check grain for insects this spring and summer as warm weather makes them more active. It doesn't take long for significant damage to occur.

Farmers who discover an insect problem can fumigate to reduce the population, but they should consider the amount of damage already done and the cost of fumigation before deciding on this solution. In some cases, it may be more profitable to use the grain or sell it.

When farmers refill grain bins this summer and fall, they should remember that poor management practices are the main cause of insect infestation. Insects rarely come in with the grain itself, but rather from old grain spills and debris.

Bins and handling and harvesting equipment must be cleaned before harvesting and storing grain. Old sacks of feed and seed should be removed from the area—they may contain insects that could get into the new grain.

Insects develop best when the moisture content of the grain and the percentage of broken kernels are high. Cleaning and drying grain before storing reduces the likelihood of infestation. Malathion can be sprayed on the inside of the bin to kill insects in the fall. Malathion can also be dripped onto the grain by a simple device according to label directions.

New books at the library

THE HEALERS by Henry Denker (fiction). The author describes the often rocky development of modern medicine through the lives of pioneering mid-19th century physicians David and Mary Sinclair Lilliendahl. David, Jewish and born in Vienna, fights in the Austrian Revolution of 1848 and participates in some medical research before immigrating to the U.S. because of anti-Semitism. Mary, rebellious daughter of a WASP publisher, had to combat sexism to get her training in Philadelphia and Paris. The two become staff doctors at Jews Hospital in New York (later Mount Sinai) and before long, defy family and religious objections by marrying. Mary eventually converts to Judaism. The Lilliendahls' life together is a series of heroic battles against cholera and diphtheria (which kills their elder son), lack of sanitation, poverty, superstition and hospital trustees who value the status quo above medical progress.

VERY MUCH A LADY: the untold story of Jean Harris and Dr. Herman Tarnower, by Shana Alexander (non-fiction). Author Alexander sees Jean Harris as a sorely beset, pathetic victim, destroyed by her own insecurities and self-delusions, society's cruelly exacting expectations and one man's towering ego. She is insightful and sensitive as she focuses on the destructive relationship between Tarnower, whom she depicts as a cold, selfish and ambitious social climber, and the vulnerable schoolmistress whose life he ruined long before the fatal shots were fired in his bedroom. This is an absorbing chronicle of a woman's emotional breakdown under a concatenation of stresses (including a dependency on amphetamines irresponsibly prescribed by Tarnower) that would seem like exaggerations were they part of a TV soap opera.

THIS FAMILY OF WOMEN by Richard Peck (fiction). So it was really the women who won the West and were the backbone of American and English life up to World War II. The thought seems not entirely whimsical as one reads this intensely engaging story about a group of powerful but highly differentiated women related by blood or marriage. Lena is a founding, survivor of the Apaches in California Gold Rush Days. Effie, fathered by an Indian brave and raised by Lena in a Virginia City whorehouse, becomes a fabled stage beauty and migrates to England where she hobnobs with royalty. Constance, Effie's daughter, is a "San Franciscan heart and soul" who becomes an architect, marries an Englishman and returns to her native city after his death. Rose, Constance's friend, survives earthquake, fire and a debauched husband. Her daughter goes to Europe as a military nurse.

ASK DR. COE

By Darrell M. Sheets

Sometime ago, while preparing for a Sunday School Bible verse game, I came across an interesting verse in Song of Solomon 4:2 repeated in 6:6. "Thy teeth are like a flock of sheep that are even shorn which came up from the washing; whereof everyone bear twins and none is barren among them." The story behind this is that while King Solomon was visiting a rural village he saw a beautiful young girl that he desired very much. He repeatedly tried to woo her but eventually failed because she loved a young man back home. Now when Solomon was wooing her he had many other women back in Jerusalem, queens and concubines. But it is interesting to me, and I hope to you, that this wise king in extolling the beauty of this young woman's features was awed by her teeth, white like smooth shorn sheep, with none missing.

On the other side we have the very beautiful - by two accounts, Solomon's and her young man's - young woman that not only inherited beautiful physical traits but took good care of herself. She looked good and smelled good and had very nice teeth. Needless to say, they were beautiful not because the hygienist had just cleaned them or because the dentist had just given her all new porcelain caps. She didn't have floss or stimulants or an oral-B 40 or even triple action Aqua-fresh, but she kept her teeth beautiful and clean, a pleasure for even the wise king to look upon.

It is a pleasure to think about this beautiful girl who lived thousands of years ago. But everyday I see some young people her age, women and men, that are blessed with intelligence and a pleasing appearance, not to mention all of the self care products available today, who not only don't maintain themselves but some actually even smell and/or are ill because of their self neglect.

In conclusion, let me ask two things: 1) read the short little book of Song of Solomon - its beautiful poetry, and 2) look at yourself. The maintained beauty of those young people can be yours - even the teeth radiantly white like newly shorn and washed sheep - if you take pride in yourself as a creation of God and give yourself all due respect and care.

Lynn D. Chard, 17, of 2300 Decker Road, Decker, pleaded guilty to impaired driving Nov. 28 in Elkland Township.

His plea was accepted and he was fined $172, assessed $178 court costs and placed on probation. He is to receive counseling if necessary.

Alan T. Powell, 27, of Hartsell Road, Cass City, pleaded guilty to impaired driving March 14 in Ellington Township.

He was fined $172, assessed $178 costs, placed on probation and is to receive counseling if necessary.

John Wilcox, 19, of 3467 Elm Street, Kingston, was fined $72 and assessed $78 in costs for malicious destruction of property under $100.

He pleaded guilty to the charge April 18, of painting obscenities on the south wall, doors and sidewalk April 6 at Kingston High School, which were later removed with a steam cleaner. He is to pay $50 restitution to the school.

The judge signed an order for no prosecution of Michael J. Adkins, 18, of 4050 Leslie Road, Snover.

The prosecution requested the charge against him of malicious destruction of property under $100 be dismissed because he committed no violations during the past year.

He pleaded guilty to the charge May 10 last year, after which sentencing was delayed a year. He was charged with opening two fire hydrants April 17, 1982, in Cass City, which resulted in a loss of 178,000 gallons of water.

Area accidents

One injured in Saturday afternoon crash near Cass City

One person was injured and another suffered possible injuries in a 1:28 p.m. accident last Saturday east of Cass City.

They were Angus Sweeney, 73, of W. Huron Line Road, Ubyly, whom sheriff's deputies reported was injured, and Sister Martha Garety, 70, of Monroe, who suffered possible injuries. They sought their own treatment.

Both were passengers in a car driven by Mary L. Booms, 47, of Harbor Beach.

Deputies said a car driven by Harold Brandenburg, 36, of Lake Orion, westbound on M-81, east of Schweger Road, had signaled a left turn into a driveway.

The car behind it, driven by Ruth Ann Mundy, 41, of Elkton, stopped and then the Booms auto ran into the rear of the Mundy auto.

Mrs. Booms told officers that after realizing the car in front of her had stopped, she couldn't steer into the other lane to avoid a collision because of oncoming traffic. Wet pavement also contributed to the accident.

Scott B. Miller, 17, of Unionville, was ticketed by Caro state police on a charge of careless driving following a 12:01 a.m. accident Sunday.

Troopers reported he was northbound on Unionville Road, north of Elmwood Road, when his car hit a puddle in the road and he lost control.

The vehicle skidded off the east side of the road and rolled over.

Cass City police reported that at 6:45 a.m. Monday, James Foster, 38, of 5891 Cass City Road, was turning left from westbound Main onto Doerr Road.

Todd V. Vandiver, 23, of 6170 Cedar Drive, who was northbound, started to pull into the intersection after stopping at Main and the two autos collided.

Daniel Hennessey of 6181 Milligan Road reported to village police Friday that while his car was parked on Main Street April 26, a hit and run vehicle backed into it, which broke the grill and left black marks on the bumper.

Udell A. Wardham of Lake Orion told village officers Saturday afternoon that between noon and 2 p.m. that day, an unknown vehicle struck his car while it was parked in the lot behind Sommers' Bakery. The right rear fender of his car was damaged.

Chester M. Kemp, 63, of Caro, was westbound on Deckerville Road, east of Cemetery Road, at 9:10 p.m. last Thursday when his car collided with a deer, according to deputies.

Miss Fletcher married Earl V. Webster April 12, 1923, in Detroit. They made their home in Detroit. Her husband died Feb. 13, 1967.

Mrs. Webster is survived by one son, Donald Webster, Livonia; three grandchildren; one brother, Archibald Fletcher, Boca Raton, Fla., and two sisters, Mrs. Mary Burnell, Port Huron, and Mrs. Isabelle Benkelman, Cass City. Two brothers preceded her in death.

Students say 'thank-you' to co-op employers

Students taking part in the Cass City High School co-op program said thanks to their employers last Wednesday night by treating them to dinner at the Charmont.

The 10th annual co-op banquet was attended by 116 persons.

Kevin Terry, a senior, talked about what the co-op program means to him. Receiving special recognition were Geraldine Prieskorn for having served on the school board for 20 years and Bill Wallace of Armco Corp. for his recent award for the Michigan Business and Industrial Alliance.

Since the co-op program began in 1972, according to Wayne Dillon, vocational-career education director at the high school, more than 650 students have had jobs.

This year, 114 are in-involved, of whom 50 are seniors. Except for a few sophomores, who must be at least 16, the rest are juniors.

The 114 have made more than $250,000 in wages this school year. Most are paid from $3.35 an hour, the minimum wage, to $4.

One student started working last summer, Dillon said, and has made $8,800.

HEALTH TIPS

Controlling high blood pressure

Nearly everyone is aware of the dangers of high blood pressure — increased risk of heart attack, stroke or kidney disease.

With numerous screening programs being offered by various groups, an estimated 80 percent of the population who have high blood pressure know they have it. "Our biggest problem now," said Dr. Lawrence Zgliniec, Pontiac cardiologist who is president of the Michigan Heart Association, "is keeping the many hypertensive people on a program to control their blood pressure."

"High blood pressure is largely a condition without symptoms, so it's hard to convince someone who is feeling fine that he or she must make changes in their diet, lose weight, or even take medication."

For people with even so-called "mild" high blood pressure — those with lower number readings of 90 to 104 — it's still very important to treat the condition, since it has been found that the risk of many heart problems and early death is more than twice that of those people with readings below 90.

What do you do if you have high blood pressure — even the mild kind?

"First you follow your doctor's advice," said Dr. Zgliniec.

"There are several things one can do to control high blood pressure," he continued. "Weight control is a good example. Bringing one's weight into a normal range can help many people to lower their blood pressure significantly, though that doesn't mean that a slender person cannot have high blood pressure."

"Diet enters into blood pressure control in another way — through salt content. We know that a diet high in salt (or really sodium, a primary ingredient of salt) contributes significantly to high blood pressure," he said.

"The first step in controlling sodium intake is to take the salt shaker off the table, so you're not adding salt automatically without thinking about it. Most Americans eat far more sodium than they need. The Senate Selection Committee on Nutrition has recommended that we cut our intake to 5 grams a day instead of the estimated 6 to 18 grams most people now consume."

"Second, don't eat foods that taste salty, such as bacon, hot dogs, potato chips, pickles, and so on. And a savvy shopper and cook can do a lot more — like not adding salt to foods where it may not be 'tasteful' anyway, such as cakes, and highly seasoned foods such as chili."

"And remember that nearly all processed foods are higher in sodium than fresh foods. For instance, a raw potato has 14 milligrams of sodium, but a cup of canned tomato soup, made with water, has 932mg!"

On package labels, many different words mean the product contains sodium: salt, monosodium glutamate, sodium benzoate, and disodium phosphate are common sources. You may want to look for "no salt added" foods now distributed by several processors at your supermarket.

Ask your doctor, however, before using salt substitutes, since their use is not recommended for those with certain conditions.

"Most people find that the less salt they use, the less they want," Dr. Zgliniec said. "Nutritionists say it can take as few as seven salt-free days for a salt craving to begin to lessen."

"Exercise can be another important part of a blood pressure control program, since it can reduce stress, and may help a great deal in weight control."

"Cutting down on salt and losing weight and getting proper exercise are not easy changes for people to make," Dr. Zgliniec said, "but it's better than the alternative — a possible heart attack or stroke."

"By all means, check with your doctor to make sure it's all right to do these things — but remember, the things you do can make the ultimate difference in controlling your blood pressure."

Your neighbor says Murder penalty should be death

The recent execution in Alabama of convicted murderer John Lewis Evans III, which took 10 minutes and three jolts of electricity before he was dead, has focused attention anew on the issue of capital punishment.

The U.S. Supreme Court, which removed a last-minute stay of Evans' execution, is now considering how federal appeals court should handle requests for stays of execution from death row inmates who have almost run out of ways to delay their sentences.

Michigan doesn't permit capital punishment, but Kenneth McCanham believes it should. "I think there should be capital punishment when they know for sure a person is guilty."

The only crime for which he feels the punishment should be death is "murder, definitely. . . I would want capital punishment for taking someone else's life."

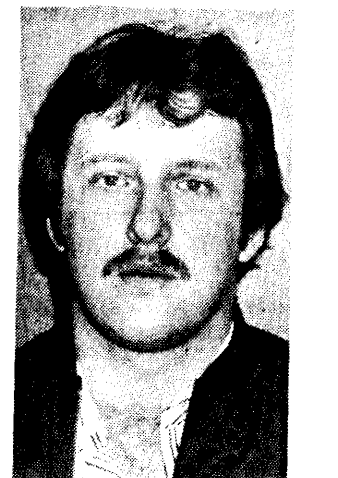

Would the death penalty serve as a deterrent? "I don't think there would be as many murders if they knew they would have a chance of being executed themselves," McCanham responded.

Another advantage of capital punishment, he suggested, is that it would reduce overcrowding of prisons.

McCanham's one doubt about the death penalty is that sometimes persons are convicted of a crime they are later found innocent of, thus "someone could be executed for someone else's crime."

McCanham lives on Hartsell Road, Owendale. He is employed as a cook at Pizza Villa in Cass City.

(4) Except as otherwise provided in this section, a person who is convicted of a violation of subsection (1), (2), or (3) is guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by imprisonment for not more than 90 days or a fine of not less than $100.00 nor more than $500.00, or both, together with costs of the prosecution. As part of the sentence for a violation of subsection (1) or (2), the court shall order the secretary of state to suspend the operator's or chauffeur's license of the person for a period of not less than 6 months nor more than 2 years. The court may order the secretary of state to issue to the person a restricted license permitting the person during all or a specified portion of the period of suspension to drive only to and from the person's residence and work location, in the course of the person's employment or occupation; to and from an alcohol or drug education program or treatment program as ordered by the court; to and from the person's residence and an educational institution at which the person is enrolled as a student; or pursuant to a combination of these restrictions. The court shall not order the secretary of state to issue a restricted chauffeur's license which would permit a person to operate a truck or truck trailer, including a trailer, which hauls hazardous material. (10) The operator's or chauffeur's license of a person found guilty of violating subsection (1) or (2), a local ordinance, or a law of this state, substantially corresponding to subsection (1) or (2), shall be surrendered to the court in which the person was convicted, and the court shall immediately forward the surrendered license and an abstract of conviction to the secretary of state. The abstract of conviction shall indicate the sentence imposed. Upon receipt of and pursuant to the abstract of conviction, the secretary of state shall suspend or revoke the person's license and, if ordered by the court and the person is otherwise eligible for a license, issue to the person a restricted license stating the limited driving privileges indicated on the abstract. If the license is not provided to the secretary of state, an explanation of the reason why the license is absent shall be attached. If the conviction is appealed to circuit court, that court may, ex parte, order the secretary of state to rescind the suspension, revocation, or restricted license issued pursuant to this section.

(1) The amount of alcohol or presence of a controlled substance or both in the driver's blood at the time alleged as shown by chemical analysis of the person's blood, urine, or breath shall be admissible into evidence in a criminal prosecution for a violation of section 5.15 (1), (2), or (3), or 5.15b.

(2) If a test is given, the results of the test shall be made available to the person charged or the person's attorney upon written request to the prosecution, with a copy of the request filed with the court. The prosecution shall furnish the report at least 2 days before the day of the trial and the results shall be admissible into evidence in the prosecution in a criminal proceeding. Failure to fully comply with the request shall bar the admission of the results into evidence by the prosecution.

(3) Except in a prosecution relating solely to a violation of section 5.15 (2), the amount of alcohol in the driver's blood at the time alleged as shown by chemical analysis of the person's blood, urine, or breath shall give rise to the following presumptions:

(a) If there was at the time 0.07% or less by weight of alcohol in the defendant's blood, it shall be presumed that the defendant was not under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

(b) If there was at the time in excess of 0.07% but less than 0.10% by weight of alcohol in the defendant's blood, it shall be presumed that the defendant was under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

(c) If there was at the time 0.10% or more by weight of alcohol in the defendant's blood, it shall be presumed that the defendant was under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

(4) A sample or specimen of urine or breath shall be taken and collected in a reasonable manner. Only a licensed physician, or a licensed nurse or medical technician under the direction of a licensed physician and qualified to withdraw blood acting in a medical environment, at the request of a peace officer, may withdraw blood for the purpose of determining the amount of alcohol or presence of a controlled substance or both in the person's blood, as provided in this act. Liability for a crime or civil damages predicated on the act of withdrawing blood and related procedures shall not attach to a qualified person who withdraws blood or assists in the withdrawal in accordance with this act unless the withdrawal is performed in a negligent manner.

(5) The tests shall be administered at the request of a peace officer having reasonable grounds to believe the person has committed a crime described in subsection (1). A person who takes a chemical test administered at the request of a peace officer, as provided in this section, shall be given a reasonable opportunity to have a person of his or her own choosing administer one of the chemical tests described in this section within a reasonable time after his or her detention, and the results of the test shall be admissible and shall be considered with other competent evidence in determining the innocence or guilt of the defendant, and that the person charged shall be responsible for obtaining a chemical analysis of the test sample. The person charged shall be informed that he or she has the right to refuse the test, that the person charged shall be responsible for obtaining a chemical analysis of the test sample, and that the person charged shall be responsible for obtaining a chemical analysis of the test sample.

substance or both in the person's blood at the time alleged, regardless of whether the person had been offered or had refused a chemical test. The medical facility performing the test shall disclose the results of the analysis to a prosecuting attorney who requests the results for use in a criminal prosecution as provided in this subsection. A medical facility or person disclosing information in compliance with this subsection shall not be civilly or criminally liable for making the disclosure.

Sec. 5.15b. Impaired driving.

(1) A person shall not operate a vehicle upon a highway or other place open to the general public, including an area designated for the parking of vehicles, within the state when, due to the consumption of an intoxicating liquor, a controlled substance, or a combination of an intoxicating liquor and a controlled substance, the person is visibly impaired or is unable to operate the vehicle. If a person is charged with violating section 5.15 (1) or (2), a finding of guilty is permissible under this section.

(2) Except as otherwise provided in this section, a person convicted of a violation of this section is guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by imprisonment for not more than 90 days, or a fine of not more than $300.00, or both, together with costs of the prosecution. As part of the sentence, the court shall order the secretary of state to suspend the operator's or chauffeur's license of the person for a period of not less than 90 days nor more than 1 year. The court may order the secretary of state to issue to the person a restricted license permitting the person to drive only to and from the person's residence and work location, in the course of the person's employment or occupation; to and from an alcohol or drug education program or treatment program as ordered by the court; to and from the person's residence and an educational institution at which the person is enrolled as a student; or pursuant to a combination of these restrictions. The court shall not order the secretary of state to issue a restricted chauffeur's license unless the person states under oath and the court finds that the person is unable to take public transportation to and from his or her work location, place of alcohol or drug education or treatment, or educational institution, and does not have any family members or others able to provide transportation. The court order and license shall indicate the person's work location and the approved route or routes and permitted times of travel. For purposes of this subsection, "work location" includes, as applicable, either or both of the following:

(i) The specific place or places of employment.

(ii) The territory or territories regularly visited by the person in pursuance of the person's occupation.

(3) A person who violates this section, a local ordinance, or a law of this state, substantially corresponding to this section within 7 years of a prior conviction may be sentenced to imprisonment for not more than 90 days, or a fine of not more than $500.00, or both. As part of the sentence, the court shall order the secretary of state to revoke the operator's or chauffeur's license of the person for a period of not less than 6 months nor more than 18 months. The court may order the secretary of state to issue to the person a restricted license as provided in this section, except that a restricted license shall not be issued during the first 60 days of the suspension period. For purposes of this section, "prior conviction" means a conviction under this section, section 5.15 (1) or (2), a local ordinance, or a law of this state, substantially corresponding to this section or section 5.15 (1) or (2).

(4) A person who violates this section, a local ordinance, or a law of this state, substantially corresponding to this section, within 10 years of 2 or more prior convictions, as defined in subsection (3), may be sentenced as provided in subsection (3), except that as part of the sentence the court shall order the secretary of state to revoke the operator's or chauffeur's license of the person.

(5) As part of the sentence for a violation of this section, a local ordinance, or a law of this state, substantially corresponding to this section, the court shall order the person to undergo screening and assessment by a person or agency designated by the office of substance abuse services, to determine whether the person is likely to benefit from rehabilitative services, including alcohol or drug education and alcohol or drug treatment programs. As part of the sentence, the court may order the person to participate in and successfully complete one or more appropriate rehabilitative programs. The person shall pay for the costs of the screening, assessment, and rehabilitative services.

(6) Before imposing sentence for a violation of this section, a local ordinance, or a law of this state, substantially corresponding to this section, the court shall order the person to undergo screening and assessment by a person or agency designated by the office of substance abuse services, to determine whether the person is likely to benefit from rehabilitative services, including alcohol or drug education and alcohol or drug treatment programs. As part of the sentence, the court may order the person to participate in and successfully complete one or more appropriate rehabilitative programs. The person shall pay for the costs of the screening, assessment, and rehabilitative services.

(7) Before accepting a plea of guilty under this section, the court shall advise the accused of the statutory consequences of whether or not the plea of guilty in respect to suspension or revocation of an operator's or chauffeur's license, the penalty imposed for violation of this section, and the limitation on the right of appeal.

(8) The operator's or chauffeur's license of a person found guilty of violating this section, a local ordinance, or a law of this state, substantially corresponding to this section, shall be surrendered to the court in which the person was convicted. The court shall immediately forward the surrendered license and an abstract of conviction to the secretary of state. The abstract of conviction shall indicate the sentence imposed. Upon receipt of and pursuant to the abstract of conviction, the secretary of state shall suspend or revoke the person's license and, if ordered by the court and the person is otherwise eligible for a license, issue to the person a restricted license stating the limited driving privileges indicated on the abstract. If the license is not forwarded to the secretary of state, an explanation of the reason why the license is absent shall be attached. If the conviction is appealed to circuit court, that court may, ex parte, order the secretary of state to rescind the suspension, revocation, or restricted license issued pursuant to this section.

All proceedings pending and all rights and liabilities existing, acquired, or incurred at the time this amendatory act or the effective date of the amendatory act for an offense committed before that effective date.

Sec. 5.15c. Implied consent;

(1) A person who operates a vehicle upon a highway or other place open to the general public, including an area designated for the parking of vehicles, in the state is considered to have given consent to chemical tests of his or her blood, breath, or urine for the purpose of determining the amount of alcohol or presence of a controlled substance or both in his or her blood if the person is arrested for a violation of section 5.15(1) or (2) or 5.15b.

(2) A person who is afflicted with hemorrhoids or a condition requiring the use of an anticoagulant under the direction of a physician shall not be considered to have given consent to the withdrawal of blood.

(3) The tests shall be administered as provided in section 5.15a.

Sec. 5.15d. Right to refuse chemical test.

If a person refuses the request of a peace officer to submit to a chemical test offered pursuant to section 5.15a, a test shall not be given without a court order. A written report shall be forwarded to the secretary of state by the peace officer. The report shall state that the officer had reasonable grounds to believe that the person had committed a crime described in section 5.15c.

(1) and that the person had refused to submit to the test upon the request of the peace officer and had been advised of the consequences of the refusal. The form of the report shall be prescribed and furnished by the secretary of state.

Sec. 5.15e. Mail notice.

(1) Upon receipt of the report made pursuant to section 5.15d, the secretary of state shall immediately notify the person in writing, mailed to his or her last known address, that the report has been received and that within 14 days of the date of the notice the person may request a hearing as provided in section 5.15f.

(2) The notice shall specifically state that failure to request a hearing within 14 days will result in the suspension of the person's license or permit to drive. The notice shall also state that there is not a requirement that the person retain counsel for the hearing, though counsel would be permitted to represent the person at the hearing.

the court in which the petition was filed, not less than 10 days before the matter is set for review, the original or a certified copy of the official record of the proceedings. Proceedings at which evidence was presented need not be transcribed and transmitted if the sole reason for review is to determine whether or not the court will order the issuance of a restricted license. The parties to the proceedings for judicial review may stipulate that the record be shortened. A party unreasonably refusing to stipulate to a shortened record may be taxed by the court in which the petition is filed for the additional costs. The court may permit subsequent corrections to the record.

(4) After the hearing, the secretary of state may suspend or deny issuance of a license or driving permit or a nonresident operating privilege of the person involved for a period of 6 months, or for a second or subsequent refusal within 7 years, for 1 year. If the person involved is a resident without a license or permit to operate a vehicle in the state, the secretary of state may deny to the person the issuance of a license or permit for a period of 6 months, or for a second or subsequent refusal within 7 years, for 1 year. The person involved may file a petition in the circuit court of the county in which the arrest was made to review the suspension or denial as provided in section 323 of the Michigan Motor Vehicle Code.

(5) When it has been finally determined that a nonresident's privilege to operate a vehicle in the state has been suspended or denied, the department shall give notice in writing of the action taken to the motor vehicle administrator of the state of the person's residence and of each state in which he or she has a license to operate a motor vehicle.

Sec. 5.15g. Uniform standards.

(1) The department of state police may promulgate uniform rules for the administration of chemical tests for the purposes of this act.

Sec. 5.15h. Preliminary chemical breath analysis.

(1) A peace officer who has reasonable cause to believe that a person was operating a vehicle upon a highway or other place open to the general public, including an area designated for the parking of vehicles, in the state, and that the person by the consumption of intoxicating liquor may have affected his or her ability to operate a vehicle, may require the person to submit to a preliminary chemical breath analysis.

(2) A peace officer may arrest a person based in whole or in part upon the results of a preliminary chemical breath analysis.

(3) The results of a preliminary chemical breath analysis shall be admissible in a criminal prosecution for a crime enumerated in section 5.15a (1) or in an administrative hearing conducted by the secretary of state solely to assist the court or hearing officer in determining a challenge to the validity of an arrest. This subsection does not limit the introduction of other competent evidence offered to establish the validity of an arrest.

(4) A person who submits to a preliminary chemical breath analysis shall remain subject to the requirements of sections 5.15a, 5.15c, and 5.15d for the purposes of chemical tests described in these sections.

Talent show raises $200 for food

More than $200 which will be used to buy food for needy families was raised from an amateur talent show last Wednesday in Caro.

The show at the Knights of Columbus hall was sponsored by the emergency food program coordinated by Tuscola County Emergency Services Director James McCann.

The show only drew about 50-60 spectators, according to John Ecken, one of the organizers.

Thirteen acts performed. Named by the three judges as the best act were dancers Gretchen Schneider, Cori Hillman and Judd Krause of the Caro and Cass City areas.

Second place was Dan Bristol of Caro, who played guitars and sang. Third was the Wayne LaPratt family of Caro, who played musical instruments and sang.

The top three received cash prizes. The original intent was to have separate age divisions, youth and adult, but that was dispensed with because of the relatively small number of entries, Ecken said.

Hawks split Laker games

The Cass City Red Hawks need to get a winning streak going if they are to win the Thumb B Association championship this spring.

It's not that they have been playing poorly. They have split a couple of double headers with conference foes and could take a giant step forward with wins over Caro when the two teams meet in Caro May 16 in a rescheduled game.

Tuesday, May 3, the Hawks entertained the Lakers and split the twin bill.

Cass City lost the first game because they could not solve the slants of Don Schultz. He limited the Hawks to three hits and pitched a 2-0 shutout. Nearly as good was Randy Nicholas. He allowed just two runs in the first inning and blanked the Lakers the rest of the way.

But two runs were more than enough as only Terry Czekal, with two of the three hits, was able to solve the slant of Schultz. Nicholas struck out four and Schultz whiffed nine.

In the nightcap Rick Pobanz was backed by a more robust attack and he chalked up a 7-3 decision for Cass City.

The Hawks got all the runs Pobanz needed in the first when a couple of walks and a hit by Czekal were turned into three counters.

Cass City made it a seven-run lead with a single counter in the third and three more in the fourth before the Lakers were able to dent the plate with two runs in the fifth.

Pobanz was touched for five hits and walked one in the six innings. Garza allowed five hits and walked two but was hurt by errors at critical times.

Bliss was a triple winner in his specialties against North Branch. Mike Middaugh was also a triple winner with victories in the long jump and high and low hurdles.

Girls continue to dominate all Thumb B track meets

In Thumb B Association track competition it's not a question of whether or not Cass City girls will win. The question is, by how much?

And usually the answer is by a big, big margin. The Hawks participated in three conference meets during the week. Tuesday, May 3, at Marlette the opponents were Bad Axe and Marlette. Cass City topped Bad Axe, 106-41, and Marlette bowed 114-33.

Thursday, May 5, the Hawks topped North Branch, 105½ to 42½.

Jill's no-hitter paces Hawks to twin bill wins

Paced by Jill Hutchinson's no-hitter in the first game and her excellent relief pitching in the second game, the Cass City Red Hawks swept a double header from Lakers Tuesday, May 3.

Hutchinson allowed just one walk in hurling the no-hitter and was in command all the way in a beautiful pitching duel with the Lakers Shelly Baur. The score was 1-0.

Cass City scored the only run of the game in the first inning without making a hit. Jamie Fox reached first on an error, took second on a passed ball and went to third on a bobble by the Laker shortstop of a grounder by Lisa Benitez. A moment later the Hawks worked a double steal and Fox scored.

The Hawks finally got to Baur in the second game, as the Laker ace tired trying to pitch both ends of the twin bill. The score was 4-2.

Jill Root pitched the first three innings for Cass City. Her teammates helped by pecking away for enough runs to win.

In the second inning, the Hawks scored twice as Julie Smith and Sherri Horner laid down excellent bunts. They advanced on a passed ball and later scored on infield outs. The Hawks were ahead 4-0 when the Lakers rallied for three hits around a Cass City error to score twice with a pair of runners on base.

Hutchinson was called on again and took over where she left off in the first game. She pitched no-hit ball for the final 2 1/3 innings, striking out five while doing it.

Village police probe thefts

Three thefts were reported to Cass City police last week.

Robert Burleson of 4153 Maple Street said Saturday afternoon that at least seven cassette tapes were stolen from his car while it was parked in his driveway overnight. They were worth $49.

The thief took them after an apparent attempt to remove the cassette player, the door of which was broken.

Ed Wurm of 6552 Elizabeth Street reported Saturday morning that his 50-foot garden hose and hose cart were stolen since 9 p.m. Friday. They were valued at $25.

Louise Krohn of Elkton reported to Cass City police Friday that a wire wheel cover was removed from her car April 15 when it was parked behind Old Wood Drug. It was worth $141.

Esther Buehrly of 6415 Garfield Street told village police Friday that while her car was parked beside her home the night of May 3, the paint on the right front fender was scratched, it was "marked . . . up" near the door and fender and there was also damage to the moulding around the right side fender wheel openings.

Sneryl Hunt took the win with five hits, three walks and five strikeouts.

For the Pirates, Denise Kipp batted in four runs with a triple and a single. Hunt hit three singles; Carrie Langley, a single and a double, and Margie Humble, Brenda Humble and Carla Krosnicki each had two singles.

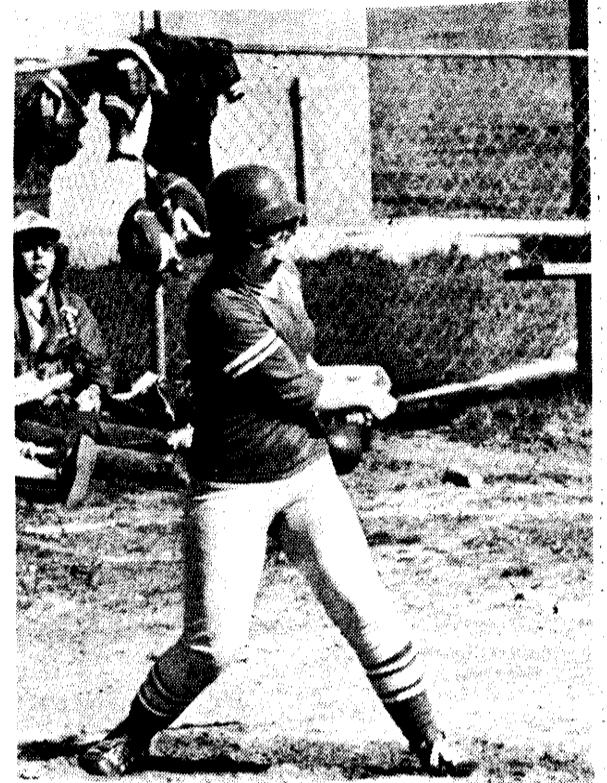

Joan Mosack was the only Bulldog who got past first base with her bat, banging a double.

Suzie LeBlanc elevated her record to 11-0 with the win in the second game on three hits, all singles, three walks and seven strikeouts.

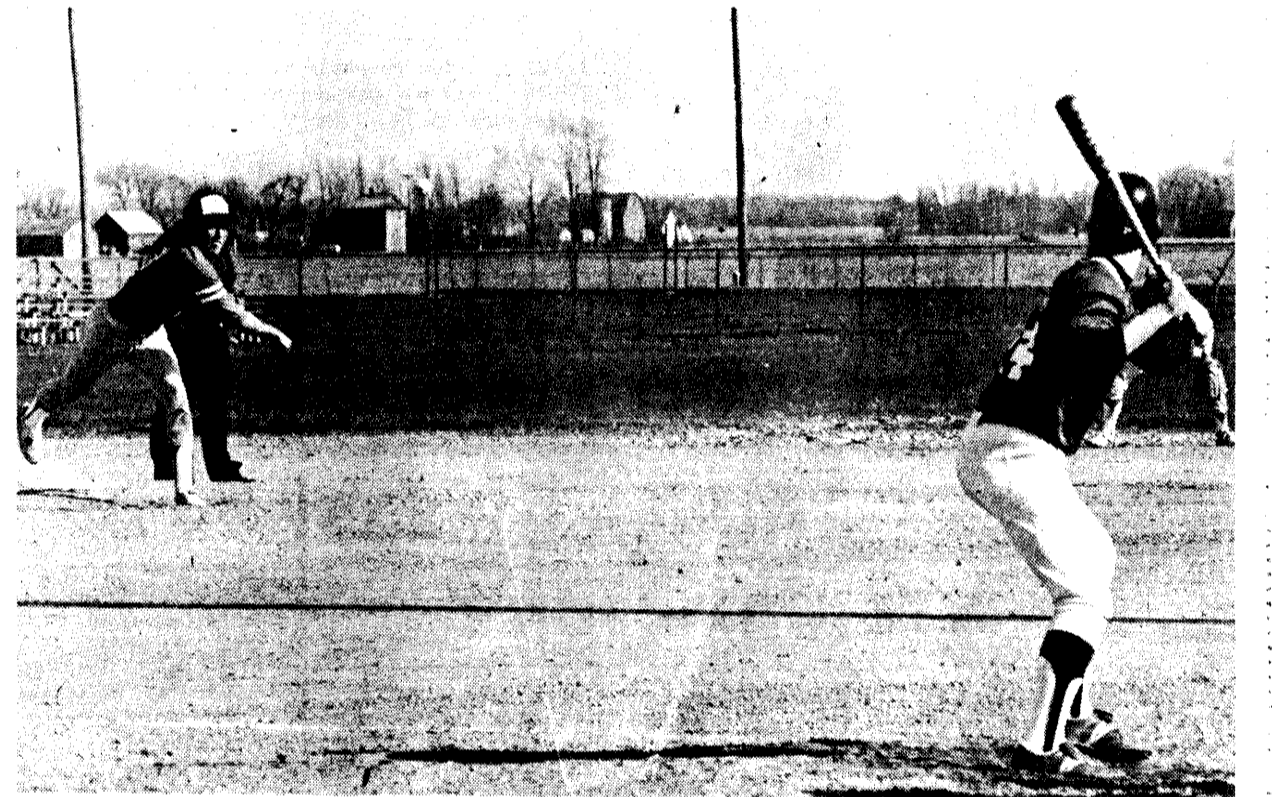

Jackie Kain started on the mound for Owen-Gage. She was relieved by Carol Zimmer. Engelhardt finished the game. The trio gave up a total of 12 hits and 13 walks.

For Peck, Carrie Langley drove in six runs with a double and a single. Kipp hit a triple and a single and Brenda Humble and Char Crow each added two singles.

The Bulldogs, now 2-8 in the North Central Thumb D League and overall, end the regular season with three games at home, Monday against Akron-Fairgrove, a make-up double header next Wednesday against Port Hope and May 23 against North Huron.

SHELLY ELLICOTT banged a single in the third inning to aid in Owen-Gage's 18-8 win over Kingston last Thursday.

DAN GLIDDEN gained the win in the opening game against Kingston last Thursday, in relief of Stan Andrakowicz. Glidden, following Monday's win at Peck, is now 3-3 for the season.

Taking stock

Once upon a time, maybe a couple of million years ago, men discovered how to make a fire.

Then they found that meat tasted better, or at least different, if it was roasted. The caves got all smoked up and their eyes smarted, but cooking was the "in" thing and they did want to keep up with others on the hillside, lest they be considered non-account trashy people.

Now when the meat was cooked, the fat ran, and it got all over their bearskin jackets, and after a while got rancid and smelly.

Nor was it easy to please everyone in a cave. There were epicures in those days, too, who pursed their lips and said daintily, "Make mine not quite medium rare, si'l vous plais."

All this splattering and odors brought the flies, too. Smoke and flies and fat all over you, and everyone in the family wanted his dinosaur steak cooked differently.

The head of the cave got such a case of nerves he got to drinking fermented grape juice. So much in fact, that the missus told him to go sit on a rock and she'd do the cooking.

For some centuries, things never changed. Oh, they closed in the front of the cave, and called it a studio apartment, and much later the Druids or somebody built houses because all the caves were full.

In fairly modern times, it occurred to the smoke-choked families to run a hole through the roof, which they called a chimney. The spot below was a fireplace.

You've seen just how far man progressed in two million years if you've been to Williamsburg, Va. Only 200 years ago families were cooking over an open fire inside the house, as cave men had done eons before.

A fellow named Franklin was one of those who figured out a stove, and then came an oven.

A thousand years or so before some genius invented a chair. Before that it was benches. Before that you sat on the ground or on the floor.

People in the Orient today are considering chairs themselves, or at least for tourists from the Western world. They are tiring of hearing the yelps of the visitors who get charley-horses from trying to sit with their legs folded under their buttocks.

Enter the 20th century, and the majestic wood-or-coal burning range. We had one in our family. Eight square feet of surface for cooking. Two warming ovens projecting over part of the cooking area. A nice big oven. At one end of the stove a water reservoir which kept the water hot enough for washing your hands and face, after you scooped some out in a basin.

Some wonderful meals were cooked on those Majestics. Everyone who was anybody had one in the town of Standish.

As the century went on, the electric stove was invented and the gullible bought them. Then they found out there were no warming ovens, and no hot water reservoir and only four little burners, well-named, because they scorched things soon as you turned your back.

One thing about them, you didn't need a chimney. That is, until some rummy invented a broiler, which smoked to heaven.

But when people found that out they had already had a house with no chimney, for some reason or other, it became the in-thing to broil meat instead of frying it. Frying was for trashy people who were not with it, as the saying went.

Then came the decadent era after the second World War. The populace quit wearing socks. They didn't cut their hair, and it became snarly and matted as their ancestors in the caves. They let their shirt-tails hang out and their whiskers grow, and even their mothers were revolted and could scarce admit they had brought forth such critters upon the earth.

The great reversion to the stone age came when people decided it was classy to cook supper in the back yard. Mama put a white hat on papa and declared he was a chef and the kids gave him a crazy apron with cute sayings on it. The old man fell for the flattery and said he would broil the hamburgers over charcoal by the light of the moon, and to the drone of the insects.

So the bugs came, and the fat ran, and the fire was either too hot or too low and the meat was either raw or burned but at first nobody ever complained because this was the classy way to eat.

The family sat on rocks or on their haunches and the paper plates collapsed and the grease got on their blue jeans, but who cared, for this was very stylish living, and clean clothes had long ago become garb only for squares.

Finally, just as Joe Brontosaurus had done in two million B.C., the cook had so many problems he took to drink.

Mama was about to call Alcoholics Anonymous or go back to cooking, when the gas-fired barbecue was invented. A tank of propane made it like a gas stove, and you could control the thing, sort of, except it was so dark by dinner-time you couldn't find the right knob.

And, of course, there were still the bugs, and the food did get cold in the evening air, and it was damp sitting on the ground, and the plates collapsed or blew away, and the old man was still hitting the Gallo bottle pretty steadily.

As the decade of the '80s went on, someone read about indoor stoves, and chairs and tables and electric lights and screens, and every once in a while the family would have an inside picnic with china plates yet.

The youngsters also discovered that it took more than a white hat and funny apron to make a cook out of their father, and mother's hand was somewhat more deft with food.

Finally, they were all looking forward to the Gay '90's of the 20th century when they could live as comfortably as their ancestors had a century before.

Onward!

EASY ENTRY -- Vi Pena (left) of Cass City, a member of the Tri-County Handicappers Coalition, presented the organization's business of the month award last Thursday to Veronica's Restaurant owner Veronica Gaszczynski. It is the first Cass City business to receive the plaque for "outstanding efforts in obtaining barrier free access to your place of business."

Jail Larke after scuffle with police

A Carsonville man has been charged by Cass City police with reckless driving and resisting arrest following an incident early Saturday.

Kevin M. Larke, 22, was released from the county jail on personal recognizance bond Monday after appearing before Magistrate Donald Smith. Arraignment on the two charges before District Judge Richard F. Kern was scheduled May 23.

Larke was also issued a ticket charging him with speeding. Police stopped his vehicle for speeding about 1 a.m. on M-81 near Koepfgen Road, after first observing it on Main near Doerr Road.

When officers Donald Miller and Phil Klaus approached, the driver accelerated, the spinning wheels spraying them with gravel. He swerved toward Miller, who had to jump out of the way.

The driver stopped after five car lengths and used belligerent language, according to police, and when Miller went up to him, he struck the officer in the chin with his fist.

Pay to resume at Owen-Gage mediate School District. The change would enable Owen-Gage students to attend the Tuscola Area Skill Center.

A letter from the TISD informed the board the change would cost Owen-Gage taxpayers 2.3 more mills in taxes. The total TISD levy, including the skill center and special education, is 3.5 mills. In the HISD, the total is 1.2 mills.

The switch would require approval of both ISD boards of education and the Owen-Gage board. Study of the matter will continue.

A motion to retain Erickson, high school Principal Wayne Wright and Elementary Principal Bill Britt for 1983-84 was approved.

A lengthy discussion was held with the five cafeteria workers regarding various complaints, questions and how to eliminate the lunch program deficit.

After high school head cook LaWanda Gnagey commented, "The kids never come to us with their complaints," it was suggested perhaps there should be an effort made to determine on an on-going basis how students feel about the lunch program.

The Michigan Department of Labor hearing concerning unemployment compensation paid last summer to high school teacher Nancy Folk that started April 18 will continue in Bay, City June 9-10.

Owen-Gage has received an employer safety award from the Michigan Association of School Boards for not having a workers' compensation claim in 1981-82.

Rules for use of the high school ball diamonds, lights, and outside restroom building this summer were approved, to be the responsibility of the Brookfield Township Park Commission.

The senior trip will be June 6-12 to Florida with about one-third of the 35 seniors going. Thirty kindergartners were enrolled for 1983-84 at the recent round-up.

Student of the month is Mike Powell, a senior. The board denied the request of the Human Development Commission to weatherize the home the district owns and rents out in Gagetown. Doing so would have required keeping the rent the same for two years.

The board may want to tear it down before then to make way for construction of the proposed apartments.

Retirement nears for Eva Rochefort

During her absence, the Owendale and Gagetown districts merged.

It wasn't until the 1963-64 school year that all kindergarten classes were taught in Owendale, by Mrs. Rochefort. Before then, there were kindergarten classes in Owendale and Gagetown.

In the fall of 1975, the kindergarten classes were shifted to Gagetown.

1981-82 was the only year Mrs. Rochefort didn't teach kindergarten at Owen-Gage. There weren't enough kindergartners to form two (half-day) classes, so she taught third grade.

This year there were enough for two classes (35 pupils total), so she went back to kindergarten.

Mrs. Rochefort is a loyal supporter of Owen-Gage. "I like this district. I'm proud of this district." There were times during its troubles, she admitted, "I didn't know who would outlast the other, the school or me." Now that the district has outlasted her, "I'm still going to root for Owen-Gage."

HAVING TAUGHT first-year pupils 26 years, Mrs. Rochefort, 59, said, "I think the most important thing for kindergarten teachers is to get the kids to like to come to school." That sets the pattern for the rest of their education.

One change that came along during her career was television. At the kindergarten level, she feels television helps children learn, which may not be true at a higher grade level.

Television is one reason why she feels children are more knowledgeable than when she first started teaching. Another is that they get out more with their parents. Forty years ago, the extent of their traveling was a once-a-week trip to town.

"I think they have more going for them than in the old days," Mrs. Rochefort commented.

Mrs. Rochefort doesn't have definite plans for retirement, other than some traveling. She would like to go to Hawaii and Alaska.

Also, "I'd like to write a book some day saying the trials and tribulations of teaching school."

"It's going to be like a long summer vacation," she said of her approaching retirement. When the final day comes, she speculated, "I'll have a little tender feeling. I'll probably shed a few tears over the deal."

Mrs. Rochefort doesn't have definite plans for retirement, other than some traveling. She would like to go to Hawaii and Alaska.

Also, "I'd like to write a book some day saying the trials and tribulations of teaching school."

"It's going to be like a long summer vacation," she said of her approaching retirement. When the final day comes, she speculated, "I'll have a little tender feeling. I'll probably shed a few tears over the deal."

Celebration is missed

One long-time Mason who was unable to make it to the 110th anniversary celebration April 29 of Tyler Lodge No. 317, F. & A.M., was Bill Profit, 85, of Cass City.

Profit joined Acme Lodge No. 446 in Gagetown in 1918 and was its worshipful master in 1921-1922. At that time, he was the youngest master in Michigan.

Acme Lodge merged with Tyler Lodge in 1979.

Profit and his wife spent the winter in Florida and returned home the day of the celebration, but didn't find out about it until it was over.

Ok road work in Elkland

The Elkland Township Board Monday evening accepted the Tuscola County Road Commission's estimate for applying three miles of asphalt mat on Schwegler Road and for patching on various gravel roads, thus giving it the go-ahead to proceed.

Total estimated cost is $78,700. The work will be done this year.

The layer of asphalt will be applied on Schwegler between M-81 and Reed Road (two miles) and Daus and Bay City-Forestville. The mile between Reed and Daus was done previously.

In other action, the board approved Farmland and Open Space Preservation Act (Public Act 116) agreements between the state and the following property owners: Howard and Janet Muntz, 40 acres in section 6, and Pisarek Brothers, 114.3 acres in section 8.
