Florida Legislature approves budget, ends annual session

GARY FINEOUT
Associated Press

Flush with cash, Florida legislators ended their annual session Friday by approving a record state budget that increases money for everything from child welfare to schools to cleaning up water pollution.

The Republican-controlled Legislature voted on the budget and then shut down the 60-day session late Friday night.

The vote closed out a hectic final day that is expected to set the stage for a crucial election year when Gov. Rick Scott and most legislators will be on the ballot.

"We had a great year and we're going to help all Florida families," Scott said shortly after the session ended.

In the final hours, legislators approved a measure that would allow the sale of a strain of low-THC marijuana for medical use. They also voted to allow students living illegally in the country to qualify for in-state tuition rates for college. Both decisions were unthinkable in the past decade for many GOP lawmakers. Scott is expected to sign both.

The Legislature also passed a sweeping bill aimed at overhauling the child-welfare system. The bill states that protecting a child from abuse is paramount and more important than keeping a family together. That's a significant shift for the Department of Children and Families, which has placed a premium on putting fewer children in foster care.

Lawmakers also voted for a bill that will allow the Florida Supreme Court to grant law licenses to non-citizens.

And in a turnabout from last year, the Legislature passed a bill that would allow professional sports teams to qualify for taxpayer money. A similar bill

State budget includes goodies for local programs

LIVI STANFORD | Staff Writer

The Florida Legislature passed a $77 billion budget Friday that includes $3 million for construction of a new science lab at the Lake-Sumter State College South Lake Campus to jump start a magnet school for the highest performing students in south Lake.

Lake-Sumter State College, South Lake Hospital, the Lake County School District and University of Central Florida have come together and will give final approval in the coming weeks to the school. It would serve 100 high-performing students in the ninth grade, who would take two years of advanced placement classes, followed by dual-enrollment at LSSC and two years at the University of Central Florida.

Funding for the school remained a challenge because of the need to build the science lab at the south Lake campus.

This is one of several appropriations from the state budget, which will aid programs in the community.

Lake Technical College, Lifestream Behavioral Center and the South Lake Regional Water Initiative also will receive funding.

But the magnet school is one of the largest projects in the county.

"It is going to be a real benefit for our community and all the students in the magnet program and those students in dual enrollment," Lake County School Board Vice Chairman Tod Howard said. "It is going to be a part of the future economic development for south Lake County."

Sasheika Tomlinson, director of marketing and college relations for the LSSC, said the appropriation would assist the college with "funding the first part of two phases of building the science lab."

Planning will occur the first year and construction the second

EPA questioning proposed gas pipeline through Lake, Sumter

WHITNEY WILLARD / STAFF GRAPHIC

Halifax Media Group

Federal environmental regulators want more details about a proposed natural gas pipeline that will pass through Lake and Sumter counties, including a fuller explanation about why the project is needed in the first place.

In its initial review of Sabal Trail Transmission LLC's project, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency questions whether alternatives exist to delivering natural gas to a South Florida power plant besides a 3-foot-wide pipe that stretches for 465 miles across three states.

Some project maps show it cutting straight across Sumter County and the southwestern corner of Lake County.

The EPA also wants the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, or FERC, to explain the project's effects on air and water quality along the route.

The 18-page letter, issued last week, was directed to the FERC because the latter agency is responsible for drafting an environmental impact statement about the $3 billion pipeline project. The agency is also the ultimate approval authority.

Representatives for Sabal Trail said they were working to answer the EPA's concerns.

"The extent and nature of their comments were what we had expected for a project of this size, which covers three states," company spokeswoman Andrea Grover said in a statement.

"Sabal Trail has met with and discussed the project with EPA officials on several occasions, so we are aware of their

Va. senator says he'll back Hillary Clinton

KEN THOMAS
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Democratic Sen. Tim Kaine of Virginia, an early supporter of Barack Obama in 2008, says he is backing Hillary Rodham Clinton for president if the former secretary of state seeks the Democratic nomination in 2016.

The Associated Press obtained a copy of remarks that Kaine plans to deliver Saturday at a breakfast of Democratic activists in Columbia, South Carolina.

In the remarks, Kaine says the former first lady and U.S. senator from New York is a "classic American optimist" who can lead the U.S. "in a very complicated world."

"She understands the challenges facing Americans from all walks of life and has the compassion and skill necessary to help improve our everyday lives," Kaine says.

Kaine's endorsement is the latest show of support for Clinton, who has led by wide margins in early presidential polls of Democrats and could limit the field if she decides to attempt to become the first female president.

As she considers whether to run, Clinton's popularity among Democrats has essentially frozen the field of potential challengers, which could include Vice President Joe Biden, Maryland Gov. Martin O'Malley and former Montana Gov. Brian Schweitzer.

Okla. lawmakers say they won't abandon death penalty

NOMAAN MERCHANT
Associated Press

DALLAS — A bungled execution in Oklahoma in which the condemned prisoner writhed and moaned as he received a lethal injection outraged death-penalty opponents, invited court challenges and attracted worldwide attention.

But the inmate's agony alone is highly unlikely to change minds about capital punishment in the nation's most active death-penalty states, where lawmakers say there is little political will to move against lethal injections — and a single execution gone wrong won't change that.

Oklahoma Rep. Mike Christian, a Republican lawmaker who pushed to have state Supreme Court justices impeached for briefly halting Tuesday's execution, was unsparing.

"I realize this may sound harsh," Chris-

ALONZO ADAMS / AP

Oklahoma Gov. Mary Fallin, front, issues a statement to the media on the execution of Clayton Lockett as Oklahoma Secretary of Safety and Security Michael C. Thompson listens from the Oklahoma State Capitol in Oklahoma City.

tian said, "but as a father and former lawmaker, I really don't care if it's by lethal injection, by the electric chair, firing squad, hanging, the guillotine or being fed to the lions."

Attorneys for death-row inmates hope Tuesday's spectacle provides new evidence to argue that the injections are inhumane and illegal. But beyond the courtroom, support for capital punishment is undeterred in the states that perform the greatest number of executions — Texas, Oklahoma, Florida, Missouri, Alabama, Georgia and Ohio. And nowhere in those places are any elected officials of either political party talking seriously about using the incident to seek an end to executions.

Missouri Rep. Paul Fitzwater, a Republican who chairs the state House's corrections committee, called the botched execution "horrible" and "definitely not humane" but said it had not sparked any calls for reform.

Oklahoma prison officials say Tuesday's execution of Clayton Lockett went awry when an intravenous line of deadly drugs became dislodged. He later died from an apparent heart attack. Lockett had been condemned for shooting a 19-year-old girl with a sawed-off shotgun and watching as two accomplices buried her alive.

Oklahoma Gov. Mary Fallin has stayed an upcoming execution as prison officials investigate, but she too reaffirmed her support for capital punishment.

On Friday, President Barack Obama said the Oklahoma event highlighted problems with the death penalty and he's asking his attorney general for a review.

IDEAS

Now, he wants to hear more.

"Greatness starts internally and like a seed, it grows. Your thoughts, ideas and suggestions are those seeds that are going to make this city grow!" Jones wrote in a public letter. "I want to hear from you. I know the employees and residents have a great amount of pride for the city so I am asking every employee, resident, business owner, traveler and city council member to bring an idea or suggestion to the city manager's office that will improve an and all aspects of the city of Groveland.

"No idea is too big or too small. We want to always work to improve our status. Our goal is to have everyone admire the progress of the city. We want to make our city stand out and to reach great heights."

Jones says he came up with this approach after noticing a top-10 list published by CNN/CNN Money that identified their picks for 2012's top 10 most livable, well governed cities.

Jones said that as he read the article, he thought, "What are you guys doing to make that list and be identified as such and what things can we do, or what can we piggyback on, to steer us in that direction?"

Jones said when he introduced his idea to staff and council members, most seemed open to it.

Jones released the names of every city on the list and included the phone number of each town so that people can request information from officials there or research what makes each city unique.

The top three cities on the list are Sharon, Mass., Louisville, Colo., and Vienna, Va. No city in Florida was included. "I told them we should be using those cities as a benchmark," Jones said, adding that he was impressed that since then, some city council members have taken it upon themselves to call officials of some of the cities on the list and pick their brains.

Jones said he personally reached out to the city manager in Papillion, Neb., No. 8 on the list. Jones said he'd met the manager at an executive training program he attended at Harvard's school of government.

"The city council has really expanded across the board with a consensus of pro-smart growth," Jones said. "Knowing where we're situated and knowing our growth pattern, it's really clear we have a lot of growth coming our way."

"We know all these things and we want to grow smart. We can be proactive in guiding our growth."

According to Shannon Ferrell, Jones' executive assistant, some staffers have suggested bringing a splash pad park to the city, incorporating uniforms in local schools, getting a website host and posting applications for various things on the city website.

Jones said other suggestions have included incorporating drug testing, creating a city wellness program, having more employee gatherings and morale-boosting activities, developing recreation and park opportunities, and updating the website more often. A top wish by council members was building an amphitheater.

Jones said he not only will continue researching why other cities made the CNN list, but will look at success stories in Clermont, Mascotte, Minneola, Montverde and other nearby towns.

Jones will keep people updated on the campaign's progress during his "report time" at city council meetings.

He is also in the process of planning town halls and "Meet the Manager" get-togethers throughout Groveland and will share details of his findings during his first 100-day evaluation in July.

Jones said he is asking people to jot their ideas down and drop them by City Hall, 156 S. Lake Ave., or to email him at redmond.jones@groveland-fl.gov.

Nigerian schools close due to terrorism

MICHELLE FAUL

LAGOS, Nigeria — Security forces raided areas near the site of two bombings in Nigeria's capital and detained eight suspects including foreigners on Saturday, the Ministry of Defense announced as the city prepared to host a three-day international conference.

All schools and government offices in Abuja, the capital in central Nigeria, will close during the May 7-9 World Economic Forum on Africa, according to a presidential order that follows two bomb attacks in three weeks that killed nearly 100 people. Islamic extremists are blamed for both.

A statement Friday night said the measure "is to ease the flow of traffic" during the conference, to which hundreds of international personalities, business and African leaders are invited.

Chinese Premier Li Keqiang is the guest of honor.

One more victim died in the hospital, raising the toll to 20 dead from Thursday's bombing, the permanent secretary of health, Dr. Demola Onakomaiya, said Saturday.

Successor to Peres still unknown

TEL AVIV, Israel — Shimon Peres, the indomitable 90-year-old elder statesman of Israeli politics, concludes his seven-year term as the country's ceremonial head of state this summer.

While the group of potential successors is locked in a heated battle over the lofty post, whoever emerges victorious likely faces an even tougher task of breaking out of Peres' shadow.

He restored honor to the presidency after replacing the disgraced Moshe Katsav, forced to resign in a sex scandal in 2007.

Ukrainian unrest spreads; dozens dead in Odessa

PETER LEONARD
Associated Press

SLOVYANSK, Ukraine — Ukraine launched an offensive against separatist forces for control of a besieged eastern city Friday, while clashes between pro- and anti-government activists in the previously calm southern port of Odessa led to a fire that police said killed 31 people.

The first serious offensive by the government in Kiev and the dozens of deaths in Odessa sharply escalated the crisis that has led to the worst tensions between Russia and the West since the Cold war. The Kremlin said the battle for the separatist-held city of Slovyansk effectively destroyed the Geneva pact aimed at cooling the unrest in the deeply divided country.

Oleksandr Turchynov, Ukraine's acting president, said many insurgents were killed or wounded in the eastern offensive that also underlined the military's vulnerability. The military action came two days after Kiev said it had lost control of eastern Ukraine.

Both sides said two Ukrainian helicopters were shot down by the insurgents near Slovyansk, killing two crew members, while authorities said another seven people also died: three separatist gunmen, two soldiers and two civilians.

By nightfall, Ukrainian troops and armored personnel carriers blocked all major roads into Slo-vyansk, and the central part of the city remained in the hands of pro-Russia gunmen, according to Associated Press journalists inside. Most shops were closed, and the few that were open were crowded with customers stocking up on supplies.

Sporadic gunfire was heard in Slovyansk's downtown late Friday, while Russian news reports said there were armed clashes in the nearby town of Kramatorsk. There was no independent confirmation of fighting.

Rescuers struggle to help Afghans hit hard by landslide

AMIR SHAH
Associated Press

ABI BARIK, Afghanistan — Afghan rescuers and volunteers armed with shovels and little more than their bare hands dug through the mud Saturday after a massive landslide swept through a village the day before, turning it into an earthen tomb holding hundreds of bodies, officials said.

The government and aid groups rushed to bring food, water and shelter to the survivors as the government tried to ascertain just how many people were killed in the latest natural disaster to hit a country already reeling from nearly three decades of war.

Figures on the number of people killed and missing in the disaster Friday varied from 255 to 2,700. Fears of a new landslide complicated rescue efforts, as homes and residents sat buried under yards of mud.

"That will be their cemetery," said Mohammad Karim Khalili, one of the country's two vice presidents, who visited the scene Saturday.

Kenya: 3 killed in 2 blasts at Kenyan coast

TOM ODULA
Associated Press

NAIROBI, Kenya — At least three people were killed in a grenade blast in one of two explosions Saturday along the coast of Kenya, an east African country working to crack down on a recent wave of terrorist attacks.

Authorities said the grenade blast at a bus stop in Mwembe Tayari, in the coastal city of Mombasa, also injured seven other people. Separately, a bag with an improvised explosive device was spotted near the coastal Reef Hotel in Nyalı, and passersby noticed in time to take cover before it detonated, the Interior Ministry said. No fatalities were immediately reported there.

Authorities said they didn't immediately have an explanation for the explosions. A blasted-out bus sat at the scene of the Mombasa blast, and a man was spotted carrying away an injured child.

Ranjit Sondhi, a director at the hotel, told The Associated Press that the hotel was not damaged and the blast occurred on a nearby public beach — much of the impact absorbed by a wall. The Interior Ministry had initially said that the explosion had taken place at a gate at the hotel, but ministry spokesman Mwenda Njoka later clarified that it had actually happened on the beach.

Kenya has been hit by a wave of gun and explosive attacks since it sent troops to neighboring Somalia.

Panthers fall to Pats in Class 5A-4 regionals

FRANK JOLLEY | Staff Writer

For more on this story, see www.dailycommercial.com.

The Eustis High School softball team played for its first regional championship in school history on Saturday.

A 12-1 loss to Plantation American Heritage likely will take some of the sizzle out of the accomplishment for the Panthers, but it also marked the beginnings of a program.

Eustis never led in the game, falling behind 2-0 before Nicole Caruso scored to make it 2-1. While Caruso's score might seem insignificant in the final outcome, it did mark the first scored against Plantation American Heritage in the regional playoffs.

The Patriots had outscored two opponents 24-0 in the game's leading up to Saturday's title tilt.

The game remained a 2-1 affair until the fifth when a light rain began to fall on the already soaked field and Plantation American Heritage put together a five-run outburst to put a little space between itself and the Panthers. The Patriots put even more heat on Eustis in the sixth inning, extending the lead with three more runs.

In the seventh, Plantation American Heritage sealed the win with the final margin of victory.

Plantation American Heritage, which travelled nearly 250 miles to play Eustis on Friday only to have the game postponed until Saturday because of heavy rains, will make a much shorter trip for the Florida High School Athletic Association Class 5A state semifinals on Friday at Dodgertown in Vero Beach.

Victor Espinoza rides California Chrome to a victory during the 140th running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs on Saturday in Louisville, Ky.

California Chrome shines

BETH HARRIS

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — California Chrome found another gear and pulled away down the stretch to win the 140th Kentucky Derby on Saturday at Churchill Downs.

Taking charge at the top of the lane, California Chrome and jockey Victor Espinoza made a decisive move late in the race and quickly sprinted clear. They finished the 1¼ miles in 2:03.66.

The 5-2 favorite stretched his winning streak to five and Art Sherman, 77, became the oldest winning Derby trainer. It was the second Derby win for Espinoza, who rode War Emblem to victory in 2002.

"I thought he rode him perfect. I never gave him any instructions. I just said, 'You know this horse, go for it,'" Sherman said.

In a game dominated by millionaires and billionaires, this was a victory for the little guys. Owners Perry Martin and Steve Coburn bred an $8,000 mare to a $2,500 stallion to win the world's most famous race with their one-horse stable.

Espinoza had California Chrome sitting comfortably in third in the 19-horse field as Uncle Sigh and Chitu set the pace.

California Chrome made his move on the final turn in tandem with Samraat. It looked like those two would decide the outcome, until California Chrome sped away, winning by 1¾ lengths.

JACKSONVILLE — Kaylin Whitney and Terry Jernigan were immune to the elements.

The East Ridge High School runners defied rainy conditions and blistered the track at the University of North Florida on Saturday to win state championships in the boys and girls 100-meter dashes at the Florida High School Athletic Association state track-and-field finals.

Despite coming into the finals with the fifth-fastest qualifying time, Whitney recorded the fastest time in the preliminary heats, stopping the clock in 11.64 seconds. The sophomore was more than 3/10ths of a second faster than the next-fastest runner during preliminaries.

In the finals, Whitney started in the middle of the track and bolted from the blocks. She maintained an advantage throughout and won in 11.48, beating Krystal Sparling

Brian Scott leads RCR to win pole at Talladega

JENNA FRYER

TALLADEGA, Ala. — A group decision for all of the cars powered by Earnhardt Childress engines to work together at Talladega Super-speedway proved the correct call in NASCAR's new knockout qualifying format.

Richard Childress Racing drivers and their affiliates swept the first three rows on the starting grid for today's race, with the pole going to Brian Scott, who will lead the field to the green flag in just his fifth career Sprint Cup Series start.

"Who would have thought that, huh?" Scott asked after Saturday's qualifying session.

Cars with ECR engines took six of the 12 spots in the third and final round of knockout qualifying, and they all waited patiently on pit road for someone to make a move. It came with roughly 2 minutes, 20 seconds remaining in the 5-minute session, when all 12 drivers made their way onto the track.

Teixeira backs Tanaka as Yankees beat Rays

RICK FREEMAN
Associated Press

NEWYORK — The last time Masahiro Tanaka lost a regular season game, Mark Teixeira was a reliable slugger in the heart of the Yankees' batting order.

Since August 2012, Teixeira has hurt a wrist and hamstring, missing most of last season and half of the first month of this season. He's back looking like his usual bashing self — just in time to help Tanaka on Saturday.

Teixeira homered for the fourth time in his last five games and drove in three runs as the Yankees rallied past the Tampa Bay Rays 9-3 and stopped a season-high, three-game losing streak.

New York Yankees starting pitcher Masahiro Tanaka attempts to pick off a runner at first base during Saturday's game against Tampa Bay at Yankee Stadium in New York.

It is a first round to savor in the NBA and NHL

TIM REYNOLDS
Associated Press

MIAMI — There's never been more than five Game 7's in the entirety of an NBA postseason.

There's five this weekend alone.

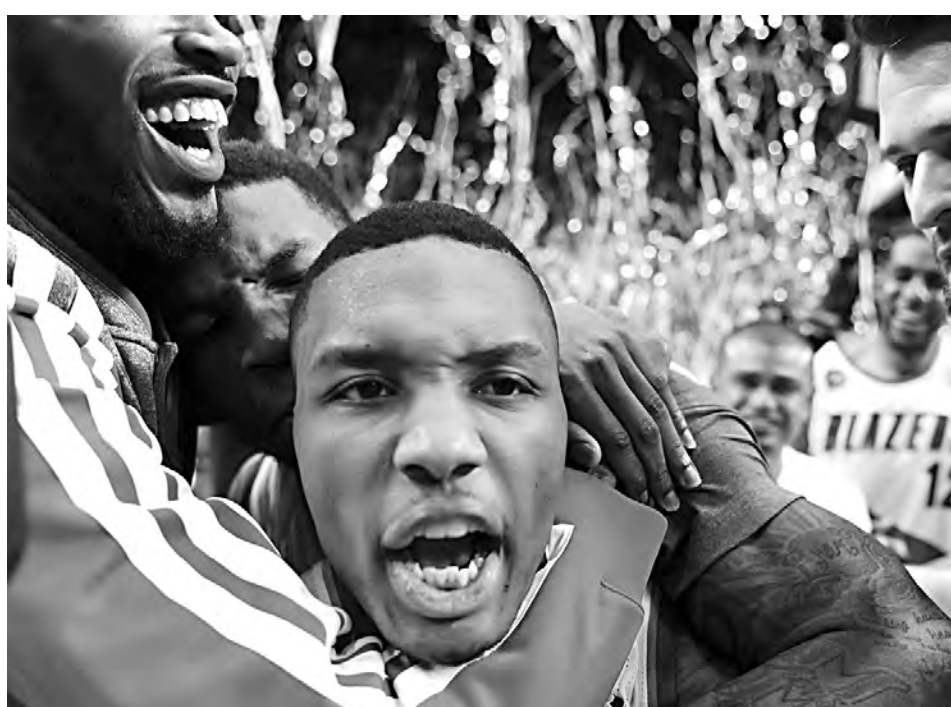

Just think, this is supposed to be merely the appetizer course to the annual hockey and basketball postseason feast.

Several more weeks will pass before anyone hoists the Stanley Cup or the Larry O'Brien Trophy. And if the start of these hockey and basketball playoffs were any indication — a record five Game 7's in the opening NBA round, plus three more do-or-die games so far in the NHL, not to mention flairs for the dramatic at just about every turn — what awaits could be epic.

"Does anybody even know what happened in the regular season, with how good the playoffs have been?" asked Miami Heat star LeBron James. "I don't even know what happened in the regular season. That's how great of a postseason it's been."

It's just getting started, too.

Saturday marked the first time in NBA history that there were three Game 7's on the same day. Today will be the 10th day the league has seen multiple Game 7's.

"This is what the NBA's all about, these pressure-type moments," said Brooklyn's Paul Pierce, whose Nets play at Toronto today. "These are the type of games that elevate the good players to great players, and we have so many of them coming up this weekend. It's an exciting time and we're going to enjoy it."

With good reason, too.

Television ratings are up, social media mentions are coming at rates like never before, and ticket resellers are commanding extremely high rates in most markets.

And maybe the best testament to the quality of these playoffs so far is this: There's two very significant and ongoing stories revolving around racism — one being the banning of Los Angeles Clippers owner Donald Sterling over comments he made, the other epithets being directed toward P.K. Subban, a black defenseman for the Montreal Canadiens. But even those matters have not been able to completely overshadow the product on the hardwood and ice.

"This league is far bigger than any one owner, any one coach, any one player," NBA Commissioner Adam Silver said, while announcing Sterling's lifetime ban. "This institution has been around for a long time, and it will stand for a long time."

Out of the first 45 games in this NBA postseason entering Saturday, 30 of them were essentially still undecided entering the final minute of play. There's also been nine games decided by two points or less, including Damian Lillard's series-winning 3-pointer at the buzzer to give Portland a 99-98 victory over Houston on Friday night.

The Heat rolled to a four-game sweep of Charlotte. Washington needed just five games to oust Chicago. Portland took care of Houston in six games. Everyone else — including top-seeded Indiana and San Antonio — was forced to go the distance in the opening round.

"One through eight," Portland's Wesley Matthews said, asked about the magic seen so far in these NBA playoffs, "you never know what's going to happen."

Over the first 48 games in the NHL opening round, teams came from behind to win a staggering 28 times. There were a first-round record 10 comebacks from two-goal deficits or more, along with 14 overtime contests.

Plus, there was a true rarity: The Los Angeles Kings lost the first three games of their series with San Jose, then won the next four to advance, becoming just the fourth NHL club to pull off that feat.

"History is not for us," the Kings' Justin Williams said. "We look at it as we won four games in a row."

Remote controls around America are likely wearing down after the last couple weeks, replete with late nights in both the hoops and pucks world. The numbers are clear — people are watching in bunches.

The playoff viewership average of NBA playoff games on TNT is nearly 4 million total viewers, up 16 percent from the comparable period a year ago. Since the playoffs started, TNT has won the nightly ratings battle among total viewers six times, along with 10 times each across the advertiser-coveted men age 18-34 and 18-49 demographics.

And in the NHL, while the numbers didn't come close to what the NBA was drawing, there was also marked growth, with NBC Sports Group saying first-round viewership was up 57 percent over a year ago.

"This is the best time of year," Heat guard Dwyane Wade said.

Maybe sadly, the first rounds for 2014 will end sometime Sunday, pulling the curtain on perhaps the best opening couple weeks of a winter-sports postseason ever.

Then again, maybe the best really is yet to come. Hockey's second round is already underway — and it started with a pair of overtime thrillers.

Duncan, Spurs focused on beating Mavs in Game 7

SCHUYLER DIXON
Associated Press

Tim Duncan doesn't care about 62-win San Antonio pushed to a Game 7 by the upstart Dallas Mavericks in a first-round series that looks a lot like the other time these Texas rivals played a full set.

The only concern for the four-time champion is the NBA's best team in the regular season getting a tougher-than-expected series win Sunday at home.

"It doesn't matter how many games it takes," Duncan said after the Spurs' 113-111 loss in Dallas on Friday night. "We're not worried or disappointed."

San Antonio is going the distance in a second-straight playoff series after losing Game 7 of the NBA Finals in Miami last June. The Spurs had an even better chance to close out their fifth title in Game 6, giving up a late lead on a 3-pointer by Ray Allen and losing in overtime. Another good chance slipped away late in the deciding game.

Here they are again, but facing the prospect of losing as the top seed in the West after a 60-win season for the second time in four years. Memphis pulled the trick in 2011, the year the Mavericks won the franchise's first championship.

The winner today gets fifth-seeded Portland in the Western Conference semifinals. The Trail Blazers prevented another possible all-Texas series by ousting Houston on a 3-pointer at the buzzer by Damian Lillard a couple of hours after the Dallas win.

"It's, of course, disappointing," said Manu Ginobili, held to six points on 1-of-8 shooting after leading the Spurs in scoring through the first five games. "But it is what it is. We've got to go fight and try to get it in Game 7."

Dirk Nowitzki and San Antonio's Big Three of Duncan, Ginobili and Tony Parker were all there eight years ago when these frequent playoff foes played an epic seven-game set in the third of six series between them since 2001.

The Spurs forced a Game 7 in San Antonio after trailing 3-1, then came back from 20 points down in the finale. Ginobili had a tie-breaking 3-pointer in the closing seconds, but Nowitzki had enough time to drive, get fouled by Ginobili on a layup and force overtime with a three-point play. The Mavericks pulled away in the extra period to win the second-round series en route to their first NBA Finals before losing to Miami.

San Antonio was the top seed in the West back then, too. But Dallas was the second-best team in the conference despite being the fourth seed. This time, the Mavericks had to scramble to even make the playoffs a year after missing the postseason for the first time since the 35-year-old Nowitzki's second season in 2000.

"It's another one-game season for us," said Dallas coach Rick Carlisle, who had to incorporate nine newcomers, including a revamped backcourt with starters Monta Ellis and Jose Calderon, not to mention Devin Harris at midseason after he came back from toe surgery. "We've had them all year. We know what they're about, and we wanted this opportunity."

1963 — Bob Shaw of the Braves set a major league record by committing five balks. In the third inning, Shaw walked Billy Williams and balked him home with three straight balks. Shaw lasted five innings before he was ejected for arguing. The Chicago Cubs beat Milwaukee, 5-3.
1969 — The Houston Astros set an NL record by turning seven double plays against the San Francisco Giants. First baseman Curt Blefary participated in all seven.
1975 — Bob Watson of the Houston Astros, sensing baseball history, raced around the bases on Milt May's home run and crossed the plate at Candlestick Park in time to score major league baseball's 11 millionth run, seconds ahead of Dave Concepcion of Cincinnati.
1981 — New York's Ron Davis struck out eight consecutive Angels in relief as the Yankees defeated California 4-2.
1989 — Toronto's Junior Felix became the 53rd player in major league history to hit a home run in his first at-bat with a third-inning drive off California's Kirk McCaskill as the Blue Jays lost 3-2 in 10 innings.
1991 — Chris James drove in nine runs with two homers and two singles, breaking Cleveland's club record for RBIs and leading the Indians to a 20-6 victory over the Oakland Athletics.
1996 — The Texas Rangers became the first American League team in 79 years to pitch consecutive one-hitters as Roger Pavlik held Detroit to a fifth-inning home run in a 3-1 win. Ken Hill one-hit Detroit on May 3, leading the last 26 batters he faced.
2001 — Raul Mondesi of the Blue Jays went 4-for-4, with two homers, two doubles and six RBIs, leading Toronto to an 8-3 victory over Seattle.
2009 — The Los Angeles Dodgers became the first National League team since 1900 to win their first 11 home games, beating Arizona 7-2. The major league mark of 12 was set in 1911 by the Detroit Tigers.
2011 — Atlanta's Tim Hudson pitched a one-hitter to ruin the Milwaukee debut of Zack Greinke. The Braves rocked the 2009 AL Cy Young Award winner in a 8-0 victory to complete a doubleheader sweep of the Brewers. Hudson retired his first nine hitters before Rickie Weeks led off the fourth with a double. He was the only Brewers player to reach base, also drawing a two-out walk in the ninth.
2013 — Jose Fernandez pitched one-hit ball and struck out nine in seven dominant innings, getting his first major league win in the Miami Marlins' 2-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies. The 20-year-old Fernandez was lifted after throwing 82 pitches. Mike Dunn worked a perfect eighth and Steve Cishek finished off the one-hitter.

QBs, deep threats, and Jadeveon Clowney

BARRY WILNER
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Quarterbacks, deep threats, and Jadeveon.

For all the interest in QBs such as Johnny Football, and all the praise for the deep class of deep-threat receivers, the first player off the board on Thursday in the NFL draft figures to be that most coveted of defenders, the sack master end.

South Carolina's Jadeveon Clowney is expected to wind up with the Houston Texans, who get the first pick in the three-day proceedings at Radio City Music Hall.

Criticism of his work ethic and suggestions that he spent much of last season trying to avoid injury have been overwhelmed in most draft rooms by video of Clowney at his best. Those clips show him beating double-teams, even triple-teams. He's been so impressive that many NFL insiders believe Clowney would have been the top overall pick had he been eligible after his 2012 sophomore season.

"With a player like Jadeveon in his second

South Carolina defensive end Jadeveon Clowney (7) rushes against Tennessee during a game last season in Knoxville, Tenn. Clowney finished last year with 11 1/2 tackles for loss and three sacks after getting 23 1/2 and 13 in 2012. He is a top prospect in the upcoming this week's NFL draft.

year, he was a tremendous player," says former NFL player Tom Condon, now a prominent agent. "And then he had to play his third year and you hear the questions about what kind of motor does he have. I watched him this year and I thought he was a fantastic player."

Clowney disputes claims he doesn't always bring it, and all NFL coaches believe they can get the most out of any prospect.

"I think I work just as hard as anybody," Clowney says. "If you pick me and pair me with guys, I'm going to try and outwork them also."

Should Houston bypass adding Clowney to a defense that already has a disruptive star end in J.J. Watt, the Texans could opt for a quarterback. They dealt incumbent Matt Schaub to Oakland, leaving Case Keenum and T.J. Yates behind center.

But grabbing Texas A&M's often-spectacular and unpredictable Johnny Manziel at the top of the draft could be a reach. Same thing for the other quarterbacks being dissected by scouts — for two extra weeks this year, because the draft was moved back into early May.

Choosing Central Florida's Blake Bortles, Louisville's Teddy Bridgewater, Fresno State's Derek Carr (brother of 2002 overall top pick David Carr of the same school and an NFL bust) or any other passer might be a stretch.

Instead, many teams drafting early may opt for guys who stretch the field. NFL draft guru Gil Brandt calls it "a very strong draft for receivers," and general managers drool about Sammy Watkins of Clemson, Mike Evans of Texas A&M, Brandin Cooks of Oregon State, Marqise Lee of Southern California, Odell Beckham Jr. of LSU, and Kelvin Benjamin of Florida State.

Brandt lists eight wideouts in his top 50 prospects.

Asked what impact the speedy, strong, elusive workaholic Watkins might have on the Browns, general manager Ray Farmer says: "Big, big, really big. Ginormous."

"He's explosive," Farmer adds. "He's got really good hands. He's demonstrated he can run all the routes. He can be productive. So saddle him on the opposite side of Josh Gordon and WOW!"

Other WOW factor players attracting attention before the draft include Buffalo (the Bulls, not the Bills) linebacker Khalil Mack, UCLA linebacker Anthony Barr, Alabama safety Ha Ha Clinton-Dix and North Carolina tight end Eric Ebron.

But the guys in the trenches never should be ignored, with three tackles — Greg Robinson of Auburn, Jake Matthews of Texas A&M (son of Hall of Fame offensive lineman Bruce Matthews) and Taylor Lewan of Michigan — projected to go in the first dozen picks. Defensive tackles Aaron Donald of Pittsburgh, Tim Jernigan of Florida State and Louis Nix of Notre Dame also are likely first-rounders.

Just like last year, when no running backs went in the first round, that position is devalued in 2014. Top ball carriers in this crop include Carlos Hyde of Ohio State and Tre Mason of Auburn.

The impact of underclassmen will be felt more in this draft than ever, with a record 98 declaring for early entry. Clowney, Watkins, Manziel, Ebron, Robinson, and Clinton-Dix are among them.

Meanwhile, one player not likely to go until later Friday (the second and third rounds) or even Saturday (Round 4 through Round 7) is Missouri defensive end Michael Sam, the first openly gay player in an NFL draft. Sam has been a solid playmaker for the Tigers, and prefers to look at himself as a football prospect, not a trail blazer.

He's made that clear for months.

"I wish you guys would just say, 'Michael Sam, how's football going? How's training going?' I would love for you to ask me that question," Sam said at the NFL combine. "But it is what it is. And I just wish you guys would just see me as Michael Sam the football player instead of Michael Sam the gay football player."

It's time for a change at Lake's Animal Services

The recent history of Lake County Animal Services is an inglorious one. Last year, two separate audits of the county animal shelter turned up a total of 45 problems. Among them were lapses in record-keeping that left auditors wonder whether shelter workers knew how many animals they were taking in, how many they were adopting out and whether the ones in the facility had proper immunizations.

The audits forced the resignation of one Animal Service director, and last month, another one announced her resignation, citing the lack of resources to do the job correctly and pressure from animal activists.

Two recent developments further suggest that Animal Services is in trouble.

In one case, six puppies adopted from the shelter died of hookworm, and two others from the same litter survived after receiving aggressive treatment.

Then this week, county officials closed the shelter until further notice after 16 dogs contracted parvovirus and had to be put down. That means they will not accept any more animals and will not adopt any to the public until they feel confident that the parvo outbreak is under control.

County officials are quick to point out that a parvo outbreak can, and does, happen at any animal shelter. And while that may be true, taken together, these events suggest a troubling lack of organization or oversight at Lake County Animal Services.

Sheriff Gary Borders recently came forward and said he would be willing to consider taking over Animal Services.

The idea of a sheriff's department running animal services is not unique; a number of other Florida sheriff's do it effectively, largely because they can draw on inmate labor to hold down costs.

The Lake County Commission is considering Borders' offer, and after the shelter closed this week, their interest has grown.

We agree. Clearly, the problems that plague Animal Services are stubborn, and it make take new leadership to fix them. It's time to give Sheriff Borders a shot at doing what the county cannot.

At the same time, we hope the County Commission will use this moment to examine its own leadership.

We have heard their lament about lack of revenue caused by the lingering effects of the recession. And while that is true, political expediency alone has kept them from making some tough decisions — namely, raising taxes — to shore up some of the departments and services that are starved for funding.

So to commissioners we say, go ahead and push this problem to the sheriff. But unless you squarely address your budget problems, it's only a matter of time until failures in another county service jump up and bite you.

EDITORIALS

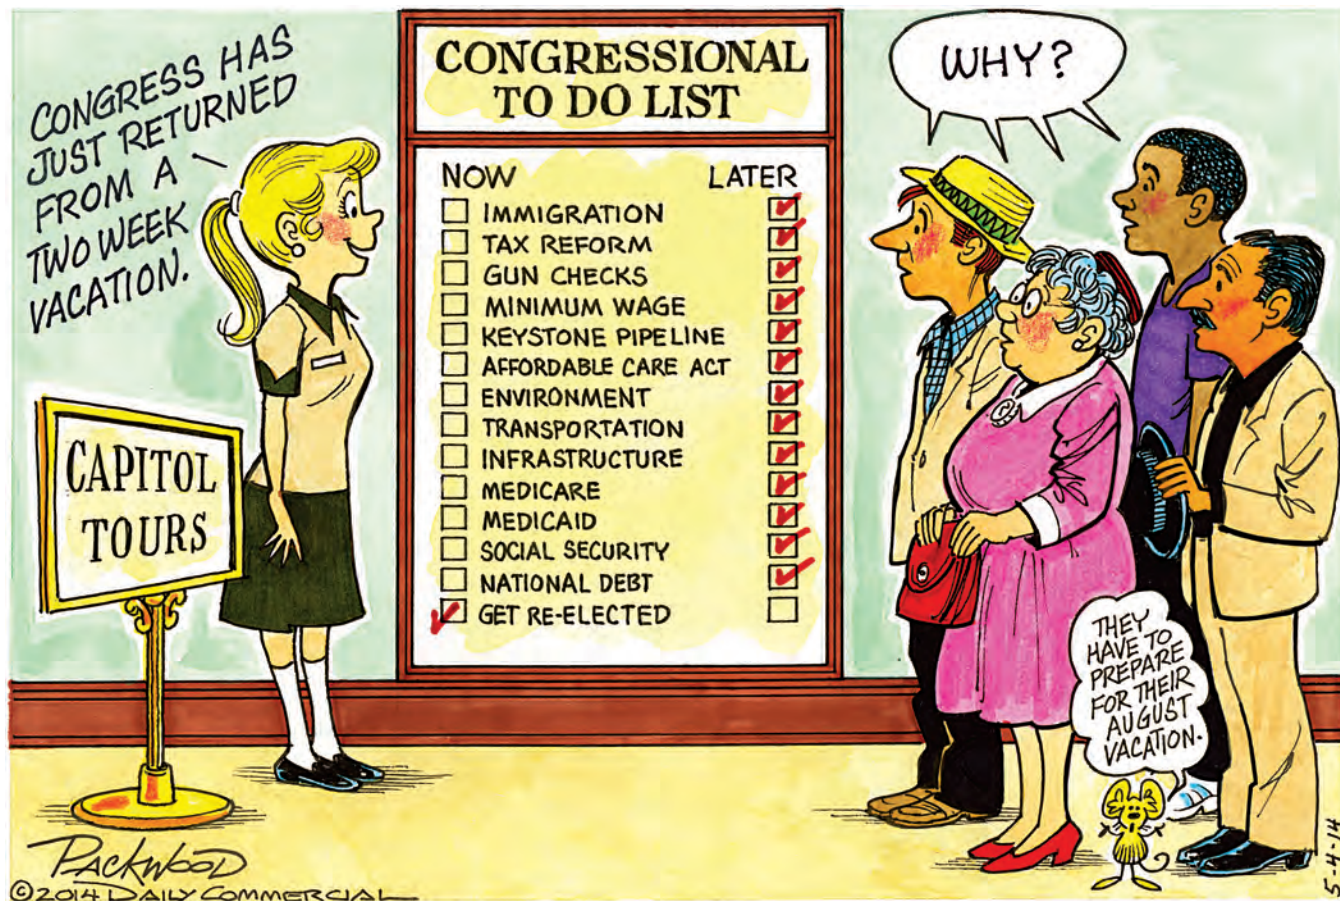

Editorials are the consensus opinion of the editorial board, not any individual. They are written by the editorial staff but are not signed. Local editorials are published Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

COLUMNS

Columns are the opinion of the writer whose byline and picture appears with them. They do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the newspaper, and are chosen to represent a diversity of views.

If you would like to submit a guest column on a local, state or national issue, email your submission to letters@dailycommercial.com, or mail it to Voices, P.O. Box 490007, Leesburg, FL 34749-0007.

Guest columns should be limited to 550 words in length. The writer also must submit a recent photo to be published with the column, as well as a brief biographical sketch.

LETTER of the WEEK

Bikefest was a blast

Tom Zaklukiewicz's April 27 letter caused me to respond immediately.

I am not a biker. I have been to one other Bikefest, where I walked around a couple of hours and was not impressed.

This year is very different. I was there every day and had a blast despite the intense heat. I can honestly say there is no way I saw everything this year.

I don't go to major sporting events, but I would guess that a beer costs more than the $2 Zaklukiewicz remembers paying. Beers were $4, and I didn't find that unreasonable. I loved the huge variety of food choices. Sure, it costs a bit more than going to McDonald's, but the food was good and the atmosphere was a big plus.

As for parking, I cannot understand why anyone would drive to Bikefest with the great transportation available from LakeXpress. The parking benefits area nonprofits anyway, so who can complain?

BRETT LE BLANC / DAILY COMMERCIAL

I really hope the vendors made a lot of money because I want to see them again. Every single vendor was helpful and pleasant despite the huge crowds.

I do agree that the hotels should be ashamed of themselves, but I think that happens at every major event anywhere.

The only complaint I had was the fact that the Ms. Budweiser contest was almost an hour late getting started. Mr. Luckyman did a great job keeping the crowd entertained, but it was hard standing in the heat for an hour waiting. At least I had a nice conversation with a fellow veteran.

The Leesburg Partnership should be proud of what they have accomplished. I will certainly be looking forward to next year.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Applause for state's Living Healthy initiative

I was pleased to read in a St. Petersburg blog that Adam Putnam (Florida Agriculture Commissioner) is joining a group of state lawmakers and agency leaders in an ambitious attempt to get Floridians to eat and live healthier.

Their program, Living Healthy in Florida, includes education on how to buy and prepare healthier meals and common health and wellness messages.

This aligns with First Lady Michelle Obama's Let's Move program, which, in addition to promoting exercise, also educates kids, teachers and families about nutrition. Diet alone is not the answer. Kids and adults must move, even if you walk to the corner and back.

We keep hearing that obesity is the major health concern that we have to face and for most of us, the cure is in our own hands. Helpful tips and step-by-step strategies for families, schools and communities to help kids be more active, eat better and grow up healthy can be found on the Let's Move website, www.letsmove.gov.

The goal of Living Healthy in Florida, says Putnam, is to make the most of the well-established link between proper nutrition and academic success. I am sure the First Lady couldn't agree more!

Grateful for the kindness of a stranger

I am writing in the hope that the Good Samaritan of Leesburg will read this and know how grateful we are for his help earlier this month.

I left a cold and snowy Michigan and was enjoying a visit with my brother and his wife in sunny, warm Florida. While returning from visiting relatives in nearby Tavares we experienced car problems, which to we three seniors seemed very serious.

Suddenly, we could not shift gears. This friendly gentleman, seeing our dilemma, rushed over, had us pop the car hood and in moments diagnosed it as a transmission cable that had come loose. To our benefit, we soon discovered he was a knowledgeable auto mechanic, with the necessary tools in his vehicle that enabled him to Band-aid the situation enough so we could get back on the road.

Thanks to this caring man we were able to drive the 150 miles back home and the next day had the cable replaced.

While we seem to live in an era of "I don't want to get involved," I am so grateful that this man didn't agree with that philosophy. I am sorry we didn't get his name but we are also very, very grateful to him for his kindness in helping out three strangers. To us, he will always be the Good Samaritan of Leesburg.

Goodwill is up and running

At Goodwill Industries of Central Florida we're celebrating 13 years serving Leesburg residents. Thanks to generous donations from our community, we're able to provide opportunities that help people find meaningful work — reaching 32,500 Central Floridians last year alone.

In 2013, Goodwill's economic impact in Leesburg was nearly $8.5 million.

Recently, our Leesburg Retail Store and Job Connection Center at 10601 U.S. Highway 441, experienced a service disruption to our phone lines. During this outage some of our donors and shoppers had difficulty reaching us by phone, although our store and Job Connection Center remained open.

Fortunately, phone service has since been restored, and our store's phone number remains the same, 352-728-3488, and our Job Connection Center can be reached by calling 352-323-1847.

I want to reassure the residents of Leesburg that our store and Job Connection Center are still here and thriving in our community. And in June, we'll be moving across U.S. Highway 441 to a new, bigger location where we'll continue to serve you. I invite you to visit us! Bring your donations and shop in our stores to help make a difference right here in Lake County.

Bill Oakley, president and CEO of Goodwill Industries of Central Florida.

Unanswered questions regarding Benghazi

You would think that 19 months after the terrorist attack on our embassy personnel in Benghazi that we would know the facts surrounding the attack and the murder of four Americans, including our ambassador, Chris Stevens. You would also think that the terrorist who we can identify would have been brought to justice. Knowing this administration, if capture should occur, it will be timed shortly before the 2014 elections.

In my mind and that of Trey Gowdy, the outstanding Congressman from South Carolina, there are at least 13 key questions that need to be answered about the murderous Benghazi attack.

QUESTION 1: Why was our ambassador in Benghazi at that time?

QUESTION 2: Since the British ambassador and the Red Cross had left Benghazi due to the dangers that existed, why did we remain?

QUESTION 3: Why were multiple requests from our ambassador for additional security ignored?

QUESTION 4: Why weren't military assets deployed since we did not know if there might not be followup attacks?

QUESTION 5: Did President Obama seek any assistance from our allies?

QUESTION 6: Why was U.N. Ambassador Susan Rice selected to go on Sunday talk shows instead of Secretary of State Hillary Clinton?

QUESTION 7: Who in the Obama administration created the false talking points that the attack was a spontaneous action of a mob incited by a video?

QUESTION 8: Where was the president following the attack?

RUSS SLOAN
GUEST COLUMNIST

QUESTION 9: Why didn't the president convene a meeting of his National Security Council as soon as possible after the attack began?

QUESTION 10: Who selected the security team from Libya who apparently fled as soon as the attack occurred?

QUESTION 11: Why did Secretary of Defense Leon Panetta remain silent when he knew the spontaneous mob action narrative was a lie?

QUESTION 12: Since the 9/11 anniversary was imminent, why was our embassy and military personnel not on high alert?

QUESTION 13: Why has no one been brought to justice thus far?

I'm sure there are

Major questions remain unanswered about Benghazi but politics has thus far overshadowed the truth. Perhaps the most appalling aspect of Benghazi was Secretary of State Clinton telling the families of our four dead Americans, as their coffins arrived home, that we would get the person responsible for making that video. Knowing the truth, she still chose to lie to the family members.

many more questions that need answering but these 13 questions would surely shed a lot of light and truth on that murderous evening.

We have learned that our Defense Department did an analysis of attacks since 9/11, 2001 and concluded that with only one attack having occurred since then "we were postured appropriately." Under President Bush 43 we were always on high alert for some possible, action on the anniversary of 9/11.

I am not holding my breath that we will ever know the full truth on Benghazi or the gun running fiasco called "Fast & Furious" or the IRS scandal in which conservative and tea party groups were targeted by the IRS as they sought 501c4 status.

Instead of being the most transparent administration in our history they have been just the opposite. Why should we have been fooled since the college records of president Obama are sealed. Why in the world would he want his college records sealed? Inquiring minds want to know.

That doesn't include our fair-minded media.

Major questions remain unanswered about Benghazi but politics has thus far overshadowed the truth. Perhaps the most appalling aspect of Benghazi was Secretary of State Clinton telling the families of our four dead Americans, as their coffins arrived home, that we would get the person responsible for making that video. Knowing the truth, she still chose to lie to the family members.

I can only surmise that Clinton was so accustomed to covering up for her husband that one more lie and cover-up, in the home stretch of a presidential campaign, was acceptable. And from her own lips: "What difference does it make now" if they were murdered by terrorists or just some mob out looking to kill Americans?

Founding Fathers did not intend to become a Robin Hood society

This letter is in response to a recent letter by Marvin Jacobson which I feel demands a reply.

The crux of his letter was that our Founding Fathers would be proud of what Congress has created as it relates to laws for the protection of its citizens and betterment of our general welfare.

I find it difficult to believe that the founders' intent was to create a welfare state with more people on food stamps than at any time in history or a national debt that will haunt our children or grandchildren far into the future.

Nor do I believe they would be proud of the reduction of our military, given the unrest throughout the world, much less the disregard of our Constitution by the executive branch creating laws as they see fit, circumventing Congress to serve their own interests.

Rather I would submit to Jacobson that the intent of the phrase in our Constitution which says, Congress shall have the power to "...," "provide for the common defense and general welfare of the United States," was meant to provide protection from enemies both foreign and domestic, while enacting laws to allow its citizens to live in freedom and to freely seek their fortune.

Not with the intent to become a Robin Hood society taking by force from those who have earned and giving it to those who have not.

Finally, our Constitution makes no stipulation upon the skin color of the president but only that he or she be a natural born citizen and swear to uphold that Constitution to the best of their ability.

Our present situation has a POTUS who has little regard for our founding document and a Congress with the lowest approval of its citizens in history, a condition which I am sure would have our Founding Fathers grinding their teeth.

With all due respect to Jacobson, with a visit to an optometrist, a new set of eye glasses and a good look around, you might well change your perspective on how our government is working.

James Featherston lives in Tavares.

Jaguar F-Type a worthy heir to fabled E

BARRY SPYKER
The Miami Herald

Today, 50 years after I lusted after this sleek and unique Jag, 50 years after Jan and Dean sang of the duel between the XKE and a Corvette Stingray on Sunset Boulevard's "Dead Man's Curve," comes the 2014 Jaguar F-Type.

Amazingly, it is the legendary British company's first new two-seat sports car since the famous E-Type. One can only imagine the smile on Enzo's face somewhere along that racetrack in the heavens.

It is wonderfully sculpted with headlamps that sweep up and over the fenders and a sleek profile with wheel wells that tightly surround the 20-inch wheels.

And while Jaguar folks say the F-Type isn't meant to be a celebration of the E, there are some hints of the old DNA in the rear. Check out the up-lifted quad tailpipes, the rounded body panels and the accents on the circular tail-lights. Eh, Enzo?

2014 JAGUAR F-TYPE V-8 S

BASE PRICE, EXCLUDING DESTINATION CHARGE: $69,000

Make no mistake, though, the E-Type and F-Type are from different eons. As one might expect with the benefit of today's technology, the F-Type would embarrass the old E with its raw speed and handling.

It is fast and fun — with a reminder from its growling exhaust — and yet it is well behaved on the road for commutes, too.

Even the base F has a super-charged V-6 that puts out 340 horses with 332 pound-feet of torque. The F-Type S bumps up the power to 380 horsepower and gets you to 60 mph under 5 seconds.

But the big bruiser is the F-Type V-8: a 5.0-liter super-charged machine that cranks out 495 ponies and 460 pound-feet of torque. That's sufficient to fly you to 60 mph in 4.2 seconds, Jaguar says.

To let everyone know how many horses you are riding, the engine snorts and belches like a dragon — and that's on the regular setting. Push a little button on the console (the icon looks like a pair of eyeglasses but they're exhausts) and it really gets crazy. The wife doesn't like the racket, so for her, it was a turnoff. But for most, it will elicit a grin and a nod.

An 8-speed automatic is standard on all F-Types, sending the power smoothly and efficiently to the rear wheels. While a manual is not available, the automatic does come with manual levers to take more control, but it's hardly worth it. The automatic is right-on in its decisions.

Out on the road the F-Type is a rewarding experience.

McLaren 650S a step below P1, but who will know?

SUSAN CARPENTER
The Orange County Register

The envy one feels toward an exclusive $1.15 million super car is usually from the buyer's perspective. But with the 2015 McLaren 650S, it's the British sports car maker that seems to be lusting after its own, more premium creation, the P1.

Designed as a track car that's civilized enough for the street and, with its Spider version, versatile enough to allow tanning at Mach speed, the 204-mph 650S Spider is what you get when you take an MP4-12C and give it a face-lift with 25 percent new parts to make it look like the limited-production, plug-in hybrid sports car BMW i8 buyers can only covet.

A bargain, at least comparatively, the $280,225 650S Spider aspires to the P1's glamor through a front end that is literally a carbon (fiber) copy, with serpentine headlights that subliminally suggest its most appropriate terrain. While most of the body panels are the same as the 12C it's replacing, the back and sides have had their share of plastic surgery, and the results are even better than Joan Rivers.

Gone is the glass fast-back of the 12C, replaced with more angular lines, a taillight assembly that flows into its shapely backside and cavernous side scoops

Redesigned Camry, Sonata debut as competition heats up

JERRY HIRSCH
Los Angeles Times

The battle for buyers of family sedans — already the most competitive U.S. auto segment — will heat up this fall when Toyota and Hyundai launch dramatically restyled versions of their respective offerings, the Camry and the Sonata.

A decade ago, the default choices in this biggest slice of the auto market were the Camry and Honda's Accord, but the competition has grown fierce in the past five years. Automakers can't afford a misstep with a new model, and they can't fall behind with a dated model.

That's why Toyota and Hyundai debuted redesigns of their flagship sedans at the New York International Auto Show last week — even though the current version of the Camry is just 2 years old and the current Sonata launched as a 2011 model. Car companies typically wait five years between redesigns.

"The market is evolving faster, and consumer patience for vehicles that have not changed is dropping," said Karl Brauer, an analyst with auto information company Kelley Blue Book.

The Camry has been the nation's bestselling passenger car for a dozen years, but its lead over competitors is narrowing. Through the first three months of this year, Toyota sold about 94,000 Camrys. That leads the Nissan Altima by about 5,000 sales and the Honda Accord by about 15,000 sales.

But the Accord's market share is growing. When commercial sales to rental car companies and other fleet customers are subtracted, the Honda actually beat the Toyota last year, Brauer said.

That has prompted Toyota to ratchet up the discounts. Through the first three months of this year, Camry sales incentives averaged just over $3,200, almost $500 more than the industry average for the midsize sedan segment, according to ALG, a consulting firm that estimates used-car values for the leasing business. The Camry's average transaction price was $24,039, about $800

Nissan adds economy to practicality in Pathfinder Hybrid

G. CHAMBERS WILLIAMS III
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

Take one of the best family-size crossover utility vehicles on the market, and add a gasoline-electric hybrid drive system to it, and you'll have the best of both worlds: versatility and efficiency.

That's the theory behind the all-new 2014 Nissan Pathfinder Hybrid, a great people hauler that also offers decent fuel economy: up to 26 mpg combined city/highway. That's for a vehicle that can carry up to seven adults in comfort, with no compromises.

Prices begin at $35,300 for the entry-level SV front-wheel-drive version.

It's the first in a line of new hybrid models on the way from Nissan. Also planned are hybrid versions of the redesigned Rogue compact crossover, as well as the redesigned 2015 Murano midsize crossover and the Altima sedan, which plays in the same class as the Accord, Camry, Fusion, Sonata and Optima hybrids.

Nissan's crossover product planner, Scott Pak, confirmed that the new Murano, unveiled at the New York auto show, will get a hybrid version, although when it will arrive has not yet been determined.

Likewise for the Rogue and Altima, although the Rogue model probably is closer to launch. Nissan introduced the second generation of the Rogue last fall, and began production of it in the Nissan plant in Tennessee, which also makes the Pathfinder (including the hybrid) on the same assembly line. That plant also makes the Leaf electric car, and the lithium-ion batteries for it.

The Pathfinder got a complete redesign last year that turned it into a roomy, full-size crossover. It took another big leap this year with the addition of the hybrid version.

Under the hood of the hybrid is a supercharged 2.5-liter gasoline engine coupled with a 15-kilowatt electric motor, which gets its power from a compact lithium-ion battery.

Together, they provide nearly the same power as the gasoline-only Pathfinder's 3.5-liter V-6. The hybrid has a total of 250 horsepower and 243 pound-feet of torque, compared with 260 horsepower and 240 pound-feet of torque for the 3.5-liter.

I've tested both vehicles, and the power of the hybrid feels quite similar to that of the gasoline model, although there seemed to be more pep on take-off with the hybrid. That's because the electric motor kicks in with all of its torque right away.

At highway speeds, the hybrid has plenty of power left in reserve for passing, also thanks to the boost provided by the electric motor.

EPA ratings for the front-drive hybrid are 25 mpg city/28 highway/26 combined, compared with 20 city/26 highway/22 combined for the two-wheel drive gas model. With four-wheel drive, the hybrid gets 25/27/26, compared with 19/25/21 for the four-wheel drive gas model.

Pathfinder hybrids have the same interior space as the gasoline versions, including ample legroom and cargo capacity.

Highlander Hybrid with the design of the Pathfinder Hybrid, Nissan said. The hybrid is priced just $3,000 more than a similarly equipped gasoline-only Pathfinder, while Toyota charges a $7,000 premium for the Highlander hybrid.

Regular Pathfinder prices for 2014 begin at $28,850 for the base S version with two-wheel drive, and run as high as $41,350 for the top Platinum model with four-wheel drive.

Pathfinder hybrids have the same interior space as the gasoline versions, including ample legroom, and cargo capacity. We packed six adults into our test vehicle — including two in the third row — and everyone acknowledged having decent leg and knee room.

New for 2014 is a technology package that adds a 13-speaker Bose premium audio system with navigation, voice recognition, XM NavTraffic and NavWeather capability, Zagat Survey restaurant guide, Bluetooth streaming audio and an 8-inch color touch screen.

Our tester was the Platinum four-wheel-drive hybrid with a Platinum Package that brought a rear entertainment system. It also had roof cargo cross bars, carpeted floor mats and illuminated kick plates.

The newest Pathfinder has a unibody-style design, rather than the traditional body-on-frame arrangement of the model it replaced. It's now a top competitor in its class, which includes such stalwarts as the Highlander and Honda Pilot, thanks to its best-in-class passenger space, fuel economy and standard towing capacity.

Other competitors include the big crossovers from Gen-

TYPE OF VEHICLE: Large, five-door, seven-passenger, four-cylinder gasoline-electric hybrid, front- or all-wheel-drive crossover utility vehicle.

RATING: 9.3 (of a possible 10).

HIGHLIGHTS: Completely redesigned for 2013, the Pathfinder adds a hybrid version for 2014. With last year's makeover, the vehicle evolved into a crossover, with three rows of seats. It has plenty of power — hybrid or gasoline only — and lots of standard and optional features.

NEGATIVES: Can get pricey when options packages are added.

ENGINE: 2.5-liter turbocharged inline four-cylinder with electric motor

TRANSMISSION: Continuously variable automatic

POWER/TORQUE: 250 horsepower/243 pound-feet (hybrid, total) eral Motors: the Chevrolet Traverse, Buick Enclave and GMC Acadia; and both the Ford Explorer and Ford Flex.

Riding on the same architecture as the new Infiniti QX60 (formerly JX) crossover, the Pathfinder has the same passenger capacity and a similar drivetrain as the Infiniti. The main differences between the two are the styling and the levels of standard equipment. The QX60 also got a hybrid version for 2014.

There are now five crossovers in the Nissan lineup: the subcompact Cube and Juke, compact Rogue, mid-size Murano and full-size Pathfinder. All but the Pathfinder and new Rogue have five-passenger capacity. Nissan also is continuing to sell the previous generation of the Rogue for 2014, renamed the Rogue Select, starting at just over $20,000.

REDESIGN

less than the segment average, ALG said.

Although Toyota sold more than 400,000 Camrys last year — about 16 percent of the midsize sedan market — consumers have requested improvements, said Bill Fay, general manager of Toyota's U.S. sales division.

"They wanted a more emotional styling and a better interior," Fay said.

Buyers also are looking for Toyota to continue to make improvements in ride, handling, technology and safety, he said. Often criticized for producing boring cars, Toyota challenged that notion with the Camry's new design.

The automaker's designers and engineers re-imagined nearly every exterior surface of the car, Fay said.

"Only the roof remains unchanged," he said.

With its new look, Toyota's designers worked to make the previously pedestrian Camry far more muscular.

The hood has four sculpted lines that trace back to the windshield and provide a sense that the car is in motion. Lines on each side of the Camry convey the same effect. The aggressive front bumper features a wider and more prominent trapezoidal grille shape, making the car look more securely planted on the road.

"You expect to have some sort of minor freshening at the three-year mark, where the Camry is now, but I was surprised to see such a substantial change. That has not been in the playbook for Toyota," said Jake Fisher, automotive director of Consumer Reports. "They are feeling the competition."

He likes the new styling and believes it will resonate with consumers.

To improve driving dynamics, Toyota bolstered the chassis and body structure with additional spot welds to improve rigidity and ride quality. It also retuned the suspension to give the Camry's handling a sportier feel. Toyota engineers improved the window and door seals to reduce wind and road noise. The Camry's interior is upgraded with more soft-touch materials.

Because Toyota has led this segment for so long, other automakers "know they have to beat Camry at its own game" if they want to make inroads, said Tom Libby, an IHS Automotive analyst. "That drives incredible product redesigns and is great for the consumer."

That's exactly what Hyundai is doing with the redesign of its Sonata sedan.

"It feels more substantial and more luxurious," said Brauer of Kelley Blue Book. "The look of the interior components is great. The car is really well done."

Acceleration is brisk, as the numbers indicate, but it also feels tight and true. Shifts are lightning-quick, especially when you turn the dial to the "dynamic" mode. There's also a racing mode for track-like sprints, and the more practical rain/snow mode.

Steering is nicely weighted and offers decent feedback, and the F-Type's cornering is reasonably flat and balanced — perhaps not by Porsche standards, but the Porsche is smaller and notoriously nimble. The Jag, even with its aluminum body, weighs nearly two tons.

This Jag feels tight, too, especially for a roadster, which can be prone to creaks and rattles. The soft top comes down in just 12 seconds and can be accomplished while on the move — up to 30 mph. That's handy for those who live in rainy-season regions, where a shower can come on quick and unexpected.

Inside, adjustable bolsters on the sport seats tuck you in as snugly for the twisty roads. Leather seats are soft and supple, too. Black seats are complemented by bold, red stitching.

Headroom is good; legroom is OK. At 6-foot-1, I was comfortable. Anyone taller might require a fitting before closing the deal. Ambient lighting, neatly concealed under the door and center console, adds a classy touch. And materials are clearly upscale and rich-feeling.

Unusual — and cool — features include the start button that pulsates red, seemingly showing the cat's impatience to hit the road, and the AC vents that rise from the dash when the engine starts.

A handle flanks the center console so the passenger can hang on with both hands while gasping through the countryside en route to the bed and breakfast.

Oh, better pack light for those weekenders: 6.9 cubic feet of trunk space doesn't go far. Small suitcases maybe, or duffle bags even better due to the odd, angular shape.

Protecting occupants are side air bags and rollover bars — although stability and traction control systems are in place to avoid the need for those rollover bars.

Options include parking sensors with rear cross-traffic warning, blind-spot monitor and adaptive headlights.

The F-Type comes in three trims, and the base is well equipped with bi-xenon headlights, leather and suede upholstery, full power accessories and a manually-deployable rear spoiler.

F-Type S adds a more powerful six-cylinder engine, 19-inch wheels instead of 18-inch, adaptive suspension and selectable driving modes that control throttle, steering and tranny responses.

The top-of-the-line F-Type S gets the V-8 engine, 20-inch wheels, high-performance brakes and 12-way adjustable seats.

Add to all that several premium option packages plus an available performance package that includes the active exhaust control button, top-line brakes and a 14-speaker Meridian audio system.

How well this sports car compares to the likes of Mercedes SL63 or the Porsche 911 is one for the testing teams at the major magazines and websites. But I can tell you can't have more fun than in the F-Sport.

grand for every 1 horsepower gain from its twin-turbocharged and intercooled 3.8-liter V-8. Like the 12C — and the Ferrari 458 it's gunning for — the engine is displayed in a peekaboo rear window to show it off like the high-performance art piece it is.

Unique to McLaren, the handling settings operate hydraulically interlinked dampers that increase or reduce pressure as needed to affect the stiffness of the suspension and negate the need for sway bars. A Z bar on the rear end acts like a spring, working with the air brake to keep the back end planted. The air brake automatically flies up from the car's hindquarters whenever the brake pedal is stomped at speeds above 62 mph and is such a cool feature, I was tempted to drive like an idiot just to watch it move.

McLaren Newport Beach let me take the 650S Spider for a morning drive last week. My favorite combination of settings was track for the power train, to maximize grunt on takeoff, and sport for handling, so I wouldn't negate the traction and stability controls when driving the 650S the way it wants — with giddy abandon, regardless of consequence.

Fortunately, the only consequences I experienced were stares, smiles, screams, even a salute from strangers who were responding to the spectacle of a middle-aged woman driving a flaming-orange super car with the top down on an especially moneyed stretch of Southern California real estate. I couldn't have felt more like a cougar if I had spots.

The 650S is constructed from the same carbon fiber MonoCell its sister company, McLaren Racing, has used in Formula One since 1981. Isolated by an aluminum crush structure, the molded carbon cockpit is lightweight yet rigid for high-speed flogging — and muscular enough that it negates the need for the usual chassis reinforcements required when jettisoning a fixed roof for a drop-top variant.

It takes 17 seconds for the electronically operated retractable hardtop to fully lift or lower into a tonneau cover that is color-matched to the body, which, on my test car, was a shade of orange so fiery it looked combustible. The roof can be operated at speeds up to 19 mph — a split second for the 650S Spider, which accelerates all the way to 60 in 2.9 seconds.

ENTREPRENEURS: Older workers find new opportunities / E3

Russell Stover outlet to be expanded with new offerings

AUSTIN FULLER | Staff Writer
austin.fuller@dailycommercial.com

Russell Stover is building a new, expanded store at its Wildwood location, which currently leads all 37 company-owned stores in revenue.

"This is the number one store in the chain, so it's a really important store for the company," said Angela Ellsworth, vice president of retail operations. "We want to give our customers in that area the best shopping experience that we can."

Russell Stover is aiming to open the new store in mid-June, Ellsworth said.

The new store will still have the outlet and discount-priced products, but will also sell products made in the store such as hand-made fudge, cupcakes and cookies, Ellsworth said. The new store will also sell chocolate-covered strawberries and custom-made candies.

"It's not something that you would just be able to buy in a Russell Stover box, you know, in another location," Ellsworth said. "We only make them fresh in the stores."

She added the new Russell

Stover store will also have an espresso bar and 44 flavors of Blue Bell ice cream. There will also be indoor and outdoor seating.

The new store will be approximately 12,700 square feet, Ellsworth said.

The previous Russell Stover store on the property was 10,500 square feet and was closed on April 19 prior to construction, Ellsworth said.

The space the store previously occupied will be used for expanded parking.

The new store will be attached to the existing distribution center.

Ellsworth said the store would be adding some new employees, probably fewer than 10 full- and part-time employees.

Russell Stover has in recent years developed a new look for its stores and have a slightly modified version of that look for Wildwood to fit in with the local architecture, Ellsworth said.

Samantha Merritt, the executive director of the Sumter County Chamber of Commerce, said she was not surprised that it would be the top-selling Russell Stover store based on the location near The Villages, Interstate 75 and the Florida Turnpike.

"It's really close to the center of population and where our

Some generic drugs have had eye-popping price spikes

JIM FUQUAY
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

Pharmacist Larry Cowan can flip through his records and spot the generic drugs that have taken big price jumps in the past year or so.

There's digoxin, a heart medicine that he used to buy for pennies a pill.

"Now the price is close to 10 times that," said Cowan, owner of Glenview Professional Pharmacy in Richland Hills, Texas.

There's doxycycline, a decades-old antibiotic that went on the Food and Drug Administration's shortage list in 2012 and became the poster child for generic price spikes. Cowan said a tablet of doxycycline went from about 6 cents in late 2012 to $3.65 in late 2013, a 6,100 percent increase.

Another drug, captopril, a high blood pressure medication, went from 2 cents to 79 cents each in the same period, he said.

While the FDA in the past month removed doxycycline from its shortage list, it still costs U.S. pharmacies an average of $3 a tablet, according to a weekly survey conducted for the federal Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services. The same survey puts the average cost of digoxin at $1.08 for a 0.125 mg pill, a

Housing goes from hopeful to underwhelming as 2014 moves along

KEVIN G. HALL
McClatchy Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — A spate of new economic reports shows that a speedier recovery of the housing market does not appear in the cards this year. Housing experts are dialing back rosier projections in favor of another ho-hum year, where home sales are flat and prices climb to make ownership less affordable.

The National Association of Realtors hinted Tuesday that it'll lower, perhaps as soon as Monday, its forecast for sales of existing homes. The group reported that sales dipped 0.2 percent in March to an annualized rate of 4.59 million, with sales of single-family homes dipping 7.3 percent compared with the pace of March 2013.

Wednesday brought similarly weak data on new home sales. Sales of newly built, single-family homes dropped 14.5 percent in March to an adjusted annual rate of 384,000 units, according to data from Department of Housing and Urban Development and the U.S. Census Bureau. That's a double whammy, since new homes tend to be purchased by homeowners who are trading up.

A week earlier, the two agencies reported that nationwide housing production rose 2.8 percent above February numbers, a positive data point but one hardly indicative of a sizzling housing market.

It all adds up to the likelihood of yet another subpar year for the housing sector.

"The (sales) forecast will be common dosage.

"For many years, generics went down and down," said Joe Harmison, owner of DFW Prescriptions in Grand Prairie, Texas.

"Within the last six to 12 months, they've been going up, some really drastically," said Harmison, who said he has operated his pharmacy for 30 years.

Factors behind the unusual price spikes, experts say, include a wave of industry mergers and decisions by some manufacturers to stop making certain drugs.

Not every generic drug that Americans take has gotten more expensive. Most have not.

On average, the price of generics — medicines that are not protected by a patent and can be produced by FDA-licensed manufacturers — declined 15.9 percent last year, according to Express Scripts, a big prescription-management firm. Prices on brand-name drugs rose 13.9 percent. Both are years-long trends.

In all, U.S. spending on medicines rose 3.2 percent in 2013, Express Scripts said.

Another analysis of the CMS data, by Pembroke Consulting, found that from November 2012 to November 2013, two-thirds of the 16,000 different generic drugs and dosages saw a price decline while a third rose in price. Six percent more than doubled, and a dozen increased by 20 times or more.

All 12 of the biggest gainers were various forms or dosages of just four drugs, led by doxycycline. The others were: albuterol, used in asthma inhalers; clomipramine, a 1960s-era antidepressant; and captopril.

"Drug shortages appear to be the primary culprit," Pembroke

MAX FAULKNER / MCT

Prices have spiked for some generic medications because of industry mergers resulting in fewer manufacturers.

President Adam Fein wrote at the time.

David Whitrap, director of corporate communications at Express Scripts, said the price increases "for a handful of generic medications" were due largely to "natural market factors, including shortages of active ingredients and a reduction in the number of manufacturers."

"The market tends to correct itself when instances like this occur," Whitrap said.

Like Fein, most analysts don't think the Affordable Care Act has played much of a role in the higher costs of some generic drugs.

"There tends to be a strong relationship between shortages and pricing. I haven't heard that ACA has exacerbated shortages," said Jenna Stento, a senior manager at Avalere Health, a consultancy.

Marv Shepherd, professor of pharmacy at the University of Texas-Austin, agreed.

"The Obama program has increased demand somewhat, but I don't think that's the main reason," Shepherd said. What's more important, he said, is the number of competitors making a drug.

Those numbers have fallen for two main reasons, Shepherd said. One is because manufacturers have abandoned some markets when they're not profitable enough. The other is because two former competitors merged.

"At one point 12 companies made doxycycline" for sale in the United States, Shepherd said. "The managed-care companies are only going to buy the cheapest one, since there's no difference in the active drug. So some firms end up getting out of the business, and when they do, the number of suppliers decreases."

In 2012, Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, by most counts the world's biggest generic drug-maker, told the FDA it intended to stop selling doxycycline in the U.S., a notice required by the agency. It dropped the drug, in use since the 1960s, in 2013.

Even if a sudden price jump makes the drug more attractive to manufacturers, it's not as easy as simply firing up a production line "and popping out more M&Ms," Shepherd said. Makers "have to get FDA approval to market a drug," and that can take six months or more, he said.

HOUSING

coming down and that is largely due to affordability challenges," Danielle Hale, director of housing statistics for the Realtors group, said in an interview. "Incomes have not kept pace with the pace of house price increases, which has made homes less affordable this year than they were last year."

The weak sales of new and existing homes come even as hiring appears to have moved onto more solid ground in the past six months.

"I'm puzzled by the fact that existing home sales have been so weak," conceded Patrick Newport, an economist specializing in housing for forecaster IHS Global Insight.

There are contributing factors to the sluggish housing market, he said, including nearly a full percentage-point rise on 30-year fixed mortgage rates and an unusually harsh winter. The average rate on a 30-year fixed mortgage is still below 4.5 percent, according to multiple surveys. That's lower than mortgage rates in the long stretch between 1990 and 2008, when home sales and prices flourished nationally.

The problem is that five years since the end of the Great Recession, few Americans can qualify for the historically low mortgage rate. After the near-collapse of the housing market in 2007-2008, lending standards tightened and first-time homebuyers with little credit history still struggle to get a loan. That's led to home sales falling across the lower price points.

Homes priced under $100,000 are going backward, sales of those priced between $300,000 and $600,000 are flat, and only those worth more than $1 million are up, by about 8 percent. And first-time homebuyers accounted for about 30 percent of sales in March, vs. 40 percent in more normal times.

"What we've seen in the data is that the lower end of the market (for mortgage applications) seems to be contracting while the higher end seems to be growing," said Joel Kan, director of economic forecasting for the Mortgage Bankers Association. "Everything below $417,000 is declining; everything above that has been increasing. One of the reasons (why) is we're seeing less first-time homebuyers in the market."

Credit products extended to homebuyers are now about one-eighth of what they were during the bustling 2006-2007 period, Kan added.

"Whether it is tight credit or not, people are definitely putting off home purchases," he said.

Another wrinkle is that distressed sales are down. The Realtors' data show that 10 percent of sales in March were foreclosures and 4 percent were short sales, where the bank agrees to take a hit on homes valued below the mortgage they carry. These distress sales in recent years helped clear away inventory but held back home price appreciation. Their reduced presence means fewer sales but also points to a market returning to normal.

in an attempt to reduce their federal income tax liabilities and protect themselves from future healthcare costs. According to the Government Accountability Office, over a half million Floridians participated in this type of plan in 2012.

Approved by Congress in 2003, HSA plans have recently become popular with taxpayers who have higher incomes that prevent them from being able to fund a deductible IRA account and enjoy a much-needed tax break. There are no income limitations for those who wish to fund an HSA.

You deduct your HSA contributions each year on Line 25 of tax Form 1040. The HSA contributions constitute a desirable "above the line" deduction that will lower your adjusted gross income dollar for dollar. The HSA account grows tax-deferred, and many HSA companies feature investment options. Meanwhile, the participant is growing a "Medical IRA," or money dedicated toward future health expenses.

HSA account owners must be participants in a group plan or own an individual or family health insurance plan that is considered a high deductible plan. With individual (non-group) plans, the account owner establishes the account and contributes money to the HSA. Then, when qualified healthcare costs arise, the account owner pays the costs directly from the HSA account. No taxes are due on the distribution, and there is no penalty for early withdrawal of the funds as long as the expenses are qualified medical expenses.

There are guidelines as to what constitutes a "medical" expense. While you cannot use HSA funds to pay your health insurance premiums, you can use them to pay qualified long-term care insurance premiums. If withdrawals are made for qualified medical expenses, there are no penalties or taxes to pay. However, nonmedical withdrawals are subject to both income tax and a 20 percent penalty.

When HSA account holders reach age 65, the HSA account acts similar to an IRA account. If you use the funds for qualified medical expenses, there are no taxes to pay. In fact, you can even pay your Medicare insurance premiums with HSA funds. Withdrawals for nonmedical expenses are subject to regular income tax, which is no different than a traditional IRA.

Like an IRA, you can contribute to the previous year's HSA anytime up until April 15 of the next calendar year. In a group plan, both the participant's and the employer's contributions count toward the allowable maximum. The maximum contribution for individual coverage in 2014 is $3,300 and $6,550 for family coverage. There is a $1,000 catch-up contribution allowed for individuals over age 55.

center of population growth is," she said.

Wildwood Mayor Ed Wolf said the expanded outlet could help other area businesses.

"They may decide they want to stop for a sandwich somewhere, check one of the antique malls or go into one of the little specialty stores we got now. Anything that draws these people to town is good for our business," he said.

The store will be open from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Sunday, according to Ellsworth.

Older workers find new opportunities in entrepreneurship

KIM LYONS
Pittsburgh Post-Gazette

After more than 20 years in the insurance industry, John Tubridy took a buyout package and went to work for a career transition firm, where he was tasked with helping companies downsize.

"I was like George Clooney in that movie 'Up in the Air,'" Tubridy said. "I was helping people plan their navigation out of the corporate world."

And he said most of the people he talked to were all too glad to be making the change: Sick of the corporate environment, they looked forward to being in more control of their own destinies.

Tubridy decided that appealed to him, as well.

So ten years ago, at age 50, he became a franchise specialist for FranNet, a consulting firm that matches entrepreneurs with franchise options.

"What I'm doing has always been my dream: to run my own business," he said. "I realized I loved the planning aspect of it, and now I'm able to help others plan their businesses, too." He used to have an office on Pittsburgh's North Side, but found that being mobile worked better for him.

While the word "entrepreneur" usually evokes an image of a fresh-out-of-college idealist with an idea for the next big thing, entrepreneurs who have a little more mileage on their odometers have taken the wheel and are becoming a driving force.

A recent report from the Kauffman Foundation shows an uptick in the past decade in older entrepreneurs. In 2003, people between the ages of 55 and 64 accounted for 18 percent of new entrepreneurs. By 2013, that number rose to 23 percent. The number of new entrepreneurs between 45 and 54 also increased over that time period from 25 percent in 2003 to 30 percent last year.

TONY TYE / MCT

Sandy Burkett, owner of Vital Signs, poses with one of her printed signs in East Carnegie, Pa.

"I think a lot of older entrepreneurs have done that corporate journey and are ready for a change," Tubridy said. "But this isn't something you can just kick the tires and try it out. You have to have a burning desire to do it."

Carl Knoblock, district director of the Small Business Administration of Western Pennsylvania, said the organization realized with baby boomers retiring — many of them earlier than planned — there was a segment of potential entrepreneurs with a lot of advantages in their favor: experience, some money set aside, and a sense of confidence. And most of them have a clear idea either of what they want to do, or what they really don't want to do.

"Either it's something they've always had as a hobby, or based on an experience they had in the business world that they think they can do better," Knoblock said. "A lot of them come from bigger companies and see how things move, and the feel like they can expedite things if they go out on their own."

Some of the stumbling blocks for older entrepreneurs are on the digital side, Knoblock said. A website is crucial, but it's not enough to have a cookie-cutter website design, because one size does not fit all, he said.

"And they have to be thinking about social media as soon as they open their business," he said. "There may be a fear factor there, but they have to get up to speed."

A lower risk tolerance is another challenge, he said. "An older person might be more settled into a routine, but you have to be able to change yourself, like a chameleon," Knoblock said. "That's one thing younger entrepreneurs do have: passion, and maybe a little bit of naivete. They always think, 'This is going to happen.'"

An older worker with a track record of experience is likely to be considered a better risk for financing than a younger counterpart might be, Knoblock said.

And Tubridy said, fairly or unfairly, an older worker might be perceived as more reliable. "When you've left a corporate position, you're usually more credible in people's eyes. You've been around," he said. "That means something, especially to customers."

A lot of the second-career entrepreneurs who come to him are also thinking about legacy building, Tubridy said: They want to have something to leave to their children.

"They see it's a tough job market out there and think, 'Wouldn't it be nice to have something I've created that I can hand off to my kids someday?'" Tubridy said. "That's not usually something on the 20-somethings' minds."

Sandy Burkett is one of those entrepreneurs who had a good idea what she didn't want to do (no food service companies), but she and her husband Steve were sure they wanted to try running their own business. The family had relocated seven or eight times for Steve Burkett's job. Then in 2003, he took a buyout package and they started looking for their own opportunity.

They opted not to go the franchise route, and instead pursued a business opportunity that allowed them to buy the company and run it independently. They opened their custom sign shop, Carnegie, Pa.-based Vital Signs in 2005, and have not looked back since.

"I utilized every bit of training I could find because I realized it takes a village," said Sandy Burkett, 54. "When you're investing a substantial portion of your retirement, you have to be really ready."

Running the business has been what she hoped for, she said, giving her and her husband a feeling of authority they didn't have before.

"This is the difference between waiting for the other shoe to drop in the corporate world, and having control over whether you fail or succeed," she said.

Venture capitalists' road trip seeks student entrepreneurs

FRANK WITSIL
Detroit Free Press

A University of Michigan junior, Eric Hackenberger has a few ideas for businesses and applications he'd like to create. For about 15 minutes he — and more than two dozen other students during their individual appointments — sat down with a venture capitalist to talk about them.

A few students even showed off products they hope will become the next WhatsApp.

To seek out projects and entrepreneurs to invest in and talent to hire, principals at Drive Capital took a three-day road trip in a 42-foot RV to three schools: Ohio State University, Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh and the University of Michigan.

The tour is over, but the $250 million fund based in Columbus, Ohio, aims to keep an eye on the students and projects.

A casual, low-key event last week at the University of Michigan illustrates how technology and entrepreneurial efforts are transforming the way college students are thinking about work after graduation. It also gives some insights into efforts to develop a stronger tech industry in the state, and how the university has tried to become more entrepreneurial and be a catalyst for economic development.

From left, Mark Kvamme and Nick Solaro of Drive Capital, a venture capital firm, speak with Chris Roebuck, CEO of Clicktivated, as they visit University of Michigan students at the Creators Co-op in Ann Arbor, Mich., on April 16.

"We believe the Midwest is the best place to build a company today," Robert Hatta, the talent partner with Drive Capital, said. "We want to discover the dorm-room startups. A lot of high-tech companies were started in dorm rooms."

In addition, he said, the new fund also is looking for candidates to hire as interns and employees in tech companies that it has invested in so far: FarmLogs, Roadtrippers, CrossChx and Channel IQ.

They held one-on-one meetings, gave out swag — Drive Capital T-shirts and pajama bottoms — and packages of instant ramen noodles.

"We don't just write checks; we're trying

"One piece of advice. If you want to build something, build something that solves a problem."

Mark Kvamme,
Venture capitalist

to build billion-dollar businesses," Hatta said.

In a speech last month to the Detroit Economic Club, UM's outgoing president, Mary Sue Coleman, made the case for the role of universities in unlocking the state's potential for innovation and preparing students for jobs in a volatile economy.

Moreover, efforts to start and grow technology companies in Michigan — and specifically Detroit — have taken root in the past few years and are generating more attention, said Joe Parent, the vice president of business development of Grand Circus Detroit, a startup group that is designed to boost innovation and create tech firms.

"Some of the challenge we have in the Midwest is we've been thought of as a flyover," he said. "We've been to hell and back in the last four to five years, and there's a lot of pent-up enthusiasm. In the past, people would go to MIT and Stanford, and they wouldn't stop here. But, I don't think that's the case anymore."

Grand Circus, Parent added, is even teaching Detroit high school students how to write computer code.

At UM last week, three students — Otto Sipe, Josh Billingham and Nick Gerard — pitched their mobile app, Jam, to the venture capitalists. The demo of their social DJ program, which lets users select the tunes at parties by voting on their personal preferences, was met with enthusiasm by one of the investors.

"We built this for fun," Sipe said. "We want to change the way people listen to their music."

Some students, many of whom were alerted to the event by friends through social media, were looking to get some career counseling.

Hackenberger, the 22-year-old business and computer science major, sat down with Mark Kvamme, one of the venture capitalists who, before joining Drive Capital, was a partner at Menlo Park, Calif.-based Sequoia Capital. That firm is known for funding tech companies including Apple, Google, Yahoo, PayPal and Zappos.

The junior offered his ideas for some apps he'd like to build, and asked what he should do to get experience.

Kvamme gave feedback. He talked a bit about WhatsApp, a mobile instant messaging app that Facebook bought this year for $19 billion. He suggested Hackenberger apply for summer internships — and handed out a pearl of entrepreneurial wisdom.

"One piece of advice," Kvamme added. "If you want to build something, build something that solves a problem."

Neutral Net may be a lost cause under FCC rules, critics say

JIM PUZZANGHERA and MEG JAMES
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON

Consumers could end up the losers in a high-stakes battle among regulators, broadband providers and online entertainment giants over access to the Internet's fastest speeds.

A new proposal from the head of the Federal Communications Commission would allow network owners such as AT&T Inc. to levy extra charges on Netflix Inc. and other online video purveyors for speedier delivery of content.

Those costs, consumer advocates said, ultimately would land on consumers' monthly bills. The hotly debated changes also could push smaller video content providers out of business, driving up costs for those services as well, the advocates warned.

"It could create a tiered Internet where consumers either pay more for content and speed, or get left behind with fewer choices," warned Delara Dera-khshani, policy counsel for Consumers Union.

The proposal for a new set of Internet neutrality rules threatens to undermine the FCC's long-held principle of ensuring equal access to all content.

It would be a major victory for the network providers, which spend billions of dollars a year maintaining and upgrading their networks. They long have argued that companies consuming the most bandwidth — usually with video streams — should pay extra for that privilege.

The content providers have countered that equal access is necessary to maintain a level playing field in an exploding marketplace for streaming video.

"The proposed approach is the fastest lane to punish consumers and Internet innovators," video streaming company Netflix said Thursday.

The plan would be particularly bad for smaller businesses and their customers, said Patrick Clinger, founder and chief executive of ProBoards Inc., an online forum service based in Lake Forest, Calif.

"What they are doing is essentially creating a system of haves and have-nots for the Internet," Clinger said.

"If smaller companies can't afford the faster lane, they won't be able to compete with larger companies," he said. "Customers of smaller companies would have a lower quality experience, and that could cost companies more business."

FCC Chairman Tom Wheeler sharply defended his plan Thursday, signaling the start of an intense debate likely to roil the industry in the coming months.

"To be very direct, the proposal would establish that behavior harmful to consumers or competition by limiting the openness of the Internet will not be permitted," Wheeler wrote in a blog post Thursday.

His plan would include such safeguards as prohibiting network owners from blocking legal content and requiring them to provide a baseline level of service to subscribers.

Man has spot in his heart and attic for encyclopedias

DEAR ABBY: My husband tends to be a major clutter bug. We had an argument last night about him storing a set of encyclopedias. My argument is that we have never used them and never will, since they are "dinosaurs" in today's modern world. Any information can be looked up digitally. He was given these encyclopedias by his grandparents, so he feels they have a "deeper meaning." Although he has never once used them, he says they make the bookshelf look nicer. We recently got rid of the bookshelf and now he wants to store them in our already cluttered attic. His plan is to pass them on to our child or grandchildren. I don't think they would want to inherit them, as they take up so much space and there are more efficient ways to find information. Please help. — FRUSTRATED WIFE IN CONNECTICUT

DEAR WIFE: The encyclopedias DO have a deeper meaning for your husband that almost surely has less to do with "looking nice on a bookshelf" than their sentimental value. They symbolize the love his grandparents had for him, as well as the idea that he can pass an heirloom down to the next generations. Please relent about boxing them up and making room for them in the attic. At some point, your husband will probably arrive at the same conclusion that you have — after they have been refused by the progeny for whom he has been saving them. And try to hang on to your sense of humor, because this isn't worth arguing over.
DEAR ABBY: What should someone do when gifts received

JEANNE PHILLIPS
DEAR ABBY

via mail or UPS have been damaged in transit? We have received some ceramic objects for Christmas in the last two years. Both were packed and sent by the givers. My wife would rather remain silent about the damage to avoid the appearance that a replacement is expected. I contend that the damage should be mentioned and that no replacement is necessary when writing the thank-you note, or even that certain gifts should be avoided in the future. Otherwise, the sender has no way of knowing that a better packaging job is necessary. Also, there may be some (insurance) recourse with the carrier. — "BUSTED" IN PENN-

SYLVANIA
DEAR "BUSTED": I agree with you to a point. The giver should be thanked, and the fact that the gift arrived damaged should be mentioned. It's smart to insure packages before sending, so if the contents are damaged, there will be compensation. But even if they weren't insured, the sender should be informed that the gift arrived broken, so the next time precautions can be taken before the item is shipped. However, I do not agree with stating that in the future such gifts should be avoided because it would imply the gift was unwelcome or inappropriate.

HOROSCOPES

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, May 4, 2014:
 This year you often find someone challenging an idea or way of life. The discussions will be animated, but not necessarily as personal as you might believe them to be. As a result, you will open up. If you are single, you will have your share of adoring admirers. However, as a relationship evolves and you become more serious, you could find the person in question is too distant. If you are attached, the two of you have been on a seesaw of who is in control and who gets the final say. Toss the control games aside, and enjoy the positives that you share as a couple. CANCER could become highly reactive.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Others might be taken aback as you continue your jog down the path of surprises. You always have acted quickly, but not unpredictably. You keep life exciting. A family member will express his or her caring. Invite others over for a late brunch.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Listen to news more carefully. You might note others' reactions. A sudden insight could be clouding your vision at the moment. Go off to a ballgame or a movie. You will notice that you can gain yet another perspective.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Make a new purchase, but be sure to do some price comparison first. A friend could surprise you by joining you on an adventure. Take the time to enjoy this person. Stop for a meal together and catch up on news.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) You know that you have a situation more under control than you originally thought you did. Relish the unexpected comment from someone you look up to. This person certainly adds a lot of excitement to your life, even if you do complain!
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll want to keep a low profile. You could opt for a lazy day at home and decide not to answer the phone. Watch movies, read the paper and return a call if you want. You won't be able to imagine how much better you'll feel by tomorrow.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept.

JACQUELINE BIGAR
BIGAR'S STARS

22) A close loved one might express his or her surprise at a turn of events. Make a point to follow the crowds and hook up with mutual friends. Whether you are watching or participating in a sport or activity, you'll express a sense of enthusiasm.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Don't assume that you won't run into anyone, even if you are just going into the office to clear out some excess paperwork. The unexpected could occur when someone suddenly decides to veer in a new direction. Be careful with your spending.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You naturally might want to resist someone's efforts to take control. Still, it might be easier to turn away and just let this person run the show. Go off for a visit to a friend in a nearby city, or accept an invitation to an off-beat event.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-

Dec. 21) A loved one could be pushing his or her agenda hard. You easily might decide to venture in a new direction, as you could dislike the possibilities of continuing as you have been. Check in with a loved one before firming up a decision.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Realize that you are not particularly vested in plans, and defer to others. Friends will be delighted to see you, and they might extend new invitations. Resist being controlling with a difficult associate, as it is not the worth the frustration.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You'll want to slow down, but you have a lot to do. Call a family member to see how he or she is doing. You might want to squeeze a late lunch into your plans. You have more energy than you realize.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) When your imagination gets going, it will be difficult to stay grounded. You might decide to indulge a loved one. Someone might be more vested in getting together with you than you realize.

marked West with length in spades and hearts.
Declarer won the club with the queen and, utilizing his knowledge of West's hand to the fullest, cashed the ace of hearts, disdaining a finesse. When East showed out as expected, South led another heart toward the J-8.
West put up the king since declarer would finesse the eight if the heart was ducked. Furthermore, West wanted to lock declarer in dummy and force him to lead a diamond or a club.
Accordingly, after taking the heart king, West played the ace and another spade to dummy's king. Declarer cashed the jack of hearts and then made the key play, leading the diamond king from dummy. This rendered the defense helpless. (If declarer had led a low diamond instead, East could have won the trick and given West a club ruff to defeat the contract.)
West took the king of diamonds with the ace, but when he tried to cash the queen, declarer ruffed and drew West's ten of trumps with the queen. South then claimed, discarding his fourth spade on one of dummy's good clubs.
It's true that South might have made four hearts without the double by West, but the double left declarer with no doubt about how to proceed.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Sunday, May 4, the 124th day of 2014. There are 241 days left in the year.
Today's Highlight in History:
 On May 4, 1979, Conservative Party leader Margaret Thatcher became Britain's first female prime minister after the Tories ousted the incumbent Labor government in parliamentary elections.
On this date:
In 1776, Rhode Island declared its freedom from England, two months before the Declaration of Independence was adopted.
In 1864, Swarthmore College in suburban Philadelphia was chartered.
In 1886, at Haymarket Square in Chicago, a labor demonstration for an 8-hour work day turned into a deadly riot when a bomb exploded.
In 1904, the United States took over construction of the Panama Canal.
In 1932, mobster Al Capone, convicted of income-tax evasion, entered the federal penitentiary in Atlanta. (Capone was later transferred to Alcatraz Island.)
In 1942, the Battle of the Coral Sea, the first naval clash fought entirely with carrier aircraft, began in the Pacific during World War II. (The outcome was considered a tactical victory for Imperial Japan, but ultimately a strategic one for the Allies.)
In 1959, the first Grammy Awards ceremony was held at the Beverly Hilton Hotel. Domenico Modugno won Record of the Year and Song of the Year for "Nel Blu Dipinto Di Blu (Volare)"; Henry Mancini won Album of the Year for "The Music from Peter Gunn."
In 1964, the daytime drama "Another World" began a 35-year run on NBC-TV.
In 1970, Ohio National Guardsmen opened fire during an anti-war protest at Kent State University, killing four students and wounding nine others.
In 1974, Expo '74, a six-month-long world's fair, opened in Spokane, Wash.
In 1989, fired White House aide Oliver North was convicted of shredding documents and two other crimes and acquitted of nine other charges stemming from the Iran-Contra affair. (However, the three convictions were later overturned on appeal.)

FEATURE STORY

Newberry is once again 'In the Flesh' on BBC America

Luke Newberry stars in "In the Flesh," which returns Saturday on BBC America.

BBC America offered Newberry a zombie tale with three-episode "In the Flesh," and on Saturday it returns with six episodes that take place nine months after the last season's finale. Newberry stars as introverted Kieren Walker, who is depressed over the death of his wife — only to be resurrected on the day of "The Rising," the episode in which he was brain-eating zombie. Between the two seasons, Kieren had, with roving cameras, been shown going out the zombie. Newberry discovered that his character's deterioration is due to his own deterioration from needing to survive.

"There's no sell-by date," says Newberry. "There's no time limit. If I get shot in the back of the head, then that's it, but until someone does that, I've got X amount of time. I've got as long as I want, and how do you plan your life if you don't have a sell-by date?"

"He has his routine. He gets up, puts his lenses in, puts on his makeup, does his hair, and has to try to live. He didn't want to live. He ended his life."

Unfortunately, Kieren had already killed a girl in his hometown before he was resurrected, so his past constantly haunts him as he tries to figure out the rest of his life as one of the walking semidead.

"There's no sell-by date," says Newberry. "There's no time limit. If I get shot in the back of the head, then that's it, but until someone does that, I've got X amount of time. I've got as long as I want, and how do you plan your life if you don't have a sell-by date?"

"He has his routine. He gets up, puts his lenses in, puts on his makeup, does his hair, and has to try to live. He didn't want to live. He ended his life."

Thank you for giving me my SMILE BACK!

Having my teeth extracted 12 years ago was very devastating to me. They removed a lot of bone on my lower jaw and I was never able to use my lower denture. Time and time again I went to different dentists and was told nothing could be done for me because of my bone loss. I felt very hopeless. For all those years, there were so many things I could not eat, due to not being able to use my lower denture. It was embarrassing to go out with friends for dinner. I was very limited to what I could eat and I always had to keep my head down while I ate, so hopefully no one would notice I didn't have any bottom teeth. It was also very hard to laugh or smile, for fear that everyone would notice I didn't have bottom teeth. I kept this secret for 12 years. Dr. Vaziri and his entire staff are so caring, wonderful and friendly. Everything was thoroughly explained to me about the implant procedure. I loved that it was a painless procedure.

Smiling Forever,
Suzanne M.

8 p.m. on (NICK)

Movie: Charlotte's Web

E.B. White's timeless children's story of friendship, life and death shows the joy in the simple things, including "some pig" named Wilbur (voice of Dominic Scott Kay). Wilbur and his spider friend, Charlotte (voice of Julia Roberts), concoct a plan to save his hide in a season where pigs are usually on the menu. Dakota Fanning provides

I Didn't Do It

In this new episode, Lindy and Logan (Olivia Holt, Austin North) go to work at the Chicago Museum of Art, which causes their sibling rivalry to intensify. Delia (Sarah Gilman) believes she's descended from Nefertiti and enlists Garrett and Jasmine (Peyton Clark, Piper Curda) to help her collect some DNA from the mummy exhibit to prove it. Beth Grant ("The Mindy Project") guest stars in "Now Museum, Now You Don't."

MONDAY

8 p.m. on (TCM)

Movie: The Music Man

River City, Iowa, is in trouble — or so says "professor" Harold Hill (Robert Preston) — in this delightful 1960 screen version of the Meredith Willson stage musical. The con man tries to sell parents instruments for their children to form a marching band, but his tune changes when he meets librarian Marian (Shirley Jones). Buddy Hackett and Ronny Howard co-star. Songs include "76 Trombones" and "Till There Was You."

TUESDAY

8 a.m. on (SHOW)

Movie: Dick Tracy

Warren Beatty was the perfect choice as do-gooder and comic-strip legend Dick Tracy in this visually arresting 1990 film. The intrepid detective finds his life complicated by his one true love, Tess (Glenne Headly), a sexy lounge singer (Madonna) and an orphan known only as The Kid (Charlie Korsmo). Through all this, he has to stop Big Boy Caprice (Al Pacino) from taking over the city's underworld. Dustin Hoffman and Paul Sorvino.

2:15 p.m. on (HBO)

Movie: Diary of a Wimpy Kid: Dog Days

Summer can be very long for a youngster with no real plans ... and a father who wants him to have some. Such is the plight of young hero Greg, again played by Zachary Gordon, in the third of the family-friendly comedies based on the books by Jeff Kinney. Dad (fellow returnee Steve Zahn) is intent on getting his video game-loving son out of the house and active. Greg's admiration of a young country club employee (Peyton List) may give him a good alibi.

WEDNESDAY

5:45 p.m. on (TCM)

Movie: The Pride of the Yankees

Gary Cooper gives one of his most memorable performances in this 1942 biodrama as Lou Gehrig, the baseball star whose career was tragically cut short by a debilitating terminal illness. He earned an Oscar nomination — one of 11 that the film received ... it won only one ... resa Wright and ... also star, and Ba ... makes an appear

SATURDAY

11 a.m.

Movie: Spirit

The horse that galloped through the racing world in the 1980s reverent Disney-style drama, well-drawn by Dall Wallace, the "Braveheart." Directed by fine performance by the actor, who became an owner and defied her potential — to triumph. Jojo Whildan plays the trainer to advance her career and James Cromwell 10 p.m.

Movie: Anne of Green Gables

The actress portrayed the orphan Anne Shirley, who adopted her name to match her name to match Shirley stars as the movie based on L.M. Montgomery's novel. Anne was adopted by an orphan her brother (Helmut Berger), who was adopted by a boy to help with the family. After many trials, Anne becomes a friend to the orphans of Green Gables. Anne's unlikely family. To the credit of Gilbert Blythe.

CELEBRITY PIPELINE

Post-'NCIS,' where has Cote de Pablo b

By Jay Bobbin

Q: What is Cote de Pablo doing these days, and is there a chance she will ever return to "NCIS"? — Sheri Tilton, Lancaster, Ohio

A: Reprising our standard response re: "ever," that is a very, very long time that no one has all the answers about ... and as long as the person in question is still around, there's always a chance of anything.

With that said, since leaving the CBS series at the start of the current season, the actress has filmed a role in a movie drama titled "The 33." The true story of Chilean mineworkers who were trapped in a 2010 crisis, the film also stars Antonio Banderas, Gabriel Byrne, Juliette Binoche, Rodrigo Santoro and Lou Diamond Phillips. No release date had been set as of this writing.

Q: I enjoyed the recent PBS documentary about the Dave Clark Five, and I was interested by the mention of the pop music series "Ready Steady Go!" Has that ever been shown in America? — Doug Marsh, Baltimore

A: Yes, but only for a brief time. Clark bought the rights to the tapes that existed of the classic British show that featured many of the top performers of the mid-1960s — including, as might be expected, the Dave Clark Five — and for a time, Disney Channel was one of the takers. That actually was the only run that the show has had in the United States to date.

Q: It's been a year since "Star Trek Into Darkness" was in theaters. Is it coming to any of the pay channels soon? — Steve Kane, Racine, Wis.

A: It already has a couple of months on EPIX ... which isn't listed as HBO or ... become the main ... from the Paramo ... onsgate studios, ... the channel.

Checking in with Ava Deluca-Verley

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

As Katie on NBC's "Growing Up Fisher," Ava Deluca-Verley plays the daughter of an accomplished blind lawyer and a woman who needs to find herself.

"Katie's main goal is just to keep her life as normal as possible, even though the house is coming apart, and Dad is moving out, and Mother is going on a new journey by becoming a young woman and is very much going through the same self-discoveries as Katie is," Deluca-Verley says.

That makes for a sweet family dynamic, though perhaps not as compelling as Deluca-Verley's family. Her dad is a jazz percussionist and architect; her mom is a chef with a chocolate shop. Deluca-Verley grew up speaking French because her dad is French.

"My parents bought me a ticket one summer for Paris," she says. "I worked at Ralph Lauren. I went to Paris with $200 in my pocket. It was a most memorable experience."

She spent other summers in her mom's cafe, working with her brothers and learning to make croissants and cakes with her mom.

"I learned how to be a barista and make a really great cappuccino," Deluca-Verley says.

"I worked restaurants all through high school and college," she says. "My parents are very adamant about making my own money, and I helped out paying for school. When I graduated, my parents said to me, 'We fully support you. If you need anything, let us know, but you are on your own now.'"

She moved to Los Angeles and scored a couple of small roles but was doing the struggling actress routine of working in West Hollywood's restaurant and auditing a reservation call that changed her show creator, was her she had the job.

Training: Carnegie Mellon University, BFA in theater

Credits: "The Blind," "Southland"

Original career: ballerina for a year, Deluca-Verley says. "I didn't stop until that was my first stage, and I stopped for reasons where my being onstage and all of the discipline of musical theater, dance, and I loved singer as well."

COVER STORY

Blitzes Blighty in '24: Live Another Day'

Counter Terrorist Unit operative Jack Bauer, tries to pull off another one-day miracle when, after four years off American television, he returns in the 12-episode event series "24: Live Another Day," premiering Monday, May 5, on Fox.

Shot in London, the story finds Bauer attempting to prevent the assassination of U.S. President James Heller (William Devane), who previously appeared in the show as the secretary of defense. At Heller's side is his daughter, Audrey (Kim Raver), Bauer's former love, who suffered torture for him, and her husband (Tate Donovan), Heller's chief of staff.

Hunting Bauer are London-based CIA agents played by Benjamin Bratt, Yvonne Strahovski and Gbenga Akinnagbe. Stephen Fry appears as the British prime minister.

"Jack's been in hiding for four years in Eastern Europe," says Sutherland, who was born in London and lived there until he was 3. "He's living the hard life.

"Historically, we've always come into the season with Jack having some kind of hope, and it's dashed, and he escalates in that direction. In this, we're going to go from up here" — Sutherland raises his hand high above the glass-topped table in front of him — "where he's the angriest and meanest he's ever been."

Says executive producer Howard Gordon, "We're continuing the story of the way we prosecuted the war, both good and bad. ... This is about blowback, in a sense. But the most important thing it's about is bringing Jack back in a way that's consistent with where he's been and taking him hopefully to the next place in his long and difficult life."

President Heller is in the British capital to negotiate a treaty dealing with military drones, but there's a plot afoot to take him
