Middle school wood shop flourishing after it was nearly eliminated

BY JOAN D. WARREN
Special to The Times

The smell of saw-dust fills the hallway leading to the wood shop at Barrington Middle School.

Inside the shop, some students use drafting tools and math concepts to design their soon-to-be wood creations; others use coping saws to carefully turn wooden blocks into sleek cars they will race using CO2 cartridges; more students discuss project options with their teacher Cheryl DelSanto.

The entire class appears quite engaged — a far cry from the wood shop program at the school that was a few votes away from being eliminated in 2012.

Back in the spring of 2012, the Barrington School Committee recommended the wood shop program be eliminated. Officials said the move would save the district $110,000 for the industrial art teacher's salary and benefits.

But in a close vote at the financial town meeting, taxpayers opted to keep the wood shop program alive. In the end, the overall budget was increased by $144,000 that covered the industrial art teacher's salary and benefits plus repairs to the dust collection system.

SEVENTH-GRADER
BOBBY DUBEL

School officials also hired a new teacher for wood shop that year — longtime educator

Michael Topazio retired, and the school superintendent eventually hired Ms. DelSanto out of a large pool of candidates.

Since that first day of school in 2012, Mrs. DelSanto has brought an energy and level of inspiration that has been infectious to her students.

"I can't imagine BMS without wood shop. The program is a great experience and Mrs. DelSanto is an awesome teacher," said seventh-grader Bobby Dubel.

Police chief: Parents hold the real power

Punishments range from community service to paying restitution for teen offenses

BY JOSH BICKFORD
jbickford@eastbaynewspapers.com

The four teenagers who allegedly broke into a Cherry Lane home late last month, drank the homeowners' beer and watched movies while they were supposed to be in class at Barrington High School, could face punishments of community service work, restitution payments to the victims and have to write letters of apology.

But chances are, said Barrington Police Chief John LaCross, that a better deterrent to future teenager crimes will come from those kids' parents rather than the state court system or the town's juvenile hearing board.

The longtime law enforcement official said he's learned that a strong parental message is more resounding than the promise of punishment by the state.

"The court system is good, but parents can do more," he said.

He said he was surprised to learn of the Cherry Lane incident so soon after 13 Barrington teenagers were arrested for partying inside a Fireside Drive home this summer.

"I would hope that an incident of that magnitude (it garnered national media attention) would have had a lot of parents engaging in conversations with their children about how that behavior would never be tolerated," he said, in a prior interview.

Chief LaCross said the incident on Cherry Lane was slightly different than the Fireside Drive situation. At the Fireside Drive residence, the homeowners' son had

How do you feel about the plastic bag ban in Barrington?

Council voted 4-1 in favor of the ban

The Barrington Conservation Commission, with help from Roger Williams University students, is conducting a survey regarding the plastic bag ban established by the town council in Jan. 2013. The survey aims to evaluate the implementation and effectiveness of the plastic bag policy.

In Oct. 2012, Barrington became the first town in Rhode Island to prohibit the use of plastic shopping bags at checkouts

(it still allows certain barrier bags, like those used for fruits and vegetables in grocery stores). The council voted 4-1 in favor of the ban, but also agreed to a sunset provision; the ordinance will automatically expire on Jan. 31, 2015, unless action is taken at that time to leave the ordinance in effect.

In an effort to better understand the ban's impact and how people feel about the ordinance, officials decided to order a survey. The results will be tabulated and presented to the Barrington Town Council in December.

To access the survey, visit <http://tinyurl.com/BPBBSurv>

People can also call the town clerk's office at 247-1900 to respond to the survey questions.

Officials said the survey should take no more than 5 minutes to complete.

Nominations needed for preservation award

The board of trustees of the Barrington Preservation Society is currently accepting nominations for the Elizabeth Sargent Warren Historic Preservation Award.

The award was first given in 2012 and named for longtime BPS volunteer and recognized architectural historian Elizabeth (Bonnie) Warren. The purpose of the award is to honor an individual or business for outstanding work in maintaining or preserving the historic character of a property or landscape or an exceptional effort in advocating for preservation or historic or community pride in the Town of Barrington.

For further information or copies of the application form, please call Jane Scola at 245-1818 or jascola@cox.net.

Completed applications should be sent to BPS, PO Box 178, Barrington, RI 02806 before Nov. 15. The recipient of the award will be announced at the BPS annual meeting on Jan. 12, 2014.

NEWS BRIEFS

Learn more about silver at lecture tonight

Elizabeth Williams, the curator of decorative arts and design at the RISD Museum, will offer a lecture titled "Celebration of Silver" on Wednesday, Nov. 6 at 7 p.m. in the Barrington Public Library auditorium. This is a follow-up to the "Celebration of Silver" event which was held earlier this year. Elizabeth will focus on the monumental silver works (and history) of those pieces made by Providence's Gorham Manufacturing Co., which are currently on display at RISD Museum's current exhibition "Making It In America".

Toe Jam Puppet Band coming to town Nov. 16

Sing and dance along with the Toe Jam Puppet Band on Saturday, Nov. 16 from 3 to 4 p.m. at Barrington Middle School. Toe Jam combines music with dancing, puppetry and storytelling. Tickets are $8 in advance, $10 per person at the door, or $30 max per family. This event is sponsored by Barrington Early Childhood Center, a local preschool.

The floor inside the back room at Dr. Jordan Jaffe's office was covered with boxes of candy.

That's not how the local orthodontist's workspace usually appears, but Friday was a special day. It marked the doctor's annual Halloween candy buy-back event — a chance for local boys and girls to sell up to five pounds of their Halloween candy for $1 per pound. Dr. Jaffe and his team package the candy and ship it to U.S. troops serving abroad, as part of Operation Gratitude.

"This is the first year we opened it up to the public," he said, adding that prior campaigns were mostly open to his patients and students at his oldest son's school, Nayatt.

The Barrington resident said he believes there's a natural fit between his practice sponsoring the local education foundations. He said he also spent more than a few years in classrooms. "I was in school forever," he said, pointing to a framed degree on his office wall.

Dr. Jaffe has lived in Barrington since 2002. He and his wife Debbi have two sons — Jake is 6, and Alan is 4.

SUPPORT FOR EDUCATION: Dr. Jaffe said he is proud to support the Barrington Education Foundation and the Bristol Warren Education Foundation, and has developed relationships with a number of people at both organizations. "It goes beyond writing a check," he said. "We're past that point. I believe in these things."

IN HIS BLOOD: Dr. Jaffe's grandfather's brother was the first university-trained orthodontist in Rhode Island, and Dr. Jaffe himself is one of only six board certified orthodontists in the state. "I thought I owed that much to my patients."

BEST PART OF HIS JOB: "Dealing with the people, my patients — the kids and our adult patients," he said.

TOUGHEST PART OF HIS JOB: (Long

WORLD SERIES TICKETS: A longtime Boston Red Sox fan, Dr. Jaffe saw Game Two of the World Series from inside Fenway Park. He pulled on a Red Sox jersey and posed for a photo prior to the game; the pic was posted to his practice's Facebook page. This caption appeared atop the picture: "Guess where Dr. Jaffe is tonight? That's right, WORLD SERIES!!! Just look for the guy with his arms raised high in the air yelling 'Woohoo, World Series Baby!!!!'"

IN THE RING: Looking for an exciting way to stay in shape, Dr. Jaffe tried his hand (or hands) at boxing. He's been doing it for the last three years, and calls Icon Boxing his home gym. "I really like it," he said. "It's the longest six minutes of your life. ... By the end of the third round, you just hope you can lift your arm up."

Barrington teenagers see 'great harm' in tobacco and non-prescription meds

However, just 29 percent see harm in weekly marijuana use

BY JOSH BICKFORD
jbickford@eastbaynewspapers.com

A survey of students at Barrington High School shows that use of tobacco and non-medical prescriptions drugs is about half what it was five years ago.

The survey, which was conducted by the BAY Team, reported that cigarette smoking dropped from 15 percent in 2009 to 7 percent in 2013. Also, non-medical prescription drug use reportedly decreased from 13 percent in 2009 to 6 percent this year.

"Thanks to support from the high school, the BAY Team has had considerable success in decreasing student cigarette use to unprecedented low levels," said BAY Team Program Manager Dr. Kristen Westmoreland.

"Perception of the great harm tobacco use causes continues to be high amongst our students and represents a level of concern that should be applied to other substances such as alcohol, marijuana, and prescription drugs as well."

The recent survey results show that 81 percent of students at the high school believe there is "great harm" from smoking cigarettes. That runs in stark contrast to students' thoughts about marijuana use — just 29 percent of students surveyed believe there is great harm from weekly marijuana use.

Kathy Sullivan, the prevention director for the BAY Team, said in a recent interview that law changes regarding marijuana use may be affecting students' perceptions of the drug. She referenced the state's legislative shift to making possession of 1 ounce or less of marijuana a civil offense and not a criminal charge, as well as the use of medical marijuana among people and the establishment of marijuana dispensaries in Rhode Island.

She said the BAY Team recently formed a committee to study marijuana use among local teens. She added that smoking marijuana can be dangerous, especially for young people.

"A person's brain is not fully developed until they're 25," she said.

Good at what they do

The BAY Team's message about the dangers of alcohol also faces an uphill battle, said Ms. Sullivan. She pointed to the media messages — on television, in movies and online — where the alcohol industry consistently targets a younger audience while advertising their product.

"The (alcohol) industry is powerful, and they're very good at what they do," she said, adding that while television ads are regulated there is less policing of messages online.

Recent survey results showed that about half (54 percent) of the students polled believe daily alcohol consumption poses great harm, while 64 percent believe there is great harm from using prescription drugs without a doctor's order.

According to officials, the BAY Team utilizes long-term strategies to combat substance abuse —

And the survey says ...

The Student Risk and Protective Factor Survey administered in March 2013 to 1,521 students in grades six through 12 shared some new information to BAY team officials. Following are some of the details included in the survey:

- 81: Percent of BHS students who believe there is great harm from smoking cigarettes
- 29: Percent who believe there is great harm from weekly marijuana use
- 54: Percent who believe daily alcohol use poses great harm
- 64: Percent who believe there is great harm from using prescription drugs without a doctor's order
- 13: Percent of students in 2009 using non-medical prescription drugs
- 6: Percent of students in 2013 using non-prescription meds
- 15: Percent of students who used tobacco in the last 30 days in 2009
- 7: Percent of students who used tobacco in the last 30 days in 2013

starting in the fourth grade, students are educated on non-smoking policies at the schools, and at the high school students participate in the annual Kick Butts Day. The BAY Team also promotes effective parenting tips and provides community presentations and support groups.

Despite the work, BAY Team officials are constantly facing new challenges, including the use of electronic cigarettes. Ms. Sullivan said local students have been talking about the relatively new devices, which have gained popularity.

Salt marsh is on the mend at RISD beach

Save The Bay workers spearhead marsh restoration project

BY JOAN D. WARREN
Special to The Times

Nature got a helping hand recently as restoration experts descended upon RISD Beach, just west of Barrington Town Beach, to make changes to the tidal marsh lands and improve the flow of salt-water in the important ecological area.

Wenley Ferguson, restoration specialist at Save The Bay, and her team were at the upper Narragansett Bay beach recently to make improvements to the area that over the years has become an unhealthy environment for natural marsh grasses that are an important part of the ecosystem.

"This is a dynamic barrier beach and over the years a culvert became clogged and after particularly high tides water would become trapped and the standing salt water degraded vegetation," Ms. Ferguson said.

She said plants can't grow in standing water, especially water with a high amount of salinity and a good portion of marsh grasses has died off.

The project, which is an adaptation and restoration effort, is a partnership with the Coastal Resource Management Corporation (CRMC), RISD, Rhode Island Department of Environmental Management (RIDEM), the Army Corp. of Engineers and Save The Bay.

The need to restore the marsh was identified a few years ago when Save the Bay held their "Beach Slam" celebration at the RISD Tillinghast Farm and experts observed the degradation of the Workers used backhoes and other equipment to clear the creeks leading to the salt marshes at RISD beach recently.

marsh due to standing water. Funding for the project is from the CRMC Habitat Restoration Trust Fund.

"We identified this project a few years ago and then again it became obvious when we did a salt marsh evaluation last year. This project is simpler than others because of the positive response from land owners. We approached RISD and they were on board from the start," Ms. Ferguson said.

Two excavators moved sand and other marsh soil and cleared the culverts as well as moved some existing creeks to allow better flow of saltwater in and out of the marsh.

"Looking at aerial maps from 1990 we can see that there has been about 3 inches of sea level rise. We can't change the rise in sea levels but we can make a healthier environment and help the marsh to be as healthy as possible in light of that sea level rise," she said.

Hopes are that the marsh soil will regenerate in the next year and the area will become a feeding location for migratory birds and a breeding area for a variety of marine creatures.

Volunteers are needed to help plant beach grasses at RISD Beach. If interested, call volunteer coordinator July Lewis at Save The Bay at 272-3540 ext. 130 or e-mail July at jlewis@savebay.org.

EDITORIAL

Plenty of blame to go around

Hey parents, this one is on you, too. When your son or daughter wins a prestigious award, helps out at a nursing home or volunteers to cut the grass at an elderly neighbor's house, you parents deserve some of the credit. Those actions should speak to the job you did as moms and dads, teaching your children to be respectful and sympathetic and compassionate. They should make you feel good about the most important profession you will ever have — parenting.

Along that same line, when your son or daughter insults a teacher, disrespects a neighbor or breaks into an unoccupied house so they can party, you parents should feel partly to blame.

We're confident the court system would stop short of punishing the parents of the four boys who broke into a Cherry Lane home late last month, but that doesn't mean the moms and dads don't deserve to shoulder some of the guilt.

Barrington Police Chief John LaCross said the moms and dads whose kids broke into the home cooperated with the investigation, which is more than can be said for some folks. Often, local parents "lawyer-up" when their kids err — that's what's happened in years past in this town.

Still, as a community, we need to recognize that breaking into someone else's home is a horrible violation and a clear indication that parents need to work harder with their kids. The Cherry Lane home break-in was the second such incident in the last four months, and only the latest in what has become a disturbing trend.

Maybe too many parents are trying to be their kids' friends.

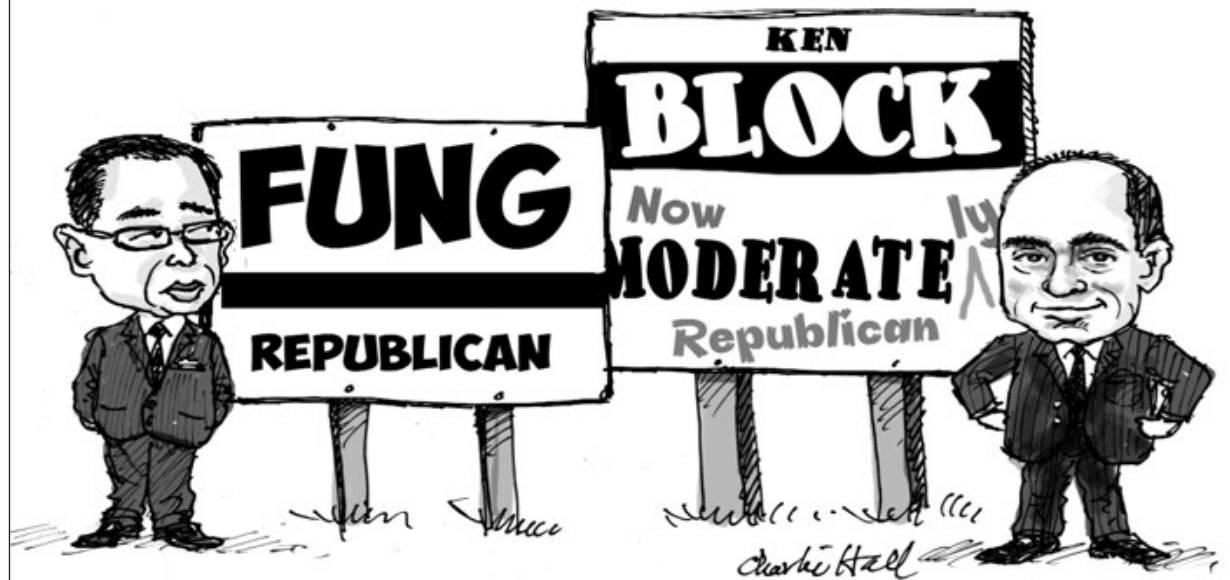

Maybe local moms and dads need to spend less time with their faces buried in their phones and more time hawking over their kids.

Maybe they should stop volunteering at every feel-good nonprofit and instead focus their attention at home.

Maybe the older generation had it right when they instilled a healthy sense of fear, rather than the promise of a life-lesson conversation.

Whatever the answer to this problem, it's clear that parents need to be part of the solution.

The REPUBLICAN race for governor starts to take shape...

Is canceling a play a reason for concern?

To the editor:

Should the Barrington community be concerned about a canceled play at BMS? Clearly Janice Black and the school administration forgot that we study many difficult and controversial events in history, mostly to learn from them.

Our school leadership allowed one parent's personal views to prevent a group of 75-plus children and their families from experiencing and learning important historical lessons about racial equality. If Ms. Black did not want her child to participate in this Aqua Cluster play then she should have kept her child out of the event, while our school administrators should have supported our outstanding Aqua Cluster teachers.

We applaud the Aqua teachers, including Mary Roberts, and other Barrington Public School teachers who work very hard to teach our children about difficult and sometimes controversial topics. Their efforts allow our children to think critically, analyze different perspectives, and then hopefully act to solve problems.

We are disappointed that the BMS principal and the superintendent did not take a stronger position in support of such teaching and the teachers themselves. Perhaps others in the Barrington community share our concerns.

Sowams Octoberfest — what a great day!

To the editor:

The annual Sowams School Octoberfest was held on Saturday Oct. 19, and it was a fabulous day!

This year new activities were added to the event. There was a photobooth — the kids enjoyed all the props and there were plenty of folks standing in line more than once. A local farm joined the Octoberfest this year and provided the transportation for the new Haunted Hayride! Families took a ride down the "haunted" path, decorated for the season. A martial arts center put on a very exciting demonstration.

In addition, kids enjoyed bounce houses, pony rides, catapults firing the Angry Birds, and getting tattoos while parents outbid each other at the silent auction. Thank you to the scouts of Pack Two Barrington for running catapults for the entire day and to the Bayside YMCA and Michael Squatrito for supplying the music and sound system for the day.

A great deal of preparation goes into running a successful event and it requires scores of volunteers to run smoothly. A sincere thank you to all who made Octoberfest such a huge success!

A special thanks goes to the committee chairs for their hard work and dedication: Alisa Catani, Michael Catani, Liz Lanik, Eileen Brady, Leslie Saylor, Jennifer Gill, Emily Lefebvre, Amy Greene, Keri Fisher, Leah Valentine, Carla Martin, Kim McDermott, Mindy White, Meg Raffa, Deidre Wexler, Diane Ballou, Jennifer Clark and Monika Garofano.

I would like to thank Sowams School Principal Jim Callahan and the teachers of Sowams, the executive board of the PTO, co-presidents Michelle Ouhrauka and Amanda Hope, vice president JoAnna Telchow, treasurer Kristen

Materne and secretary Kristen Abatecola; Skip Learned and his staff for all their help preparing the school; and custodians Saul Soria and John for their awesome efforts preparing for the festival and all the work done that day.

Lastly, I would like to thank all the volunteers from the community, including the Interact group, Barrington High School National Honor Society, St. Luke's Confirmation class students and Bishop Hendricken students.

Lastly, thank you to the parents and family members who donated their time that day, baked treats, created class baskets and contributed items to the silent auction. Thank you to everyone who supported us in fund-raising efforts for our school. Your contributions made it happen!

Presentation at library was outstanding

To the editor:

Kudos to the Barrington Public Library for the presentation of the Korean Culture Festival depicting (South) Korean historical culture and outstanding technological advances. In addition, there was a full beautiful, theatrical presentation of a Korean marriage ceremony. Also, delicious food was presented to all. One of the most moving aspects to this presentation was the introduction of an American soldier who fought in the Korean War and a widow of an American war veteran who died in the service of his country to free South Korea. A most moving thoughtful and enjoyable program.

For one night, let them rot their teeth out

E-mail distracts me. I have a small icon on my desktop that lights up with a little red dot when I have a new message. I feel that I cannot do anything else, not write one more word of a story, until I have checked that e-mail. Almost always, the e-mail is something I don't care about, wish I had not read, and quickly delete from my in-box. Occasionally, the red light leads me to an e-mail from my brother referencing an obscure Homer Simpson quote and including a link to an Iroc for sale on Craigslist. (After a reply, I trash that e-mail, too.)

A day before Halloween I received an e-mail from a co-worker that I should have deleted without reading. It suggested I write an online story (the Times print edition had already gone to press) about Halloween safety.

I like this co-worker, and most times we see eye-to-eye on the issues, but I shuddered at his e-mail. It listed a half-dozen or so safety tips for kids on Halloween, including one that made me curse at the computer monitor: "Limit candy consumption — no candy-feasting Halloween night."

I know there's an obesity epidemic with this nation's young people. I know there are children who drink way too much soda, eat fatty, deep-fried foods, and down Skittles by the fistful. I know that today's youth are quicker to recognize a picture of Ronald McDonald than one of Jesus Christ.

Still, this is Halloween.

For one night of the year, kids should have the green light to go door-to-door dressed up as storm troopers or zombies or super heroes, and fill their pillow cases or plastic pumpkins with handfuls of Snickers bars, Smarties, Twizzlers, Reeses Peanut Butter Cups, Kit-Kats and the occasional box of Junior Mints.

For one night of the year, kids should be spared lectures and dissertations about the dangers of sugar and calories and cholesterol and sodium. They should be given a pass on nutrition labels and whole grains and fiber.

For one night of the year, kids should get to decide whether to eat one Milky Way ... or eight.

By simply typing these words I have already ensured an angry glare from my wife and probably a good talking-to from my kids' pediatricians. Their disappointment will be palpable.

But I can't help it.

I loved candy on Halloween. I loved it far more than dressing up or trying to scare other kids in the neighborhood. (I probably would have quit the holiday years earlier if it didn't mean giving up on all the sweets.)

After finishing my rounds on Halloween I would head to the kitchen table and dump out all the treats. I'd separate the candy into smaller piles and tally my haul for the night. Then I'd rip through a dozen or so pieces, stopping only when my stomach started to lurch and roll and spoil the fun of the guaranteed sugar-high.

There is something pure about children enjoying candy. And there is something sinister, or at least questionable, about adults who reject sweets altogether.

I have heard chocolate makes us truly happy. When was the last time someone said that about quinoa?

Residents' rights must be acknowledged

To the editor:

The recent "Workshop" on Low and Moderate Income Housing (LMIH) conducted by our town government showcased, more than anything else, the zealotry of an imbalanced panel bent on dictating not only HOW residents of a community should live, but WHERE as well.

The element missing from the reasoning of all but one of the panelists was the notion that community homeowners were also entitled to rights and privileges including the election of where and under what conditions they choose to live (one emboldened panelist was unambiguous in declaring that zoning laws constituted a barrier to LMIH and should be abolished).

It seemed to completely escape the majority of panelists that a resident, especially one abutting or contiguous to a neighbor's property, should reasonably oppose living next door to a newly established housing development with upwards of 140 new neighbors with cars, on environmentally sensitive property comprised of only 5.6 acres of land, with crowded unsafe streets and no sidewalks, zoned R25 (i.e. 2 units per acre) all of which defines the Sowams Nursery property in Barrington.

Fortunately, state law is clear that the rights of residents must be acknowledged and balanced against the town's need for LMIH as measured by specific statutory standards. We believe the law favors the position we have advocated for many months, and because of that we have instituted a lawsuit in the State Superior Court.

Thanks to the generosity of Barrington residents we have received more than 55 percent of our goal of $25,000 to support litigation expenses. But your continuing help is needed, so please spread the word to neighbors and friends, and send contributions to CODDER 02806, P.O. Box 133, Barrington, R.I. 02806.

State, not local, bond needed for BCWA pipeline plan

To the editor:

An article appearing in a recent Barrington Times concerning Bristol County Water Authority seeking an alternate water supply had some erroneous information.

The article states "the plan requires voter approval; BCWA officials hope to hold a referendum next year."

To clarify, there will not be a referendum in Bristol County. The article was referring to the RI

Water Resources Board's request for bond funding for matching funds for several drinking water interconnection projects, including the connection to the Pawtucket Water Supply Board to serve the City of East Providence and the Bristol County Water Authority. The request for a state bond will require approval by the state legislature next year to be put on the state-wide November ballot for voter approval.

Obtaining an alternate water supply is one of the most critical actions for the BCWA according to the BCWA Strategic Plan developed by the board of directors.

To view the plan, please go to bcwari.com.

WOOD SHOP: Program that escaped elimination is now a cut above the rest

In her second year at the middle school, Mrs. DeSanto is enthusiastic and works hard to engage all the students in her classroom.

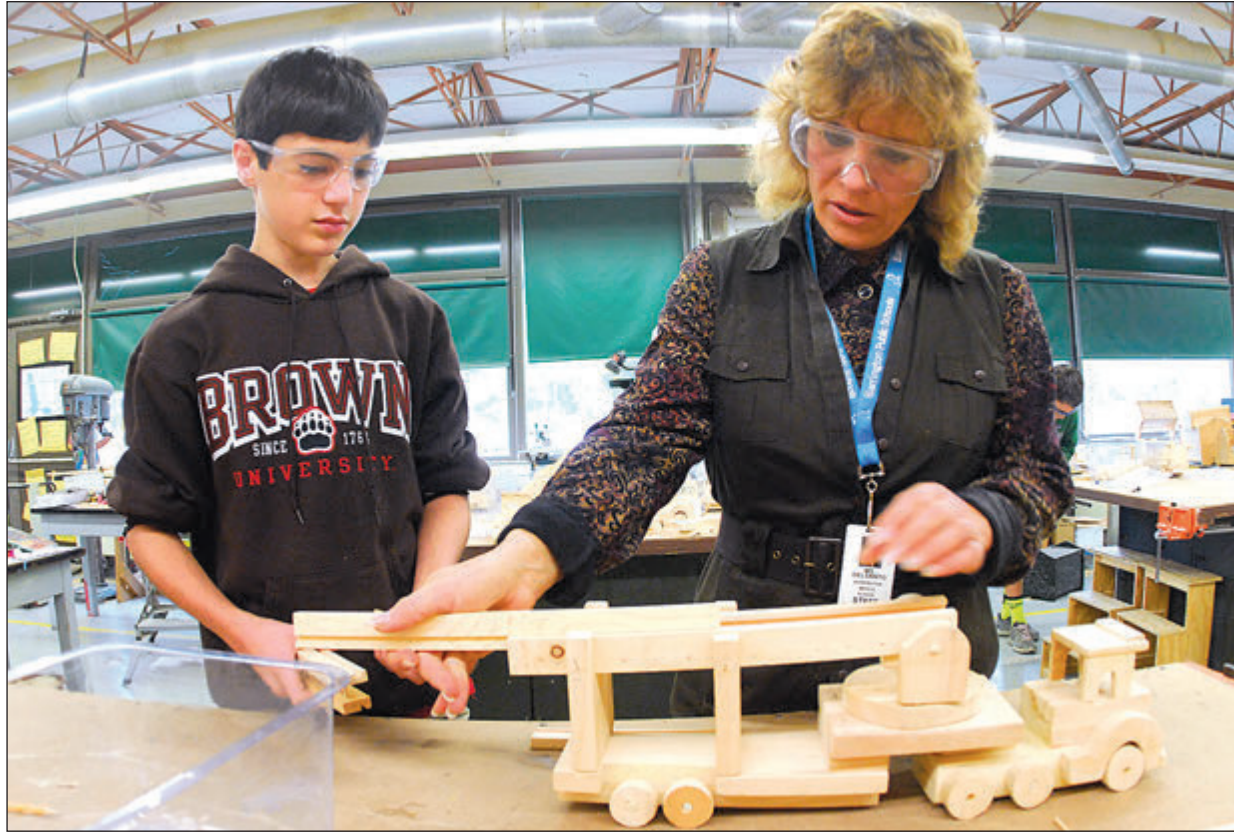

"I want to give these kids what I would give my own kids," she said. Mrs. DeSanto's daughter is studying education at Roger Williams University and her son in his senior year of high school.

"With my students, I encourage them to push themselves to try things out of their comfort zone. It is so rewarding to see how far they can go and what amazing things they can create. Some of my middle school students are more advanced than some high school students I have had the pleasure to teach," she said.

Mrs. DeSanto grew up in Bristol and earned undergraduate and masters (technology education) degrees from Rhode Island College.

But becoming an industrial arts teacher was not her original career choice. At RIC she stumbled upon the industrial arts building and was amazed at its enormity and the exciting projects going on within its walls. It was then that she took her first college class in the field and immediately knew she had found her niche.

At a time when few women were industrial arts educators, Mrs.

DeSanto realized that she could impact not only male students I also females and teach them the importance of an industrial arts education.

"I remember being a young girl watching my grandfather work in his shop. He was always making things for my grandmother but he never let me help because I was a girl. I always thought that wasn't quite fair," she said.

Her childhood memories are very much alive and used in a positive manner. In fact, many of the tools in the wood shop at the middle school are from her grandfather's wood shop.

As a teacher at Bristol High School, Portsmouth High School and most recently Tiverton High school it has always been her goal to engage all students.

"Years ago, girls were encouraged to go in to fields meant solely for females. I never understood that way of thinking. It is important for every student to get a well-rounded education," she said.

Her hard work has paid off. She has been awarded teacher of the year on two occasions; in 1992 as a teacher in the Bristol School Department and in 2009 by the Portsmouth Public Education Foundation.

When the opportunity surfaced to teach in Barrington, she was thrilled.

"I love working at the middle school level. I get to see many more students and have more of an impact on them," she said.

Change in scheduling

A big reason she gets to see more students is a recent change in the way "special" classes are scheduled.

In the past students were assigned specials (shop, art, music, home economics, keyboarding, robotics and computer technology) in a quinta fashion, meaning every 5 weeks they would have a different special.

But at times, students would be assigned the same special they had in the past and some never had the opportunity to experience all the specials the school offers.

Barrington Middle School Principal Andrew Anderson has made changes to scheduling so that specials run on a quarterly basis similar to core class scheduling.

Barrington Schools Superintendent Michael Messore said this gives additional time for instructors to more deeply delve into subjects and projects.

"Andy wanted to make an effort to allow for more subject time and is working on scheduling so students experience all specials before they leave eighth grade," Mr. Messore said.

"Middle school is the time where students should be exposed to a variety of options that will help them decide what to focus on at the high school and beyond. At this age, the students can make connections that will help shape career paths when they go on to college or trade schools."

The superintendent also said that the district is looking in to ways to enhance the wood shop and robotics programs to better utilize the STEM model of education (Science, Technology, Engineering and Math).

"That is the direction we want to go," he said. "It's not just about building products but a matter of learning the process of how connections take place. Students have the opportunity to learn the basics of engineering and design at the middle school level. We are in the process of developing a rubric to better evaluate the programs and be better informed on how to move into the future."

Eye Care

Presented by
Kendall A. Gibbs, M.D.
Eye Physician and Surgeon

DIABETES AND EYE DISEASE

While diabetes has an obvious link to "diabetic retinopathy" (damage of the small blood vessels in the retina), its association with other eye diseases may not be so obvious. In fact, the increase in cataracts and glaucoma in this country may be partly linked to the higher prevalence of diabetes. While cataracts (opacities of the eye lens) generally develop in older individuals, diabetics can develop cataracts at any earlier age. Their cataracts may also develop more rapidly than those in people without diabetes. In addition, diabetics are more likely to develop "neovascular glaucoma," which involves the formation of new blood vessels on the iris that block the normal flow of fluid out of the eye and raise eye pressure.

This helpful column on possible side effects of diabetes has been brought to you in the interest of better eye health. It is important to have regular eye exams with your ophthalmologist. We believe that regular eye examinations by a qualified eye care professional should be a part of your overall good health maintenance. Call us at 247-2015 for an evaluation. We're currently accepting new patients.

P.S. Diabetics are urged to visit the ophthalmologist for regular checkups in addition to managing their blood sugar levels to help avert eye complications.

Middle school shop students win statewide contest

Student's parent praises new wood shop teacher

In 2012, when Barrington Middle School sixth-grader Bobby Dubel showed aptitude in wood shop, his parents were pleased.

Their son, an A student, was thriving at the middle school and in extra curricular activities. The new wood shop teacher Cheryl DelSanto offered an after-school enrichment class and Bobby was one of the first to sign up.

Bobby had always enjoyed building and did some wood-working projects with his father, Greg Dubel, including pinewood derby cars for cub scouts.

Laurie Dubel, Bobby's mother, gave her son some motherly advice:

"When he signed up, I told Bobby 'Don't get too excited yet, we don't know what to expect. You might just build a box.' How wrong I was," she said.

Totally impressed by her students' capabilities, Mrs. DelSanto registered them for the RI Technology Student Association State Competition last April.

Bobby designed and built a sleek race car to be propelled by a CO2 charger. Competing against other middle school and high school students, Bobby won the all-day statewide competition at New England Institute of Technology.

"There is natural talent there, but these kids really listen and pay attention to what I am telling them. There is more to this than woodworking. They apply science and math concepts and their hard work really paid off," Mrs. DelSanto said.

Other students to place at the top of the competition at the RI Construction Career Days Bridge Building Contest were eighth-graders Tripp Carolan and Hayden Ivatts (first place) and Jacob Nozaki and Connor McGartoll (second place).

"Normally, you could expect some groans with math and physics being heavily woven in, but these students were enthralled. I think the difference was being able to apply these concepts in a hands-on, real-life experience, in an energized, nurturing atmosphere," Mrs. Dubel said.

It is through Mrs. DelSanto's leadership and instruction that these students were so successful, Mrs. Dubel believes.

"Mrs. DelSanto is a gift to the school and its students. She is a passionate teacher. Her enthusiasm is infectious! The kids are given cool projects to choose from — more complicated and interesting than I would have dreamed. On top of that, she offers positive reinforcement and encouragement at every turn. Mistakes are worked through with smiles as she asks leading questions until the student has that 'Ah-ha' moment, realizing what needs to be changed."

Local middle school students also competed in Lego Robotics. Other categories at the competition included website design, logo design, photography, remote-control car races built from kits, architectural designs, CAD, and more.

"Competition day was a complete inspiration. I had goosebumps seeing all the opportunities available to these kids and seeing their accomplishments. We took it all in, visiting each category throughout the day. I left wondering, 'How can we get more kids involved in all these other categories?'" Mrs. Dubel said.

Event will commemorate Veterans' Day

Ceremony will begin at 10:50 a.m. on Monday morning

The Barrington United Veterans' Council will host a Veterans' Day event on Monday, Nov. 11.

Starting at 10:50 a.m., people will gather at the Barrington Honor Roll, where a wreath will be placed. Recently, local veterans Louis Codega and Bart Stanzione prepared the Honor Roll for new additions and resequencing in proper order the names included.

Following that portion of the event, people will proceed to the new Barrington Veterans' Memorial, which is located next to the Barrington Town Hall (at the southwestern corner of the building). A wreath will then be placed at the newly-completed memorial wall.

There will be a salute and a blessing offered by Temple Habonim Rabbi Andrew F. Klein. Barrington United Veterans' Council member Paul Dulchinos will offer a speech.

Following the conclusion, refreshments will be served. The event is open to the public.

Town finances are A-OK, says former director

Bond rating, reserves and budget all look good, says Dean Huff

The town may be without a finance director, but the finances themselves are in good shape.

According to Dean Huff, who recently resigned as the town's finance director and took a new post as chief financial officer for the Rhode Island Resources Recovery Corporation, Barrington's balance sheet is very healthy.

Mr. Huff said the town has a strong bond rating — A1, its reserves are in good shape, the year-end audit is almost complete, and the budget is structurally balanced.

"Everything's in really good shape," he added.

Mr. Huff, whose final day in Barrington was Oct. 23, said he told officials that he was willing to help out as the town made the transition to a new finance director: "I won't leave this office, this town holding the bag."

The longtime employee said he enjoyed his time working in Barrington, and will especially miss the people with whom he worked. He mentioned the people in his department as well as members of current and former councils, and members of the town's committee on appropriations. "I will miss working with these people," he said.

Ask Dr. Kerwin HALLOWEEN

Q: Are there steps I can take to minimize the dental danger of Halloween?

A: Halloween can be a fun night for kids. Alas, despite the efforts of many in the community, dentists included, candy remains the chief currency of the holiday. On the bright side, it's only once a year. You can hold down the potential damage to your kids' teeth by doing some of these things:

- Serve them a good meal before they go out. They'll be less likely to gorge on their take even as they're making their rounds.

- Take control of the Halloween bag when they come in. Don't let your children create a stash that they can dip into all night, after they've brushed their teeth. During the night, the bacteria in a child's mouth will quickly convert the sugar into the harmful acids that cause decay. The least harmful time to consume sugar is when it's part of a meal. For one thing, saliva flow increases during a meal, helping to wash away particles of food—or candy—and neutralizing the effect of the acid.

- After a meal, instead of offering the kids some other type of dessert, let them raid the Halloween bag for a reasonable sampling of its treasure.

- The most important factor, though, is to instill in your children from a young age the importance of observing a daily regimen of oral health care, including brushing and flossing.

You might emphasize this at Halloween. On your next visit to the dentist, ask for more ideas about how to keep Halloween from being troublesome.

No 'vendetta' for school sign smasher

Police presence beefed up after out-of-state school incidents

Barrington Police Chief John LaCross said his department has no reason to believe the man who was charged with destroying the Sowams School sign has any vendetta against the school.

On Oct. 20, police arrested Sowams Road resident Kip Eaton after he allegedly smashed and burned the school sign. Officers found a portion of the sign burning in Mr. Eaton's back yard fire pit.

A few days later, Sowams

School Principal Jim Callahan reportedly began hearing from concerned parents who wondered if Mr. Eaton, a neighbor to the school, posed any danger. Mr. Callahan sent an e-mail to parents stating, in part, "Barrington Police have informed us that there will be an increased presence around all schools."

Chief LaCross clarified that point earlier this week. He said the increased presence by officers in and around local schools was done mainly in response to two out-of-state incidents at public schools: a shooting at a Nevada school and the murder of a high school teacher in Danvers, Mass.

"Those (incidents) could stir up something in somebody's mind," Chief LaCross said. "Out of precaution we'll be more visible here."

As for Mr. Eaton, Chief LaCross said there was no reason to believe that the Sowams Road resident would do anything that could be deemed dangerous to students or staff at the neighboring school. He added that anyone who has information that could run counter to that should contact local police at 437-3933.

"We don't have any reason to think he has any vendetta toward the school," Chief LaCross said.

Police charged five local teenagers with truancy at Barrington High School. The teenagers included three 17-year-old male students, one 16-year-old male student and one 16-year-old female student.

Police conducted a search for two Barrington Middle School students who reportedly failed to show up where they said they were going. Police located one child at home and eventually located the second in the area of Rumstick Road and Jenny's Lane.

Police charged Barbara Jean Briggs, 47, of Warren, with disorderly conduct, after officers responded to a Lake Avenue residence for a 911 call.

Friday, Nov. 1

Police responded to a Half Mile Road residence after a homeowner called 911 at about 12:10 a.m. for a possible intruder. The reporting party told police that a tall, thin person entered the home and then exited. Police searched the area and secured the residence.

Police charged Gregory H. Golembowski, 45, of 105 New Meadow Road, on the violation of a protective order.

Police responded to Rumstick Road after a cat was struck and killed by a vehicle.

Saturday, Nov. 2

An Alfred Drown Road resident reported a stolen bicycle.

A resident called 911 after an elderly woman went missing. The woman reportedly went for a walk but failed to return to her residence. Police searched all over town and eventually located the woman in the area of Nayatt Road and Devonshire.

Sunday, Nov. 3

Police responded to a Rumstick Road residence for a possible dog bite.

Someone allegedly dropped off two fake prescriptions at the Barrington CVS Pharmacy.

A bike was found in the area of Prince's Pond.

Restorative justice

Chief LaCross said he's interested in exploring a new style of punishment for cases like the Cherry Lane break-in. It's called restorative justice, he said, and it brings all the parties involved in an incident together to further discuss the matter.

For example, in the case of the recent home break-in, the teens arrested, the victims, the police officers and a professional mediator would all gather in a room.

Each individual would talk about what happened, why, and how it affected him or her.

The chief said the process, which is already being used in some towns in Massachusetts, can be very powerful and have profound affects on the alleged suspects.

Chief LaCross credited town councilor Kate Weymouth for initially suggesting the approach.

"It's a good exchange between the victim and offender," said the chief.

given a friend permission to use the home's indoor pool. At Cherry Lane, the four teens involved allegedly broke into the home without any permission.

Chief LaCross said at least two of the teens arrested had prior arrest records and therefore will face Family Court proceedings as opposed to the more lenient town juvenile hearing board.

"The juvenile hearing board is for first-time offenders only," he

AROUND TOWN

Women's club to meet this afternoon

The Barrington Woman's Club will meet on Wednesday, Nov. 6, at noon at St. John's Church. Following refreshments at noon, a business meeting is at 12:30. The program features a fashion show by Encore starring club members as models and coordinated by Dottie Peckham.

Members are reminded to bring non-perishable food for Tap-In.

The next board meeting is on Tuesday, Nov. 12, in the St. John's Church living room. The boutique is scheduled for Dec. 4. A signup sheet will be sent around at the November meeting.

'Celebration of Silver' lecture set for tonight

The Barrington Preservation Society will present a lecture by Elizabeth A. Williams, curator of decorative arts and design at the Rhode Island School of Design, on Wednesday, Nov. 6, at 7 p.m. in the second-floor auditorium at Barrington Public Library, 281 County Road.

This is a follow up to the "Celebration of Silver" event held earlier this year. Ms. Williams will focus on the monumental silver works (and history) of those pieces made by Providence's Gorham Manufacturing Co., which are on display at the RISD Museum's current exhibition, "Making It In America." Learn more about the one-time world leader in silver production and silver in general.

For more information, visit www.barrpreservation.org or call the museum office at 289-0802.

Ballroom and Latin dancing is on Fridays

Weekly ballroom and Latin dancing classes and socials are from 7 to 11 p.m. on Fridays at the Democratic Club, 186 Roffee St. No partner is needed to learn — singles and couples are welcome. Absolute beginners are welcome. On the first Friday of every month, there is music by K&S.

A beginner dance class by Nelia Lawton is from 7 to 8 p.m., with a social dance party from 8 to 11. Two dances are taught each month.

Admission at the door is $15 for adults and $8 for teens, with complimentary coffee, tea, pizza salad and dessert, and a cash bar. Call 245-1119 or visit www.DanceNelia.com for more information.

Free Fit Camp offered on Saturdays

A free Community Fit Camp will be offered on Saturdays from 8 to 8:45 a.m. at Barrington Congregational Church, 461 County Road. It is geared to all people of all ages starting from beginners to intermediate, and advanced.

Denia Affonso is a personal trainer of 11 years. She modifies all the exercises to fit each individual fitness level. She hopes to build a healthier and more active community.

All are invited.

Baked Beads, fashion accessory clearance

AT THE YMCA

The Bayside YMCA offers a variety of programs for all ages at the Y at 70 West St., Barrington. Stop by or call 245-2444 for more information or to register. Online registration is available for YMCA members at www.gpymca.org.

Programs may be canceled due to lack of enrollment, so register as soon as possible. Financial assistance is available for many programs.

Cardiac Fitness

For those with heart disease who have already participated in a medically supervised program, Cardio Fitness is a great way to get back into the swing. Components of the program include individualized instruction using cardiovascular equipment, weight training equipment and stretching exercise.

A new class is being offered at the Riverside Healthy Living Center, 660 Bullocks Point Ave., Riverside, on Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9 to 10 a.m. The program is free to Y members and $55 for non-members. Call 245-2444 for more information.

Yoga for Kids

This long-respected practice is known to increase strength and flexibility as well as relieve stress and improve focus. The Bayside Y is offering classes for kids as young as 2 to 3 years (accompanied by a parent) up to age 10.

All classes are taught by a certified yoga instructor. Visit the website or call for more information.

Book club coming up

This month, the Bayside Book

Club will discuss "The Silver Star" by Jeanette Walls on Tuesday, Nov. 19, at 1 p.m. in the Bayside Lounge. All are welcome to attend.

Winter swim lessons

Swim lessons in the Bayside YMCA pool are running on a monthly basis all winter long. You do not need to be a member to participate. Call or ask at the member services desk.

Not a YMCA member?

You can still participate in Y programs without joining the Y. Most classes are open to non-members. The cost is sometimes a little more, but that's the only difference. Visit www.gpymca.org and click on Bayside to find class listings and schedules.

"Silver Lily Series #64," an intaglio print by Carol FitzSimonds, is part of a new exhibit at Temple Habonim through Jan. 2.

Art show opening in the gallery at Temple Habonim

Prints, landscapes and cut-paper wall sculpture will be exhibited in a November/December show at the gallery at Temple Habonim, 165 New Meadow Road. The show features three noted Rhode Island artists: Carol FitzSimonds, Wendy Ingram and Robert Pillsbury.

The show will open with a wine and cheese reception on Thursday, Nov. 7, from 7 to 9 p.m. and will continue through Jan. 2.

Carol Strause FitzSimonds is a printmaker, book artist, instructor and gallery curator. Her work has been exhibited throughout the world and is included in the Smithsonian Museum of American History. In this exhibit she is showing her expertise in the art of printmaking.

Wendy Ingram artfully captures the beauty around us with her skill as an oil painter. Her landscapes demonstrate her masterful use of color and brush. She is a graduate of RISD, has exhibited in New York and Washington, and is a co-founder and director of The Art Connection-RI.

Robert Pillsbury, a cut-paper artist, creates three-dimensional surfaces using layered cut paper and other two dimensional sheet materials. An architect with a degree from Harvard School of Design, his work reflects his expertise in the use of spatial relationships.

Gallery hours are from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesdays and Thursdays, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Fridays and by appointment. For information, call 245-6536 or e-mail gallery@templehabonim.org.

BCS offering discussion of Reading Across Rhode Island book and a Vietnamese dinner

A discussion of the 2013 Reading Across Rhode Island selection, "The Beauty of Humanity Movement," is the focus of a Barrington Community School course, "Book Spotlight with Dinner." A classroom discussion, with retired English teacher Arnie McConnell, is from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 12, at Atria Bay Spring Village, 147 Bay Spring Ave., with a trip to a Vietnamese restaurant in Providence on Tuesday, Nov. 19, at 6 p.m.

A classroom discussion of the book will explore this vivid account of post-war Vietnam, examining the war and its aftermath in post-war Vietnam. The brutality of the Communist regime on dissident 1950s artists and the effects of its takeover on art, culture and relationships will be explored. At the dinner, the class will learn about and savor the delicious Vietnamese soup, pho, which is practically a character in the book. It is a meal in itself, but the group also will enjoy an authentic appetizer and beverage.

Directions to the restaurant will be provided in advance; those wishing to carpool from Barrington should contact the BCS office for instructions. The course fee is $55 for BCS members and $65 for non-members, and includes tuition and dinner.

Other upcoming classes with openings include a glass pendant workshop on Wednesday, Nov. 6, from 6 to 8 p.m. at Barrington

Middle School; "Opera ABCs" starting Friday, Nov. 8; a design workshop featuring a fall arrangement on Nov. 21; and design and craft holiday workshops in December.

In trip news ...

Tickets are available for the Wednesday, Nov. 13, trip to Goodspeed-at-Chester's to see "Snapshots - A Musical Scrapbook." The romantic comedy blends some of the best-loved music from composer Stephen Schwartz's Broadway shows ("Wicked," "Pippin" and "Godspell") with some of his lesser-known gems.

Before the show, enjoy a three-course luncheon at The Ivory. Barrington motorcoach departure is at 9:30 a.m., with a Warwick pick-up at 9:50; return is about 6 p.m. The trip fee of $115 BCS members/$125 non-members includes theater ticket, luncheon, BCS escort, motorcoach and driver tip.

Other trips with openings include the Dec. 7 and 8 overnight, "Christmas in the Brandywine Valley," which includes a rare Christmas opening at the opulent mansion, Nemours, a guided tour at Winterthur mansion, and an evening visit to "Christmas at Longwood Gardens," where the grounds turn into a winter wonderland of thousands of twinkling lights, magical fountains, and the famous conservatory, abloom with four acres of poinsettias, cyclamen and decorated trees.

There are still openings in the Dec. 14 trips to New York City, the Shopping Apple and the Broadway Apple, which features a matinee performance of the new musical "Big Fish."

Scholarships are available for courses. Call the BCS office at 245-0432 for more information on courses and trips or to request a scholarship application. Or, e-mail the school at barrcomm@bcs.necoxmail.com.

AT THE LIBRARY

Explore yoga and writing in a workshop

Get past personal obstacles to the writing process through yoga. Explore how yoga and writing are complementary and mutually supportive practices. A yoga and writing workshop is on Thursday, Nov. 7, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. with actor, director, teacher and writer Kate Lohman and certified yoga teacher, writer and editor Aggie Stewart.

It is free and open to all; but, seating is limited. Register online at <http://goo.gl/3na2Di> or call the reference desk at 247-1920, ext. 2. It is sponsored by the Friends of Barrington Public Library.

Library closed on Veterans' Day

The library will be closed on Monday, Nov. 11, in observance of Veterans' Day.

'Monsters University' matinee is on Tuesday

Looking for something to do while the kids have no school? Join the Monster gang and see how the friendship began between Mike and Sulley during their days at "Monsters University." Mike and J.P. Sullivan are an inseparable pair now, but that wasn't always the case. From the moment these two mismatched monsters met they couldn't stand each other.

Pixar's "Monsters University" (rated G) will be shown on Tuesday, Nov. 12, at 1 p.m. It unlocks the door to how Mike (voice of Billy Crystal) and Sulley (John Goodman) overcame their differences and became the best of friends. The show, which runs about 1 hour and 45 minutes, is in the auditorium on the upper level. Refreshments are not allowed in the auditorium.

The movie is free and open to all community members. All ages are welcome.

Great American novels on big screen Tuesday

To celebrate National Novel Writing Month in November, the library will screen two films that celebrate the great American novel.

On Tuesday, Nov. 12, at 7 p.m., "The Grapes of Wrath" (1940) stars Henry Fonda. Directed by John Ford, it is not rated and is 129 minutes.

On Thursday, Nov. 14, at 7 p.m., "The Great Gatsby" (2013) stars Leonardo DiCaprio and is directed by Baz Luhrmann. The film is rated PG-13 and is 143 minutes.

Come see movies the way they were meant to be seen, on the big screen with surround sound. The films are free and open to all.

Barrington Public Library is at 281 County Road. Library hours are from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday to Thursday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and from 1 to 5 p.m. Sundays. For more information, call 247-1920 or visit www.barringtonlibrary.org. The library will provide accommodations to ensure equal participation in all meetings and programs. Requests for accommodations may be made in writing to the library director, by voice at 247-1920, ext. 305, or at 711 "relay" if using TDY or TDD.

The regular season belonged to the Barrington High School field hockey team, but Moses Brown owned the finals.

On Sunday, Nov. 3, formerly undefeated Barrington lost to Moses Brown in the Division 1 State Championship, 3-0. It was the second straight year Barrington fell to Moses Brown in the finals.

When the two teams faced off in October, that game ended in a tie, the only non-win the Eagles had during the regular season.

"I think we had a great season," said co-captain Sarah Carlson. "We're a little hurt about the loss. We knew what to expect (from Moses Brown)."

Two of the Quakers' goals were scored in the first half, both the result of corner shot opportunities presented by Barrington penalties.

Twenty eight minutes into the second half it looked as though the Eagles were going to score after getting corner shots from Quaker penalties, but their three consecutive attempts were deflected.

Six minutes later, Moses Brown moved the ball toward the Eagles' net where goalie Sophie Faxon prevented several shots from going in. Continuing the offensive pressure, Moses Brown finally managed to slip a third shot into the Eagles' net.

Despite losing the state title in a shut-out, head coach Lee Markowski and the team appeared to take the loss in stride.

"Their goalie had a great game," Ms. Markowski said after the game. "They capitalized on their opportunities, we didn't. What can I say?"

Barrington runner repeats as state champion

Girls' team finishes second to LaSalle; boys are sixth at states

BY ERIC DICKERVITZ
edickervitz@eastbaynewspapers.com

Barrington High School joined 17 other Rhode Island high school cross country teams for a second time in two weeks at Ponaganset High School where each hoped to become the best in the state.

But it was Barrington's Emma McMillan, whose record-setting time for the 3.1-mile course at 17:42.86 broke the tape for first place. The next place finisher, LaSalle's Karina Tavares, finished second, 18 seconds behind McMillan.

LaSalle's top runner, Eliza Rego, could not keep up with the faster McMillan and dropped out of the race before crossing the finish line.

Without Rego, LaSalle relied on former Mt. Hope High School standout, Karina Tavares, who is now a student at LaSalle, to lead LaSalle. Her time was 18:01.03. Tavares and her teammates were able to secure a team win for LaSalle, returning the state championship title that Barrington has held for the past two years.

"I am proud of each and every one of these girls," said Barrington head coach Annmarie Marino. "I just think the team really couldn't have done any better."

Besides McMillan's record-setting pace, Ms. Marino noted that Mary Kate Coogan moved up from finishing in 13th place last week at the class meet to seventh overall in the state championship meet. Abigail Livingston, who didn't compete in the class meet, came in fourth in the state meet.

"You can't ask for more from that group," Ms. Marino said.

In the boys' race, Barrington took sixth place out of the 18 schools competing, with Mars Bishop running the 5k course in 16:49.66 for a 21st place finish.

Portsmouth boots Barrington from playoffs

Girls' soccer team loses 3-0

The Portsmouth High School girls' soccer team emerged victorious Tuesday night, Oct. 29, in a first-round playoff matchup against Barrington.

Portsmouth won the game, 3-0, and advanced to the next round of the Division 1 playoffs. Portsmouth went into the playoffs as the fifth seed and matched up against the 12th seed of Barrington High in the first round.

Although Barrington dominated the possession in the first half, Portsmouth capitalized on its shots on goal and made the most of their scoring chances as junior forward Kelley Coyne scored on her team's first attempt.

The second half was dominated in both facets of the game by Portsmouth, which added two more goals, one from Coyne and the other from Lean Hibbad. The defense for Portsmouth shut down Barrington in the second half as well. After being out-shot in the first half, PHS held Barrington to only three shots in the entire second half and was never really challenged on the defensive end.

"They protected the 18 (yard box) like I told them," said Portsmouth head coach Jim Blaess when asked about his team's defense.

Eagles ousted after playoff shoot-out loss to Shea

Boys' soccer team loses to Shea in heart-breaker

"We played a hell of a game and had a hell of a season."

C.J. MASTERSON, SENIOR MIDFIELDER

edickervitz@eastbaynewspapers.com

After a season in which the Barrington boys' soccer team won 11 of its 14 regular league games, their bid to become state champions came to an end on Friday, Nov. 1, when they suffered a heart-breaking loss to Shea High School in the quarter-final matchup.

The Eagles knew what to expect from the Raiders having beaten them 1-0 in a previous game in October. Despite the Eagles' getting a bye into the quarterfinal game, they also knew not to underestimate the eighth seeded team.

"This is what the whole season is about," head coach Don Denham told his team before the teams took to the field. "These next three games."

But Shea's reputation for speed and direct style on offense played out on Victory Field on Friday, dashing the Eagles' chance to move on to the semifinals. During the two 40-minute halves of regular play and the two, 10-minute periods of overtime, neither team was able to produce a goal.

"Defensively we're a nightmare," Mr. Denham told his team at the half. "You're fighting for your life here. Let's give it everything we have."

In the second half, the Eagles showed determination, adding five shots on goal to the three opportunities taken in the first half. But the Raiders were just as determined, with a similar number of shots booted toward the Eagles' net with goalkeeper Connor Mellen, thwarting Shea's efforts with his 7 saves.

The game was decided in a shootout, with Shea managing to get four of their shots past Mellen, while the Eagles could only get three of their shots inside the net.

Shooting first from the 12 yard line, Barrington's Makio Yamamoto's attempt went high over the net, and Isaac Lapidès' shot went wide. The next three players, Jozef

Jennings, Izaiah Jennings and Steven Duncan all sent their shots cleanly past Shea's goalkeeper to tie Shea's three successful attempts and one shot saved by Mellen. Shea's fifth player booted a direct shot to the middle of the net that caught Mellen off guard, rolling into the net for the win and bringing the Eagles' season to an emotional end.

"It just wasn't meant to be," said C.J. Masterson, a senior midfielder who spent most of the season sidelined with a pelvis fracture suffered in an early season game.

Tears rolled down his face as he, his teammates and coaching staff remained quietly on the sideline as the Shea players celebrated their victory.

"I couldn't ask for anything better in this team," Masterson said of his teammates. "We played a hell of a game and had a hell of a season."

Eagles outlast Rams in Friday night thriller

Barrington holds on for 7-6 victory, remains undefeated

Barrington's Nick Raymond (55) recovers a fourth quarter fumble, sealing the 7-6 win for the Eagles.

BY ERIC DICKERVITZ
edickervitz@eastbaynewspapers.com

Barrington Eagles football coach Bill McCagney anticipated a gridiron battle on Friday night, when his undefeated Eagles football squad was readying to face the 3-1 LaSalle Rams.

"This is a strong team," he said of the opponent. "We're expecting a battle."

His expectation was right on the mark.

But even with the battle ending in a 7-6 victory for the Eagles, the win was bittersweet with a potentially season ending injury for key running back/defensive back, James Murphy.

During a third quarter drive, quarterback Matt Rota pitched the ball to Murphy. With no LaSalle players near him, Murphy unexpectedly slid to the ground similar to a baseball player sliding into a base. He immediately clutched his right leg and athletic trainer, Whitney Howe, ran to assist the fallen Eagle. After several minutes, Murphy was helped off the field by his teammates. On the sideline, Ms. Howe applied pressure to his leg and Murphy grimaced in obvious pain, holding his hands to his helmet as he was driven off the field and into the locker room.

"He's probably out for the season," said a disappointed McCagney, speculating the injury as a torn quadricep muscle.

It wasn't until the fourth quarter when the two teams finally lit up the scoreboard.

With 10 minutes left in the game, LaSalle connected on a 36 yard pass with their receiver falling into the end zone. Barrington blocked the Rams' extra point attempt, giving LaSalle a 6-0 lead.

Sam Vetromile returned the ensuing kick-off to the Eagles' 44 yard line. The Rams sacked Rota for an 8 yard loss, but on the next play, Rota dropped a screen pass to J.R. Martin who broke free for a 53-yard gain. The hard-charging fullback reached the four yard line

Nick Jensen breaks away for Barrington's lone score.

"It's a strong team. It's all about the players."

before getting tackled.

But Barrington could not drive the ball into the end zone, and turned it over on downs.

LaSalle moved the ball a bit and chewed time off the clock, but was forced to punt with about 4:30 remaining. Barrington took over near midfield and picked up key yardage right away, as Rota connected with Vetromile. A LaSalle defender was also flagged with roughing the passer. With 2:30 remaining on the clock, the Eagles' attempt to run a flea flicker play action fell incomplete and Barrington remained at the 29 yard line.

It was on second down when Rota sent his receivers out, spotting Jensen up the seam, and completed the 10 yard pass. Jensen shrugged off an attempted tackle by a Ram and sprinted into the end zone. Kyle Gibalerio split the uprights for the extra point giving the Eagles a 7-6 lead.

"I had a (LaSalle) guy on me, but saw the opportunity to score," Jensen said of his touchdown catch.

This was Jensen's second touchdown of the season.

LaSalle then marched the ball down the field and picked up a key first down on fourth and 20. With about a minute left, LaSalle had reached deep into the Barrington end of the field. However, the Rams fumbled the ball on a botched exchange between the quarterback and running back. Barrington's Nick Raymond recovered and the Eagle faithful started to celebrate. The win pushed Barrington's record to 6-0 and helped secure a playoff bid.

Junior defensive tackle Kevin Cadigan also helped the team to victory, charging in on several key tackles and breaking up LaSalle's pass attempts.

Besides the fumble recovery that helped to secure the victory, Raymond came out strong right from the beginning, in on tackles and a solo sack.

"It's a strong team," Mr. McCagney said of his Eagles. "It's all about the players."

With James Murphy potentially out of the line-up, the Eagles may rely more heavily on Jensen who shares the running/defensive back duties.

"Nick didn't start for us, but he's proven to be our best defensive back. He comes in fresh."

Barrington plays against Bishop Hendricken on Nov. 8 in a battle of undefeated teams, then finishes out the regular season against Portsmouth. They will also face Mt. Hope High School for the annual Thanksgiving Day game, this year at Victory Field.

Pop Warner cheerleaders headed to regionals

Local squads take home titles at division competition

Some Barrington Pop Warner cheerleading teams will be taking their talents to regional competitions after they scored well at a recent division showdown.

The Junior Pee Wee team won first place in the Level 1 division at the RISMA cheerleading competition at the Providence Career and Technical Academy late last month. The Junior Pee Wees will next travel to the New England Regionals competition on Saturday, Nov. 9 at the Springfield Mass Mutual Center.

The Barrington Midget and Pee Wee cheerleading teams also scored well at the division meet — both teams won first place in the Medium Level 2 Division. They were also selected Grand Champions for the event, which means they received the highest score for their group for all divisions and levels.

The Pee Wees and Midgets are heading to New England Regionals competition on Nov. 16 at the Springfield Mass Mutual Center.

Any team that places first at the Springfield competition will be on its way to Disney World in December.

Members of the Pee Wee squad are Linda Testa, Mackenzie Stephens, Maeve McQueary, Ashleigh Shuman, Jacqueline O'Hayre, Erin Jackson, Madison Abatecola, Sammy Alexander, Claire Pomfret, Kayla Testa, Jacqueline Rega-Costa, Tessa Sullivan, Jenna Scarella, Kerryn Moran, Ainsley Gasbarro, Haley Testa, Sarah Hughes, Bryn MacGillivray, Willow Egan, Grace Lardner and Ava McConnell.

Don Mar Mitey Mites shut out Fairhaven

Barrington team rolls to 20-0 victory

The Barrington Pop Warner Don Mar Mitey Mites football team blanked a team from Fairhaven, Mass., 20-0, recently.

On Barrington's first drive, which lasted three plays, quarterback Nate Cooperman scored a touchdown on a 55-yard sweep run. Seb St. Sauveur, Riley Greene, Matt Raffa, Beck Kegelmann and Joe Medeiros all had key blocks on the exciting touchdown play.

Barrington scored two more touchdowns in the victory. Quarterback Matt Raffa ran in a 17 yard bootleg — thanks to key blocks from Christopher DeSisto, Josavan Litthisack, Tyler Vieira and Brett White and a great fake by Riley Greene. On the third scoring drive, Luca Marino had a 17 yard run right before running back Beck Kegelmann scored on a 19-yard touchdown run. Beck carried four Fairhaven players into the end zone with him.

Fairhaven put together some good drives in the second half but the Eagles stopped them every time, largely due to sacks by Joe Medeiros, Nathan Cobery, Beck Kegelmann and Nate Cooperman. Key tackles by Troy Van Ness, Luca Marino, Adam Camille, Puck Arnone and Luke Van Ness also contributed to Barrington's shut out of Fairhaven.

"Great end to a fun season for the Barrington Mitey Mites!" said one of the team's supporters.

Marc Cedric Lowenstein

Award-winning architect, designer and builder

Marc Cedric Lowenstein, 74, died Sunday, Jan. 6, 2013, surrounded by his family. Born in the Bronx, a son of the late Seymour and Evelyn (Weingarten) Lowenstein, and brother of the late Alida Putterman, he had been a resident of Barrington since 1972. A graduate of Lehigh and RISD, he served as a coast guard reservist and was a passionate sailor and real-life "MacGyver."

Marc was an award-winning architect, designer and builder. Between 1972 and 1983, he designed and built more than 120 energy efficient site-specific projects across southern New England including eight in Barrington.

Marc was featured in several articles in the Providence Journal and often his designs of these homes are featured in local press whenever they come on the market. Marc was a pioneer in the field of solar architecture and, before suffering a life-altering stroke in 1983, built 18 active solar heated homes for which he received an award from the State of Rhode Island and the U.S. Department of Energy.

He is survived by his wife Rose-Mary (Donath) of 48 years and his children: Lisa, D. Mara and Ari Lowenstein all of NYC.

Claire Ann Murphy Gray

Leaves family in Barrington

Claire Ann Murphy Gray, 90, of Falmouth ("Teaticket"), Mass., formerly of Worcester, died Sunday, Oct. 27, 2013 in Falmouth surrounded by her family. The cause of Claire's death, of course, as always was life. What matters is her long life and how she lived it. She lived an authentic life for 90 years, raising her seven children, 22 grandchildren, and 10 great-grandchildren. Her passion for motherhood was profound. She carried it quietly with a turn of the century, old-fashioned grace of a grand lady.

Born the daughter of Bridget "Della" McCarthy, who emigrated from County Claire, Ireland at age 16, Claire graduated from Saint Peter's High School and Saint Vincent Hospital School of Nursing, both in Worcester. As a member of the Saint Vincent Alumni, she started her nursing career in the maternity and psychiatric practice where she was introduced to her husband of 50 years, John Harrison Gray, through love letters from 1945 when John was stationed in the Japanese Island of Okinawa with Army HQ 935th Engineers Aviation Regiment. Gray, also born of Irish parents from County Roscommon Ireland, passed away in 1998.

Claire continued nursing in private practice while raising seven children, Sean Joseph Gray (Falmouth, Mass.), Peter Murphy Gray (Barrington), Virginia Claire Ross (Provincetown, Mass.), Ann Marie Fattman (Sutton, Mass.), Mary Therese Christofferson (Hornbaek, Denmark), Margaret Mary McGreevy (Media, Pa.), and Dolores Gray Giorgio (Worcester, Mass.) Her cousin Jose Minter, who lived in Killimer, County

Claire Ireland, passed away earlier this year. Claire leaves behind many cousins in Ireland and Worcester, a sister, Joann Murphy Durkin of Worcester and Falmouth; Sister Marion Hogan and Brother Edward Murphy, both deceased. Claire was an avid knitter and seamstress, creating the most colorful clothes for her children. As a young child, she worked in her father's A&P Grocery Store, stocking shelves and working on the register.

A founding member family of Saint Charles Borromeo Catholic Church and Guild, she also volunteered her time as a member of Saint Patrick's Women's Guild, Nurses Guild of Worcester, and the Teaticket Association in Falmouth, Mass. She was a deeply spiritual lady who frequently taught prayers, particularly to Saint Anthony to locate lost items — including the various stashes of chocolates hidden at 7 Geneva Street, Worcester away from her adoring children!

Claire's faith gave her an uncanny tolerance for those who faltered as she always turned her attention to forgiveness. Her gift for hope and optimism was her tool set, which inspired those throughout her life. Her capacity for selfless love was profound. She also taught her family a great appreciation for the ocean and beaches of Falmouth, which she loved her entire life.

The funeral Mass was held Saturday, Nov. 2 in St. Mark's Church, Sutton, Mass. The burial was in St. John's Cemetery, Worcester, Mass. alongside her husband, John Gray. Athy Memorial Home in Worcester directed arrangements.

In lieu of flowers, Claire wished for donations to be made in memory of: Claire Ann Gray, JML Adult Day Health Center in Falmouth, 184 Terheun Drive, Falmouth, MA 02540 ATTN: Bobbee Frazer. This charity was close to our Mother's heart.

Joseph A. Lombardi

Retired Barrington Deputy Fire Chief

Joseph A. Lombardi, 84, of Oak Grove Avenue, a retired Barrington Deputy Fire Chief, died peacefully on Saturday, Nov. 2, 2013. He was the beloved husband of Ann S. (D'Alessandro) Lombardi.

A lifelong resident of Barrington, he was the son of the late Rocco and Antonette (Olivia) Lombardi.

Mr. Lombardi was a firefighter for the Barrington Fire Department for 34 years before retiring as Deputy Fire Chief in 1989.

Joseph was a communicant of Holy Angels Church. He served in the Rhode Island National Guard for 10 years. A mechanic, he enjoyed restoring Corvettes.

Besides his wife of 64 years, is survived by a son, Joseph A. Lombardi Jr. of Barrington; two daughters, Mary Ellen Souza of Dighton, Mass. and Kathleen Balasco of Barrington; five grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

His funeral was held on Tuesday, Nov. 5, 2013 from the W. Raymond Watson Funeral Home, 350 Willett Ave., Riverside with a Mass of Christian Burial in Holy Angels Church, Maple Avenue, Barrington. Burial will follow in Santa Maria del Campo Cemetery. www.wrwatsonfuneralhome.com

Dona Lycurgus

Very talented artist, excellent cook and baker

Dona (Bishop) Lycurgus, 84, of Sowams Road, Barrington, died peacefully on Saturday, Nov. 2, 2013 with her son Philip at her side.

Dona was born in Evanston, Ill., the daughter of the late Jean W. and Catharine Bishop. On Feb. 20, she married the late Nicholas Lycurgus.

Dona was an honor student at Niles Township Community High School in Skokie, Ill., graduating in 1947. After graduation, she attended Northwestern University and graduated in 1951 as an art major.

Dona leaves her two sons, Peter R. Lycurgus and wife Virginia, of Saratoga, Calif., and Philip N. Lycurgus at home as well as two grandchildren, Catie and Tim Lycurgus of Calif. She also leaves her brothers, David and Mars Bishop (Prudy) of Barrington.

Dona has been a time resident of Barrington. For many years, she was a school teacher in Seekonk, Mass. She valued her many teacher friends there and was always a most conscientious educator. She was an avid gardener and kept her home and yard in pristine condition. She was most loving and supportive of all of her sons' activities. Dona was a very talented artist and always made very beautiful and unique greeting cards for her family and friends. She was an excellent cook and baker and decorated her holiday cookies imaginatively. She was an extraordinary caregiver to her mother who passed away in 1991 after an extended illness. She was dearly loved by family and friends.

Relative and friends are invited to attend a graveside service at Forest Chapel Cemetery, Barrington, at 11 a.m. on Saturday Nov. 9.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Best Friends Animal Society in her memory and that of her beloved pet dog Bogsie at Kaleb Lane Kanab Utah 84741. Visit smithmason.com

Advocare Health Group is a supportive solution for senior care

Kathie Frattarelli, owner of Advocare Health Group, has walked the walk. When her mother was diagnosed with MS, the in-home care agencies provided was inconsistent and not always sympathetic to her mom's needs. It took a long time to get it right. Even at Kathie's young age, she knew there had to be a better way to develop a support system for those who needed care. Based on Kathie's own personal experience, she formed Advocare Health Group three years ago, determined to bring to provide effective caregivers who are warm, compassionate and professional. Today Advocare provides non-medical caregiver services to the elderly and special needs adults requiring extra support throughout all of Rhode Island and Southeastern Massachusetts. Personalized care plans are customized to the individual with services available for as little as two to 24 hours a day, on a short or long-term basis. Whether it's driving a loved one to appointments, preparing meals, helping with hobbies, pet care, grocery shopping, or providing enjoyable companionship, caregivers help maintain daily routines and lifestyles. In most cases, caregivers work as a team in the same home until services are no longer needed. It's what sets Advocare Health Group apart from other caregiver agencies. "Really, we do whatever needs to be done, whether in a home or other type of assisted or nursing facility, and strive to provide a consistency in care so caregivers become like family members," she says. And Kathie knows just the kind of who will fill the bill when families face difficult circumstances that require a trusted caregiver and advocate. "I know what I'm looking for," she says. Her exceptional group of insured and

Kathie Frattarelli with her mom, Nancy, who was the inspiration for the founding of Advocare Health Group bonded caregivers includes retired school teachers and professionals, as well as others who have spent years working with the elderly. All go beyond handling basic needs by improving spirits and advocating for safety and well-being. "It's a matchmaking situation," says Kathie of finding the right caregiver for a particular person. "We take into account interests and personalities when we put together a team," she says. "It's a wonderful feeling to see it all come together," she adds. "My staff sees caring as a calling." If you have loved ones who might benefit from this specialized care, give Kathie a call to discuss the circumstances. It's a first step to create the right support system.

Barrington resident is a musical missionary

Ken Totushek travels to foreign lands to spread his faith through music

BY JOSH BICKFORD

jbickford@eastbaynewspapers.com

Ken Totushek was playing a show inside a small club in Osaka, Japan, when a young man approached him in between sets.

It was clear to Ken that the young man, a Japanese citizen, did not have much money, but he insisted that Ken, a tall, lanky American who wears glasses and a short-cropped goatee, accept the two 500 yen coins — worth about $12 in U.S. currency.

Mr. Totushek, a longtime Barrington resident who had traveled to Japan many times for work, hesitated. Part of his performance that night was done to raise money for the production of a Japanese movie called “Two Criminals,” which tells the story of two members of the Yakuza who find God in Jesus Christ and, against all odds, are allowed to leave Japanese crime organization.

Mr. Totushek looked at the Japanese man holding coins in his hand and considered how important that money was to him. It was a powerful moment.

“You can see the heart of Ken’s music come through when he plays,” said Kathy Totushek, Ken’s wife. She had been at the club that night watching the show and found herself struck by the encounter.

Ms. Totushek said her husband’s music has a way of touching people, connecting with individuals from different walks of life, different cultures, different backgrounds. She said it crosses lines and makes its way to people’s hearts.

“There’s an energy about it,” she said.

It could be the music, and it could be the message.

Mr. Totushek sings mostly about his faith, about Christ. He

RICHARD W. DIONNE JR.

Barrington resident Ken Totushek has produced six CDs, the latest is “Real Life Stuff — Hope’s Alive!” If you want to hear some of his music, read about his work, or view videos of him playing, visit www.kentotushek.com.

sings about trying times and life’s challenges, and the strength that faith provides to help people overcome those hard, often painful moments.

For the last couple of years, Mr. Totushek has been serving as a musical missionary, sharing songs like “Your Mighty Love For Me,” “Create In Me,” “Tsunami Prayer,” “Amazing Grace” and “Lord Over All” with people in the Middle East and Japan.

At each show, Mr. Totushek hopes the notes and lyrics find a home inside someone looking for inspiration or someone looking for relief from life’s problems. The Hampden Meadows resident has had his share of challenges, including the loss of his first wife, Jennifer, to cancer in the fall of

The two met when they were young and living in Minnesota. They eventually married and settled in Barrington; Jennifer’s father owned a company in Fall River. Mr. Totushek went to work for the company and eventually became CEO. And while life happened — children, work, responsibilities — Mr. Totushek’s love for music remained an interest, a hobby, a pursuit.

In 1994, he produced his first CD, “For The Rest of Your Life,” and released his second, “Pilgrim Song,” in 2001. He has produced six CDs, his latest “Real Life Stuff — Hope’s Alive!”, came out this year.

Shortly after Jennifer died, Mr. Totushek leaned heavily on his guitar while grieving. He contacted friends and family and others who knew his wife and invited them to his house for small, living room concerts. He would play songs and sometimes talk about Jennifer and often listen to others recall stories. He watched as people mourned her passing.

“I think it was very healthy. It really helped with the grieving process,” he said, adding that the concerts made him more comfortable with the idea of performing in front of others.

Shortly after losing Jennifer, Mr. Totushek reunited with Kathy, who had coincidentally lost her husband to the same form of cancer. She knew Ken from years earlier when her family lived in Barrington, but had since moved out of the state.

The two shared heartfelt conversations over the phone and before long had built their own relationship. They married and now spend some of their time traveling to areas of the world where Christianity can get people in trouble. The experiences in foreign lands have deeply affected the local couple.

“I think the music opens you up. It can be a comfort to people,” Ms. Totushek said.

Recently, the Totusheks traveled to Japan. Ken was one of the musicians honored at the Kansai Music Conference in Osaka. He received one of the two Kansai Music Conference 2013 “Building Bridges with Music” awards.

RWU junior Jason Rosa with some of the musical instruments he has collected for Rhode Island foster children.

Local student brings music into foster kids' lives

BY CHRISTY NADALIN
cnadalin@eastbaynewspapers.com

When Roger Williams University junior Jason Rosa landed an interview this past summer with national non-profit Together We Rise, an organization dedicated to improving the lives of foster children in America, he made sure he was going in prepared.

While researching the organization and the challenges that kids in foster care face every day, Jason learned that while Together We Rise had a variety of programs aimed at providing foster children with a sense of normalcy and belonging through sports, they had yet to explore what positive impact music might have. As someone who finds playing guitar and the keyboard to be an enjoyable outlet in his own life, Jason saw an immediate opportunity to help Together We Rise add a music-focused program to its arsenal.

Jason is now fundraising, with the goal of raising $3,000 by the end of the semester in both monetary and instrument donations from local music shops and vendors, so that more local foster youth can learn how to play an instrument or simply have fun with music.

All of the fundraising will go towards children in Rhode Island foster homes.

Among the facts Jason learned about the more than 2,500 foster children in Rhode Island (nearly 300 of whom are waiting for someone to adopt them): some 50 percent of foster children under the age of 5 have developmental delays, while 80 percent of children in foster care have serious emotional problems. As a result, when these children "age out" of the system, they are highly likely to become homeless, ill, unemployed, and incarcerated, among other poor outcomes.

Jazz legend Freddy Cole coming to RWU

The public is welcome to attend an intimate, free performance featuring the Freddy Cole Quartet with Harry Allen

With his "gorgeous autumnal baritone, expressive phrasing and pitch-perfect feel for jazz standards, pop tunes and love ballads," (People magazine) jazz legend Freddy Cole has been captivating audiences around the world since the 1950s.

Born into a life of music, Cole followed in the footsteps of his three older brothers, including fellow legend Nat King Cole. Recalling his childhood in Chicago, where celebrated musicians Duke Ellington, Count Basie and Lionel Hampton were frequent visitors to his parents' home, the 82-year-old performer recalls: "Music was all around me."

After studying at the Roosevelt Institute, the Julliard School of Music, and the New

"Wild: From Lost to Found on the Pacific Crest Trail" By Cheryl Strayed

The author of this book, Cheryl Strayed, was wild with rage, anger and pain following the loss of her mother, who succumbed to cancer at age 45. Growing up in a poverty-stricken, fractured family that constantly moved from one shabby place to another, the author had been torn by conflicting emotions for most of her young life. Totally adrift, disgusted and disillusioned with the path her life had taken, including one-night stands with men she barely knew, alcohol and drug use, she was at a breaking point when she happened upon a guide book about hiking the Pacific Crest Trail. Hardly prepared either physically or emotionally for such an arduous expedition, she nonetheless felt she had nothing more to lose. So during her punishing, grueling, tortured hike over extremely rough terrain—dry creek beds and jagged gullies; scorching temperatures reaching over 100 degrees. But it was tempered by majestic mountains, towering trees, and gurgling brooks. This treacherous and dangerous undertaking includes encounters with black bears and rattlesnakes, and she even loses her hiking boots over the side of the mountain. Her extremely heavy backpack, which becomes an appendage she names "The Monster," cuts into her hips, shoulders, and tailbone, rubbing them raw. Her feet develop painful, bleeding blisters. At one point she has no source of water and becomes seriously dehydrated.

Read this heart-rending account of how this ordeal in the wild is curative, setting her on the right track both literally and figuratively, so that at its end she is able to say that the hole in her heart feels "infinitesimally smaller."

opportunity; bias and bigotry.

Despite her total lack of role models to emulate, she knew at a very young age that education was paramount to success and applied herself with relentless hours to that end. One rather interesting memory from her childhood was her love of the Perry Mason TV series where she was first introduced to the world of courts and lawyers. Even at that young age, it was the role of the judge—calm, impartial, in control—that most appealed to her. Eventually her devotion to study led to scholarships to a number of Ivy League institutions.

Eventually she chose Princeton, but even there she felt that she did not belong; that she was "a stranger in a strange land." She worked harder and harder to compensate for what she knew to be the gaps in her background.

More troubling for her than these deficiencies, which she compensated for by studying grammar texts and learning ten new vocabulary words each day, were the cultural gaps. She had never seen the richness of Oriental carpets, the smart and expensive attire of most of her classmates, the ease with which they mixed socially, their European travel and trust funds. Even as an accomplished adult many years later, she retained this sense of inferiority when surrounded by wealth and prestige.

Fortunately, Ms. Sotomayor had the strength of character, the wisdom gained from a lifetime of adversity, the innate intelligence, determination and work ethic to not only overcome such limitations of background, but to succeed to the high level of appointment to the United States Supreme Court. She is a living example of The American Dream at its best.

"Quiet: The Power of Introverts in a World That Can't Stop Talking" By Susan Cain

Do you prefer to listen more than talk; to while away an evening curled up with a book rather than accept an invitation to a party? Do you prefer to work on tasks alone, preferably in a closed room rather than brainstorm strategies in a group with colleagues? Are you highly empathetic to others' distress and react keenly to injustice, feel extreme emotions, deplore small talk, have a strong conscience? If so, you may be among the one-third to one-half of those often referred to as introverts. Some mothers become very concerned when their child appears shy or timid when encountering new people and new situations, or when the child's teacher notices his tendency to avoid social interaction with others. The predominant message in this book is that such a child is okay; that there is nothing wrong with these traits in and of themselves. Don't think of such "introversion" as something that needs to be cured. Some of the most successful people in the world are/were introverts, including Charles Schwab, Bill Gates, Brenda Barnes, Albert Einstein, Mahatma Gandhi, and Dale Carnegie.

Cain asserts that today there is a bias against quiet people, that they are often mistakenly considered hermits or misanthropes since ours is an outwardly oriented society.

Extremely interesting are the many studies she cites, particularly that of Jerome Kagan, a leading Harvard researcher who studied infants' brains and behaviors at birth and whose work was picked up by his protege, Dr. Carl Schwartz at Massachusetts General Hospital. Their studies support the premise that introversion and extroversion are physiologically, even genetically based. Moreover, Schwartz's studies indicate that high or low reactive temperaments do not disappear in adulthood; that is, a bold or timid personality does not essentially disappear as one matures. Rather the individual can learn strategies to cope with these tendencies.

"My Beloved World" By Sonia Sotomayor

This is an inspiring story of not only survival, but also amazing achievement. Born in a poor neighborhood where prostitution, gangs, and drug use were rampant, Sonia Sotomayor also suffered from an extremely unhappy home environment full of turmoil and recrimination. Hers was the humblest of beginnings, further disadvantaged by her father's alcoholism. While such adversity might have covered a less resilient and independent child, in Sonia it heightened her awareness of behavior and its consequences, and the problems inherent in poverty and lack of

🍎 Holiday Helpers 🍎

The holidays are fast approaching, and some people need some help to “make things merry and bright.” There are local families who have trouble making ends meet even during the summer months. With the arrival of cold weather, heating costs and other bills can overwhelm the budget, making holiday spending a rare treat. And, spokesmen for groups that help those in need are seeing a marked increase in the number of those seeking aid this year.

Make the season more meaningful and celebrate the spirit of the holidays by giving to someone in need. We will print Holiday Helpers right through Hanukkah and Christmas. To send a listing for Holiday Helpers, e-mail it to lrego@eastbaynewspapers.com; mail it to Lynda Rego, East Bay Newspapers, P.O. Box 90, Bristol, RI 02809, or fax it to 401/253-6055.

Coats for Kids

Troubled children can stay warm with your help this winter. Aquidneck Chiropractic is hosting a Coats for Kids drive through Saturday, Nov. 9. Drop off a new or gently used clean coat in good condition, and they will distribute them to The Florence Grey Center and Lucy's Hearth, who will give them to kids in need or crisis.

For questions or directions, call Aquidneck Chiropractic at 401/849-7011.

Blanket drive

The Bristol Rotary Club is holding its annual Blanket Drive now through the end of November. As the winter chill arrives, there is a great need for blankets and everyone wants to be cozy for the holidays. All blankets will be donated to local charities. Blankets can be dropped off at the Century 21 Rondeau office at 729 Hope St., Bristol, daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Lucy's Hearth seeking help

Lucy's Hearth, a Middletown shelter for homeless mothers and their children, usually assists over 400 women and children at Thanksgiving and Christmas. Program Director Jennifer Barrera expects this year will be more of a challenge. “We started getting phone calls for help back in September. More people need assistance to make it through the holidays, especially at Christmas because of the economy.”

For Thanksgiving, Lucy's Hearth is seeking vouchers to purchase turkeys at supermarkets. The shelter is also accepting non-perishable food. For Christmas, they need gift cards to local stores in the $10 to $50 range. It is also looking for companies and individuals to adopt families.

Community members interested in providing Thanksgiving or Christmas assistance or volunteering can call 401/847-2021.

A holiday giving tree is a popular way to include others in a charitable drive.

Adopt A Family Program

The East Bay Community Action Program is organizing the 24th annual Adopt-a-Family Program. Local businesses, families, scout troops, classrooms and community organizations are urged to participate by adopting a family.

Donors choose the size of the family they wish to adopt. Recipient families fill out a gift suggestion list with sizes for clothing and toy requests from each child, and this is passed along anonymously to the donor. In turn, each business or group collects gifts, or collects donations from their employees or members toward a fund to purchase the wished-for gifts, which are then wrapped for giving.

If you would like to participate, or if you would like to provide for a single child instead of a family, contact CAP's Office of Civic Engagement at 401/435-7876.

POLI-TICKS

Taveras takes cheap shot on Raimondo

I love competitive political races, so I was gratified by the entry of Providence Mayor Angel Taveras and former candidate Ken Block into the gubernatorial contest. Mayor Taveras, however, took a cheap shot at General Treasurer Gina Raimondo by intimating that she was beholden to Wall Street while he was only answerable to “Main Street.” He has a heck of a nerve castigating her.

His obvious reference was to the flack that the General Treasurer has been taking because of the state investments in hedge funds. Male journalists have been doing investigative reports about her investments in this vehicle. There has been nary a peep from these scribes about Mr. Taveras' own walk down Wall Street with the Providence Investment Commission, which totally overshadows her sally onto “The Street.” In the May 23, 2013 report provided to the Providence Investment Commission, the retirement assets of Providence employees in hedge funds was 19.2 percent—dwarfing the 12.5 percent that the State Investment Commission has put into hedge funds. The Providence Investment folks have also allocated 1.3% in private equity, including Point Judith Venture Equity. If the mere investment percentages mean one is beholden to Wall Street, Mr. Taveras would be the champ chump.

Apparently, anticipating that he was going to announce for Governor, he has tried to reduce this exposure so he could throw brickbats at Ms. Raimondo. On September 30 hedge fund investments in Providence were at 16.6—still higher than the state's allocation. On October 22, right before his announcement, the Commission dumped some investments to bring the total to 14 percent, with private equity at 1 percent.

With the state firefighters endorsing Mr. Taveras, despite his ties to Wall Street being stronger than Ms. Raimondo's, one can see that the real issue is actually about her drive for pension reform. The irony of this attack is that she should actually be thanked for making sure that public employees have a pot of gold at their end of the rainbow. Younger people in the public sector system were going to find straw dust instead.

Hedge funds are a tool which most prudent investors use. These funds are supposed to stabilize investments since they usually go up when the market goes down. All of us are familiar with the expression of “hedging a bet,” which makes a lot of sense. Casting opprobrium on the use of one tool in the toolbox is just plain foolish.

I suspect something else is in play by these good old boys. They hate the thought of a successful and smart woman who doesn't kowtow to their “brilliance.” Ms. Raimondo deserves the accolades of all of us in the private and public sector for averting a disaster, something the boys club had failed to do for years. Now they just want to take her out for her audacity in promoting reform.

Mr. Taveras will, no doubt, revert to innuendo about her receiving funds from outsiders—despite her policy of not accepting donations from those investment managers who do business with the state treasurer's office. One has to wonder whether his lackluster fundraising is really about envy.

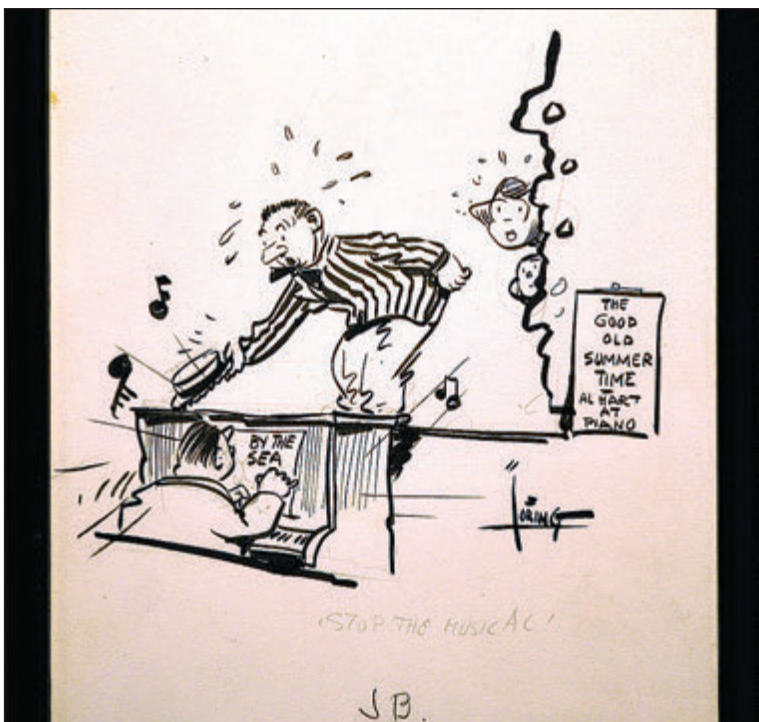

I hope the foolishness of the “boys” club ceases and that the challengers and their proxies can begin to address the real issues facing this state, as opposed to the concocted issues. Then again, maybe they don't have anything to say.

TRASH OR TREASURE

Local pianist's 50-year-old performance immortalized by renowned artist

Q. I have an original cartoon done by Paule Loring, who did work for the Providence Journal among other papers. The cartoon depicts my father, Al Hart, playing the piano for a PTA production of, "It's So Peaceful In the Country," in Little Compton.

It seems the original accompanist went missing a few days before the show opened so they called in my father to the rescue. And he started to play the wrong song. Then the music had to stop! (which is also the title of the cartoon).

I would like to know what the original drawing is worth. The article from the paper describing the story is pasted onto the back of the frame and my mother wrote in the date of May 9, 1963.

A. Paule Stetson Loring (1899-1968) was an internationally known artist known for his caricatures and watercolor seascapes. His career began as a World War II correspondent which led to a long career as a political cartoonist for the Providence Journal-Bulletin. His work became well known and his cartoons were in many newspapers and magazines around the country. He retired to Wickford, Rhode Island in 1963 where he built a sailboat and gave art lessons in his studio called "Loring's Sea Shanty." A large collection of his work was donated to the University of Rhode Island Library by his widow.

His cartoons generally sell in the $125 range at auction. The politically controversial cartoons depicting subjects like Hitler appeal to a larger audience.

DEM seeks public comment; tautog fishery heating up

The Division of Fish and Wildlife of the Department of Environmental Management (DEM) will solicit public comment on a variety of management plan proposals at 6 p.m. on Tuesday, November 19, at the University of Rhode Island

Capt. Dave MONTI

Bay Campus, Corless Auditorium, South Ferry Road, Narragansett. Written comments concerning the regulations proposed by DEM may be submitted to the Division of Fish and Wildlife, 3 Fort Wetherill Road, Jamestown, RI 02835 no later than noon on November 19.

Recreational fishing big business in US

The American Sportfishing Association (ASA) held their annual summit in Florida and a key focus was the state of the industry. Michael Nussman, ASA president and CEO, said "According to the latest U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service national study, America's anglers spend $48 billion per year on fishing equipment, transportation, lodging and other expenses associated with fishing." Other agenda items discussed at the summit included challenges and opportunities facing fisheries management as well as the latest trends and insights from customers regarding recreational fishing. For additional information visit www.asafishing.org.

Where's the bite

Bonito. Matt Conti of Snug Harbor Marina, South Kingstown said, "Customers are still catching bonito along the southern coastal shore mixed in with bluefish and striped bass." Ken Landry of Ray's Bait & Tackle, Warwick said, "One of my customers was trying to reach what he thought were bonito to at the mouth of the Narrow River in Narragansett Sunday. The fish were breaking just beyond his casting range from shore."

Striped bass fishing has slowed off Block Island, according to Conti. "A few fish are being caught on the southwest side of Block Island, however, anglers along the southern coastal shore continue to land school bass in the 26" range," he said. Dave Henault of Ocean State Tackle, Providence, said, "Ivan Brown of Texas fished Beavertail Point this weekend and landed a 39", 18-pound striped bass." John Littlefield of Archie's Bait & Tackle, East Providence, said "School bass and bluefish continue to be caught in the Providence River off Sabin Point and further north around the Hurricane Barrier and Hemingway's Restaurant."

Tautog fishing was by far the species target by most anglers this week. "The Brenton Reef area off Newport has been very good," said Conti. "Tautog fishing has been very good at Seal Ledge and around can number two and four off Newport, with a fair bite at Coddington Cove, Middletown," said Landry. In Narragansett Bay, "Anglers are finding fish at Rocky Point, at the day marker in the Warren River and at Conimicut Light with keeper fish in the six to eight pound range. The ratio was one keeper to every seven or eight fish which is a lot better than it has been the past couple of weeks," said Littlefield. Dave Henault and Cody Trostel fished for tautog off Little Compton and in the Horse-neck Beach area this week aboard Bounty Hunter Charters. Henault said, "Our party landed about 100 tautog and out of that about 36 were keepers, with my heaviest weighing nine pounds three ounces." Roger Simpson of the Francis Fleet said, "Tautog of eleven and ten pounds were recorded this past week as well as a few others in the seven and eight pound range. It is very early still and the waters are on the warm side so as things cool down this fishery will continue to improve."

Offshore fishing was good this week when the weather was warm and seas calm enough to get out. "Yellow fin tuna were caught at the canyons early this week and anglers are expected to fish offshore again this week as weather permits," said Conti.

Fresh water fishing anglers were buying shiners at Ray's Bait & Tackle this weekend targeting bass and trout in ponds stocked by DEM (visit www.dem.ri.gov for a listing of stocked ponds and lakes). Littlefield said, "Sunday morning one of my customers caught a six pound largemouth bass at the Brickyard in Barrington, on the Legion side. He was using shiners for bait."

Let's hear it for the clubhouse guys

Now that we've gotten a little rest and a little perspective, I think 2013 could be the best Red Sox season ever. I wasn't around for the Impossible Dream team in 1967 or really aware of the great 1975 team, but let's face it, if you don't win the World Series, the season ends on a down note. 2004 was fantastic — and the only season that might come close to this one — but the great moments of 2004 were more about vanquishing the Yankees in the ALCS than mowing down the Cardinals. While the storyline in 2004 was about overcoming a curse (and the dreaded Yankees), this year was supposed to be about rebuilding: mixing rookies with "clubhouse guys" and hoping to compete with the talent-laden teams in the AL East. The 2013 World Champion Red Sox defied expectations and by all accounts, developed into an all-clubhouse team, winning with grit and playing with maximum effort each day.

Cara CROMWELL

I usually use this space to call someone out or criticize a political move, but I'm going to rip a page out of the 2013 Red Sox book and do something unexpected: I'm going to be nice. Rhode Island is really lucky to have Jack Reed as one of our U.S. Senators. When the John Chafee/Claiborne Pell era ended, some folks, myself included, were concerned that Rhode Island would get lost in the small state shuffle without those senior members of the Senate to speak up for us. Other states have senators that are more high-profile and more media-hungry (think Chuck Schumer and Ted Cruz) to raise their states' concerns but Senator Reed keeps a far lower profile and focuses on what needs to be done. While he's never done a turn on the late night talk shows, he's certainly had a go-to resource for the Sunday morning hosts who want to interview serious policy makers who can look beyond the politics to talk substance. As a constituent I appreciate that he's well-informed—even if I don't agree with some of his votes—but I'm actually a fan because he's a clubhouse guy.

When I was working on the Sundlun campaign in 1990, then State Senator Jack Reed was running for Congress. After the primary, the democratic candidates would meet periodically for coordinated campaign meetings. One fall morning I was unloading boxes of campaign materials out of my trunk just before one of these meetings. Several of my male co-workers walked by, said hello and walked into the meeting. As I was unloading the last box, a man I didn't know stopped and asked if he could carry the box for me. I declined since it was the last one, but he waited and opened the door to the office, while introducing himself. I remember thinking, "Nice guy, that Jack Reed. I wonder if he'll beat Trudy Coxe."

A generation later, that same nice guy—now Rhode Island's senior U.S. Senator—came to Bristol to swear in the new Colt-Andrews Elementary Student Government. He led twenty-five serious little faces through their oath to "be respectful and responsible" and "uphold the honor" of their school. He spoke about how important it was to be honest and to work hard and then congratulated each child on his or her election. Although this group of constituents is still ten years away from casting a ballot, Senator Reed shook every hand and posed for every photo, never looking for the exit or talking about the next thing on his schedule.

So Texas can have both Nelson and Ted Cruz and New York can certainly keep A-Rod and Chuck Schumer. We're happy here with clubhouse guys like Jonny Gomes and Jack Reed—and we understand just how lucky we are.

MUSIC: RWU junior brings music to foster children

An imperfect safety net may exacerbate a foster child's struggle to achieve normalcy. "Most of the time, kids moving between homes can only take two garbage bags of belongings with them," Jason says. (Another Together We Rise initiative, "Sweetcases," is seeking to address that, distributing duffel bags packed with a blanket, toiletries, books and a pillow pet to foster children—learn more at www.togetherwerise.org/projects/sweetcases.)

When pitching his project to Together We Rise, Jason listed a number of benefits of learning to play an instrument, including fostering self-expression; teaching discipline, responsibility, and perseverance; and relieving stress, anger management, and depression.

Playing music wasn't always something Jason did, while growing up in Cranston and graduating from Cranston West. In fact, he

How to help:

Jason is accepting monetary and equipment donations, via a fundraising page: <https://www.fundraise.com/together-we-rise-corporation/musical-instruments-for-foster-children>. He can also be reached through his project Facebook page: <https://www.facebook.com/musicforfosterhomes?ref=hl>, his email: jrosa838@rwu.edu; or his cell: 401/654-9843.

only picked up the guitar four years ago—and the piano last year. Surprisingly, he's never even taken a traditional lesson, per se: "I basically learned how to play the guitar off YouTube," he says.

For Jason, who wants to go into digital marketing after graduation, this project is more than a little personal. As a child, he dealt with stress and anxiety through sports and exercise, but found that wasn't enough. "I started playing the guitar during the summer of my junior year in high school after my friend had taught me some basic songs," he says. "That Christmas I asked my parents for a guitar and I haven't looked back since—and my grades dramatically improved the more I played." Jason also credits the guitar with helping him overcome a tendency toward shyness.

"Music has made such a positive impact in my life," he says. "I believe it is so important that kids get to experience the beauty that is music. With foster kids facing more problems and adversity than the average child, I believe it is necessary that they get the opportunity to express themselves in a positive way."

Fall is scotch-drinking weather

BY BRIAN "THE BEER GUY" BUONGIOVANNI

Fall is in full swing, and just as the seasons change, so do drinking habits. White wine drinkers are turning to reds, beer drinkers are reaching for darker, stronger beers, and spirits drinkers are making the remarkable switch to single malt scotch.

I know you all anticipated an article on...well...beer! But I'd be remiss to leave out the mention of single malt scotches for the autumn.

Spirits can be a confusing market to follow, and when you're standing in the liquor store staring at a wall of beautifully decorated bottles marked Scotch, Rye, Blended and so on it can be difficult to discern which one contains the libation best suited to your personal taste.

Let's begin with the most basic question: What is a single malt scotch? According to our friend, The Internet: "Single Malt Scotch is single malt whisky made in Scotland using a pot still distillation process at a single distillery, with malted barley [yes, the same as beer!] as the only grain ingredient. As with any Scotch whisky, a single malt Scotch must be distilled in Scotland and matured in oak casks for at least three years (most single malts are matured longer).

'Malt' indicates that the whisky is distilled from a 'malted' grain. Several types of grains can be malted (for example, barley, rye and wheat are all grains which can be malted); however, in the case of single malt Scotch, barley is always the only grain used.

'Single' indicates that all the malts in the bottle come from a single distillery. Bottlings containing malt whisky from multiple distilleries are called 'blended malt'.

And why are single malts popular during the cooler seasons? Quite simply it's a heavy spirit that is enjoyed for its substantial body and warming effect. Not something suited for hotter weather when you typically want something cool, light and refreshing.

One of the most distinctive qualities of a single malt scotch is the region of origin. Each region in Scotland produces a product that has its own unique flavor, aroma and finish. There are four primary regions in Scotland: Islay, Lowland, Campbeltown and Highland (which also contains the two subdivisions: Island and Speyside.)

The next time you're in a liquor store take a moment to look at the single malt labels. You'll notice that the region of origin is prominently displayed. Some of these regions produce more of a peat flavor, while others bring an intense aroma to their scotch.

The amount of time a single malt spends aging in its respective barrel also lends to its characteristics. When you read a label like "Glenlivet 12" or "Macallan 18" the number after the name of the distillery indicates the number of years that scotch has been aged. The more time a scotch spends in the barrel, the smoother it becomes and the more characteristics of the oak are imparted onto the drink. Naturally more time put into the production comes with a higher cost for the final product.

Some single malts are finished in different casks to impart various notes onto the Scotch. Sauternes, sherry or port casks can be used to deliver some sweetness, while rum casks are used to accent the vanilla notes in the final product.

When it comes time to enjoy a single malt scotch there are many different characteristics which add to the experience. The water and barley from each Scottish region imparts its own unique characteristics while the creative use of varying casks will alter the flavor in countless other ways.

Your best bet is to sample single malt scotches from various regions to find the flavor best suited for you. And most importantly, have fun with it.

Cheers!

Spectacular squash, in season

Winter squash are a family of squash commonly seen in the fall and winter seasons. They have hard skins for protection from cold weather and firm flesh that can be used in side dishes, entrees, and desserts. There are many varieties, all of which are rich in fiber, and vitamins A and C.

Emily DELCONTE

They also contain healthy omega-

3 fats and high levels of antioxidants that are beneficial for cardiovascular health.

Although winter squash may look intimidating to peel and cook, they are quite easy to prepare. Most squash do not need to be peeled at all- the flesh can be scooped out after cooking. Simply slice the squash in half lengthwise, remove the seeds and try:

■ Roasting: Place flesh side down in a baking pan with a little bit of water and bake for about 45 minutes.

■ Microwaving: Place flesh side down in a microwave safe dish and cook for about 15 minutes.

■ Steaming: Peel and chop into cubes and steam for 7-10 minutes.

Since every winter squash has a unique flavor it can be difficult to decide which one to try. Follow the tips below to select and use the right squash for you:

■ Acorn Squash:

• Selection: Choose one with orange and green skin. When cut open, it will have yellow flesh that is slightly sweet.

• How to Use: Try cutting it in

Fall brings apples, apples mean pie

BY LYNDA REGO

lrego@eastbaynewspapers.com

I make one or two apple pies each fall to herald the arrival of the autumn leaves, nippy temperatures and crisp apples lining the shelves at the grocery store or farmers' market.

I've been tweaking this recipe for years, trying different types of apples and amounts of sugar. The Fuji has become my apple of choice in the last year or two. They are crisp right through the winter, are sweet to eat, and bake up nicely in all types of sweet and savory dishes.

This pie is finally just right. Juicy, but not so juicy that the crust gets soggy; not too sweet, and with a nice texture to the apples.

Apple Pie

Makes a 9- to 10-inch pie

■ 7 large Fuji apples, peeled and sliced

Dot the top of the filling with bits of unsalted butter before covering it with the top crust.

■ 1 large Macintosh apple, peeled and sliced (keep separate)

- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/8 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons unsalted butter
- Pastry for a two-crust pie
- Milk and raw sugar

Place the Fuji apple slices on a rack set in a jelly roll pan and bake for 20 minutes in a 375°F oven. Set aside to cool. Raise oven temperature to 425°F.

half and roasting with a little bit of cinnamon or maple syrup for a sweet treat.

- Butternut Squash:
  - Selection: Look for one with cream colored skin, free of any bruises.
  - How to Use: It's deep orange flesh can be blended into soups or mashed as a side dish.
- Delicata Squash:
  - Selection: Choose squash with yellow and green skin.
  - How to Use: It's deep yellow flesh is not as sweet as others so it is best used in savory side dishes.
- Spaghetti Squash:
  - Selection: Look for one with cream colored skin.
  - How to Use: Cut it in half, scoop out the seeds and bake until flesh is soft. When you scrape out the bright yellow flesh it has a spaghetti-like form that is perfect for tossing in your favorite sauce as a substitute for pasta.

Spaghetti squash with apples & pecans

- Makes eight 1/2 cup servings.
- 3 pounds spaghetti squash
  - 2 tbsp. extra virgin olive oil
  - 1 tbsp. + 1 tsp. apple cider vinegar
  - Pinch salt (optional)
  - 2 Gala apples, chopped with skins on
  - 1/2 cup pecans, coarsely chopped
  - 3 green onions, chopped
1. Using a large, sharp knife, pierce the spaghetti squash in several places. Place in a glass baking dish and cook in the microwave, on high,

- for 15 minutes. Turn halfway through cooking.
2. Let stand 10 minutes before handling.
  3. Carefully cut spaghetti squash in half lengthwise. Scrape out the seeds and discard. Using a fork, twist out the strands of the spaghetti squash flesh and place in a large bowl to cool.
  4. In a small bowl, whisk together the olive oil, vinegar, and salt. Pour over the cooled spaghetti squash and toss.
  5. Add pecans, apples, and green onions. Stir well.
  6. Serve cold and enjoy!

and Rhode Islander Harry Allen is renowned locally, nationally and even internationally. We are thrilled to host them and look forward to a memorable, world-class event.”

Cole is often compared to his older brother, Nat King Cole – both sing and play piano, upright bass and guitar – but critics describe Freddy Cole’s phrasing as more akin to Frank Sinatra and Billie Holiday and his vocals as smokier yet suave, elegant and formidable. According to the New York Times, “Freddy has an impeccable sense of swing ... he is, overall, the most maturely expressive male jazz singer of his generation, if not the best alive.”

The Biomechanics of Productivity

by Don Levine, DPT

So, what is a Physical Therapist (PT) and how can one help improve productivity?

Great question! The job of a PT is to restore or improve function. At Olympic PT, we take that one step further by actively studying and applying the biomechanics of function. Since the body is made up of a series of links, we call this the study of chain reaction biomechanics.

How does chain reaction biomechanics affect you and your business?

Every functional activity has a set of motions required in order to perform effectively and efficiently. These motions may occur from the ground up (like stepping or lunging) or from the top down (like turning to reach for an object). And, often our activities are made up of a combination of the two. We can only be successful if our bodies have the motion and strength, in all the parts necessary, to perform the task.

Let’s look at a golfer as an example. In order to swing the club proficiently, all of the joints and muscles of the body need to do their specific job. If we think about the body as a bunch of teammates, it is easy to see that if one team member is not performing their role, someone else is forced to do extra. This is when we start to break down. The same is true in our work life. If you are a sales rep who has to reach into your trunk for supplies, you had better have the flexibility in the hamstrings, or your back is going to have to take up the slack. After time, as the back makes up for the “weak teammate”, breakdown will start to occur and pain and dysfunction will begin. So, even though my complaint is back pain, my problem is in the flexibility of my hamstrings.

In other cases, prolonged work postures, such as sitting at a computer for hours, can effectively shorten some muscles

(such as hips) and overstretch others (shoulder blades). Over time, this can lead to painful symptoms. And, just like in the case of the sales rep, pain and symptoms can lead to dysfunction. And, dysfunction means that we are not able to perform our roles effectively or efficiently. And furthermore, just as our teammates in our bodies need to function together to perform a task, so do the individuals in a work team. When one member is not able to “pull their weight”, others will have to take up the slack to meet the job task. This will affect both morale and productivity!

So, how can a PT improve your productivity? Individually, we can find your “weak teammates” and develop a plan to address them. We can also look at the big picture of the specific tasks of a job to determine the chain reaction biomechanics necessary for optimal performance. Employers and employees armed with this knowledge will perform better because they understand the biomechanics of productivity.

DON LEVINE, PT, DPT, FAFS is the Co-Owner of Olympic Physical Therapy and Sports Medicine, Inc., with five locations in Rhode Island specializing in rehabilitation and sports performance. Olympic PT combines expertise in biomechanics with knowledge of how the body works as an entire chain to provide the right care to decrease pain and improve function. Our practice was recognized with The Newport Chamber of Commerce Small Business of the Year Award in 2007. For more information, visit <http://olympicpt-ri.com>. ## MEET Steven Scott: SAILOR, SKIER AND SEASONED VOLUNTEER

BY JOAN D. WARREN

Steven Scott lived in Barrington until 2012 and now lives in Bristol. He was educated in the Barrington school system and attended Franklin Pierce University in Rindge, N.H., majoring in economics and management.

A baseball player, he was inducted into Franklin Pierce University Athletic Hall of Fame and awarded the distinguished service award. He also served on the Alumni Executive Board of Directors at his alma mater.

Steve worked for Red Farm Studio from 1979 to 2006, Brickmill Marketing Services from 2006 to 2010 and Coastal Colors from 2010 to 2013. He served on the board of directors for the Greeting Card Association.

His family has generational roots in Barrington, and his wife's family came to Bristol from the Azores 52 years ago. He and his wife raised two sons.

WHY REAL ESTATE? "I left the stationery and gift market after 30-plus years. My objective was to find a market where I could apply my creative, marketing and merchandising skill sets — real estate is enjoyably filling those needs. Like the stationery industry, which is creative, stimulating and challenging, I have found real estate to be the same. When I look at a piece of property I view it like I would a greeting card. When the consumer shops for a card, the outside design draws them to it, much like the exterior and landscaping of a home. After they open it, the verse or sentiment of the card makes the sale, just like the interior, layout and personal connection of a home. Both markets provide personal and sentimental emotions. My job is to assist in the creation of that connection. I feel extremely comfortable partnering and guiding clients through the process of either selling or buying a home."

WHAT DO YOU LIKE MOST ABOUT YOUR NEW CAREER? "I am a people person, and real estate allows me the opportunity to interact with individuals, families, investors and vendors. I find it very satisfying working with people toward a common goal while making the process efficient and stress free."

DREAM CAREER? "Actually I have had only two careers, first being stationery products, and secondly real estate. I have a great passion for the gift industry. That same passion is growing everyday in the real estate market. I consider both of these jobs as dream careers."

WHAT ARE SOME OF YOUR HOBBIES? "Like most New Englanders, I change with the seasons. We love to be on Narragansett Bay in the summer and escape to the mountains to go skiing in the winter. I can also spend hours in museums viewing the art. I enjoy looking closely at perspective, color application and lighting."

COMMUNITY INVOLVEMENT? "I was born, raised and lived in Barrington until two years ago, when we moved to Bristol, my wife's home town. While in Barrington, I coached youth sports, my wife and I founded a non-profit organization called 'Turn On The Lights,' which brought holiday lighting to the Town Hall property. I was a member of the Barrington Town Council and the County Road Re-Development Committee. Currently

I am a member of the Bristol Rotary, Bristol County Elks and the West Barrington Men's Club. I also enjoy volunteering for almost anything. I have a problem saying no."

MARKET PREDICTIONS? "I do not want to make a prediction, but I do feel that the market has become fair for both parties. The industry faltered when it was a seller's market and money was available, then to a buyer's market because of unfortunate circumstances. Now, the consumer is knowledgeable, the financing process is closely monitored and the homes are listed as marketable properties. We all go into the process on the same page, which is comforting."

BEACH OR MOUNTAINS? "This is an easy question; the answer is both. Living in this part of the country is unlike any other. It allows you and your family the opportunity to explore and enjoy the beauty of New England, all within a three-hour drive. To me, the most precious is the access and beauty of Narragansett Bay and skiing in the White Mountains. The bay creates experiences, and the mountains create memories — not bad."

BEST VACATION? "Hands down, bare boating in the British Virgin Islands. My wife and I did this trip for our honeymoon and have gone back a number of times since, as our family grew. I have had others that rank as well, but nothing has compared to cruising the islands."

FAVORITE MOVIE, BOOK, AND TELEVISION SHOW? "I am more of a periodical junky than a book reader. I do not have a favorite movie but like going to the movies. My favorite television shows are all in re-runs and have been for years. I am disappointed how reality TV has taken over the channels."

LUNCH WITH ANYONE? "My grandfather. We lost him to an accident in 1978 while I was away at college. If that did not happen, he would have lived a long life. I would enjoy that lunch."

Loan rates based on $100,000 with 20% down payment & no PMI. Variable mortgages listed are for 30 years, adjusted annually. Points are a one-time charge equal to one percent of the mortgage. APR stands for annual percentage rate and reflects closing costs spread over the life of the loan. CAP is the most a variable mortgage can increase in one year. Savings and loans and Rhode Island loan and investment banks are included in the bank section of this chart. These rates, provided by the institutions on Monday of this week, are subject to change or special conditions. For more information, consumers are advised to call the institution. First-time homebuyers may qualify for lower-rate mortgages from the Rhode Island Housing and Mortgage Finance Corporation. Many credit unions only grant loans to members and limit membership to a defined group. When shopping for mortgage rates ask for explanation of closing costs. Financial institutions that write residential mortgages that wish to be included on this list can get in touch with Classified Real Estate Advertising Specialist at 401-253-1000
