

Recycling, new library, airport expansion dominate news

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

In the first half of the year, residents exercised their right to speak out, and did so on topics ranging from expansion of Detroit City Airport to building a new library to the War Memorial's purchase of the property next door.

Last week we recapped the first half of 1990; today, the rest of the year.

July

Only weeks after the Grosse Pointe board of education passed its $59 million, 1991-92 budget, the state adopted its budget which included $50 million in cuts to school districts. The board then went to work to pare $1.6 million from the budget. The money taken away from the Pointes was supposed to go to poorer districts to balance per-pupil spending throughout the state.

Because the Grosse Pointes, Harper Woods and Detroit incinerate their trash, they were exempt from implementing mandatory recycling under Wayne County's new solid waste management plan.

The 24-year-old Family Life Education Council announced it would close its doors because of lack of funding. The services offered by the non-profit organization included a successful youth assistance program for first-time juvenile offenders, a crisis hotline and a free clinic.

Too many people recycling their newspapers caused the price to drop, which forced two local newspaper collection centers to close.

The Grosse Pointe Farms Council asked Cottage Hospital officials for more information before it voted on the hospital's expansion request.

In a move that some criticized as going against freedom of speech, Grosse Pointe City officials discussed an ordinance which would limit political signs on lawns. Eventually, the city passed guidelines which must be followed for "non-commercial" signs. The guidelines dealt with placement, size, number and length of time signs can be displayed.

Grosse Pointe Woods residents who lived near a proposed Arbor Drugs at Mack and Fleetwood signed petitions against the project because of potential safety concerns. But by the time they filed the petition, a building permit had been issued and construction was already under way.

... sit in icy, snowy splendor at Farms Pier Park. Winter blew into town last week in a fury with temperatures dropping to near zero. There was enough snow and ice, sleet and rain to test the skills - and patience - of drivers.

Winter tax bills increase more than the inflation rate

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

The 1990 winter tax bills in the five Grosse Pointes are higher than the 1989 bills and outstrip expected inflationary increases.

The increases are due, in part, to rising property values, and the winter bills do not include city taxes.

Grosse Pointe City's winter bills are up 12.5 percent for a home that had a market value of $200,000 in 1989. The owner of an equivalent home in the Park will pay 12 percent more in 1990 than in 1989. In the Farms, the winter tax bill for the same-priced home will be 10.1 percent higher.

A Shores owner of a $200,000 home will pay 10.4 percent more in winter taxes and Woods owners of equivalent-priced homes will see an 8.5 percent increase.

The 1990 summer and winter tax bills reflect double-digit increases in assessments. The increases were: City, 16.25 percent; Farms, 13.72 percent; Park, 15.75 percent; Shores, 14.21 percent; and Woods, 12 percent.

Although the Truth in Taxation law requires taxing bodies to roll back their millage rates to account for rising property values, the amount of rollback is determined by the average property assessment increase in the taxing body's entire jurisdiction.

For example, the winter tax bills in all the Pointes include county, jail, Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority, community college and Intermediate School District/special education taxes.

All of these authorities have a countywide tax base and their tax rollbacks are based on the average property value increase throughout the county, which may be less than the average assessment increases in the Pointes.

Also, while taxing authorities, such as the Grosse Pointe school district which is also on the winter bills, are required to roll back their tax rates, there's nothing to prevent them from increasing the rate up to their voter-approved maximum without a vote of the public. In such cases, all that is required to raise taxes more than the inflation rate is a public notice and hearing.

Also, some homeowners may have seen their property values rise more than the average and therefore will see larger increases on their tax bills.

The total tax rate on the winter bills in the City, Farms and Park is 41.18 mills (or $41.18 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation). The owner of a $200,000 home in 1989 would have had a SEV or assessed value of $100,000 and would have paid $4,254 in winter taxes in the City, Farms or Park. This year,

Mary Anne Bush

Every Tuesday from noon to 3 p.m., Mary Anne Bush, a small, fragile-looking woman from

Mary Anne Bush

Grosse Pointe Park, sits at a table in a hotel in the Cass Corridor.

As a community health nurse with the Visiting Nurse Association of Southeast Michigan, she has her blood pressure testing equipment visible.

"My big come-on is the blood pressure," she said. "Then they see the condoms and the literature. I have lots of literature."

Bush is involved in a unique outreach program, called the Cass Corridor Community Project, which she proposed to her supervisor in 1989. She had become interested in the AIDS epidemic, but she's hard-pressed to explain why.

"I like the underdog for some reason," she said. "Guess I always have. Nurses in general do."

Fred W. Adams

WMU honors the late Fred W. Adams

In a surprise move at Western Michigan University's Dec. 22 commencement exercises, the board of trustees awarded an honorary doctor of public service degree posthumously to Fred W. Adams of Grosse Pointe, an alumnus who served on the institution's governing board for almost 24 years.

His widow, Mary Grace, was called out of the audience to come to the platform to accept the doctoral degree, diploma-like citation. The document also cited Mrs. Adams for her dedication to Western. It said: "His wife of 50 years, Mary Grace, could almost be regarded as an honorary trustee, for she accompanied her husband on most of his trips to the campus and made many friends for WMU in her own right."

Adams was recognized for "his tireless service to Western Michigan University, to higher education in Michigan and the nation, and to the cause of learning everywhere." The citation concluded that the award was being made "in deep appreciation for his exemplary dedication, service and devotion to this institution."

At the Dec. 20 board meeting, the trustees approved a memorial tribute to Adams that recognized him as "one of Western's greatest supporters who contributed significantly to the institution's growth and development."

The tribute further stated, "There are few people, if any, who have had stronger ties to Western Michigan University than Fred Adams. His association with the institution spanned nine decades," from kindergarten in the Campus Training School through almost a quarter of a century on WMU's governing board and also as a loyal and active alumnus for almost 60 years. Adams died Nov. 15. He was 80.

WCCC instructor reveals Detroit's cultural treasures

By Laura Phillips
Special Writer

For 20 years now, Jim Saad has taken people on visits to Detroit's cultural attractions — Greektown, the Hare Krishna Temple, American Indian pow wows on Walpole Island and Dearborn's Arab South End.

But Saad, who lives in Grosse Pointe Park, is more than a tour guide. Those who enroll in his "Urban Life and Culture" class through Wayne County Community College get credit for their adventures.

In the course, which will meet Tuesday nights at Grosse Pointe South High School beginning Jan. 23, Saad says students often are shocked, surprised and delighted at the cultural treasures they find in Detroit.

Students will meet in a classroom for the first three weeks of the course, he said. For the remaining 12 weeks, they will go on trips to Detroit and other communities.

Students also will learn first-hand about Hindu wedding ceremonies, Islamic lifestyles, transvestite and transsexual lifestyles, the Chinese New Year celebration, New Age beliefs and urban art, music and dance.

The three-credit course has no tests or texts, he said.

Saad said he has taught the course since it first was offered at North in 1971. He is a full-time professor at Wayne County Community College and also teaches courses in world geography.

Saad has visited every continent at least three times and has led dozens of study groups overseas. He also produces ethnographic films on various cultures for use in classrooms.

Registration for the "Urban Life and Culture" course, Anthropology 201, is from 5 to 9 p.m. Jan. 8 and 9 at South or at any WCCC campus from Jan. 7 to 23.

Jim Saad travels the world, producing ethnographic films. Here he examines a part of the Maori aborigine tribe of New Zealand. His "Urban Life and Culture" class at South will focus on the cultures in and around Detroit.

Chief justice honored

Dorothy Comstock Riley of Grosse Pointe Farms, chief justice of the Michigan Supreme Court, was recently honored with a Wayne State University Distinguished Alumni Award during the university's winter commencement program at Cobo Hall. Comstock Riley earned her bachelor of arts degree in political science from WSU in 1946 and a law degree in 1949 from the university's Law School. With her are Reginald L. Jones, left, professor of Afro-American studies and education at the University of California, Berkeley, who also received a Distinguished Alumni Award; and WSU President David Adamany.

Truck used to break into Mack business

A truck was used to smash open the rear door of a business in the 19700 block of Mack in the Woods on Christmas Day.

Woods police responded to an audible alarm at the business at 7:20 a.m. and discovered someone had driven a truck, probably a four-wheel drive, into the back door of the business. The impact caused the dead bolt to pop out of the door jamb.

Taken were a television and two cordless telephones.

Park doctor offers anti-nuclear New Year's resolution

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

Dr. Henry J. Vandenberg Jr. of Grosse Pointe Park is proposing a New Year's resolution that may save the world: a global ban on all testing of nuclear weapons.

As an executive board member of the local chapter of Physicians for Social Responsibility, Vandenberg believes a ban on nuclear testing may lead to the ultimate goal of eliminating the threat of nuclear war.

"The United States as a powerful country could exercise great influence for living in a world of peace and promoting environmental protection," he said.

However, the United States, along with Great Britain, is opposed to giving up its underground testing of nuclear weapons. Some 1,000 weapons have been detonated deep underneath Nevada in the last 25 years, according to the U.S. Comprehensive Test Ban Coalition.

Vandenberg hopes that if enough U.S. citizens show their support for the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty (CTB), to be discussed by the United Nations Jan. 7-18, then President Bush and his negotiators may change their minds.

"If only 5 percent of the people get behind something, then it can come about," Vandenberg said.

The CTB was proposed by 41 of the 118 countries that signed the 1963 Partial Test Ban Treaty that eliminated nuclear testing in the atmosphere, in space or under water.

At the January U.N. conference, the 118 nations will vote on the proposed CTB.

While a majority of the nations must approve the CTB before it can go into effect, three nations — the United States, Great Britain and the Soviet Union — have veto power. The Soviets have said they are willing to sign the CTB.

In the past, the Soviets voluntarily declared an 18-month moratorium on nuclear testing, and during that period, the United States conducted 25 tests, Vandenberg said.

Today, there are some 50,000 nuclear weapons in place worldwide. Most of these are nearly equally split between the United States and the Soviet Union.

According to the International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War, of which Physicians for Social Responsibility is a part, other nations in the nuclear armament club are Great Britain, France and China. Israel, South Africa and India are also believed to have nuclear weapons, and Pakistan, Argentina and Brazil are close to achieving nuclear capability.

Iraq, Libya and North and South Korea are developing nuclear weapons but are still missing some critical elements.

It seems everyone in the world is in favor of a complete ban on nuclear weapon testing except the Bush administration and Britain, Vandenberg said.

France has said it will agree to the ban if the United States and Great Britain go along. Even both houses of Congress and former CIA Director William E. Colby favor a total ban on nuclear testing.

Colby told a congressional committee in October that the United States is dragging its feet instead of taking the initiative in the CTB.

"We may not be able to put the nuclear genie entirely back in the bottle," Colby said, "but with American leadership on a comprehensive test ban we can stop its further proliferation."

Although the Partial Test Ban Treaty called for seeking an end to all test explosions of nuclear weapons, the United States has made no progress toward that goal, according to Colby.

In 1968, the landmark Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty was signed by 142 nations, including the superpowers, to stop the spread of nuclear weapons of mass destruction. Today, because of the United States' refusal to ban nuclear testing, the Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT) is in jeopardy.

According to William Epstein, a senior fellow at the U.N. Institute for Training and Research, non-nuclear members of the NPT are pointing to the United States' continued nuclear testing as a sign that the arms race is continuing and that the superpowers are seeking more powerful first-strike weapons, despite a pledge in the NPT preamble to halt the arms race and seek nuclear disarmament.

In 1995, the signers of the NPT will meet to determine if the treaty should be renewed. Epstein, and others, worry that non-nuclear countries will back out of the treaty because a failure to adopt a total ban on nuclear testing will make it impossible to stop the proliferation of such weapons.

Vandenberg, as a member of the U.S. and international physicians groups, is working to make citizens here and abroad aware of the importance of the upcoming January CTB conference.

He fears that with all the media attention focused on the Persian Gulf crisis, few people are aware that the issue of banning nuclear weapons testing will be decided this month. "Here we are with a marvelous opportunity to bring this about," Vandenberg said, "but people won't even hear about it."

He is also concerned that Americans don't realize that the United States is the key obstacle to the ban.

"What we're dealing with is an administration that is working to block the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty," Vandenberg said. "The problem with the Bush administration is that it wants to have nuclear power over the rest of the world."

One of the reasons the United States is taking the lead against Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, Vandenberg said, is to stop Saddam Hussein's acquisition of a nuclear weapon capability. A ban on nuclear testing would in itself limit the proliferation of nuclear weapons without a war, Vandenberg said.

Furthermore, Vandenberg pointed out, at a time when the United States has become a debtor nation and can't afford to feed, house and provide medical attention to its own people, a ban on nuclear testing would save the United States up to $4 billion a year.

The Physicians for Social Responsibility is not alone in its push for a ban on nuclear testing. A host of other organizations, including the American Association of University Women, Greenpeace, several religious denominations and the YWCA national board, are promoting the test ban.

To call public attention to the January conference, events and demonstrations are being held throughout the country. On Jan 5, a mass demonstration will be conducted at the Nevada test site.

Vandenberg has attended some of the test site demonstrations and he said he was arrested once at such a protest.

On Jan. 7, the day the conference opens, a demonstration is planned outside the United Nations Building in New York and outside federal buildings in major cities throughout the country.

The Jan. 7 demonstration in Detroit will be at the McNamara Federal Office Building at Michigan and Cass from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m.

Besides walking in a demonstration, Vandenberg is asking that people take the time to write President Bush to let him know what they think of the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty. Address letters to President George Bush, Washington, D.C. 20500, or call 202-456-7639.

And she had an AIDS patient, a woman who was an intravenous drug abuser. Her name was Norma Welsh and after she was diagnosed with the disease, Bush said the woman turned her life around. "She said she lived more of a life after AIDS than before," Bush said.

Welsh spoke to people about AIDS, in the streets and in hospitals. She opened her apartment to TV cameras, Bush said, at the risk of being evicted to educate people about the horrors of the disease.

Bush had been working for more than a dozen years with the Visiting Nurse Association, treating all kinds of patients. After attending a health meeting in Boston and reading about various AIDS outreach programs, Bush knew the established programs weren't working.

"I had spent time in the Cass Corridor," she said. "Addicts will not go to any established place — they're afraid of the establishment and they don't have transportation."

"I got the idea — why don't we go there? I approached my supervisor and asked if I could go down there and spend three hours a week in the hotels where the prostitutes and addicts are."

With the go-ahead from her supervisor and a chief executive officer "who's really open," Bush hit the streets.

"I had no funding," she said. "I had to beg for condoms and I bought my own bleach."

Bush was dispensing small bottles of bleach, which kills the AIDS virus, to needle users.

"In December 1989, I did my first hotel," Bush said. Welsh worked with her for the first half of the year until she became too sick. Welsh died in November, two years after she was diagnosed, leaving a daughter and two grandchildren. Bush said she misses her.

She works the hotels alone, from the area of the Fox Theatre to Highland Park, where she has begun to branch out. With no guidelines or model to follow, Bush set her hours at noon to 3, reasoning that before noon, "my people," as she calls them, are asleep, and after 3 p.m., they begin thinking about how they're going to get their next fix.

She stays at one hotel for a month, then moves to another.

The management provides a table and some chairs, she said.

Her supervisor, Sharon Bryant, was able to get a grant for the program — $15,000 from the Gannett Foundation. Bush immediately bought 10,000 condoms and no longer has to supply her own bleach.

She said she's successful because she doesn't judge anyone. "I don't ask anyone's name," she said. "Unless they ask where they can go for help, I never, ever tell anyone to change their ways other than to do what they're doing safely."

Bush said she has seen a lot since she started working exclusively with AIDS patients. "There is much humor and a lot of sadness," she said. "I feel very protective of my people."

She told about a young man who kept bringing his small bottle to her to get refilled with bleach. "I was feeling that I was getting somewhere with this kid," she said. "Then I overheard an older man ask him why he was getting bleach when he didn't use needles. The young man answered, 'have you ever seen my socks looking so white?'"

"It's very humbling at times. Just when you think you're getting someplace, they gotcha." Bush said there are days she is exhausted from the misery of the streets. "I have a lot of people I talk to and there's a group of nurses at the city offices who are great," she said. "We sort of have the M*A*S*H syndrome and we use each other for buffers."

Some days, Bush said, she'll get out her good china and crystal for dinner "to let myself know there's another life."

"I hope I don't get burned out because I really enjoy my work and I enjoy my people there," she said. The next step in the project is HIV-testing which she hopes to initiate with her weekly visits. The effort is being coordinated with the Detroit Department of Health. There are a number of requirements mandated by state law, such as counseling before and after testing. Bush said she hopes that testing can begin in the next couple of months.

The epidemic is going to get worse, Bush said, and she advises parents to talk to their children about the risks.

"I think people have to get over the idea that they can't talk to their kids about safe sex because they think that's condoning it," she said. "We know kids do it. People are dying of AIDS at 22-23, but they get it when they're 15."

Mary Anne Bush spends a lot of time in and out of her car as a community health nurse for the Visiting Nurse Association of Southeast Michigan.

A person can be infected up to 10 years before there are symptoms. There is also a window period, Bush said, of three to six months in which a blood test will not reveal the presence or absence of the virus.

Bush, who grew up in Grand Haven, said she never wanted to be a nurse. She began studying psychology at Michigan State University, but switched to nursing because of economics. She graduated from Butterworth Hospital in Grand Rapids as a registered nurse.

Her first job was operating room nurse, then she worked in the cardiac catheter lab. She was a professional for a heart team and when she moved to Detroit, she went to work for the Department of Health and later, the Visiting Nurse Association.

Last year, Bush was nominated for the employee of the year award by her colleagues at the agency.

In her spare time, she enjoys reading, fiction and non-fiction, and cooking and mostly she enjoys her friends. Her son, Jack, who is studying computer science at the University of Houston, is home for the holidays.

Pharmacy owner pleads guilty

The owner of the Hollywood Pharmacy on Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods pleaded guilty Dec. 19 to embezzling public funds through the misuse of postal money orders.

William F. Lelickens, 61, of St. Clair Shores faces up to six months in prison and a fine of up to $100,000. The business faces up to $500,000 in fines. Lelickens is the sole owner of the pharmacy.

According to the U.S. Postal Service and the U.S. attorney in Detroit, Lelickens admitted to embezzling about $180,000 from the Postal Service between January and May 1990. There was a contract postal station at the Hollywood Pharmacy, and Lelickens used postal money orders to pay the pharmacy's suppliers.

After issuing Postal Service money orders, Lelickens wrote business checks payable to the Postal Service and placed them in the postal funds at the pharmacy. He did not send the checks to the U.S. Postal Service to pay for the money orders.

Even if he had submitted the checks for payment, his business checking account did not have sufficient funds to cover the checks, according to the Postal Service. Furthermore, postal money orders can only be paid for with cash, according to Assistant U.S. Attorney William L. Magness, who prosecuted the case.

Lelickens' activities were discovered by postal inspectors after an audit revealed he had issued several thousands of dollars worth of money orders without remitting payment to the Postal Service.

The same homeowner will pay $4,782 in the City, or $4,683 in the Farms or $4,766 in the Park.

The Shores also includes the Grosse Pointe Township tax on its winter bills. The township tax was .72 mills in 1990, down from .79 mills in 1989. The total Shores tax bill in 1990 was based on 41.90 mills, down from 43.33 mills in 1989.

The owner of a $200,000 home in the Shores in 1989 had a winter tax bill of $4,333; in 1990 the homeowner's bill was $4,785.

The Woods winter bill also includes drain and sewer taxes, which totaled 1.83 mills in 1990 and 1989. The total tax rate reflected on the Woods winter bills was 43.01 mills, down from 44.37 mills in 1989.

The owner of a $200,000 home in the Woods paid $4,437 in winter taxes in 1989; in 1990 the same homeowner's winter bill was $4,817.

This month the Wayne County Department of Equalization should be releasing tentative assessment increases for 1991, which will have an effect on the amount of taxes paid this year.

Pay increases for politicians are ill-timed

Most of the county, state and federal legislators representing Grosse Pointe and Michigan in Detroit, Lansing and Washington will be enjoying pay hikes as they resume their duties in the New Year, but the public reaction ought to give them pause.

In our view, such pay increases for high-ranking officials on public payrolls at a time of cutbacks, layoffs, pay reductions and other income setbacks for many Americans are obnoxious, perhaps even obscene, and at least wrong.

In Detroit, Wayne County's commissioners, who claim to serve full-time but meet in formal session only every other week, gave themselves a 36 percent pay raise effective Jan. 1 but now are being challenged by County Executive Edward McNamara to reject it.

The county executive, fighting to eliminate the $1.3 million in red ink caused by the commissioners' spendthrift budgeting, said he would forgo his own pay hike if they would reject theirs. To date, there's been no response from the commission.

McNamara's pay is scheduled to rise from $103,940 in 1990 to $106,716 this year. The commissioners salaries will go from $29,970 in 1990 to $41,396 in 1991 unless they agree to accept McNamara's challenge.

McNamara pointed out that Wayne's 15 commissioners would receive more than double the salaries paid to Oakland and Macomb county commissioners under their new pay scales. In addition, Wayne's commission hires 115 people, including students and summer interns, while the Oakland commission hires 10 and Macomb employs just six.

In Washington, members of the U.S. House got about a 30 percent increase in their pay effective Jan. 1 and even the four members of the Michigan delegation who voted against the proposal told reporters they would accept the raises.

However, Rep. Dennis Hertel, 14th District congressman who represents Grosse Pointe Farms, the Woods and the Shores, said through a spokesperson that he would "substantially increase the part of his salary he gives to charities," but didn't explain what that percentage would amount to after the pay boost.

Democratic Rep. George Crockett, the 13th District congressman who represented the Park and the City until he retired, voted for the pay boost. However, the Detroit Free Press, which reported the story, was unable to learn the position of Rep. Barbara-Rose Collins, Crockett's successor, on the issue.

In fact, the House members voted themselves two pay boosts in November 1989, with the first going from $89,500 to $96,600 last Feb. 1 and the second hiking the figure to $125,100 and becoming effective on Jan. 1, 1991. In return, the House members did, however, vote to eliminate all speaking fees or honoraria which had been permitted up to $26,850 a year.

On the other hand, U.S. senators, who declined to give up honoraria, settled for a cost-of-living adjustment that brings their salaries from the current $98,400 to $101,900. But they also are permitted to accept more than $23,000 a year in speaking fees.

In the state Legislature, however, public reaction apparently is going to prompt a vote after all on the raises recommended by the State Officers Compensation Commission, although it may just occur in the Senate.

The plan is for the Senate to return to the Capitol Jan. 24 to consider a resolution rejecting pay hikes of up to 16.2 percent for the Legislature, of the Supreme Court, the governor and the lieutenant governor. If the Senate rejects the proposal, the House will vote before the Feb. 1 deadline.

The proposed increases would boost salaries for legislators from $45,450 to $52,800; for justices from $106,610 to $120,000; for the governor from $106,690 to $120,500, and for the lieutenant governor from $80,300 to $83,100.

Public sentiment is believed to be running strongly against the increases in view of the fact they were approved just after the election and after the Legislature slashed more than $500 million from state programs to reduce a billion-dollar deficit.

Because of the recession engulfing the entire nation, legislators in Detroit, Lansing and Washington would be well advised to listen to the complaints and reject the proposed increases or at least contribute them to charity.

As we've said earlier, legislators and other top officials should not be entitled to any public protection against the recession that is not available to their constituents, who, we remind the solons, are picking up the tab for all their pay.

State loss is Sun Belt gain

Official results from the 1990 census now have made it certain that Michigan will lose two congressional seats in the U.S. House of Representatives in the forthcoming reapportionment.

With Americans continuing their trek to the Sun Belt, 18 seats in the 435-member House will follow them in 1993 with Michigan and other Midwestern and Northeastern states being the big losers because their populations did not keep pace with the national gain.

Michigan's population rose to 9,328,784, a gain of only seven-tenths of 1 percent or fewer than 100,000 people in the decade.

Just where the Pointes land in the reapportionment will be determined when the Legislature sets the new district boundaries under the guidance of federal and state laws as well as judicial precedents.

In the decade, the 13th District, including Grosse Pointe Park and Grosse Pointe City, reportedly lost more population than any other in Michigan. The 14th, including the Farms, Shores and Woods, is also believed to have been a net loser.

That means that even if both districts survive the state's cutback to 16 districts, both will have to be expanded to enable them to reach the new average district size of 583,000, up from the 1980 average of 515,000.

However, political observers have said that federal voting rights laws will almost certainly ensure that Rep. Barbara-Rose Collins' 13th District as well as Rep. John Conyers' 1st District will continue to be dominated by blacks after the upcoming reapportionment.

It has not been a happy decade for the one-time arsenal of democracy in Detroit and the Midwest. The region showed the smallest percentage of population growth - 1.3 percent as contrasted with 22.3 percent reported by the Western states and 13.5 percent for the South.

The question now for Michigan is what the future holds at a time when states will be forced to rely more heavily on their own resources than on federal aid. It will be a test as to whether Michigan can lift itself by its own bootstraps out of the recession and high level of unemployment that now characterize its economy.

To achieve those goals, Michigan needs and deserves the cooperation of all areas of the state, all residents and all segments of the economy.

sional seat given up by retiring Congressman George Crockett.

The Detroit USA petition drive aroused the same kind of civic consciousness that led to the referendum defeat a couple of years ago of Mayor Coleman Young's proposal to legalize casino gambling in the city. In this case, many people simply think it is not in the public interest to turn over to private interests and developers one of the best public spaces still left on the riverfront.

Because the mayor and his cohorts will no doubt be pushing for another clone of the mayor to succeed Ms. Collins on the council on the voting day, it is uncertain whether enough opposition votes can be mustered to overturn the earlier approval of the Comerica project.

But credit certainly should be given to Detroit USA and the people's civic consciousness for at least getting the issue on the ballot. More power to them.

Hussein's hawk?

Hearing a commotion in their backyard on Christmas morning, members of a Grosse Pointe family watched with horror as a huge hawk swooped down from a nearby tree, snatched a tiny bird from the family's feeder and flew away with the victim clutched in its claws.

It was, we suppose, just another classic display of evidence that nature in the raw is seldom mild. But perhaps it was something else.

Perhaps nature was re-enacting for our benefit Saddam Hussein's vicious and brutal seizure of the tiny kingdom of Kuwait last Aug. 2.

The comparison is at least appropriate.

A sign of civic awareness?

There is new evidence of a growing civic consciousness in the city of Detroit that may bode well for the future of the entire metropolitan area.

The evidence is provided by a civic group called Detroit USA which through a petition drive has given voters in Detroit the chance to correct the city government's mistake in turning over the Ford Auditorium property to Comerica Inc. for a new headquarters.

The Detroit city clerk's office has certified that the opponents of the rezoning necessary to raze the auditorium and replace it with a new Comerica building had gathered nearly 9,000 valid signatures, well above the 7,362 required to force an election.

The vote, scheduled for April, will be coupled on the ballot with a primary election to fill the Detroit City Council vacancy caused by the election of Barbara-Rose Collins to the 13th District congres-

Christmas carols

To the Editor:

To my delight and surprise, on behalf of my neighbors, the Accardos, I was serenaded by seven members of the Grosse Pointe South Choir. They sang beautifully and the sparkle in their eyes began for me a whole Christmas scenario I knew as a child.

I would like to commend them and wish a special happy Christmas to those music teachers who work so hard to keep "happy voices" heard around the Grosse Pointes.

County commission

To the Editor:

In the light of recent events involving Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara and the Wayne County Commission, I would hope that your readers pay very close attention to the job that David Cavanagh does over the next two years. If Mr. Cavanagh decides to join Commission Chairman Arthur Blackwell and his cronies with their unprofessional assault on Mr. McNamara, I would hope that the new and totally unwarranted commissioners' salary of $41,396 would prompt professional competition at the time of the next primary election in August 1992.

Perhaps Commissioner Cavanagh has lost touch after his recent re-election with the feelings of his constituents.

Support

To the Editor:

As a homeowner in Grosse Pointe who is retired, and a former professor of library science at Wayne State University, I would like to express my strong support for the February bond issue to build a new central public library.

For most of us retired people who can no longer turn easily to our university or company libraries, the public library contributes essentially to the quality of life in Grosse Pointe.

Although as a retired person I am not eager for higher taxes, I can think of no better investment than the tax dollars that will support the bond issue.

The Grosse Pointe Public Library is now housed in 1950s space and simply cannot discharge its responsibilities as an educational/informational center to meet the needs of the '90s and beyond.

Citizens of other metropolitan suburbs, such as Birmingham, Bloomfield, Farmington and Livonia, have managed to update their public library facilities with beautiful as well as functional buildings. Grosse Pointers of the school district should approve the bond issue and do no less.

Foiled again! From monsters to manicures

Who's fooling whom?

Like, the folks who make permanent press shirts; the companies that manufacture no-wax floors; the people who push no-color mascara and natural blush. Pre-washed jeans.

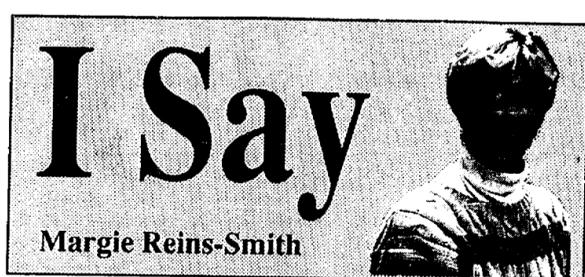

Come on. You get sucked into buying some of these items and within a few weeks you're shopping for an iron with a setting for permanent press; wax for your no-wax floor; bronzer and blush to wear under your natural makeup. And your jeans are looking mighty dingy.

An enterprising entrepreneur (perhaps the same guy who invented pet rocks) is now advertising something called "Monster Spray."

It's for parents whose kids refuse to go to sleep because there's a monster under the bed. Parents buy this stuff and display it prominently on a shelf in the child's bedroom. At the first sign of a monster encounter, the parents flourish the aerosol can and point the nozzle under the bed.

The kids sigh with relief,

I Say
Margie Reins-Smith

snuggle down and promptly fall asleep.

By the way, adults, you may want to pass something along to your children that we all figured out for ourselves when we were children. The monster under the bed won't get you — won't even know you're there, in fact — if you lie on your back, very still, with your arms at your sides and legs straight and are careful not to let any part of your body hang over the edge of the mattress.

Now there's something for women who can't wait for their nail polish to dry.

The paint-on product comes with a special fluorescent light. You slather this stuff on top of your newly manicured, still-wet fingernails, then hold your hands under the light. Your nail polish dries to a rocklike finish in less than four minutes.

I might buy this one.

I've never polished my fingernails without subsequently testing — and consequently spoiling — at least one nail.

I usually end up with a cross-hatched design, a smashed, flattened spot, or a smudge somewhere.

Before those suckers are completely dry, I am driven to tempt fate. I have to take off a sweater; or scratch; or get something out of my purse; or read a magazine; or pet the dog; or find something to eat in the refrigerator.

It's a compulsion I can't ignore and never conquer.

Lately I try to avoid smudges by polishing my nails at midnight, just before I go to bed. I fold back the blankets before I start polishing. I carefully hold my hands aloft, fingers spread, fanning the air between coats.

When I'm laquered up with a base coat, two coats of color and a top coat, I get into bed, arms outstretched, fingers separated.

I promptly fall asleep; wake up at 3 a.m. stuck to the bedspread. Bad news.

The good news: The monster under the bed didn't have the faintest inkling I was up there.

Grosse Pointe native Ann Grifo appears on page 23 in the Feb. 1 issue of Family Circle magazine. Grifo was part of a volunteer team that helped pack holiday stocking stuffer gifts for distribution to Americans serving as part of Operation Desert Shield.

Grifo is a graduate of Grosse Pointe South High School and Trinity College in Washington, D.C. She is an editorial associate for Family Circle.

The volunteers helped pack 22,000 stocking stuffers donated by advertisers.

Why important stories are ignored

Had you forgotten that Congress was getting a pay raise? The Merry Christmas edition of the Detroit Daily Blab reminded us that, in this time of recession and layoffs, our representatives in Washington are going to receive an increase equal to a middle-class income.

and it takes the pressure off. Journalists prefer not to talk about discretion and choice and imagination, all of which might lead them to fill the newshole with unusual items instead of the standard definition of news.

Newspapers and television accredit 14,000 writers to the national political conventions. They all descend on the convention at once — and write about the same thing. What else is there to write about?

If these same people were dispatched all over the world to find stories during that week (as photographers have been on several occasions), there would be fascinating glimpses of life and news we never hear about.

Of course, that doesn't happen. Newspeople have a rather narrow definition of news that comes down to covering actions or speeches of people in official positions. Especially political people and even more especially those who have something controversial to say.

If you as an individual have an opinion, all you can do is write a letter to the editor. But if you are president of an organization, you can send a press release. The paper may then announce that your association has taken a position.

Frustrating? Sure, but useful to know, as an acquaintance of mine could tell you. He has formed a one-man organization with himself as president. Now he can take official positions and have them announced.

The other category of news is, of course, the disaster (natural, corporate or personal). News outlets are terrified of being the only one not to have the story, so we are Ernie Harwelled or Lawrence Delisled to death. Plane crashes, fires, fires that kill children, highway chain-reaction crashes — hey, I read them too. But enough is enough. Meanwhile, there are events that are covered poorly or not at all.

The news media had to find out about Iran-contra from a Middle East magazine. The Watergate story was broken by a couple of enterprising city reporters, not the people on the beat.

While our attention is focused on Saddam Hussein, Yugoslavia is about to break apart, certainly with repercussions for us and for Europe.

What do you know about American Indians from reading your newspaper? I personally know more from watching CBC television.

Do we realize the repressiveness of our pals, the Saudis? I'm told pretty reliably by a friend who has conducted business there for some years that stoning is still a regular punishment. That's stoning to death.

The environment is covered largely for its disaster effect. Forest fires, chemical spills, air, water and ground pollution dominate the coverage. Lawsuits or people chaining themselves to trees also merit some ink.

But other than the successful efforts of the Environmental Defense Fund in negotiating packaging changes at McDonald's, little is said about environmental success stories. (Recycling is a major exception.)

The general media understands financial markets very poorly. The coverage we give to Wall Street, banking, investment is limited, superficial and often misleading.

Europe is about to remove its customs and financial barriers. People and goods will be able to move freely across formerly formidable international borders. The implications for Europeans and Americans — the world — are staggering. The press has barely mentioned it.

South America exists in a near-total information vacuum. Further, some things the press does know, it doesn't say. The public was shocked and upset at the portrait of Coleman Young, angry and swearing, on ABC television two months ago. Well, the local media all know that he talks like that all the time, partly because he's a street kind of guy and partly because he dislikes the press. It just hasn't been said.

Most of what isn't said isn't a coverup, however. It comes from a hole in our own understanding and a desire to write about the things readers want to read about.

Got a favorite overlooked topic? Bring it to my attention with a note to me at the paper at 96 Kercheval. After all, I'm busy riding my own hobbyhorses and trying to escape the pack. Happy New Year.

Nancy Parmenter

If this had escaped your memory, and you immediately thought, as some did, "another pay raise!" — it's my fault. Mine and my colleagues.

See, our Congresspeople were understandably in favor of not talking about this if it could be helped. And Ralph Nader says the media stopped paying attention.

Ralph is right on this one. Journalists are exquisitely guilty of only paying attention to one or two things at a time. Further, they all pay attention at once.

If you ask why something isn't in the paper, they will explain all about the "newshole," which is what journalists call the space left after all the advertising is fit in.

That's the easy explanation,

Nuclear weapons

To the Editor:

An opportunity to checkmate the proliferation of nuclear weapons is at hand. A Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty awaits adoption at the CTB Treaty Conference between Jan. 7 and 18 at the United Nations in New York.

If it is not voted on favorably, the companion treaty, the Non-Proliferation Treaty, will be cancelled out. The CTB Treaty will stop testing for new nuclear weapons through monitoring technology control. The NPT is designed to prevent the development of nuclear weapons in the same way in countries that do not yet have them.

Support for both treaties is widespread and impressive. The CTB Treaty is favored by 188 member nations but opposed by two, the United States and Great Britain. The NPT has already been signed in Geneva by all 10-member nations, including Iraq.

The 1990 Congress has recommended the president support it. Seventy-three national organizations endorse it. It is supported by 190 cities, which in Michigan include Detroit, Lansing and Ann Arbor. The state Legislature and Detroit City Council endorse it. A metropolitan Detroit coalition of organizations and individuals, both laity and clergy, endorse and support it.

If the United States persists in not entering into negotiations on the CTB and carries through on its stated position to veto its enactment, global arms control could be permanently lost. The United States acts with duplicity by having blocked NPT review in Geneva throughout the Iraq crisis while urging the world to join it in curbing nuclear proliferation.

If the United States and Great Britain will act in concert with the 258 nations that seek nuclear weapons control through the self-restraint of international cooperation, much can be achieved to stop the nuclear arms race. Enactment of the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty would prevent all explosions of nuclear weapons, curb their spread to other countries, stop radioactive contamination from test sites, and would cancel costly new weapons at a time when the money is needed for urgent economic and social deficiencies at home and across the world.

To Bo

To the Editor:

I'll bet you didn't know there were so many jackals lurking in the woods just waiting for a chance to nip at your heels.

Forget all your great accomplishments such as setting a high moral example for young men and never being accused of anything remotely resembling a conflict of interest. That, apparently, is history.

So now your superiors say they want a change and you have the unenviable task of telling a nice 72-year-old gentleman that he must retire when he is 73.

You would think he would be delighted to be able to retire at the ripe age of 73. There must be just scads of 72-year-olds out here who would dearly love to be in that position. Just think; 72, beloved, respected, healthy and quite wealthy and given a year's notice to prepare for and enjoy the rest of one's life in comfort.

Of course, the white glare of paranoiac publicity may make it most difficult if not impossible for Ernie to work one more year. But that doesn't bother the media one little bit. What a story, eh?

But then, Bo, a few jackals have been waiting for just such an opportunity to take a bite out of you.

But Bo, there are many out here who remember the many great things you did for the youth at Michigan and who think this treatment is tacky, shabby and most unfair!

Most incidentally, I am keeping my barf bag within reach in case I hear one more TV anchorman sanctimoniously editorialize on this earth-shaking event! Bo, perhaps the best advice I can give you is to recall Henry Ford's famous adage, "Never complain, never explain."

Packages from War Memorial buoy Pointers serving in Gulf

By Laura Phillips
Special Writer

As the Persian Gulf crisis drags on, apparently heading for war, residents of the Grosse Pointes continue to send packages to a growing list of local residents involved in Operation Desert Shield.

So far, the Grosse Pointe War Memorial Association has identified 16 local residents currently serving in the Middle East with the U.S. armed forces, said Mark Weber, War Memorial president.

The War Memorial has mailed each of them a package a week containing cards and letters and donations from local stores. Weber said packages include items like shirts, toiletries, food and batteries.

The packages also include cards and letters from the Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts and a copy of the Grosse Pointe News.

"We've gotten some very nice letters back from them," Weber said. "It's really been a very positive experience for the staff of the War Memorial and the people of the community."

The effort began in late October, and Weber said staff members plan to continue sending packages until the U.S. forces are back home.

"We've more or less been a conduit between the Grosse Pointe community and the servicemen and women. We're thinking about them," Weber said. "Whether or not you agree with what they're doing, it's important to support them as individuals."

Last week they sent the largest shipment of packages. The postage alone came to $145, said Suzi Berschback, publicist for the War Memorial.

The War Memorial is taking donations of items or money for postage, she said.

"I'm about up to my neck in boxes of donations," she said. "This is a nice project to be working on because the community is showing how generous it can be."

Berschback said specifically requested items include Kool

Aid, board games, baby powder, gum, wash cloths, cassette tapes, fly swatters, sunscreen, books, bug spray, writing supplies, lip balm and flea collars. Soldiers tie the latter around their ankles to keep away small desert bugs, she said.

Because of limitations on money and staff time, only people from the Grosse Pointes are receiving the packages. But Berschback said they try to send gifts such as games, frisbees and books that others can share.

The following people have been added to the War Memorial's list in the last few weeks:

- Bradley Levitan, a 1988 graduate of Grosse Pointe South High School. He is aboard the USS Jason and repairs ships anchored in the Gulf.

- Marine Cpl. Anthony Meier, now in the Philippines but headed for the Gulf Jan. 6. He is 21 and a 1987 North graduate. He has been in the service for three years.

- Marine Cpl. Gregory C. Grove of Grosse Pointe Woods, a North graduate. He is married and the father of a new son. He served as a chef in the Marines before his assignment in the Gulf.

- Kelly Rae Smith, a 1986 North graduate. She was stationed at the Groton Naval Hospital in Connecticut working in hospital administration before she was sent to Saudi Arabia in August. She is on security detail and celebrated her 22nd birthday last month.

- Marine Lance Cpl. Gregory W. Watson, a 1989 graduate of St. John's Military Academy in Delafield, Wis. He is aboard the USS Ogden in the Gulf of Oman, intercepting ships bound for Iraq. Watson is a member of the Raider Aquatic Assault group and a mortar specialist. He joined the Marines immediately after graduating from the academy.

- Marine Lance Cpl. Robert Marsh, a 1986 North graduate.

He has been in the Marines for 3 1/2 years and his enlistment is supposed to end in July 1991.

- S.R. Myron G. Sherer is in the Navy aboard the USS O'Brien. He graduated from South in 1989.

The others, listed previously, are: Matthew Armstrong, Bruce Fine, James Harrison, John Hielscher, Michael Krieg, John F. Kujat, Douglas Masserang, Christine Rickel, Larry Rock, Christopher Ross and Ward Szere-lag.

Desert Shield diary: Green eggs, wandering camels

(Editor's note: Matthew Armstrong, 20, is a 1989 South graduate serving as a lance corporal in the Marine Corps. He has been in Saudi Arabia since late September. In this letter, he describes the average day for a soldier in Operation Desert Shield.)

I received your letter today. It was my first letter in about a week.

My unit is currently training in an offensive warfare-type situation. When we first got to Saudi Arabia we were more of a defensive company, but since the situation has changed, so have we.

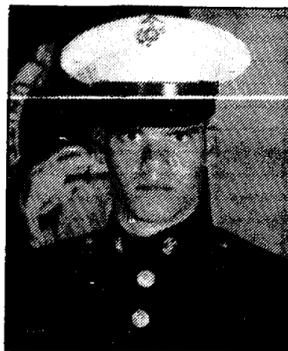

Here's how a typical day goes for us:

0530 (5:30 a.m.) — Reveille. After six hours of sleep, we awake to a cold, foggy day. The fog has soaked all of our gear, not to mention the coat of surface rust on the weapons.

The platoon then gathers around our trash-burning pit. For us it provides a common place, probably the only time we are not putting each other down.

0600 (6:00 a.m.) — Chow arrives this morning. It's actual green eggs and ham. I smother the eggs and ham in catsup. Mmmmm.

0800 (8 a.m.) — My platoon sergeant decides we aren't combat-ready. Time for a desert run. We run 4 1/2 miles through the sand. The running is tiring and boring, but it's necessary.

Marine Lance Cpl. Matthew Armstrong

1000 (10 a.m.) — Time to write letters or read other people's mail if you don't get any. I usually get mail but because of our last training exercise, mail is irregular.

1130 (11:30 a.m.) — Time for that delectable MRE (Meal Ready to Eat). Today it's meatballs in barbeque sauce. Looks more like Alpo than human food, but it tastes good.

1200 (noon) — Time to take care of the fog's work: weapons and gear maintenance. Now that the sun's in full bloom we dry all the wet gear out and scrub vigorously at the decaying metal of our weapons.

I carry a MIG-A2 and an M9, 9 millimeter; two weapons, twice the trouble.

1400 (2 p.m.) — I'm a little tired now; time for a short nap until evening chow.

1630 (4:30 p.m.) — Chow's here. Let's see what we have: goulash, fourth day in a row; peas, countless number of days; two pieces of white bread, and a Pepsi Saudi style, just a little bit more carbonation in the water.

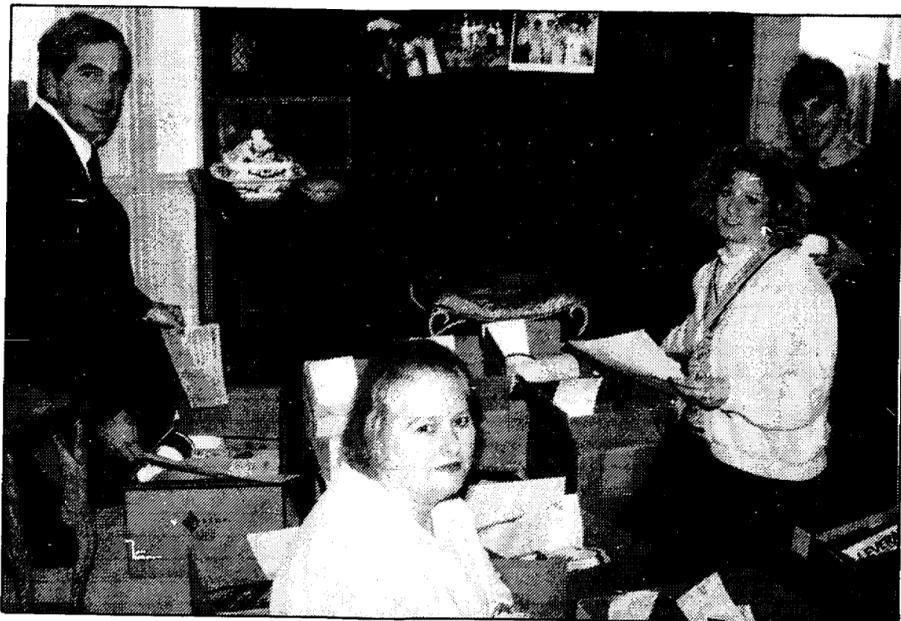

The food's all right but not enough to feed a mouse.

1900 (7 p.m.) — Now that it's dark, time for night patrol. The most we ever find are a couple of camels or a stray sheep. But sharpening our skills makes everyone sleep a little better.

2100 (9 p.m.) — Return from the patrol, time to go to sleep. The patrol tonight was short, not covering too much ground. That made our squad happy.

I have the first radio/ weapons watch. Two hours with the NVGs (Night Vision Goggles) on looking for those nightly nasties trying to get our weapons.

2300 (11 p.m.) — Time for that precious sleep, only to do it exactly the same tomorrow.

The orientation is designed to make parents more familiar with the program available at South. Students will begin the course selection process on Monday, Feb. 4.

Doors kicked in during burglaries

The front door of a home in the 1400 block of Grayton in the Park was kicked in during a burglary Dec. 16.

A resident heard a noise in the front of his home at 6:40 a.m. and when he went to investigate he confronted a man in the front hallway.

The burglar fled and the resident chased him a short distance before losing him. The burglar got away with a purse which was later found in the front yard of a home in the 4100 block of Kensington. Cash and credit cards were taken.

Also in the Park, a home in the 700 block of Middlesex was burglarized at 6:05 a.m. Dec. 19. A rear kitchen door was kicked in, and a purse containing cash and credit cards was taken.

In another incident, a home in the 1200 block of Wayburn was broken into Dec. 20 between 8:15 and 10:55 p.m. by someone who broke the glass out of a rear door and reached in to unlock the door. Two black-and-white televisions and a microwave oven were taken.

The turnout at the town hall meetings scheduled by the Grosse Pointe Woods Assessing Department has been a disappointment, according to Phillip H. Belcher, acting city assessor.

The meetings are planned to acquaint the taxpayers with the procedures used by the Woods' new assessing officers.

An hour of questions and answers by the assessing staff follows a short video and slide demonstration of an appraisal of a home in the city.

After the first meeting, which 100 people attended, participation has fallen to an average of 25. Belcher says he hopes the reason for the decline was due to the rush of the holiday season and that the remaining four sessions will be well attended.

Town hall meetings are scheduled according to the following plan: All meetings will begin at 7:30 p.m.

- Jan. 9 — Monteith School
- Jan. 10 — Barnes School
- Jan. 15 — City Hall
- Jan. 17 — City Hall

Although the meetings were originally arranged to accommodate the immediate area exclusively, Belcher said that if your scheduled meeting date has passed, you are invited to attend one of the future meetings.

Senior men to meet Jan. 8

The Senior Men's Club of Grosse Pointe will meet at the War Memorial on Tuesday, Jan. 8, at 11 a.m.

Grosse Pointe Park once again led the other Pointes in ecological matters by implementing curbside pickup of grass clippings. Park officials estimated that grass clippings make up nearly 1.875 tons of the 2,551 tons of yard waste annually burned in the incinerator. At a rate of $55 per ton of waste taken to the incinerator, the Park was paying $103,125 annually to burn grass.

New Deputy School Superintendent Harrison Cass Jr. filled the vacancy left by Ed Shine, who was promoted to superintendent earlier in the year.

Armed robbery suspects tracked through snow

Police officers from the Woods and Farms successfully helped Harper Woods officers track down two armed robbers Dec. 23 by following the suspects' footprints in the snow.

The armed robbery occurred at a home in the 21100 block of Beaufait in Harper Woods at 3:25 p.m. The suspects fled the house on foot, running south through yards.

Woods and Farms officers joined in the manhunt. Woods officers followed the suspects' tracks in the fresh snow. At one point, a resident in the 1800 block of Kenmore reported a man ran through her yard and into Ghesquiere Park.

The officers continued following the tracks in the snow south through the park, over fences, across streets and through yards.

Near Rolandale, the suspects split up. The officers also split up, each tracking one suspect.

One suspect was chased onto Moross Road where a waiting State Police trooper made the arrest. The other suspect was apprehended in the 19200 block of Raymond.

Moross Road is 24 blocks south of Beaufait where the armed robbery occurred.

BB gun burglar strikes in Farms

A burglar who has used a BB gun to shoot out windows of homes he has broken into in the Pointes and St. Clair Shores struck two homes in the Farms Dec. 23.

A resident in the 100 block of Stephens reported that someone had broken into her home sometime between 5 p.m. Dec. 23 and noon the following day.

Police found that someone had shot out the glass of a rear sun porch door with a BB gun. The burglar then reached in and disengaged the dead bolt. Some jewelry was taken.

Police believe the incident may have occurred at about 6 p.m. around the time when someone shot BBs through a doorwall at a home on Fair Acres. The BBs set off an audible alarm and the burglar fled.

caught and charged a cat burglar suspected of some 35 break-ins in the Pointes.

For the second time in the past few years, Grosse Pointe Woods had the fewest major crimes per capita of any city of 10,000 or more population in metro Detroit, according to the FBI.

After making revisions based on resident complaints and concerns, the Grosse Pointe school board once again asked the Grosse Pointe Farms Council to approve its proposed plan for a new library at Brownell Middle School. When the final affirmative vote came from Mayor Joseph Fromm, the 200 people in the audience erupted in cries of "recall." But the board knew its journey was just beginning. It now had to tackle the task of selling the need for the library to residents who will vote on a bond issue to fund it Feb. 4, 1991.

The Children's Home of Detroit came to FLEC's rescue and announced it would take over the day-to-day administrative duties of the organization which had said it would close due to lack of funding. All of FLEC's programs except the clinic would remain in operation.

Administrators in the Grosse Pointe schools re-established the Grosse Pointe Administrators Association, a union of administrators which had been defunct for nearly 10 years. The group of education recognized the board as the "sole and exclusive bargaining representative of administrative personnel." The two groups will begin bargaining later this year for a new contract.

In other administrator vs. school board news, a settlement was reached in the wrongful-discharge lawsuit filed by former Deputy Superintendent Joseph Spagnoli. The board had to pay Spagnoli $65,000, most of which was covered by insurance.

September

Grosse Pointe City was deciding how to cope with a record-breaking number of elm tree deaths. Nearly 140 elms on public property and another 40-45 on private property would have to be cut down.

The Grosse Pointe Farms Council once again angered residents by rezoning the property next door to the War Memorial. The War Memorial Association had purchased the land earlier in the year, but couldn't use it for activities until it had been rezoned.

Patricia Schneider, who had served for eight years as municipal judge in Grosse Pointe Woods, announced she would retire at the end of the year.

An $18 million plan to clean up the Milk River Drain was endorsed by the Grosse Pointe Woods Council. The project is expected to be completed by December 1994.

October

The report commissioned by the Grosse Pointes-Harper Woods Study Committee for Detroit City Airport was issued and boosted hopes of airport-expansion foes. Former U.S. Transportation Secretary James Burnley said in his report that not only did Detroit fail to adequately address issues of air and noise quality, but it grossly over-anticipated the amount of funding that was available. The committee later asked the cities to allocate $300,000 to fight the good fight by continuing to gather information in preparation of a rebuttal to Detroit's flawed airport master plan.

The Grosse Pointe Farms Council once again sent the proposed expansion of Cottage Hospital to a special committee. The hospital proposed expansion of its emergency facilities, moving the emergency room entrance to the back of the hospital and the construction of an L-shaped third-story skywalk connecting the hospital's parking deck, the Pierson Clinic and the hospital.

A section of northeast Detroit expressed a desire to become a sixth Pointe. Organizers said the high crime rate and blight would be stemmed if the area became a Pointe.

The War Memorial began what was to become a community-wide effort to provide help and support to Grosse Pointers who were affected by the crisis in the Persian Gulf.

Grosse Pointe Woods Mayor George Freeman resigned after 11 years in office. The resignation came after the Woods Council determined his legal residence was no longer in the city he served, which violates the city's charter.

Zebra mussels, those pesky intruders from Eastern Europe which made their new home in the Great Lakes, were once again in the news. A forum was held to discuss the little creatures which are reproducing at a rapid rate, changing the food chain, washing up on shore and generally creating havoc.

November

The Grosse Pointe News expanded to four sections, increasing coverage of real estate news and entertainment. The price rose to 50 cents.

Robert Novitke was unanimously elected by the Grosse Pointe Woods Council to replace Mayor George Freeman.

After months of design refinements and consideration by the city of Grosse Pointe Farms, Cottage Hospital finally got the thumbs up for expansion of its emergency-care facilities.

In election news that came as a surprise to absolutely nobody, Barbara-Rose Collins was elected to the 13th District U.S. House seat and Dennis M. Hertel was re-elected to the 14th District seat. The two candidates, both Democrats, lost in the Pointes.

The cities arrived at a funding formula to divide the proposed $300,000 cost to fight Detroit City Airport expansion. The division of funds was based partly on population and partly on each city's SEV.

The War Memorial, schools and other organizations gathered holiday cards, cookies and gifts to send to the military men and women in the Middle East.

Monteith Elementary School celebrated its selection as an exemplary school by the U.S. Department of Education.

Herbert C. Huson, an attorney practicing in St. Clair Shores, was picked to replace retiring Woods Judge Patricia Schneider. Peter R. Gilezan was chosen to fill the council vacancy.

Grosse Pointe school board member Fred Adams died of a heart attack.

December

After the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council approved the site plan for the land next door to the War Memorial, angry neighbors filed a lawsuit, contending that rezoning the parcel of land was illegal.

Jon Gandelot, former school board president who decided not to run again for the board, was named to fill the vacancy left by the death of Fred Adams until the end of the term.

A special police unit of officers from all the Pointes and Harper Woods was formed. The 12-member unit was specially trained to handle dangerous cases — like a barricaded gunman, a hostage situation or a raid on a drug house — in any of the six cities.

The War Memorial, facing a possible injunction because of the lawsuit, agreed not to use the land it had purchased until a judge decided whether the rezoning was legal.

The school board approved the changes in the middle school program it had been discussing for two years. The new requirements will begin with the 1991 school year.

After 10 years of operation, Grosse Pointe Cable — which is 75 percent owned by the communities it serves — paid dividends.

Park dispatcher possibly saved suicidal caller

After a lengthy telephone exchange, a Grosse Pointe Park dispatcher possibly saved a suicidal caller's life and defused a dangerous situation Dec. 26.

According to police, the call came in at 2:45 a.m. The caller was very depressed, talked about suicide and had wild mood swings. After a long conversation, Dispatcher Carol Otto was able to get the caller's name and address.

He turned out to be a former Park resident who had moved to Alter Road in Detroit. He threatened to shoot any police officers who came to the house, but the dispatcher was able to get the man to agree to see Park officers.

A Park public safety officer and a Detroit sergeant then went to the man's home. The man held a loaded 12-gauge shotgun across his legs. The officers were able to convince him to turn over the weapon without incident.

William Furtaw, Park deputy public safety director, said Otto has been recommended for a departmental award. She has been a part-time dispatcher for the department for about two years.

Rob Fulton

What does he know?

During the holiday season, I try not to get angry, upset or ticked off about too many things.

I even let the "Bo don't know Ernie" thing slide without too many comments, and I prayed for peace in the Middle East. Neither one of those situations looks like it'll clear up soon, so I guess it's my turn to take some pot shots.

For Christmas two years ago, my wife bought me a book that was co-authored by Mitch Albom of the Free Press and then Michigan football coach Bo Schembechler. Sound familiar? "Bo" is the book.

I hadn't seen that book in almost a year, but suddenly it appeared as I shuffled some boxes around last week. I was disturbed to see that book only because — at one time — I thought Bo was the best thing to happen to Michigan.

How wrong many of us were. My college roommate and I both attended Central Michigan, but we were staunch Bo and Wolverine fans. We were saddened and thought Michigan football would never be the same the day Bo resigned. How wrong many of us were.

With Ernie Harwell out as the Tigers' broadcaster at the end of 1991, baseball will no longer have the same flair. But with Bo still in, it appears that baseball in Detroit will never be the same.

One man's opinion: I think Tiger owner Tom Monaghan made the decision to fire Harwell, but then took a back seat as the torrent of fan criticism mounted. Bo, I assume, told his boss to lay low and he'd take the heat. Bo's a big, stern man, right? Perhaps, but you don't just up and fire the lead in the show because you've suddenly decided to take a different approach.

OK, maybe Bo's right. Maybe Ernie should be out golfing and fishing, or enjoying his family more. Maybe Ernie is getting boring (in Bo's opinion), or perhaps Bo just doesn't like Ernie's stand on keeping and renovating Tiger Stadium.

Whatever the reason, by this time next year, Ernie will be gone.

I saw the interviews with Bo, and all I got out of it was a feeling of egomania. Bo, the big, bold and righteous man who at one point said he was retiring from Michigan to spend more time with his family, was again pulling the strings.

But now, he and the Tigers' organization have many Detroiters angry. I don't think we can stay out of the park and listen to the radio indefinitely, but we can support Ernie as he calls his final season at the corner of Michigan and Trumbull.

I used to admire Bo. I couldn't wait for his book to come out and once I was done with it my strong support of him increased. But like anything, feelings can change.

Everytime I heard Michigan, I thought of Bo. Everytime I thought of football, I thought of Bo. Now, everytime I hear Ernie, I'll probably think of Bo.

I think Bo is a shrewd man, but he's running a business, and if someone doesn't fit the mold, he/she has got to go. But, firing a man of Ernie's caliber only leads me to believe that Bo just knows football, not the way to run a business.

Sailing, North-South battles end 1990

In the last six months of 1990, sailing on the waters of Lake St. Clair highlighted the summer, but once the fall and winter rolled around, the boats were packed and North, South and University Liggett School scooted from the football and soccer fields, into the gyms.

In the Dec. 27 edition, we took a look back at 1990 from January to June. This week, we'll didn't qualify for the state tournament.

- South's soccer team advanced to 9-1 overall with a 3-0 win at Utica. Goalie Chris Dowe got the shutout.

- The ULS football team was 5-0 and ranked No. 4 in the Class C polls, but back-to-back losses to Birch Run and Country Day knocked the Knights from a possible playoff berth.

- North beat South, 2-1, in soccer on goals by John Woods and Arnaud Beavois.

- In the first of two basketball confrontations, North beat South, 36-21. Just four weeks later, South avenged the loss, 42-35. North eventually finished second in the Macomb Area Conference White Division.

- Brian DiLaura carded a 42, as the North golf team clinched the MAC White Division with a 181-183 win over Anchor Bay.

- South lost, 13-6, to Fraser in a Homecoming battle despite outplaying the Ramblers. The loss snapped South's three-game winning streak and pushed it to 3-3 overall.

- Reeve Brandon and Jim Moore ran spectacular races — in the rain and mud — as the North boys' cross country team beat South, 27-30. The win was North's first in three seasons over South, and gave the Norsemen the MAC White Division championship.

- The ULS boys' soccer team won its 10th straight Michigan Independent Athletic Conference title. ULS was ranked No. 5 in the C-D polls.

- North's No. 6 ranked girls' swim team beat No. 5 ranked Groves, 99-87, behind outstanding swims from Wendy Mader and Karen Dundon.

- Steve Craparotta plunged in from a yard out to give the North football team a 7-0 win over South in overtime. After a 0-0 deadlock in regulation, South won the toss but elected to play defense. On a fourth-down play, Craparotta gave North the winning score. South then sought to tie the score on its possession, but a Marc Adams interception stopped South's attempt.

- ULS' Mike Whelan tied a state high school football record by booting four field goals in a 45-0 romp of Lutheran Northwest.

- The North soccer team beat Cousino in the first round of the district playoffs and advanced to a semifinal game against DeLaSalle. North later lost, 1-0, to the No. 1 ranked Pilots. Meanwhile, South beat Roseville and East Detroit to reach the finals against DeLaSalle, but lost, 5-3.

- South's girls' cross country team edged North, 36-39, to win its first MAC title.

- A 27-14 loss to Sterling Heights in the season's final football game gave South an overall record of 4-5. It was the first time under Jon Rice the team finished below .500.

November

- The South girls' cross country team won the regional title and advanced to the state meet, where it finished sixth — its highest finish ever.

- ULS' girls' soccer team won its seventh district championship by beating Bethesda Christian, 3-1.

- South's girls' swim team took second at the Brighton Invitational.

- Jennifer Miller became the first girl in cross country at ULS to be named to the all-state team.

- ULS' soccer season ended with a 3-0 loss to Country Day in regional play.

- The Lady Norsemen won the MAC swim title for the fourth straight season, and later finished eighth in the state meet. In that meet, North broke five school records.

- For the first time in school history, the ULS girl's basketball team won two district games and advanced to the district finals, only to lose.

- South announced that its athletic facilities will undergo some major changes.

- Both the North and South girls' basketball teams were ousted by Regina in district play.

- ULS' Ali Frederick, Anne Cavanaugh, Heather Heidel, Ify Obianwu and Shannon Byrne were named to the Class A all-state team.

December

- After coaching the South ice hockey team since 1983-84, Tim Zimmerman was fired. Jim McCauley took over for Zimmerman Dec. 10. With all the adversity, the team pulled out a 6-0-1 record before falling to Southgate Anderson.

- After a 1-3 start, the North hockey team headed for the ULS Christmas Tournament looking to get better. Despite playing well, North lost to Windsor Assumption, 3-2, but bounced back in the consolation game to beat ULS, 3-2. North has never lost to a ULS hockey team.

- ULS is 2-2 in hoops before entering the Notre Dame Holiday Tournament.

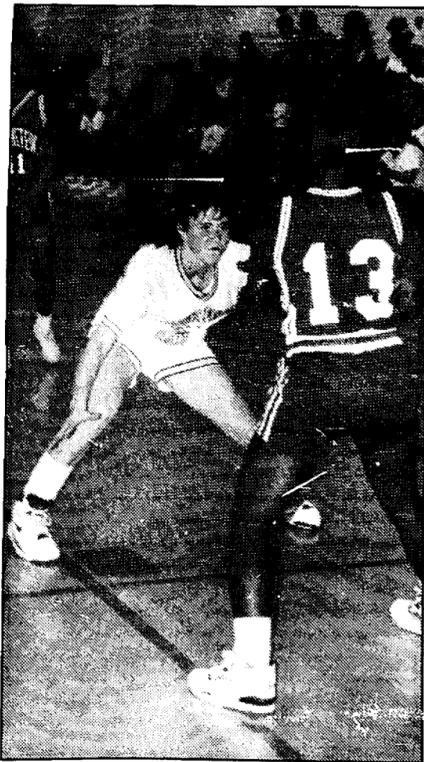

- Behind co-captains Tim Gramling and Bill Leins, the South basketball team is 4-1.

- The South volleyball team finished second in the Henry Ford Tournament, losing to Wayne in the finals.

Everything you wanted to know about imports — plus

Imports continue to cast their spell over millions of U.S. consumers every year, with better than one in four new cars sold in the United States built abroad. Competition for sales among the imports is heated and with the domestics it's red-hot.

Not too many years ago it didn't take long to run through the what's-new-in-the-imports lineup. There'd be something from Volkswagen, a couple of Toyotas and Datsuns, a Fiat and maybe a new model from Renault.

For 1991 the players include builders in the Far East like Japan and Korea, and builders from European countries like Germany, Italy, Great Britain, France and Sweden. The domestics have their "captive" imports, like the Australian-built Mercury Capri convertible, the Pontiac LeMans from Taiwan, Ford's Festiva from Korea.

And they include, perhaps star, Japanese makers who build cars in the United States, the so-called "transplants." Honda was the first Japanese company to begin building cars in the United States with its Accord facility in Marysville, Ohio. GM has had a joint venture with Toyota for several years; they assemble Geo Prizms and Toyota Corollas under the same roof in Fremont, Calif. Import pairs with import in Illinois, GM hitches up with Suzuki in Canada, Chrysler and Ford build cars in Mexico.

Let's begin our rundown with Chevrolet's "imported" Geo products and what's new in that line — which not all Chevrolet dealers carry — for 1991. Geo Metro, with its 1.0-liter, three-cylinder, super-sipper engine is basically unchanged except for new interior fabrics and new interior and exterior colors. Prizm has some exterior refinements and a new long-life exhaust system. Storm, which has more than lived up to its name on the sales charts since its introduction the beginning of 1990, has a new hatchback model with large glass tailgate and low liftover height and swing-out, detachable rear-engine windows.

Ford Festiva offers a new GL model, replacing the L Plus and LX. The Mercury Capri convertible seats four, has front wheel drive and can be ordered with a standard 1.6-liter four or turbo version of same.

The Pontiac LeMans GSE and VL models have been dropped, leaving a base and LE model from which to choose. The nameplate has a new cam-belt tensioner for its 1.6-liter engine.

The Dodge and Plymouth Colt series drops its GT model and its station wagon for 1991. The line also eliminates the optional 1.6-liter engine.

Honda's big news for 1991 is its U.S.-designed Accord station wagon, which began arriving at local dealerships in mid-December. The base model is powered by the standard 2.2-liter four. Other news includes a special edition SE four-door Accord sedan with 140 hp, four-wheel ABS brakes, aluminum alloy wheels and a leather-trimmed interior. The Prelude Si model gets power door locks with an ABS option package for '91.

Mazda has upgraded its lineup for the new year. There are new equipment packages for the 626, alloy wheels are now standard on the 929 and a new leather package and compact disc player are options. Four-wheel ABS brakes are offered as an option on the Miata. Options are required in packages for Protege and RX-7 models. The RX-7 convertible gets air conditioning as standard.

The Toyota Camry continues to offer four-door sedans and wagons, and front-drive or 4WD. The Deluxe Wagon with its V-6 engine has been dropped; also the All-Trac Deluxe Sedan. A convertible Celica GT returns to the family for '91. It is powered by a 130-hp 2.2-liter four. The soft-top is power-operated. Rear seats fold down to accommodate the pass-through trunk.

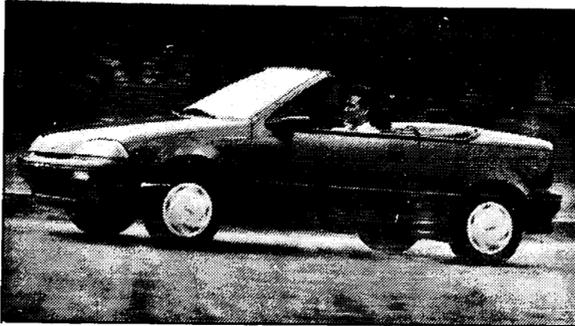

Autos

By Jenny King

Topping the Honda Accord line for 1991 is the new SE four-door sedan, with a more powerful 140-hp 16-valve 2.2-liter four.

Geo Metro convertible, built by Suzuki and marketed by Chevrolet, is becoming more ubiquitous.

The All-Trac SR5 Corolla Wagon is gone this year and the All-Trac Corolla Deluxe Sedan also has been dropped. The restyled MR2 for '91 bowed last April. It features increased trunk and interior room, more horsepower, a longer wheelbase and optional ABS brakes. The redesigned Tercel is available as a two-door sedan; hatchback versions are gone. Electronic fuel injection pushes horsepower to 82 from the 1.5-liter engine.

Subaru's little econocar Justy offers optional multi-point fuel injection on the 1.2-liter base engine. The Loyale adds standard equipment for 1991 and drops the RS and Turbo models. The Legacy LS sedan is new this year, available in luxury or sporty style.

Honda's Acura NSX two-seater was introduced this fall. It has a 24-valve V-6 with port fuel injection that develops 270 hp. A 5-speed manual transmission is standard. Its top speed is 163 mph; the NSX does 0-60 in 5.2 seconds, and 0-130 mph in 24.9 seconds.

Nissan introduces an all-new Sentra for 1991. Available in several two-door and four-door models, Sentra is powered by a dual overhead cam 1.6-liter four rated at 110 hp. A 140-hp 2.0-liter engine is available. The 240SX has undergone a facelift and has a new 16-valve engine to back it up. Four-wheel steering is optional on the SE Fastback. Coupes and fastbacks get optional ABS brakes. The 300ZX adds a non-T-top two-seat coupe.

BMW's 318i coupe and 318i sedan have an all-new 134-hp 16-valve 1.8-liter engine coupled with a five-speed manual transmission. The sedan gets ABS brakes, the coupe has M-Technic suspension. The restyled M5 sedan has a 3.6-liter six that develops 310 hp. The 535i sedan gets a 4-speed automatic; horsepower for the 525i's 2.5-liter engine is up to 189 for 1991.

The 7 Series all have the four-speed automatic for '91. The flagship BMW 850i coupe replaces the former 6 Series. Powered by a 5-liter, 296-hp V-12 engine with six-speed manual transmission, the 850i offers automatic stability control for uncertain road conditions plus an all-new chassis with special rear suspension.

Volvo introduces its 940 series, replacing the 760 line. The 940s have a new shape with higher rear deck but lower liftover trunk sill. The Bertone-designed 780 Coupe will be known as the Coupe this year. Powered by a 188-hp turbocharged four, the Coupe has a new automatic-locking differential.

Mercedes-Benz offers a new base model, the 190E, for 1991. The beginner Mercedes is powered by a 130-hp 2.3-liter four. It looks identical to the 190E 2.6. The 300 Class includes the 300E 4Matic with 4WD; 2WD and 4WD station wagons, and a coupe. The 300D is powered by a 2.5-liter turbodiesel. S Class offers a choice of six sedans and one coupe. The 350SD is new. An automatic locking differential, and automatic slip control system, are new for 1991 and available on specific but not all models.

Saab introduces a bigger (140 hp) 2.1-liter four for its 1991 900 and 900S models. A turbo-charged version of the 2.0-liter is optional on both nameplates. The 9000 bows with a new base 4-door hatchback powered by a 2.3-liter four. A new turbo-charged 2.3-liter engine cranks out 200 hp. There are five 9000 models.

Audi's 80 base model will be powered by a 2.3-liter five, the same engine in the 80 Quattro. A 4-speed automatic is new. ABS brakes are standard. There's a new sport suspension. The Audi 90 shares the new automatic transaxle. So does the Audi 100. The Coupe Quattro has a new glass sunroof with power tilt and slide. The 200 V-8 Quattro features a five-speed manual transaxle and has permanently engaged all-wheel drive plus ABS brakes. Its 2.2-liter engine develops a higher 220 hp for 1991.

Nissan's Infiniti Division introduced the G20 last fall, a luxury sedan priced for luxury-car beginners, with a suggested $17,500 tag. Under the G20 hood is a new all-aluminum, dual overhead cam 140-hp multi-valve 4-cylinder engine. The front-engine, rear-drive M30 convertible joined the family just before the end of the year. It's powered by a 3.0-liter V-6 with 4-speed automatic transmission. Its counterpart is the hardtop coupe which bowed in the fall of 1989. The division's flagship Q45 offers Full-Active Suspension for 1991. A new traction control option also is available for the first time this year.

The year in review

Highlights from the 1990 Community News section

By Margie Reins Smith
Feature Editor

No harm in looking over one's shoulder now and then, right?

At the beginning of a new year it's good to stand back — widen one's perspective — judge the successes and failures of past projects.

Formerly referred to as the "Community" section, it was renamed "Features" on Nov. 8.

After all, the whole paper is community news, right? The "Features" section features features.

In 1990 we told you about Grosse Pointers who were up to their earlobes in fundraisers and fairs, concerts, clubs, classes, sales, tours and shows. We interviewed local people who were doing good things for themselves and others: getting thin, getting healthy, getting help, getting cooking, getting the scoop, getting and giving gifts. We found people who were growing things, learning things, creating things, writing, painting, decorating, organizing, auctioning, teaching and volunteering.

Fundraisers

One-fourth of last year's Community section lead stories were about Grosse Pointers who were involved in fundraisers.

Some of the most spectacular:

- The Junior League of Detroit's Decorator's Show House, a month-long open house at Bellmor, a magnificent lakeside mansion. The Show House raised about a quarter of a million dollars for future JLD projects.

- Grosse Pointe Academy's Action Auction, the biggest private school fundraiser in the nation.

- The Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology's Eyes on the Classics, the only automotive show in the country in which cars are judged on design and artistic excellence.
- Children's Hospital of Michigan's Festival of Trees.
- The Fontbonne Society of St. John Hospital and Medical Society's White Christmas Ball.

Some other major benefits included the Assistance League to the Northeast Guidance Center's annual juried art fair, Art on the Pointe, which was held on the spacious grounds of the Edsel & Eleanor Ford estate; and Christ Church Grosse Pointe's top-notch antiques show which helps fund musical and mission work of the church.

The American Association of University Women collected 50,000 used books; then held a five-day book sale. The Grosse Pointe Historical Society kicked off the Christmas season with "The Sounds of Christmas," seasonal concerts presented in two of Grosse Pointe's historic churches.

Then there were tours.

The Grosse Pointe Garden Council invited people to tromp through seven local gardens. The Grosse Pointe Garden Center opened four Grosse Pointe homes for inspection. Cottage Hospital Auxiliary's kitchen tour allowed ticket holders a chance to gawk at some well-designed kitchens. The Detroit chapter of the American Institute of Architects picked some of the community's most architecturally significant homes and asked folks to stop in and see. The Grosse Pointe Garden Center offered a tour of homes that were loaded with personality.

Clubs, organizations

In line with our goal to write an article explaining the origin and purpose of every organized club in the Grosse Pointes, we wrote 16 stories about local groups last year.

We featured the School of Government, Inc., a group of women devoted to the study of government theory and practice. The club also celebrated its golden anniversary in 1990. We described the work of the Grosse Pointe Lawyers' Auxiliary; the Newcomers Club; the Men's Garden Club of Grosse Pointe; the Soroptimists and Venture Club (a junior version of Soroptimists); and the Grosse Pointe Woman's Club.

We did a roundup article in September (prime club-joining time) about what kinds of clubs are out there and what kinds of members they're looking for.

We also wrote about the Grunions, a bunch of men who sing and perform mellow, pop-bop-a-do-pa 50's and 60's songs just for the fun of it; the Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra; the Foundation for Exceptional Children, a unique private program for children with special needs; Volunteer Connect, a computer skills bank that links willing volunteers to organizations that need them; and the Bon Secours Milers, a feisty bunch of people who have chronic obstructive pulmonary diseases, but have found an unusual way to motivate themselves to pursue rehabilitation.

We regretfully announced that the Family Life Education Council closed its doors in July, but we later reported that several of its programs were picked up by other organizations.

Eastwood Clinics, another organization for youngsters with mental health and substance abuse problems, was the subject of an article.

The Bon Secours Assistance League finalized its plans for a bang-up celebrity series for the 1990-91 season. The Adoption Identity Movement was featured in an article about birth mothers who are seeking the children they gave up for adoption and adopted children who are seeking the identity of their birth parents.

Personalities

We wrote nearly a dozen personality profiles for the front page of the community section last year.

First graders in Jean Strachan's class at Defer Elementary School learned how to grow vegetables from the men of the Men's Garden Club of Grosse Pointe. They're proud of the results of their efforts.

Three were artists: Nancy Profit told about her venture into painting icons; Carol Lachusa traced the Oriental influence in her watercolors; and Mary Byerly described how she love to decorate for Halloween. We visited some teenagers' bedrooms — messy ones and neat ones.

We examined the question of whether lawn chemicals are their friends to their parents.

Our Elegant Eating writer spent the evening with two professional chefs as they prepared a sumptuous dinner for eight.

getting into the business of making Santa Claus artists' dolls.

Frank Newman talked about his work with the Make-A-Wish Foundation of Michigan, an organization that grants wishes to children with life-threatening illnesses.

The Rev. Bertalan Tamas of Budapest, Hungary, was visiting Grosse Pointe as Grosse Pointe Memorial Church's ecumenical minister. He talked to us about the role of the church in shaping the new Eastern Europe.

Just before Valentine's Day, we interviewed two Grosse Pointe women to get the sizzle on how they became successful writers of romance novels. We also interviewed a Grosse Pointe woman who went on a weight-loss program and eventually lost 140 pounds.

Other topics on page 1B in 1990 included a photo story about the bells of Grosse Pointe with pictures of the Grosse Pointe South High School tower, the Joy Bells, several church bell towers... and Richard Elementary School's recess bell.

We examined the shaky ground on which the Groundhog Day legend rests and tried to separate the facts from the fictions surrounding the first Thanksgiving feast.

We interviewed two women who were victims of domestic violence and talked to some local cooks of renown, who, in honor of Mother's Day, shared their mothers' best recipes.

We talked to some adults who discovered that its not as easy as pie for restaurants, grocery stores and private clubs to donate unused edible food to the poor and hungry. And we looked at the incredible support system that's available for terminally ill patients who choose the hospice philosophy of care for the last months of their lives.

We visited the Lifeskills classes at Brownell Middle School and found kids microwaving frozen piecrust, sewing names on their hockey jerseys and learning how to introduce

Just before the holidays, we found some Grosse Pointers who were willing to talk about the best Christmas gifts they'd ever given and received.

And we did a pre-Christmas roundup of senior citizens' organizations in the metropolitan Detroit area that needed donations of time, goods and money to make their clients' holidays a little brighter.

Welcome, 1991. We're looking forward to exploring 52 new topics.

Groundhogs are lousy predictors of weather. The National Geographic Society did a survey of the weather on Feb. 2 for the last 60 years and found the little critters were correct a whopping 28 percent of the time.

Jack Fischer, a fire specialist for Grosse Pointe Farms, likes to decorate for Halloween. This is his house.

Anti-smoking education for elementary kids

During the American Cancer Society's "Great American Smokeout" Nov. 15, thousands of Americans decided to call it quits for cigarettes.

The same day, thousands of young people probably took up the habit. More than three million American children under the age of 18 consume a total of 947 million packs of cigarettes each year.

John Burrows, M.D., of Grosse

Windmill Pointe Garden Club

The Windmill Pointe Garden Club will meet at 11:30 a.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 9, at the home of Diane Marston. Ann Hathaway will assist as the co-hostess.

A group of garden club members directed by Jackie Beck and Pauline Thomas will offer the program, "Look to Your Future: Your Drinking Water."

Pointe Park, chief of Oncology at St. John Hospital and Medical Center, said that nicotine is more addictive than heroin and should be included in the government's war on drugs.

"We know that a lot of kids start smoking in their early teens. Certainly in their late teens and early adult years, many of them are experimenting with smoking, without realizing that they can quickly become addicted. It's not unusual to see a person fast addicted to nicotine by the time they are in their 20s. But the effects that we are concerned about begin to show up 10, 15, 20 years later," explains Burrows.

The disabling effects of heart disease, lung cancer and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease are far from the mind of a 15-year-old trying to "fit-in" with the crowd.

"It's a very difficult group to work with. I have worked in the school system a great deal and what you have is a captive audience of youngsters and they see this as something else the adults want them not to do. Some adult is standing there shaking a finger at them saying you shouldn't be doing that," Burrows said.

"What you're got to do is get at them earlier than high school. You need to get to the kids in elementary school. I think these programs are much more successful."

Nicotine addiction in childhood can lead to a future of disability, he said. But, young children who are still "listening" to the adult world can be taught the concept that smoking is bad, and they'll hopefully never want to start in the first place.

For more information about stopping smoking, call St. John Hospital, 1-800-237-5646.

Russ Seely

Pettipointe Questers

Kay Fulgenzi opened her home on Dec. 6 for a gathering of Pettipointe Questers. Members brought a variety of ethnic foods and heard a speaker discuss Polish Christmas customs.

Grosse Pointer is elected to Barbershop Hall of Fame

Russ Seely, formerly of Grosse Pointe Woods, was awarded the highest honor of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America at the organization's fall district conference.

Seely was elected to the Barbershop Hall of Fame in acknowledgement of his 36 years of dedication to barbershopping. During this period, Seely has sung with three district quartet champions and has competed on the international stage eight times. He has also served in every administrative office in the district.

Seely is past president of the Grosse Pointe chapter and has been director of the Lakeshore Chorus of that chapter for 21 years.

The Grosse Pointe chapter, which meets at the Neighborhood Club, presents an annual show which is conceived, written, produced and arranged by Seely. The chapter also performs at the War Memorial, in the Village and in an annual Christmas tour of nursing and retirement homes.

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION
BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD

Sam Gentleman is what I call a free and easy partner at the card table. Free in that he isn't steeped in imprudent bidding practices and easy because he readily accepts constructive playing instruction. A coach would call a recruit with this attitude a fine young comer, but Sam passed that stage of aging and play years ago. What allows him to practice this wonderful open mindedness is an almost zero ego which is a rare quality in a participant of his age and experience. Unfortunately we elders of the game seem to have a preconceived notion of greatness when actually we often don't handle our cards well at all. The good management of bidding and play are an art that requires education, experience and judgement that doesn't come easy.

I once asked Sam if he minded my comments. His was a magnificent reply. "Not at all; there's no dishonor in learning from another who speaks good sense, but there are those who harp upon partners' blunders and preach unpleasantly. That type can't teach or even play well because they aren't ready to examine their own failures first."

I had the distinct pleasure of playing with Sam in last November's SOMBA senior session. We were a distant fifth in the final standings and would have done better if this columnist had played up to his self-established expectation.

Here's one of Sam's superb efforts that gave us a tie for a top with three other pairs. Most were down one in four spades because of the club adversity. Those defending four hearts doubled could only muster six tricks at best for a 500 plus as opposed to 620 in a successful spade endeavor. Sam handled this hand magnificently and overcame the club stack with East which one might think was somewhat apparent from the bidding.

W led heart Q

For those of my readers who have prematurely concluded that a low diamond and high club switch by east for a ruff dooms the contract is an erroneous speculation. This actually makes the club suit easier to play for ten tricks.

When the dummy was visible, Sam was extremely pleased. At second glance he became faintly apprehensive. Where was the club suit? If clubs broke 3-2, a 68% probability, there was no problem, but otherwise there might be three losers along with the diamond and that would equal defeat. He therefore went about extracting adverse trumps by the play of the ace after winning the heart in his hand. If trumps were stacked, most likely with East, he had a favorable finessing position. All went well in that suit so he gave East his diamond ace and ruffed the return. At trick six through eight, he eliminated the rest of his red cards in dummy and his hand. This foresightful plan was preparatory to leading clubs. Which ever opponent won the first club he wanted to be sure they had to continue that suit or give him a sluff and ruff. His careful preparation now paid a handsome dividend. On the lead of the club ten West showed out and East was allowed to win that card and another duck, but East was now end played. Another club gave declarer two tricks or a ruff/sluff.

Blessed New Year

By Rev. Russell L. Stevens
Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church

We have just moved into the year 1991. Many of us have done this with great hope and expectation. We have made resolutions that, for many of us, will not be kept. We have celebrated at New Year's Eve parties by saying goodbye to the old year and ringing in the new year with all that it holds in store.

But for many, the turning of a page on their calendars did not signify the beginning of a new year. They moved into 1991 with the same baggage they had previously been carrying. Their new year will only begin when they rid themselves of those things that shackle them to the past.

For many, the new year will begin when they purge their lives of drugs, alcohol or tobacco; things that threaten their very existence.

For others, the new year will begin when they repair a broken relationship.

For some, the new year will begin when they once again are gainfully employed and able to provide for the needs of their families.

For our servicemen and servicewomen, the new year will begin when they are re-united with their loved ones and they once again are able to get on with their lives.

But for so many, the new year will begin when they meet Jesus Christ and have an opportunity to accept Him as the Lord of their lives and the Savior of their souls. This is my prayer for all of you who do not yet know Christ. May you have that most blessed experience in 1991.

Intervention for substance abusers

"If there's someone in your family in trouble with alcohol or other chemicals, there are things you can do. There are answers. There are solutions. If the family will unite and take positive steps toward correcting the situation, this can be one of the best Christmases ever," says Harold Ford, an intervention trainer and the director of management services at the Oxford Institute, a residential and outpatient facility for the treatment of alcoholism and drug dependency.

The holidays can be horrendous for families touched by alcohol or drug abuse. Rude and obnoxious behavior is often tolerated by family members as they put on a smile and pretend that everything is OK.

Ford says that families who want to help a loved one with a chemical dependency problem usually decide to put it off until after the holidays.

"In reality, this is probably one of the best times to take action because it's the time of year that's considered to be very significant and very precious for families," he said.

"We have put people into treatment centers just before Christmas. Families who have responded positively and provided support for that person will often say it was the best Christmas that they ever had. It was a Christmas where people could appreciate the gifts that were shared. They could express their love without fear of rejection, and the person was living in a sober world. That is the best Christmas present people could have," Ford said.

Nola Cook

Lecture at First Church of Christ, Scientist

Lecturer Nola Cook says that happiness doesn't depend on circumstances: whether we're married or unmarried; whether we're successful or not; where we live; or how much money we make. Cook believes that if we look to these things for guarantees of a lifetime of happiness, we'll be bitterly disappointed.

A devoted Christian Scientist, Cook suggests looking for happiness in the right place. For her,

this means looking to God.

"It isn't that God is just giving or not giving out happiness," she said, "but that establishing our relationship to God — understanding Him — is the right basis on which to build happiness."

Cook will speak on Thursday, Jan. 10, at 8 p.m., at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, 282 Chalfonte, Grosse Pointe Farms. Her topic will be, "Is It Possible to Live Happily Ever After?"

During the one-hour lecture, Cook will give examples from the Bible as well as from modern living to explain her conviction that happiness is spiritual.

The public is invited. Child care will be provided.

Support for bereaved

Cottage Hospice offers bereavement support group meetings twice monthly at Cottage Hospital on the second Thursday and the fourth Tuesday, from 7 to 9 p.m. The groups are facilitated by Sister Elaine Hartnett, bereavement coordinator.

Bereavement support groups offer emotional and practical assistance for people who are coping with the death of a loved one. They provide a safe place for people to share and receive help from one another.

Topics for the January meetings will include a discussion of the holidays and hopes for a new year on Jan. 10; and understanding loss and grief on Jan. 22.

For more information, call Cottage Hospice at 884-8600, ext. 2467.

Cancer support group

A group providing support to adult cancer patients, their families and significant others is under way at St. John Hospital and Medical Center.

The philosophy of the group is that many people can better cope with cancer if they can share their experiences and concerns. Health professionals assist the group in obtaining specific information. The group meets on the third Thursday of each month from 6:30 to 8 p.m. on the fourth floor.

The next session will be Jan. 17.

For more information, call the St. John Physician Referral and Information Service at 1-800-237-5646, weekdays, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Program on annulment

Separated or divorced Catholics are invited to attend a program on annulment from 7:30 to 9 p.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 9, at St. Clare of Montefalco Church, Mack at Whittier, Grosse Pointe Park.

Msr. Richard Bass of the Archdiocesan Tribunal will review the annulment process. The cost of the program is $3.

For additional information, call 884-2110.

Blood pressure tests are free

Nurses from St. John Hospital and Medical Center's Home Health Care Services offer free blood pressure screenings the second Wednesday of each month from 10 a.m. to noon at the Harper Woods Community Center, 19748 Harper in Harper Woods.

The next screening will be Jan. 9.

For more information, call 343-3738.

How to reduce the risk of rape

By Ezra D. Davidson, Jr., M.D.
President, American College of Obstetrics and Gynecologists

Every year in the United States, more than 127,000 women are the victims of rape. One of the four major violent crimes ranking with robbery, assault, and homicide, rape can affect women of any age, race and socioeconomic group.

Despite the prevalence and seriousness of this violent crime, many people don't face the reality of rape until a friend or family member has been attacked. It is important, however, to recognize that rape can happen to anyone.

Here are some things women can do to reduce the risk of rape:

- Out-of-doors: Whenever possible, avoid walking or jogging alone, especially in unfamiliar places and after dark. Plan a route ahead of time, being careful to stay on well-lit and well-traveled walkways. Walk at a steady pace and act as if you know where you are going. If you are followed, head for open stores or restaurants or busy roads.

- At home: Always lock doors and windows and use peepholes to identify callers. Don't let anyone in unless you are sure of his business and have checked for proper identification. Hang curtains or blinds on all windows. Use initials rather than your first name for mailbox tags and telephone listings. It is also a good idea to get to know a neighbor who is familiar with your

Costner's brilliant 'Wolves' is a film that must be seen

By Marian Trainor
Staff Writer

Prairie vistas stretch to the horizon and sweep across the screen creating a dramatic and stunning background for "Dances With Wolves," an unusual and satisfying Western.

No need for special effects here. Nature in the raw in all its grandeur is more awesome than any spectacle of lights and lasers.

Told against this magnificent background is a simple story, but a story that is thoughtful and carefully crafted.

Although the location is never stated, it was shot in South Dakota, near the site in neighboring Montana where General George Armstrong Custer had his fatal encounter with the Sioux Indians in the Battle of Little Big Horn.

The film wastes no time in presenting Lieutenant John H. Dunbar (Kevin Costner) as a fearless Union officer in a Civil War sequence that's a beauty.

Badly wounded, he rides his horse at full gallop down a field in full view of the Confederates. Rebel rifle fire misses him but his apparent bravery inspires his own men to attack and soon the rebels are on the run. He is decorated and given a choice of whatever assignment he chooses. He chooses the frontier. He wants to see it "before it's gone."

He is assigned to the farthest outpost and when he gets there, finds it deserted. In his determination to create order in this wilderness, he assigns himself tasks: He keeps a journal in which he makes notes about his daily doings and the appearance of a wolf whom he names Two Socks because of its white front paws. Two Socks and his horse are his only companions.

He takes well to the isolation.

He writes, "I'm alone but never lonely."

After bathing in the river one day, and scaring off an Indian he finds checking out his post, he decides to visit the tribe of Sioux Indians camped not far from the post. In spite of the language barrier, he manages to convey to them his desire for a peaceful relationship. They accept and Dunbar learns to communicate in Sioux language and the Sioux learn English.

This exchange is facilitated by a beautiful young white woman named "Standing With Fist" (Mary McDonnell), who was raised by the Sioux when she was found roaming the plains as a child after her family was slaughtered by Pawnee Indians who were the scourge of the plains both to white settlers and other Indian tribes.

About half of the dialogue is spoken in authentic Lakota Sioux language which is translated for viewers in subtitles, a bold touch that lends realism.

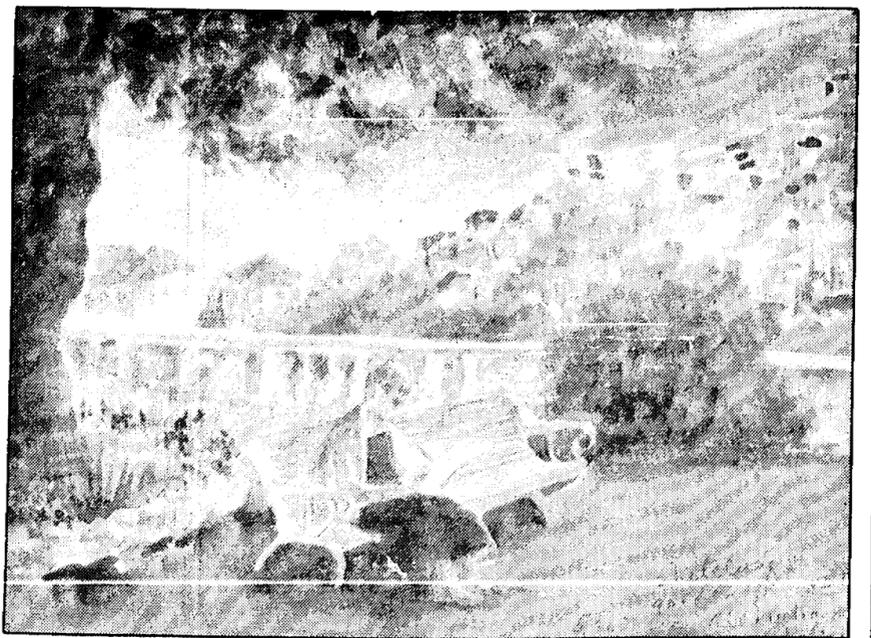

Dunbar is so impressed by the Indian culture that he decides to become one of them. He writes in his journal: "They have a gentle humor I enjoy... Every day is a miracle. I've never known a people so eager to laugh and so dedicated to the family." He is seen running with Two Socks and is named "Dances With Wolves." Later he falls in love with "Standing With Fist" and they marry.

There are two threats to the Sioux — warlike Pawnee and, even worse, the white man. "Will there be more coming?" they ask Dunbar. He answers: "As many as the stars in the sky." It falls on their ears like a death knell.

"Dances With Wolves" is totally engrossing. The story, written by Michael Blake based on his own novel, shows how Dunbar, sickened by the madness of the white world, finds himself increasingly drawn to the harmonious tribal life of the Sioux. When Dunbar becomes a Sioux, he discovers his true identity. In the recesses of his mind he knows the idyll can't last. Just over the horizon lurks the implacably advancing white civilization. Basically "Dances With Wolves" is a romantic idyll that imagines a world in which whites were generally interested in learning about the native Indian culture that lived closely in harmony with the natural world. Costner's wild west is presented from the Native American point of view. The Sioux Indians are the good guys and the white man is predatory and lawless.

Besides making the point that the Indians were wise and resourceful, the film has some breathtaking sequences, the most memorable being a buffalo hunt that tracks 3,500 buffalo stampeding across the prairie, or one showing Costner alone at the post, a fire blazing behind him doing an Indian dance. At the center of all this is a spare, visceral human drama of a man who mourns what he knows cannot last.

"Dances With Wolves" is a personal triumph for Costner. He directed, produced and stars in this compelling Western with epic scope that presents three hours of fascinating, solid entertainment.

Solo show

Grosse Pointe resident Virginia Durbin Thibodeau will have a solo showing of her recent paintings at The Scarab Club, 217 Farnsworth in Detroit. The show opens Jan. 5, with a reception from 2:30 to 5 p.m. and runs Tuesday through Sunday through Jan. 30.

CCS faculty exhibits artwork

The Center Galleries recently opened "Focus on Faculty: A Sabbatical Exhibition" by four faculty members of the Center for Creative Studies — College of Art and Design (CCS-CAD).

William Frcka of the industrial design department, Lothar Hoffman, of the graphic communications department and James Poole and Anthony Williams of the fine arts department will present work accomplished in whole or part during their recent sabbatical leaves.

CCS-CAD encourages and supports a one- to two-semester leave after six years of teaching. Sabbaticals permit a break in teaching obligations to allow the continued professional and creative growth of CCS-CAD faculty.

Frcka will display large, mixed-media constructions. Hoffman will exhibit a 12-part work, "The Evolution of Written Forms," that traces the development of calligraphy through the ages.

Poole will show a series of mixed-media works on paper that subtly evokes the forces of nature.

Williams will exhibit several large oil paintings on themes of athletes in motion.

"Focus on Faculty" will be on view in the Center Galleries through Jan. 18.

The Center Galleries are located at Woodward Avenue and Kirby Street in the Park Shelton Building. Exhibitions are open to the public and admission is free. Gallery hours are Tuesday-Friday 10 a.m.-5 p.m. and Saturday-Sunday 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Paid parking is available inside the Park Shelton and free parking is available in the CCS-CAD parking lots.

The baby talk has lost its charm

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

Seeing as how these are the holidays and all, we should be generous and start on a positive note: "Look Who's Talking" was a wonderful little film. It combined a great idea (listening in on a baby's thoughts) with some very witty monologues by Bruce Willis, as the voice of the baby.

Now, along comes "Look Who's Talking Too," an unfunny, uninspired sequel that does nothing but make you wish they had left well enough alone after the original.

This time, Baby Mikey gets a little sister, whose voice is supplied by Roseanne Barr. Now the wisecracking youngster has an even younger counterpart, with an even more adult vocabulary.

To help keep things interesting, mommy Kirstie Alley and daddy John Travolta are fighting over just about everything these days, from daddy's inability to find a good job to mommy's habit of putting her brother before her husband.

None of this domestic difficulty is particularly funny, of course. Actually, it's downright depressing.

But it's not nearly as depressing as the filmmaker's inability to come up with any original material. That's depressing, but not surprising. It doesn't take a genius to realize that "Talking's" gimmick is good for little more than a five-minute "Saturday Night Live" skit. That the first film came out so well is due mostly to luck.

This time around, we have babies talking about the potty chair ad nauseam, along with long, music-backed sequences that resemble mini-music videos.

That's a sure sign that the writers were having difficulty coming up with enough good material to stretch the film to the requisite 90 minutes.

It won't fool anybody.

For the record, Travolta and Alley bring nothing to their roles that we didn't see the first time around. Nor does Willis.

"Talking Too" is, quite simply, a waste of time.

Eastwood's 'Rookie' won't make your day, but it won't bother it either

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

Although "The Rookie" is a formula cops and robbers film, it is put together and paced so professionally that it holds the viewer's interest right down to the amusing closing sequence — a takeoff on the opening scene which brings the film full circle.

Another plus: It stars Clint Eastwood (who also directs it) of Dirty Harry fame. This time he is Dirty Nick Pulovski, a renegade cop with a short fuse.

Paired with Eastwood is Charlie Sheen as David Ackerman, a new man on the force. Eastwood is not too enthused about having him for a partner and makes no bones about it. He tolerates him but refuses to let him in on what's happening.

He doesn't like Ackerman showing up for work as an undercover man in pressed suits and he is particularly annoyed at his choice of snack food — wimpy doughnuts with sprinkles on top.

As they make the rounds of east Los Angeles backstreets, Ackerman manages to figure out that they are looking for a man named Strom (Raul Julia), the head of a car theft ring.

Determined to catch up with Strom and his tough-as-nails girlfriend, Liesel (Sonia Braga), they tour the local bars, threatening and strongarming his snitches. These encounters usually end up in a free-for-all with the veteran cop trying to rescue the rookie who either gets pushed around by the clientele or chased by a pack of vicious dogs trained for gambling purposes.

A tenuous bond is forged between the two misfits when they discover that they have a common interest — they are both motorcycle buffs.

After a disastrous incident, the new cop resolves that it's time for him to stop being scared and for other people to start. With that pledge, he becomes a different person, ready to brave any obstacle that stands in the way of rescuing his partner.

Eastwood has spared none of the ingredients it takes to make an interesting action film. There is the rip-roaring dodge-em car chase, a repeat with motorcycles, a shoot-out bar fight, attack dogs, an explosion in the building where he is held hostage and his spectacular escape. Oh yes, there's an airplane disaster, too.

All in all, "The Rookie" is entertaining and it has Eastwood, who's always fun to watch.

'Bells Are Ringing' at the Birmingham

"Bells Are Ringing," the tune-filled, fun-filled 1956 musical by Betty Comden and Adolph Green with music by Jule Styne, runs through Jan. 27 at the Birmingham Theatre.

On the 50th anniversary of the working relationship between Comden and Green, "Bells" has been revived by the Birmingham Theatre and the world-renowned Goodspeed Opera House of East Haddam, Conn.

One of the biggest Broadway musical hits of the fifties, "Bells Are Ringing" is about a telephone answering service operator with a "heart of gold" and an unquenchably jolly outlook. She can't help getting involved in her customers' lives while trying to solve their assorted problems.

She finds herself mixed up with a song-writing dentist, a frustrated aspiring actor, a playwright who can't seem to finish his play (and whose voice she falls in love with) and a rather bizarre company that takes orders for operatic recordings.

Ticket prices range from $17 to $27.50 and are available at the Birmingham Theatre box office, 644-3533, and all Ticketmaster outlets. Seniors may purchase Tuesday evening tickets only for $16.50.

For more information, call 644-3576.

Meadow Brook does Gurney show

"What I Did Last Summer," a partly autobiographical play by A.R. Gurney Jr., begins a four-week run at 8 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 3, at Meadow Brook Theatre on the campus of Oakland University near Rochester.

As in Gurney's other plays ("The Dining Room," "The Cocktail Hour" and "Love Letters"), "Summer" chronicles with humor the changing cultural and social values of the American white middle class.

Set in 1945, the play tells the story of the naturally rebellious adolescent Charlie, vacationing at the family's summer home on Lake Erie. He is about to be shipped off to boarding school, so with this last free summer he's ready to decide what kind of man he'll become. He longs to be an artist, but to do so would mean he would have to rebel against an upbringing that prizes decorum and conformity over any kind of self expression.

His rebellion is ignited by a local woman who hires him to do chores. Instead of paying him, the woman, who is shunned because of her Bohemian lifestyle, teaches him about painting and sculpture, as well as lessons about life.

Tickets for "What I Did Last Summer" may be purchased by calling 377-3300.

Clint Eastwood directs and stars in "The Rookie."

Grounding frustration

I know there was a time when being a "jet setter" was glamorous. Today those who travel a great deal say their lives are full of frustrations and delays. These frequent fliers have had to learn how to cope with increasingly complicated reservation rules. There are the constant delays of today's overcrowded skies and the throngs of people in overcrowded airports across the country. And hotel rooms are lonely and impersonal.

There are several things you can do to lower the frustration level and make the most out of your time spent traveling. What follows are just a few:

- First and foremost — travel lightly. Try not to have more bags than you can carry yourself. Whenever possible, travel only with a carry-on bag.
- Check the supermarket for the trial size toiletries and use these whenever possible. Your bags will be heavy enough without carrying unneeded shampoo, etc. You will save space and weight by using these small items.
- Pack your carry-on bag in such a way that if your suitcase did not arrive with you, you could exist for 24-48 hours. Be certain to carry on any medication you need daily as well as basic toiletries and a change of clothes.
- To keep your baggage at a minimum, try to stick to one color scheme in your clothing to eliminate the necessity of carrying duplicate accessories such as shoes and belts. Using plastic dry-clean bags when packing suits and dresses will cut down on the wrinkles. If your garment is wrinkled, try hanging it in the bathroom while you are showering and let the wrinkles fall out.
- Be sure to leave your itinerary with a friend or relative. Arrange for your mail and newspapers to be collected and be certain the message on your answering machine is not detailed enough to let strangers know that the house is empty.
- Bring a touch or two of home. Pictures of the family and your own travel alarm are two things that will help you feel less disoriented. Bring along a favorite pair of jeans or slacks and your sneakers so that you don't have to be dressed-up when sitting around your hotel room.
- Make your travel plans early. You will save money and increase your chances of getting the seat assignments and the hotel rooms you want.
- If there are complicated rules involved with the fare you are using, write them down and keep them with your ticket so that you do not have to worry about remembering the details.
- Take non-stop or direct flights whenever possible. The fewer stops and changes, the less chance there is of being delayed.
- Don't be afraid to ask for special meals on your flights. This is a regular service and is available to all passengers.
- Travel off-peak hours (before 8 a.m. or after 7 p.m.) and on weekends. Both the airport terminals and the airplanes should be less crowded.
- Travel with reading material for the flight and for airport waiting time. Bring a snack for the times when the airline's meal service does not coincide with your eating schedule. An inflatable pillow and eye shades are good to have for catching a quick nap.
- Dress comfortably for your flight. If you don't have to be in business attire, it makes much more sense to wear casual clothes.
- Ask for a room away from the elevators and the vending machines if you want it to be especially quiet. Or, near the elevator if you don't want to walk far.

Above all, when you need something, either from the airline or from the hotel, don't be afraid to ask. You are a paying guest and if they have a way to fulfill your need, they should be happy to do so.

'What Fresh Hell is This?'

The outrageous Dorothy Parker stages a return engagement at the Attic Theatre in "What Fresh Hell is This? An Evening with Dorothy Parker and Friends" for five performances, Friday through Sunday, Jan. 4-6. Performances will be on Friday at 8 p.m., Saturday at 5 and 9 p.m. and Sunday at 2 and 7 p.m. "What Fresh Hell..." is a series of vignettes based on the writings of Parker, at one time considered by many to be one of the wittiest, and certainly one of the most acerbic, writers in America. Showcased last year at the Attic as a work-in-progress, the play has been refined and toured out of town. The cast includes, above from left, Carol Ilku, Darrell Stokes, Annemarie Stoll, Arwulf Arwulf and Sasha Moscovit.

Where do Michiganders go for the winter?

How do Michigan "snowbirds" fly the coop for warmer climes?

By packing up the family, hopping in the car and pointing it toward Florida, Tennessee or South Carolina in the peak cold months, according to AAA Michigan TripTik data.

"Forty-eight percent of the routings we prepared for members between November and March last year were to these three destinations," said Peter Erickson, AAA Michigan Club Services director. "We predict similar travel patterns this season."

Florida was by far the biggest draw with 48,671 routing requests in the 1989-90 winter season, Erickson said, followed by Tennessee with 4,759 requests, and South Carolina, which lured 4,579 winter weary sun-seekers.

Michigan residents have their favorite cities within these states, the data shows.

Orlando tops the list for Florida visitors. Walt Disney World, Epcot Center, Sea World, MGM and Universal Studios lure Great Lakes snowbirds in droves. From Detroit, Orlando is 1,170 miles and 20 hours drive time away at an average speed of 60 miles per hour.

Nashville, the most popular city for Tennessee travelers, attracts vacationers to its Country Music Hall of Fame, Grand Ole Opry and The Hermitage, the home of President Andrew Jackson. Nashville, a 534-mile auto trip, can be reached in about nine hours.

Myrtle Beach, South Carolina, is a premier sunshine destination about 14 hours and 852 miles from Detroit. Michigan residents flock to the area largely for its gorgeous beaches and lush golf fairways.

When vacationing by automobile, a family of four should budget about $173 per day for lodging and meals, plus an estimated $9 per 100 miles for gas and other auto-related expenses.

Michiganders who choose to fly to the sun this winter will pay an average roundtrip airline ticket price of $229 for Orlando, $254 for Myrtle Beach, and $96 to visit Nashville. Those prices are for nonrefundable, advance purchase Supersaver tickets. Prices vary depending on dates of travel.

Garden S H E D

By Ellen Probert

Flowers, feasting and festivity all go together during the holiday season, and celebrations to welcome the New Year are no exception.

The wonderful winter flower show in the Anna Scripps Whitcomb Conservatory on Belle Isle features a wondrous collection of poinsettias in white, pink, lemon yellow and traditional red as well as some new and exotic varieties, and the pink, red and white Christmas cacti have to be seen to be believed. The show will run for several weeks and is a memorable experience.

In the Victorian era, New Year's day was the time for gift-giving rather than Christmas day, and among the gifts considered suitable for a young man to give to his favorite lady was a bouquet holder of ivory or silver filigree shaped rather like an ice cream cone and designed to hold a posy of flowers. Ribbons attached this confection to the lady's wrist, or to the sash of her dress, and she carried the flowers to parties as a fashion accessory.

These charming flower holders are now much sought-after collector's items and appear now and then in antique shops. Flowers were worn far more often in the 19th century than they are now and many ladies had indoor window boxes where they grew flowers to wear. To pin a bloom at the collar of a dress, or at the waistline, was the final touch for any occasion.

Flowers were used lavishly to decorate for holiday parties, too. This was the heyday of New Year's day receptions when hostesses provided lavish buffets and flowing punch bowls and all the gentlemen of their acquaintance made the rounds and called on all the ladies. A most festive custom, and, no doubt, enjoyed by everyone.

Decorations for New Year's day parties were as lavish as the buffet. Ivy and smilax (honeysuckle) vines were fastened in swags over mantels and windows and the food-laden tables were festooned with garlands. Arrangements of flowers graced the center of the tables and were banked in the corners of the room.

New Year's Day also was a popular day for weddings during the Victorian era, perhaps because the idea of a new year and a new life together held much appeal for the happy couple, and much the same style of decoration prevailed, at least as far as home weddings were concerned. But churches, too, were lavishly bedecked with vines and ivy and flowers.

Going further back to the Middle Ages, flowers played an important part in Christmas and holiday celebrations. The medieval lady, like her later Victorian counterpart, grew flowers in a sunny window, usually in the still-room which was her special domain and where preserves, potpourris, perfumes and medicinal potions were concocted.

Preparations for holiday flower usage must have been well planned in advance in the Middle Ages. Months before, during the summer, violets, lilacs and rose petals would have been dried and preserved with sugar for holiday confections, and potpourris and spicy pomanders would have been lovingly prepared to scent the halls. Flowers were used lavishly in cooking in early times and many kinds were dried for winter use. There was not much distinction made between flowers, herbs, and spices when it came to culinary uses.

Some of the flowers popular in medieval cookery were marigolds, roses, violets, lilies, geraniums and daisies, and many herbs were used for flavorings, including mint, sage, thyme, and rosemary, which also was used in holiday decorations. The medieval lady's still-room was a laboratory where many of the remedies and medicines were also compounded from flowers, herbs and other plants.

Of course, roses, probably the most loved flower in the world, have a special significance at Christmas since they are the symbol of the Virgin Mary. Very early the rose was used in stone and wood carvings to adorn churches, and the rose window became a beautiful part of the architecture of Gothic churches.

There is a legend that St.

Sallie Spitzley, president of the Grosse Pointe Farm and Garden Club, stands near a wreath designed by Joan Micou of Grosse Pointe. The wreath was on display at the recent Festival of Trees event held at Cobo Hall.

Dominic for many years paid daily tribute to the Virgin with an offering of roses, and one day when he found himself in great danger she appeared to him and placed a garland of roses around his neck which protected him from harm. Tradition has it that this is the origin of the rosary. Early rosaries were made of rose beads (made of pounded rose petals molded into beads) and brides would send their wedding bouquets of roses to a convent to have the flowers made into a rosary.

Flower wreaths have a long tradition as holiday decorations and they are as popular now as in past eras. The decorative wreaths submitted for judging and display in the Festival of Trees held recently at Cobo Hall to benefit Children's Hospital of Detroit were many and varied. One especially beautiful one, designed by Grosse Pointer Joan Micou, was submitted by the Grosse Pointe Farm and Garden Club.

Pick house plants that are suited to your home's indoor conditions

All houseplants are not created equal. Some need more light than others, so often the difference between a green thumb and a black one is selecting plants that will grow well in the light conditions your home or office provides.

Sandra Goeddeke-Richards, home horticulturist for the Macomb County Cooperative Extension Service, says that most plants sold as houseplants will at least survive under normal home conditions. If you want your plants to thrive, however, you'll need to make some effort to match the plants' light requirements to light levels around your home.

"Light is usually the limiting factor on houseplants, especially in the winter," Richards says. "The short, often cloudy days of a Michigan winter just don't provide enough light for many plants. Some foliage plants grown in low-light conditions tend to have elongated stems and small leaves, and flowering plants may fail to flower."

Other plants do very nicely in low light, and if that's all your home or office has to offer, it's best to select one of those very tolerant plants. The list includes Chinese evergreen (Aglaonema commutatum), pewee plant (Aglaonema Crispum), cast-iron plant (Aspidistra elatior), bamboo palm (Chamaedora erumpens), parlor palm (Chamaedora elegans), corn plant (Dracaena fragrans 'Massangeana'), heartleaf philodendron (Philodendron scandens), Snake plant (Sansevieria trifasciata) and pothos (Epipremnum aureum).

These plants will grow in low, indirect light such as sunlight filtered through a curtain to shadowless light from a north window. They may be more than eight feet away from windows and receive no direct light at all.

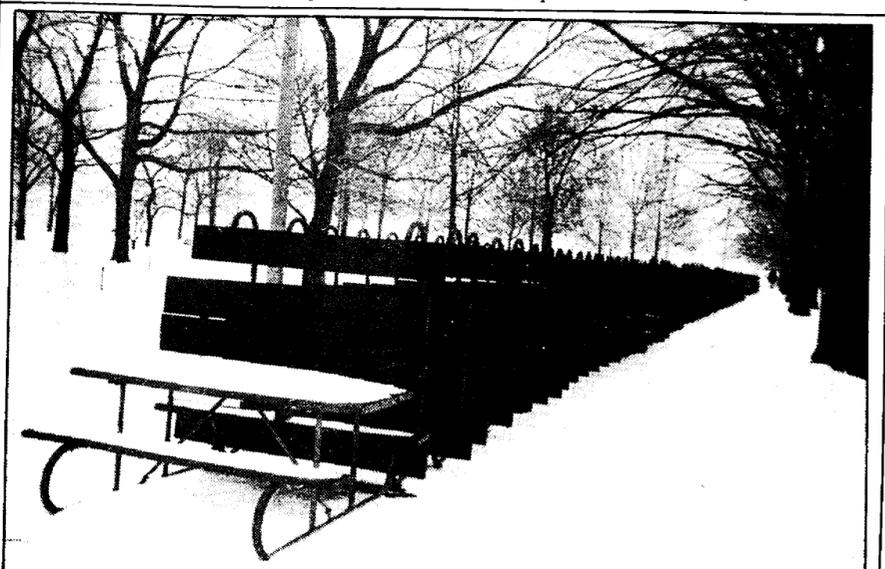

The majority of foliage plants grown indoors need several hours of direct sunlight or bright, indirect light. Such popular plants as Norfolk Island pine (Araucaria heterophylla), asparagus fern (Asparagus setaceus), Spider plant (Chlorophytum comosum), dumbcane (Dieffenbachia maculata), red-edge dracaena (Dracaena marginata), rubber plant (Ficus elastica), peperomia species and Boston fern (Nepho- lepis exaltata 'Bostoniensis') will do quite nicely four to eight feet from brightly lighted east, south or west-facing windows.

Plants with a higher light requirement — more than four hours of direct sun or bright, indirect light — usually do best within four feet of brightly lighted east, south or west windows or under artificial light. These include croton (Codiaeum variegatum), jade plant (Crassula argentea), wax plant (Hoya carnosa) and African violets (Saint-paulia ionantha).

Flowering plants usually need more light than foliage plants do, Richards observes. Though they may grow well and look healthy at lower light levels, they may not flower unless you supplement natural light with artificial light.

Richards recommends fluorescent lights because they give off more light per unit of electricity used and produce very little heat. Though special plant growth tubes are available, they tend to be hard to find and expensive. They also aren't necessary — the light from standard cool-white bulbs is adequate for growth for most plants.

IT NEVER HURTS TO ASK

If you are being transferred, many companies will help you sell your house. Some will even assist you in buying one in the new location. Big companies often buy a house at its current appraised value if you can't sell it yourself within a specified period of time. If the company eventually resells it for more than you paid, it should agree to give you the extra, after deducting expenses. If this is not standard, it doesn't hurt to ask.

Another approach is for the company to guarantee the home's appraised value and reimburse you if you have to sell it for less. That way it doesn't have to get into the real estate business.

It also pays to ask the company for a low-interest or no-interest loan to cover the down payment on a new house if you have to move before the old house is sold. Companies will generally not buy condos or cooperative apartments — but again, everything depends upon the circumstances. Again — it never hurts to ask.

If there is anything I can do to help you in the field of Real Estate, please phone or drop in at ADLHOCH and ASSOCIATES REALTORS. We are located at 19515 Mack Avenue, Grosse Pointe Woods. Phone 882-5200. No obligation.

LOVABLE dogs and cats need good homes. For adoption information call: Northern Suburbs Animal Welfare League Volunteer at 777-5110 or 463-7422.

PLEASE DON'T DELAY! SPAY or NEUTER YOUR PET TODAY!

An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens destroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innocent little ones are euthanized every day in shelters across the country because a pet wasn't spayed or neutered. If we cut down on the numbers of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to destroy.

Companion Corner: Did a new companion come into your life over the holidays? If the answer is yes, then you want to begin a healthy happy New Year with a visit to your veterinarian. Proper health care is very important for all companion animals. Puppies and kittens need to be checked for worms and begin their first shots. A general physical examination is recommended, even if your new companion is too young to be inoculated. Regular visits to your veterinarian will help keep your companion healthy and happy and will enable he or she to be around a lot longer. Please help us "Make It A Be Kind To Animals World."
