A Westport salute to Tony Connors

BOARD OF SELECTMEN

Lees Wharf shellfish plan approved; barrier beach worries

Selectmen voted their unanimous approval to Kerian and John Fennelly's plan to install two shellfish upwellers alongside their property at Lees Wharf.

The upwellers will operate from two 24'x10' floats attached to private docks off the wharf.

Christopher Leonard, director of marine services, said that upwellers send water through cages holding large numbers of "cornflake size" young shellfish. Because they are underwater, the electric "fans" make no noise.

First, though selectmen had to amend the shellfish ordinance to allow for the activity because upwellers had previously been allowed only at licensed shellfish growing sites.

"Kerian and John Fennelly have upwellers at their sites in Horseneck Channel and it is kind of a pain in the butt" to transport gas out there to run the generator that powers the upweller. "As owners of Lees Wharf they would like to move the (upweller) operation to Lees Wharf where they can plug into shore power."

The new rules stipulate a $25 annual fee per upweller and that upweller licenses will only be granted to existing aquaculture license holders.

That last stipulation, Mr. Leonard said, is because the shellfish committee wants to avoid having people open their own shellfish "garden" upweller systems from private docks.

"Shellfish gardens" may sound nice but Mr. Leonard said he believes that only town-approved sites should be allowed. Among other things, town control would help assure that "seedling" shellfish are only brought in from approved growers to avoid contamination by pathogens.

Selectmen, state honor town historian for his many contributions

The Board of Selectmen opened last week's meeting by honoring Anthony 'Tony' Connors "for his contributions to the Town of Westport."

Mr. Connors, who is president of the Westport Historical Society and previous chairman of the town Energy Commission, among many other posts, was seated front and center for the occasion with his wife Sharon, surrounded by a large group of friends and admirers.

Board Chairwoman Shana Shufelt read from a letter by the Westport Historical Society's executive director, Jenny O'Neill:

"Tony has been president of the Westport Historical Society for over a decade. During his tenure he steered the Historical Society through the purchase, restoration and opening of the historic Handy House. His gentle leadership style has enabled the Historical Society to flourish and grow.

"Of equal note, Tony became the unofficial town historian for Westport. Author, educator, lecturer, and spokesman, he created accessible and meaningful perspectives on local history. His public programs, whether lectures, walking tours or articles, are notable for being entertaining, scholarly and insightful. He made our local history relevant and significant beyond the boundaries of our town, tackling a wide range of topics such as the development of a factory village in Westport, slavery and temperance.

"For many years, Tony presented a three-part course, Westport History 101, which covered the stories of Westport from the Ice Age to the Second World War. Each session attracted audiences of 100-plus people and people returned year after year to participate.

"His most recent book, 'Went to the Devil, A Yankee Whaler in the Slave Trade,' published in April, exemplifies Tony's ability to elevate small town history to the level of regional and national significance. His book examines the life of Westporter Edward Davoll, a whaling master who turns to the slave trade with disastrous results. Davoll's story reveals a deadly combination of greed and racial antipathy that encouraged otherwise principled Americans to participate in the African slave trade.”

State Representative Paul Schmid delivered and read a citation from the state House and Senate (Senator Michael Rodrigues was delayed by Senate duties). He noted that the citation should actually have been made to both Tony and his wife Sharon because you can't think of one without the other.

“Westport is a remarkable tapestry of stories,” Mr. Schmid said, “Native American, African American, Quaker, French Canadian, Portuguese, Yankee and, yes, even Skukes.”

Until the Westport Historical Society came along, “we really didn't have a central repository for these wonderful stories. We had the photographs around Lees, we had Claude Ledoux's tapings, and of course Cukie Macomber's 'Looking Astern,' but we lacked a place where

After the tributes, Mr. Connors thanked the gathering.

Final pre-Memorial Day weekend beach cleanup

Beach Committee member Sean Leach lugs washed up lobster traps off the beach during Saturday's beach cleanup sponsored by the Westport Watershed Alliance with the Beach Committee. “The beach was surprisingly clean, probably because the weather has been so bad nobody has been going to the beach,” said Steve Connors who took this picture. “Now it is spotless. We had a good turnout and everyone enjoyed walking the beach on a beautiful day.”

'Went to the Devil'

Tony Connors' book portrays Westport whaler's descent into the slave trade

BY BRUCE BURDETT

bburdett@eastbaymediagroup.com

For a young man in mid-1800s Westport, few careers could have seemed so promising as that of whaling captain.

Growing up just south of the Head of Westport, where whaling ships were built and launched, Edward Davoll needed only visit Westport Point to see for himself the rewards a successful whaler might expect.

"The main road leading to the Westport wharves was lined with graceful Greek Revival homes of whaling captains, agents and investors — an indication of their wealth and status in town."

So writes Westport's Anthony (Tony) J. Connors in his new book "Went to the Devil — A Yankee Whaler in the Slave Trade."

And for a time, it seemed Mr. Davoll was on the path to such a fine life.

He went to sea for the first time at the age of 17 on the Westport Point brig Elizabeth, the smallest whaler in the Westport fleet. It would have been a hard introduction to the business — life in the swelter and stench of the fore-castle punctuated by moments of terror atop the mast and out in the whaleboat.

The voyage was none too profitable, but soon he was back at it, this time in the bigger Westport Point brig Mexico. His share for nearly a year spent in search of whales — a mere $17.

But young Davoll was persistent and soon realized that his real opportunity lay just to the east in New Bedford. At the time Westport was home port to 11 whaling ships; New Bedford had 254, most of them bigger than those in Westport.

"He would be one young man among many but he had talent, experience and ambition. He also had some education, and was white — a not insignificant social and economic advantage."

His prospects improved quickly.

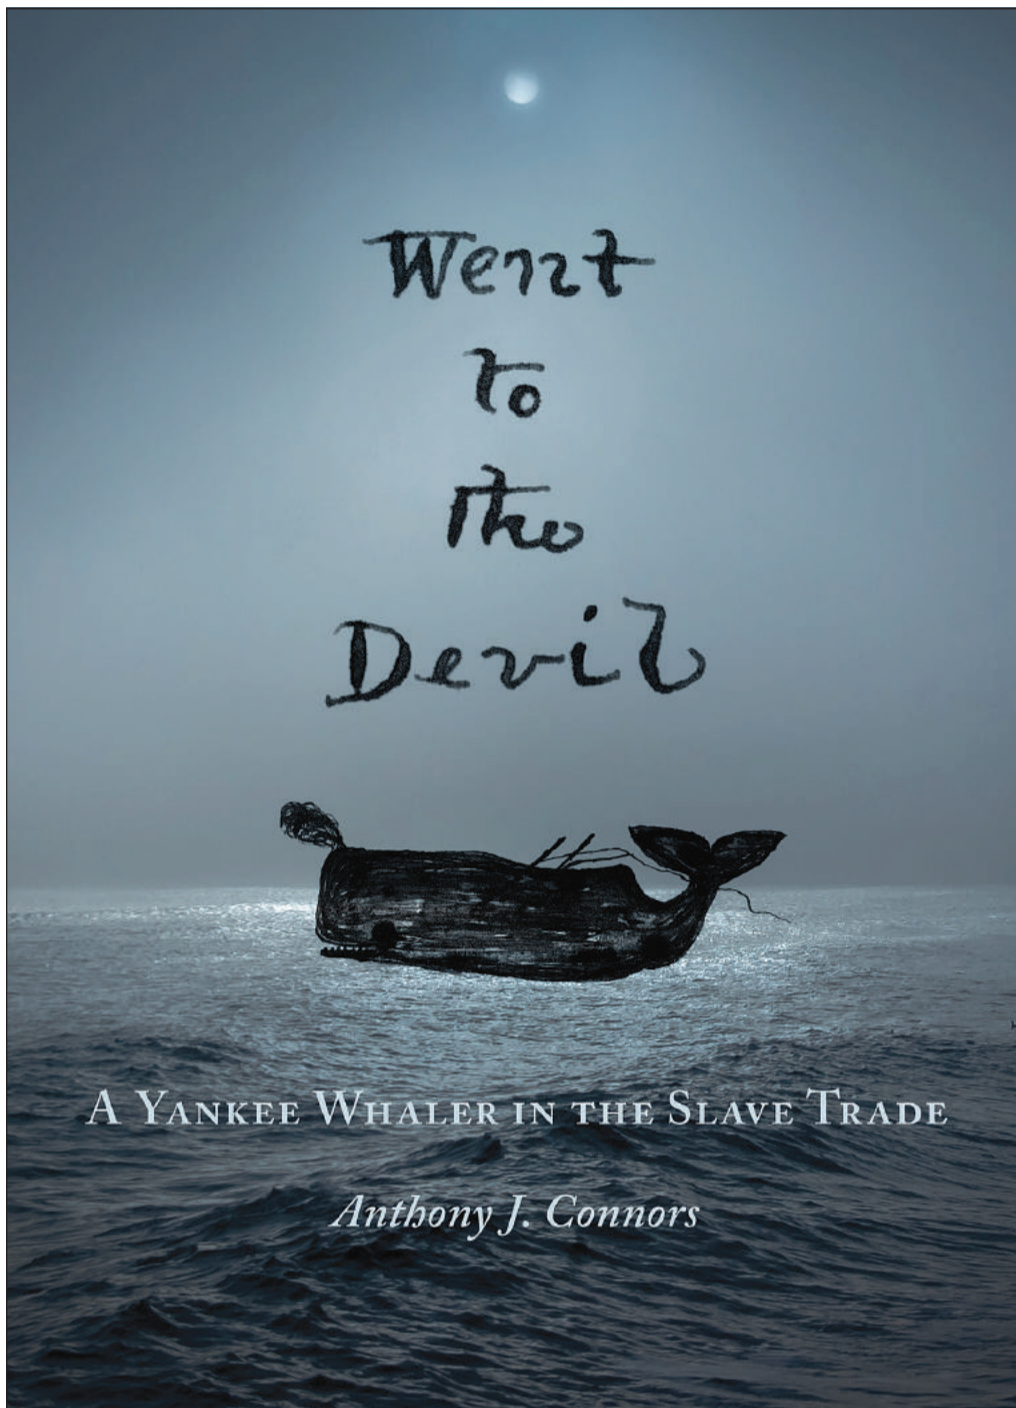

For his first trip from New Bedford, on the Cornelia, he was promoted to whaleboat steerer; next he rose to mate, and before long, he shipped out as captain.

And, his many letters reveal, he fell in love with Elizabeth Brownell, a Westport farmer's daughter whom he met while home on one of his brief shore leaves.

"He was away for almost two years. When he returned, in July 1850, he was twenty-seven, a man of some substance — or at least potential." Before his he set sail again, the two were married.

Happiness, for both in this partnership, would prove elusive.

They were apart most of the time — Edward oceans away in search of whales, Libby back home living not in one of those captains' homes but often in one apartment or another, about all they could afford.

"Edward and Elizabeth were more like pen pals, corresponding over enormous distance via a highly unreliable postal system of whaling ships scattered across the world's oceans," Mr. Connors writes.

The unbridled optimism of Captain Davoll's early letters eventually wavered. Whales had become harder to find, the search kept ships at sea two years and more, and, as profits dwindled, tensions rose on board. Desperately lonely, Captain Davoll could take little comfort from Libby's few letters — she, too, was unhappy, and sometimes unwell.

At some point, it all became too much for Captain Davoll. The record, and his letters, become more murky.

There had been suspicions about his 1859 involvement with the supposed whaler-turned slaver Atlantic, and that would not be the end of it.

Back home in 1860, he was employed fitting out the unusually large, former Warren, RI, ship Brutus. "Right from the start there was something fishy about the Brutus" — shadowy ownership including a liquor distributor without much of a whaling background.

Leaving whispers of slaving behind, Capt. Davoll set sail on Brutus (his name was somehow left off the register) on what was said to be a whaling voyage. At the Azores, he left the ship in the care of first mate William H. Jackson of Portsmouth, RI.

Later testimony would reveal that Brutus went on, not to the whaling grounds, but to the Congo where the ship picked up a cargo of 600 slaves — the 500 survivors would later be unloaded in Cuba.

Perhaps to avoid the outrage and the arrests that followed, Capt. Davoll wasted no time getting back out to sea again, this time on Palymra, a tiny ship with just two

"This was low-budget whaling ... but it kept him away from New Bedford," Mr. Connors writes.

At least for a time.

Davoll lingered as long as he could in Bermuda, then sailed home on another ship. "Captain Davoll could not have been surprised when, on June 26, a federal marshal paid a visit."

Mr. Connors' fascination with Captain Davoll stems in part from a question — "Why would a man of good reputation, in a city known for its racial tolerance and Quaker-inspired abolitionism, risk engagement with this morally repugnant industry?"

One answer — enlightened as some saw the South Coast to be about race and slavery, New Bedford — and Captain Davoll — were as susceptible to greed and racism as most places and people of the time.

"It took an extraordinary man to make a career in the perilous business of chasing leviathans over the world's oceans," Mr. Connors writes. "Yet Edward Davoll was in so many ways an ordinary man, very conventional in his attitudes about marriage, religion, the moral education of his daughter, and other matters. He was conventional in his racial prejudices as well."

Woman dies over a week after Westport hit and run

WESTPORT — The victim of a hit and run incident in Westport has died at Rhode Island Hospital as a result of the injuries she sustained. Stephanie Tripp, of Fall River, was 30 years old.

Investigators today are renewing their call for public assistance in their efforts to locate and apprehend the driver of the car that struck Ms. Tripp May 7 on Old Bedford Road in Westport.

Police and prosecutors have been able to discern the type of vehicle likely involved in the fatal hit and run.

It is now believed the vehicle that struck the pedestrian was a gray BMW 3 Series vehicle. The vehicle is likely a model from 1999 through 2005, and should have sustained minor damage to its hood, front end and/or front passenger side.

Police are also seeking the public's assistance in locating witnesses to a hit and run.

Westport Police received a 911 call at 8:15 pm on Tuesday, May 7, to report a crash and a severely injured woman in the area of 288 Old Bedford Road. When first responders arrived, they located the victim, Stephanie Tripp, face down in the breakdown lane suffering from major injuries. The victim was rushed to Rhode

Stephanie Tripp

Island Hospital, where she remained in critical condition until her death on May 16.

A preliminary investigation revealed the victim was walking along the side of the roadway when she was struck by the BMW.

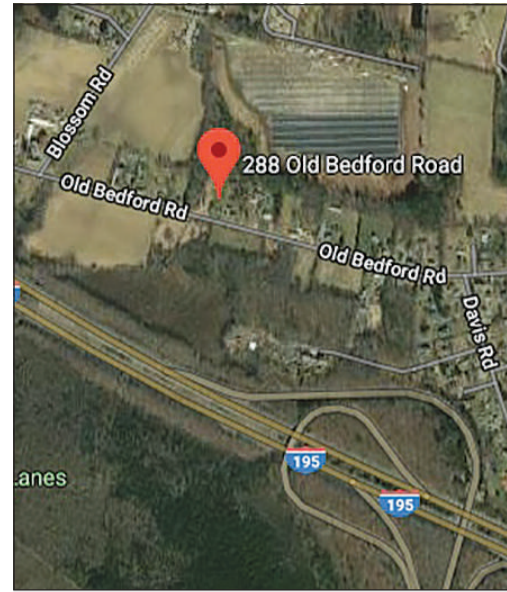

The male operator of the vehicle exited the car and told a witness he was sorry and didn't mean to hit the victim. A witness told the driver to stay on scene, but as the witness was providing aid to the victim, the driver sped off in an easterly direction on Old Bedford Road.

Another witness attempted to follow the suspect's vehicle, which, according to the witness, was traveling at high rates of speed and passing vehicles by passing into the opposite travel lane. The witness lost the suspect's vehicle in the area of Faunce Corner Road in Dartmouth.

The vehicle's last known location was at the corner of Old Fall River Road and Faunce Corner Road in Dartmouth. The vehicle may have sustained minor front end damage.

Although officers spoke with several witnesses who remained on scene, there is reason to believe that other witnesses may have seen the crash, the vehicle that struck the victim or may have information about the driver.

Anyone who was in the area and saw anything, or has information about this case, is urged to contact Massachusetts State Police Trooper Phil Giardino at 508-961-1928 or Westport Police detectives at mits not be granted until lots have received any required septic system or tight tank inspections. The BOH currently has a list of addresses still in need of inspections for various reasons, Mr. Armendo said.

"If they can't get it done by the specified time or they don't want to do it this year, they can sign an agreement saying that they won't hook up to their system on site and will just use the self-contained units on their trailer," Mr. Armendo said.

If they fail the inspection, what is their recourse, selectman Brian Valcourt asked.

They can get the system repaired or replaced or they can use their trailer's self-contained system, Mr. Armendo said.

Mr. Valcourt asked how many grandfathered septic systems remain along East Beach.

Fourteen, he was told, along with 30 of the now-required tight tanks.

Preparing for barrier beach catastrophe

Selectmen gave their blessing to a Planning Board request that the town apply for a $100,000 grant to assess the vulnerability of its four-miles of barrier beach including East Beach, East Beach Road and the West Beach area to Horseneck Point,

Planning Board Chairman Jim Whitin told selectmen that "if we lose East Beach Road to a big storm, and it's not really a matter of if but a matter of when, we need to have thought about what we do to prevent that catastrophe from being as bad as it could be."

The study will look into evacuation, utilities, residences, recreational beaches and more.

The grant requires that Westport pay a $25,000 share of the cost, most of which is already available.

Animal control pay raise

Hoping that better pay might help attract and keep assistant animal control officers (keeping them has been a problem, said Town Administrator Tim King), selectmen voted to offer more money.

Now, in addition to the $50 stipend for days they are on call, the officers will receive an unspecified hourly rate of pay for time actually spent responding to calls. The vote was unanimous.

Horseneck Half Marathon

Selectmen approved a pair of permits — one for a one-day liquor license, another for use of town roads — for the May 19 Horseneck Half Marathon.

The running race started and finished at Horseneck Beach and followed a clockwise route around the river's East Branch. Roads used were John Reed Road, Route 88, Drift

In response to questions, a spokesman for the private company that runs the event said he is aware that Route 88 is under construction. # BOH seeks full time health agent

Duties will include long-sought animal registry

A four-legged audience member yawns as Health Director Matt Armendo, left, and BOH Chairman Philip Weinberg discuss animal registry matters at last week's Board of Selectmen meeting.

The Board of Health wants to combine two part-time health agent positions into one full-timer whose responsibilities will include following through with a new animal registry once the board has completed it, hopefully before the end of summer.

Selectmen approved the transition to a full time agent, on the stipulation that the job posting be accompanied by a job description that covers the various duties and requirements.

BOH Chairman Philip Weinberg said the job might actually cost less than the two part-time posts, although selectman Steven Ouellette said any savings would likely be wiped out by the fact that the full-timer would receive a pension.

The timing is good, the BOH said, because part-time agent Ray Belanger, who has focused on food and restaurant inspections, has given notice that he plans to retire in July.

The full-time agent job will include a variety of inspection related duties, Health Director Matt Armendo said. In addition to animal registry, he or she will handle food inspections, housing, swimming pools — all sorts of inspections covered by the Health Department.

Board of Selectmen Chairwoman Shana Shufelt said she hopes those various duties don't preclude the new agent from also being able to assist with other animal inspection work.

Audience member Constance Gee agreed.

"I hope that this person, if he or she doesn't come in with animal expertise of knowledge, that the (Board of Health) will insist on some sort of course work ... (We) want to make sure this person is well-versed when they go out to inspect animals."

Asked about a timetable for the animal registry, Mr. Weinberg said that the BOH is working on it now and that it should be done sometime this summer. After that, he said there will take some time to get the word out about the new regulation and the need for all who keep farm animals to notify the town.

"We know how many farms appear in the Barn Book (count)," he said. "But we have a sense that there are more out there — we don't know how many."

Board of Selectmen, May 13

New streetlights, solar facility

Town Administrator Tim King notified selectmen at their May 13 meeting that LED streetlight installation has begun in town. The board asked that the contractor provide a map to specify where all of the lights will be installed.

Also just starting is installation of the construction of the new solar facility at the closed Westport town landfill.

Highway Department raises

Contract talks between town Highway Department employees and the town, which were sent to mediation, appear to have been settled.

The union has agreed to a contract that provides 2 percent raises for each of the contract's two years. Other changes were said to be minor.

Thanks for the sign

Selectmen thanked students at Diman Regional Vocational Technical School for the Westport Town Hall sign.

"We could not have afforded such skilled craftsmanship and we appreciate their efforts," Chairwoman Shana Shufelt said.

Bright future for clean power

Back when protesters were calling for closure of the filthy, coal-fired Brayton Point Power Station, some called that a terrible idea. There'd be no replacing all of the power produced by that behemoth, they said, so electric prices would soar, the region's economy would stagnate, and businesses would flee. It's the same line that the administration in Washington DC repeats in its fawning over coal and shale oil.

But the dust had scarcely cleared from the implosion of those twin Brayton Point cooling towers than the real future was revealed.

Anarbic Renewable Energy has unveiled plans to clean out the coal dust and debris and transform the waterfront Somerset site into a renewable energy center, the "plug-in" between offshore wind farms and the homes and businesses that will use that electricity.

Far more than mere showcase and symbol, this place will be immensely productive. Anarbic predicts that it will become the largest energy source in Southern New England. With the 1,200 megawatt direct current conversion plus 400 megawatts of storage capacity, it will be a match for the plant it replaces.

In other words, all of the power, at comparable prices, without the sulphurous yellow pall, grit and grime that drifted across these towns from the stacks of its predecessor.

It would be nice to claim that we, once again, are leading the way — this time to a future of clean and abundant power.

But, thanks to leadership that chooses to reject inconvenient science in favor of pursuing every last drop of fossil fuel and chunk of coal, the United States lags far behind much of the world in alternative energy production and innovation. Most of the progress here in that growth industry has come in spite of, rather than because of, federal initiatives — at least in recent years.

Progress, however belated, is welcome and becoming obvious — at Brayton Point, in offshore turbines, and in the solar projects sprouting in Westport, Dartmouth (Massachusetts' leader), and now in Tiverton.

We've been awfully slow to react but the tide is turning.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Wet, cool spring hard on potato, corn farmers

To the editor:

While we non-farmers have been counting up the rainy days and bemoaning the lack of warm and spring-like weather, the local potato and sweet corn growers have been in serious, deep trouble.

The potato farmer in Tiverton would expect his tubers to be blooming by May 10. This year he hadn't even been able to plow under the winter wheat to get the fields ready by that date, but of course potatoes can stay in the ground.

For the sweet corn grower in Little Compton it's a very different story. With luck and if the ground warms up, maybe corn will be ready by mid-July. In other years by April 20 there have been three plantings. This year by that date there has only been one.

Now translate this into a normal

Fourth of July weekend when on Saturday and again on Sunday 50 bushels are sold at the stand, each bushel containing five dozen ears and this does not count the bushels sold on the wholesale market.

Safer alternative to Roundup

On a more cheerful note, I promised you an alternative to the dreaded and dreadful Monsanto Round Up. (It has now been proven to cause cancer in humans as well as deforming salamanders, frogs and butterflies.)

We have actually tested the following on my driveway which was turning green no matter what we tried and will be a boon to those who have flagstones and bricks and cobblestones. The magic potion is D-Limonade which you will have to order on the web at 888-854-3914. This is derived from citrus peel and used as follows

(while wearing rubber gloves and protective glasses): 1Tbs dish soap, 2Tbs Limonade, 1 gallon ordinary white household vinegar. You will need a good sprayer and as you will have a quart of the Limonade, you will see that it lasts a good many summers. (Ace Hardware will have a non-toxic alternative to Round Up but they don't yet know when).

Visiting the gardens

My fact checker was correct about the hours for Sakonnet Garden — 9-6 Saturday and Sunday, May 25 and 26, but really messed up on the Blossom and Sweets sale outside of Wilburs. It will be Saturday also, from 7:30 -10:30.

Enjoy every minute of our fleeting spring now that it has finally arrived.

Lets plant lots of trees to offset solar losses

To the editor:

Shortly, Tiverton will be home to some extensive solar farm development. This will result in the cutting of hundreds of trees. These trees that are vital to the ecosystem by reducing carbon dioxide levels, regulating watersheds, providing wildlife shelter and numerous more functions of nature.

Whether or not solar farms are of ultimate long-term benefit is debatable. In order to mitigate their impact on tree reduction, we should think of every possible way we can add trees to any suitable public location.

Planting trees is an expense that the town cannot afford on a larger scale. However, there are several ways we can help.

I have several thoughts...

Oftentimes we wonder what to give to the person (of any age) who has everything — for an anniversary, to celebrate a retirement or any other milestone.

Dedicate a tree in their name. There are the milestone celebrations of a new baby or a wedding. Friends and family could combine and make a tree a realty.

I would propose that our tree committee have a list of locations where trees are needed or would enhance the environment. Tree patrons could choose the site and a suitable tree. They would be given a certificate of donation and be invited at the time of the planting. Finally, a small plaque with their names would be attached to the tree. Would it not be interesting to see your tree grow?

This opportunity of participating in tree donation can be very meaningful for memorial tributes. Flowers fade but a tree would be part of a lasting memorial.

Looking back in Tiverton's history, there was what was known as "The Cathedral of the Elms" along Main Road in south Tiverton. It fell to disease in the sixties but left an emptiness of grandeur.

We could attempt a 21st century version by planting so called "street friendly trees" that do not interfere with street poles and lights. Nothing can ever be replicated and this generation can leave a legacy of trees for the future.

This policy can serve as an inspiration to private individuals to find occasion to plant a tree and in a small way offset the many, many trees that will shortly be cleared in Tiverton.

"The best time to plant a tree was twenty years ago ... The next best time is now."

Boys tennis stumbles as regular season winds down

The Westport boys tennis team lost 4-1 to Mayflower League foe West Bridgewater last week and again on Monday, this time to Case High School.

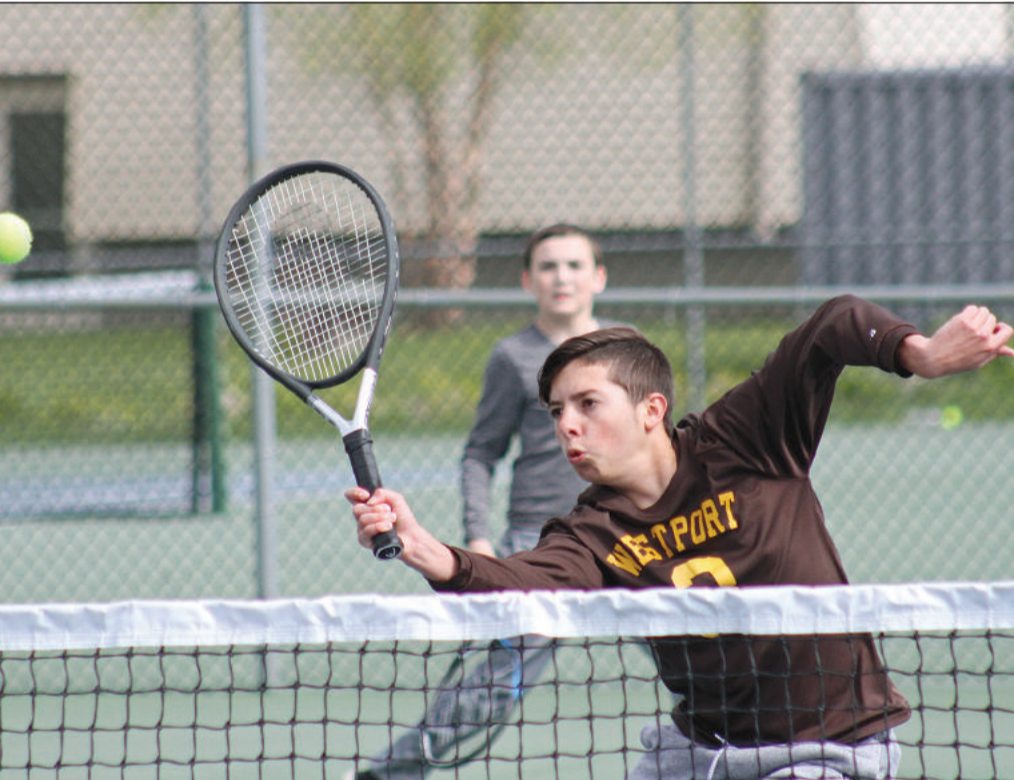

Against West Bridgewater, the Wildcats' doubles team of Smit Patel and Roberto Ferreira picked up the team's only victory in a close contest, 7-5, 7-6 (4).

The 3-2 Case loss on Monday was a disappointment as visiting Case came in to the match with a 2-11 record. Evan Kidd defeated Jeremy Rocha 6-2, 6-3 at first singles and Smit Patel defeated Henning Anderson 6-2, 6-3 at second singles.

The loss left Westport's record at 9-5 overall, 5-3 in division with two more regular season matches to play — this Thursday at Fairhaven and back home on Monday for the regular season finale against Durfee, a team the Wildcats defeated 4-1 way back at the start of the season.

Celebrating 40 years

Partner Village Store to host a slew of free events this Saturday

at <http://partnersvillagestore.com/events/partners-40th-anniversary-celebration>.

Though Partners has grown and evolved since first opening their doors, they have always strived to support the local community, from farmers and makers to artists and writers. For more information, visit <http://partnersvillagestore.com/>.

They had started out in 1979 simply as a wine-and-beer making supplies store, just a little ways down the road from the Victorian house they occupy today.

In the decades since, however, Partners Village Store has grown to embody so much more, adding on their café and kitchen, eclectic gift and toy collection and independent bookstore and printing press.

To celebrate a successful 40 years in business, the Westport community staple will be hosting an anniversary party this Saturday, May 25, at 865 Main Road.

From 10 am to 4 pm, a wide-range of free, family-friendly activities will be offered for residents of all ages to enjoy.

There will be Kripalu yoga with Jeff Costa, an interactive seashell exhibit with the Westport Watershed Alliance; a visit from Kave Rock alpacas and some cold-blooded pets; a pie-eating contest at lunchtime, plus Woods ice cream to end the day. A full schedule of events can be found Malta, and Malaysia. In 1964, Catherine married Alan Dodge, and their son Owen was born a year later. In Harvard, Mass., she managed Alan's architectural office. She was the Communications Coordinator for Universalist Unitarian Association's northeast region. After moving to Wellfleet, on Cape Cod, she spent 10 years as Executive Director of the Orleans Housing Authority, championing affordable housing. The Dodge family sponsored foreign students through AFS, forming an especially close bond with Monwon "Ton" Bhadavavit of Bangkok, Thailand. After she and Alan divorced in 1997, she found a joyful community in Westport.

Like Rudyard Kipling's Elephant's Child (Oh best beloved), Catherine was full of 'satiated curiosity!' Anthropologist; 1st wave feminist; KinderMusik teacher; social justice warrior; world-wide traveler; lover of Early Music and loons; faithful water tester for the Westport River Watershed Alliance, and inveterate reader, Catherine inspired, and occasionally piqued, her fellow students at UMASS-Dartmouth's Second Half classes, her duplicate bridge partners, and her oncologists.

Catherine was pre-deceased by her parents, her brother Nat Williams, and her former husband Alan Dodge. She is survived by her son Owen Dodge of Wellfleet; her grandchild Anya Senes-Dodge and Anya's mother Dr. Laura Senes of Vermont; and her dear cousin Mary Ann Bournos of Virginia.

Catherine's friends and family are invited to celebrate her life on Saturday, June 15, at 1 p.m., Macomber Friends Community House, 938 Main Road, Westport. Memorial donations may be made to Westport (MA) River Watershed Alliance (<http://westportwatershed.org/>) or (<http://secondhalflli.org/>)

Deputy Fire Chief Baldwin earns chief-level accreditation

The Massachusetts Fire Service Commission granted accreditation to Deputy Fire Chief Dan Baldwin of the Westport Fire Department on April 23.

The accreditation indicates that Deputy Chief Baldwin has demonstrated the required fire service experience, education, and certifications for accreditation as a fire chief in Massachusetts.

This accreditation is granted through the Massachusetts Fire Service Commission, a gubernatorial appointed board that has established a process for uniform credentialing for the level of fire chief.

"I am dedicated to provide the highest level of service to this community and have worked hard to continue my education and experience to bring a high level of professionalism to this position," Deputy Chief Baldwin said. "I appreciate that this accomplishment recognizes my dedication to be the best fire service leader I can be for this community."

State Fire Marshal Peter J. Ostroskey said, "This program allows chief officers to document their efforts to develop and maintain the skills to be an effective leader and manager in today's fire service. The process provides an equal opportunity for the volunteer, call, or full-time fire service leader to meet the minimum criteria for achieving fire chief accreditation."

Participants are required to renew their credentials every three years. The program is open to all members of the fire service in the Commonwealth serving as chief or holding the rank of lieutenant or above.

AROUND TOWN

'Code as Medium' at Dedee Shattuck Gallery

WESTPORT — A new exhibit, "Code as Medium," is open through June 2 at the Dedee Shattuck Gallery, 1 Partners Lane. Featured are works by Jonathan Cherneff, Anna Ridler, Shawn Towne, and Xiaohan Zhang.

The show is co-curated by Nick Zimmermann. To some, art derived from digital media may conjure the automated, rigid, and impersonal, devoid of expression or depth — but the work of the artists presented here demonstrate that the opposite is true. Dynamic and unpredictable, in many ways the code-driven work shown has more in common with organic systems than traditional art media.

An artist's talk with Jonathan Cherneff is on Thursday, May 23, at 5:30 p.m. He will talk about his process and machine learning.

Gallery hours are from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesdays to Saturdays and from noon to 5 p.m. on Sundays. Receptions and exhibits are free and open to the public.

Trail Blazer volunteer days are at Allens Pond

WESTPORT — Allens Pond Wildlife Sanctuary is hosting volunteer Trail Blazer days every Friday from 9 a.m. to noon at the sanctuary, 1280 Horseneck Road.

Revolutionary War encampment returns

FAIRHAVEN — The Revolutionary War era will come to life again during a historical encampment on Saturday and Sunday, May 25 and 26, at Fort Phoenix.

During that weekend, members of the Fairhaven Village Militia and the Wareham Minutemen and Militia Companies, will live in an authentic period camp the same way it was done 240 years ago.

Men, women and children dressed in period clothing will reenact life in 1778 and talk about the history of the fort. They will also demonstrate campfire cooking, fire starting with flint and steel, musket ball casting, military drilling, loading and firing flintlock muskets and rifles, tin-smithing, leather working, sewing, cannon firing and more.

The militia's chaplain will deliver Revolutionary War period sermons. Visitors can try their hand at tomahawk throwing and children's games of the period.

The highlight of the weekend is the firing of the fort's five large cannons, scheduled for dusk (about 7:45 p.m.) on Saturday. When fired near sundown, the cannons' plumes of flames and smoke make a spectacular sight.

The militia's commander, Ellsworth Sylvaria Jr., is a descendant of Bartholomew West, whose home was burnt down by the British in 1778. Captain of Artillery Wayne Oliveira was originally a member of Donald R. Bernard's Fourth Old Dartmouth Militia.

At the encampment, the group is depicting camp life during the Revolutionary War period. There will be regular demonstrations of military drilling and musket firing, but there will be no large-scale battle re-enactments.

Both the cannon firing and the overnight encampment will be canceled in the event of heavy rain. Weather permitting, the militia's camp will open to the public from 9 a.m. until sunset on Saturday and from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Sunday.

Send us your college and university graduation notices

If you want to let everyone know that you (or your child) is graduating, now is the time to get the information to Westport Shorelines.

Some colleges and universities don't send out complete notices (including parents' names, honors received or employment plans) and most do not include photographs.

Due to the volume of notices, Westport

Shorelines can only print a graduation notice once.

So, submit additional information or a photograph as soon as possible. We need digital photos e-mailed as an attachment and in a high-resolution (300 dpi) jpg or tif format. Or, we accept glossy photographs (not those with a matte finish).

We will begin running the notices in June as space permits and will print all the students from a particular university or college together when we receive the list from the college (so, please be patient).

E-mail material to Lynda Rego at lreg@eastbaymediagroup.com or mail it to Community News, P.O. Box 90, Bristol, RI 02809.

Include a phone number where you can be reached during the day.

For more information, call 401/253-6000, ext. 107.

Beach is now spotless after annual spring cleanup

The Westport River Watershed Alliance (WRWA) held its annual spring beach cleanup at the Cherry & Webb conservation area on Saturday, May 18. Planners said the beach was surprisingly clean, probably because the weather hasn't exactly been beach-going weather. But, now it is spotless. They had a good turnout and the day was beautiful. Pictured are Blake and Brock Tavares of Westport helping out.

OBITUARIES

Dudley D. Davenport

Teacher, athlete, Hall of Fame coach

Dudley D. Davenport, 81, passed away suddenly on May 15, 2019, at his home in Westport.

Dud was born on December 14, 1937, in Fall River. The life that he lived was something legends were made of, and anyone that encountered him would agree he was larger than life. His legend began in Westport where he was a standout athlete as a four-year starter on the Westport High School basketball team. Dud set the all-time scoring record for the school in 1956, netting 1,529 points in his career. This legend stood for 50 years before his record was eventually broken. In the true humble fashion of Dud Davenport, he was in attendance to shake the hand and congratulate the man who finally broke his record in 2006. Dud earned himself a basketball scholarship to the University of Rhode Island, where he continued his basketball career until graduating in 1960.

When Dud loved, he loved passionately. His first love was of the woman he began dating his sophomore year of high school, Shirly. Shirly and Dud eventually married in 1957. The couple spent 61 years married together before his passing. In that time, Dud and Shirly set the foundation of his ongoing legacy by welcoming and raising their four children David, Diane, Tracy, and Jay. The love that Dud and Shirly shared was something their children adored and strived for in their own lives. Eventually, once the kids were older and married themselves, Dud and Shirly enjoyed traveling the world and supporting one another through all of life's highs and lows. Dud's love for Shirly was unconditional. He had truly found his soulmate and his better half in Shirly.

Dud's second love was his love for impacting the lives of children. He began his career as a teacher and coach at Roosevelt Junior High School in New Bedford. He spent one year there before moving to Sharon in 1961 where he became a science teacher, a coach, and eventually the athletic director for the Sharon High School. Dud's coaching career was as legendary as his athletic career. In 23 years of being the head basketball coach, Dud tallied a record of 328 wins and 114 losses. This earned him five Hockomock League championship teams, 19 teams qualified for the state tournament, ten semi-final appearances, and four final appearances. Dud was inducted into the state Coaches Hall of Fame in 1989. He was also inducted into the Sharon High School Hall of Fame, and the Westport High School Hall of Fame. The Hockomock League further honored his achievements in 2010 by naming a division after him, the Davenport Division. Regardless of the number of awards that Dud won in his career, nothing meant more to him than the number of lives he impacted both in the classroom and in athletics. He was the voice of reason, the sounding board for advice, and the supporter of thousands of kids over the course of his career.

Dud spent over 40 years as a board member at the Sharon Credit Union. He rose through the ranks and served as chairman of the board for 19 years before his passing.

While in Sharon, Dud served as a deacon at the First Congregational Church. He was a longtime member of the Sharon Country Club, and was a beloved community member.

Most recently, Dud and Shirly spent their winters in Naples, Florida, where he spent his time with his Winter Park pals, playing golf, bocce, and cards.

Dud was an avid golfer, a New England sports fanatic, and true friend and mentor to all that knew him. He will be sorely missed. His given name was Dudley, Dud for short, but his life was far superior to his nickname.

Dudley is survived by his beloved wife of 61 years, Shirly; his children, David and Libby Davenport of New York, NY; Diane and Rick Malcolmson of Westport; Tracy Davenport of Eastham, Mass; and Jay and Michelle Davenport of Sharon, Mass. He is also survived by his grandchildren, Bobby Malcolmson, Jessica Stacy, Brett Davenport, Danielle Marchesini, Andrew Davenport, Jamie Fitzgerald, Eliza Fitzgerald, Caitlin Davenport, and Kendall Davenport; and his great-grandchildren, Kaylee Malcolmson, Maia Malcolmson, Sasha Davenport, and Sophia Davenport.

Relatives and friends are kindly invited to Dudley's Life Celebration on Thursday, May 23, from 4 to 8 p.m. in the James H. Delaney & Son Funeral Home, 48 Common Street, Walpole. Dudley's family will gather with friends to continue celebrating his life on Friday, May 24, at 1 p.m. at the home of Jay and Michelle Davenport, 15 Edgewood Road, Sharon, Mass.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to the Davenport Scholarship Fund c/o Sharon Credit Union - 30 Pond Street, Sharon, MA, 02067.

To Washington, with honor

Several East Bay residents joined the first all-female Honor Flight from Rhode Island to the nation's war memorials

BY CHRISTY NADALIN
cnadalin@eastbaymediagroup.com

"It was really tremendous," said Bobbye Sanders, of Honor Flight Victory, which was held on April 6. Speaking from her home at the Rhode Island Veterans Home, Ms. Sanders admitted she did not know exactly what to expect from the day which began when she woke at 3 a.m. for a 4 a.m. departure from Bristol, ("It was like herding cattle," she laughed) and did not end until she was back in her bed at about 1 a.m. the following morning. "Since I retired, I have had a lot of people say to me, 'thank you for your service.' I heard that so much it got on my nerves. I thought, you people are just saying that because it's something to say. But that changed when I went on this flight. I was all so sincere and emotional."

The Honor Flight Network is a non-profit organization that was established in 2005 to honor America's veterans by transporting them to Washington, D.C. to visit and reflect at their memorials. At the time the Honor Flight Network was founded, according to the Department of Veterans Affairs, an estimated 640 World War II veterans were dying each day, and the organization recognizes that our time to express thanks to these brave men and women is running out. Since 2005, more than 22,000 veterans have participated in honor flights.

The network is made up of hubs across the country, and locally, the Rhode Island Fire Chiefs Honor Flight was established in 2012. Since then, they have escorted more than 600 veterans to Washington, D.C. "Honor flight victory was our 22nd, and the first one that was all women," said George Farrell, a retired fire chief who serves as chairman of the Rhode Island Fire Chiefs Honor Flight.

Honor Flight Victory was cosponsored by the General Federation of Women's Clubs of RI, in honor of Holly Charette of Coventry, the first and only Rhode Island woman killed in action, who lost her life on June 23, 2005, when a vehicle carrying explosives struck her vehicle in Fallujah, Iraq.

It was a very full day, as the senior veterans, along with their younger "guardians," all vets as well, enjoyed visits to the memorials, escorted by a National Parks Police detail and accompanied by dignitaries including Senators Bob and Elizabeth Dole and Jack Reed.

For Ms. Sanders, it was an opportunity to reflect on a military career that spanned from the 1950s to the 1980s and included tours of duty in Texas, Korea, Kentucky, Vietnam, West Point, and Iran. Growing up in Mississippi, "I always had in the back of my mind that I would like to be in the military," she said. While working in a coffee shop after taking a break from college, she would chat with two of the regulars, one an Air Force recruiter, the other an army recruiter.

"I didn't particularly care for the one who was in the Air Force, but I liked the one from the Army," she said. "So I joined the Army." After four years in the Women's Army Corps, she stepped away, returning as a member of the Army Nurse Corps, where she served from 1962 to 1981.

In 1968, during the worst year for U.S.

HOLLY SUSI, COURTESY OF R.I. FIRE CHIEFS HONOR FLIGHT HUB

The late Rosetta Desrosiers (wheelchair) and Madeleine Gray (walking), the two senior veterans on the flight, were accompanied by the president and vice president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs of RI as they lay a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery.

As the two eldest veterans on Honor Flight Victory, the late Rosetta Desrosiers and Madeleine Gray led the procession onto the plane at T.F. Green Airport.

Madeleine Gray (left) is with Bobbye Sanders, who lives at the R.I. Veterans Home in Bristol, as the two veterans enjoy "Mail Call," a fun part of the day's schedule that includes cards, letters, and pictures honoring the veterans from family and friends back home.

casualties, she was in charge of the emergency room of the 71st evac hospital in Pleiku. "We never lost a one," Ms. Sanders said. "If they were living when they got there, they were living when they left."

Her memories of that time, still very clear, made a visit to that memorial particularly heartbreaking. "I looked at all those names and I thought, what a waste. What an absolute waste. I volunteered for that. Most of those young men, they had no choice. The government said come on, you're going, and they went, and they lost their lives. It just broke my heart."

Ms. Sanders also found The Korean War Memorial especially striking. "All those statues of the soldiers wearing parkas ... It was a brutal, brutal war. I don't think anyone can go into a combat situation and come back and be the same person. You're just not the same. It's just a part of you that you can't talk about."

Ms. Sanders was not even 50 years old when she retired from the military in 1981. She made a second career caring for elderly patients in long-term care. "I loved working with the elderly, but it made me get out of nursing because long-term care is so regulated. It takes a toll." Changes in her personal life, including the death of her partner of 40 years in 1995, brought her to Rhode Island. "I was at loose ends," she said. "I had a good friend up here that I had known from the Army, so I moved up to Rhode Island in 1999, and have been here ever since."

She and Mary, also a veteran Army nurse, married in August 2013, shortly after Marriage Equality passed in Rhode Island. "Mary and I were fond of each other, had a home together, and I felt we ought to have the same rights as everyone else," she said. These days, Mary lives right down the hall from Bobbye at the Veterans Home.

One of the most moving moments of the day was watching the changing of the guard at Arlington National Cemetery, a ceremony that many of the women, Ms. Sanders included, had never seen. "Madeleine can still walk some," said Ms. Sanders of fellow veteran Madeleine Gray. "She got out of her wheelchair and walked to lay the wreath, and she saluted. She's 96 years old. It was wonderful."

The RI Honor Flight Hub's next Honor Flight, "Whiskey," is scheduled for June 1. If you would like to go to the airport to give these heroes a sendoff, or welcome them home, follow RI Honor Flight Hub on Facebook or contact their Chairman, George Farrell, at gfarrell@rihonorflight.com.

Armand Aromin and Benedict Gagliardi are seekers and singers of old songs, cultivators of local music, and chronic multi-instrumentalists. They are touted as strong tradition-bearers in their generation, and their genuine affinity for the music is evident in the emotion they draw from it. With a pair of oft-harmonizing voices tastefully garnished with fiddle, free-reeds, and tenor guitar, The Vox Hunters offer an all-natural connection to the living tradition of folk music. ## POLI-TICKS

Is free always good?

Earlier this month a debate ensued around the issue of school lunches. Initially, the City of Warwick school committee decided to provide only sunbutter and jelly sandwiches to children whose parents did not pay the requisite fee for school lunches. Mind you, all these parents have the wherewithal to pay, otherwise their children, if low income, would get free lunches. Instead, the parents are scofflaws who are looking for something for nothing.

The school committee was chastised for shaming the children and it soon reversed itself. Clearly, it is the better part of valor not to put children in the middle of a dispute. Further, it potentially could provoke bullying, so removing this "stigma" was important to do.

This situation, however, is easily handled without putting the children at risk. School lunch agreements should provide for payment, plus, in the case of unexcused payment(s), interest and attorney fees should be recouped if collection has to be initiated. Sue the miscreants.

Yet, the entire issue of "squeezing out" more freebies is important to discuss. Do we develop a mentality that things are "owed" to us when we shrug off non-compliance? A trove of research suggests yes. The more folks get things for free; even more benefits are expected by them as a "right."

Equally troubling is the prospect that folks devalue things that are free. With "free college," for example, do students study less hard than their parents or grandparents who had to work to pay tuition? Do we set these young adults on a clear path to continue to seek something for nothing as they get older? In effect, are we inadvertently developing a mentality of entitlement, given the wide exposure of a life lived on other people's dime as evidenced by their parents and their own experience?

I know this sounds nostalgic, but I salute the days where my generation and that of my parents always had "the right change for the bus." Nothing was purchased until the money was saved. It was unthinkable that anyone else should bear the brunt of personal bills.

Today, however, it is standard for more and more folks to expect "bennies" at the expense of unrelated people.

Of course, I am not talking about the genuine taking into consideration of folks' resources. Pell grants are awarded to worthy students who are too indigent to pay for college. Universities routinely award scholarships to needy students in accordance with their needs.

In Rhode Island, however, it somehow became virtuous to allow everybody, regardless of how much money their parents have, to get a free college education. In fact, the governor aims to extend free tuition to Rhode Island College and the University of Rhode Island.

The underbelly of this largesse, however, is the cost to many who are on fixed income and in minimum wage jobs. Some of the least able folks economically are being tapped to pay tuitions of children whose parents can afford it, and their lunches. What's wrong with this picture?

Rhode Island is well along the path of being a welfare state, particularly for those who don't qualify for the status and those who are special interests members. It's insane to continue this public dole.

Arlene Violet is an attorney and former Rhode Island Attorney General.

HEALTHY EATING

Nutrition tweaks to reduce inflammation

Curbing inflammation throughout the body can help reduce the risk of disease, as well as improve energy levels and your quality of life. Certain foods help to reduce inflammation, so one way to start fighting inflammation is by making simple tweaks to your food choices. Try the following suggestions for anti-inflammatory foods.

1. Include omega-3 fatty acids. Choose omega-3 fats for cooking, such as canola oil. Eat foods rich in omega-3's, such as salmon, sardines, flaxseed, and walnuts. These can support heart and brain health.

2. Fill your plate with color. A diet rich in color is known to help promote health. Foods that are black, deep red, dark blue, and purple are some to look for. Try black rice instead of brown. Swap purple potatoes and carrots for orange.

3. Swap refined grains for whole grains. Whole grains stabilize blood sugar. This leads to less inflammation for your body. Try whole wheat or chickpea pasta instead of white. For grain products, the first ingredient listed should be a form of whole grain. Look for things like whole wheat flour.

4. Cool off exercise-related inflammation. If you suffer from soreness after workouts, try adding ginger and cherries to your diet. These foods have been shown to decrease inflammation and pain after intense exercise.

5. Say 'Yes!' to chocolate. Unsweetened cocoa powder may help to reduce inflammation linked with heart disease. Try adding cocoa powder to smoothies, yogurts, or your favorite beverage.

Modern home in quiet downtown Bristol location

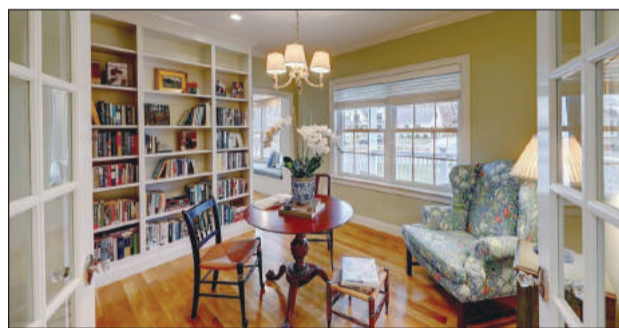

This home on Howe Street in downtown Bristol has an in-law apartment and first-floor master suite.

The living room features a gas fireplace and window seat.

The gourmet kitchen includes small island and eating area.

Tucked behind French doors is a library.

This presents a truly unique location in downtown Bristol — last house on a dead-end street, surrounded by historic homes, neighboring open space. Located half a block between High and Wood streets and two blocks from the water, this home has a lot of space and modern updates.

It includes a full in-law on the first floor, as well as a first-floor master suite. Quartz countertops and high-end appliances grace the gourmet kitchen, which opens to the living room with gas fireplace and lovely window seat. The kitchen also opens to the dining room, which in turn opens to a porch facing east for morning coffee. A small library is on the first floor with floor to ceiling built-in bookcases.

The second floor has a two-bedroom suite with sitting room and full bath. And the front porch facing west catches the afternoon breezes from Narragansett Bay. The house has never been occupied and is truly move-in ready.

2020 Mercedes GLS Preview

Mercedes-Benz is a popular choice for many luxury car buyers in Rhode Island, and for good reason. They're safe, feature packed, and tend to keep their value better than most. Mercedes Benz's new motto is "The Best or Nothing". It's a bold statement and there are few brands that could get away with it. But Mercedes is one of them.

There are thousands of Mercedes vehicles in and around Rhode Island. Take a trip to the East Side, or the Providence Place Mall, Garden City, or many of the other upscale shopping areas and you'll see dozens of them.

So when Mercedes Benz introduced the all-new GLS sport utility vehicle at the New York Auto Show last month, we were there to get the details on the important changes. But first, a bit of history.

Mercedes Benz has a plethora of sport utilities, starting with the GLA and increasing in half sizes to get to this GLS, their largest. The GL series SUV has been around since 2007. The original, dubbed "GL450" was introduced at the North American International Auto Show in 2006 and released to the US public shortly after. When it was redesigned in 2012, it increased in size, and also traded some of its chiseled lines for smooth corners and better overall aerodynamics. In 2017, Mercedes decided to change the model designation from GL to GLS, to bring the alphanumeric naming in line with the rest of the lineup. Essentially GL is Mercedes speak for Sport Utility Series, and S is the largest in the series, just like the S550 is the pinnacle of the sedan series (we're not including Maybach models here, as that would just complicate things). And speaking of complicating things, the biggest MB Sport Ute isn't its most expensive. That honor goes to the G-Wagon, which is smaller, but significantly more expensive. If you're looking for one of the ultimate statement vehicles you could possibly drive-and also one of the most capable SUV's on the planet, take a closer look at the aerodynamically challenged G-series. But you'll need deep pockets (They start at $125,000) and a max of four friends, as it's available sans third row only.

But back to the new GLS. At launch, it will come in two varieties, the GLS 450 and GLS 580. The 450 is propelled by an inline 6-cylinder engine with 362 horsepower and 369 lb/ft of torque. It has an electric motor that replaces the starter and alternator, this wizardry brings 21 of the aforementioned horses to the party. More importantly, it adds 181 lb/ft of torque.

Should you have the desire (and the means) to step up to the GLS 580, you'll get the 4.0 liter, twin turbo V8 (the same as the one in the S560 sedan), and the same integrated starter generator as the six, which combine to provide a whopping 483 horsepower and 516 lb/ft of torque. The new GLS is no slouch, and when Mercedes (inevitably) decides to come out with an AMG version, it's a pretty good bet that it'll top all other seven passenger luxury SUVs in performance.

In both models, those engines are combined with a nine-speed automatic gearbox mated to an all-wheel drive system that can send one hundred percent of all that torque to either axle. And if you do go for the GL580, you'll have an optional low range AWD system, just in case you need to pull a house or something.

As for seating configurations, the new GLS matches its newest and most obvious competitor, the BMW X7, with six or seven passenger capacities, depending on whether you opt for the second-row captain's chairs or three across bench seating that's been standard on all GL and GLS models to date.

The new GLS will also come with the new MBUX system, which is a huge improvement in functionality over the previous version. Having owned both previous versions of the big Benz, I can say that this is one area that was in dire need of improvement.

The other notable option is the E-Active Body Control System, which was first available on the new GLE (GL for sport utility, E for mid-size). This is a pretty wild setup that ditches the sway bars completely, and everything's done through the shock system and the air springs. What that means is that all the necessary adjustments are done independently at all 4 corners and done instantaneously using the 48-volt hybrid system. And it can actually capture regenerative energy from the motion of the dampers.

It seems that the US can't get enough SUVs. They outsold passenger cars last year (something that's never happened before) and are on pace to do so easily, again in 2019. Currently there are nearly one hundred to choose from. But when you get to the rarified air of the 100K luxury seven passenger SUVs, there are only a few to choose from. If you're lucky enough to be in this category, the new GLS is worth waiting for.

The GLS is expected to be in Mercedes-Benz dealerships by the end of the year. Pricing will be announced soon.

Audrain Cars and Coffee season begins at Fort Adams in Newport

The Audrain Auto Museum has been hosting their "Cars and Coffee" events since 2016, and the 2019 season is now underway. The first event was held at Fort Adams in Newport, and there are thirteen more scheduled, culminating with the October 26th event, which will be held back at Fort Adams to close the season.

The venues will rotate between The Elms, Chateau Sur Mer, and The Marble House, McAulley Hall at Salve Regina, and Fort Adams. They start at 8am (display cars can start arriving at 7:30), and run till 10. As the name implies, there's coffee (and some breakfast foods, along with various Audrain paraphernalia for purchase).

And then there's the more important part of the name, Cars. You can always count on a diverse display of cars, trucks, SUV or motorcycle that you'd like to show, registration is mandatory. Just do it on the Audrain website at AudrainAutoMuseum.com

There's no cost to attend or to display. If you've got a car, truck, SUV or motorcycle that you'd like to show, registration is mandatory. Just do it on the Audrain website at AudrainAutoMuseum.com
