WHAT IS THE MEANING of Life? What is life? Do the air dancers, gyrating in front of the car dealership, have life? They look like it. Does the pine tree have life? Certainly! How about the rose or the potato? Sure. But are their lives the same kind of life as yours? Can they think, imagine or trust in God? The Apostle Paul tells us that people can be physically alive, but at the same time spiritually dead. Later he says, God has made some of you alive who were dead in trespasses and sins. Those people had not formerly been dead and buried, so he was obviously speaking of something more. Christ Jesus tells us, "I am the way, the truth and the life." Jesus is the source of a special life. Are you sure you have the kind of life which will extend into eternity? Calvary Baptist Church, 12th and Spokane, Post Falls, 208-777-3175; idahobaptist.com

MODERN SPIRITUALISM is dangerous! As it is written: "Satan which deceives the whole world", Revelation 12:9. Through spiritualism, Satan wants people to focus on the love aspect of God, to the exclusion of all the warnings God says about sinful behavior, and its consequences. In other words, live as you please, heaven is your home. Satan has captured the Christian world by keeping people from daily studying the Bible, for themselves, to find out how to have eternal life in paradise. The 97% do not know that a Day of judgment where each and every individual person, will be asked if they have kept all 10 Commandments, just as Jesus Christ kept them. Text only, Tim, 208-217-8942

Light and Luscious Fish in a Flash

Sometimes I get requests for meal solutions that seem to ask the impossible. We need a dinner that's healthy, simple to prepare, fast enough to make on busy weeknight and so flavorful that it will please the whole family. Oh! And totally inexpensive! OK, I've gotcha covered.

I'd like you to meet my little friend, tilapia. A firm textured white fish so mild it takes on the flavor of any seasoning. Tilapia is the most popular fish around the globe. With over a billion pounds responsibly farm-raised annually, there's no risk of overfishing. I recommend buying frozen tilapia as the price is most affordable. At 185 calories and 34 grams protein per 6 ounce serving, this is a fish dinner winner!

Tilapia is best broiled, baked or pan fried. When it reaches 145 F, or it's opaque and flakes easily with a fork, it's done. When it comes to seasoning tilapia, the world is at your fingertips. Every culture has recipes using tilapia, so there are thousands of recipes floating around. You can substitute tilapia for most firm white fish in any recipe.

The quickest way to prepare tilapia is to broil it with a drizzle of olive oil and a squeeze of lemon. Place the desired number of filets on a rimmed baking sheet and broil on HIGH for 5 minutes, or until the fish is done. Sprinkle on a few capers or fresh herbs, add a heap of steamed veggies and dinner is done.

To oven bake tilapia, preheat oven to 400 F. Place tilapia, seasoned as desired, on a rimmed baking sheet or baking dish for 12-15 minutes, or until the fish is done.

To add a crunchy coating to tilapia without frying, dip the filets in egg wash and cover in panko or seasoned breadcrumbs and bake as directed above. Add parmesan to the crumbs for a real treat.

Here's a personal favorite I hope you'll love.

www.JasonCoblentz.com

Tilapia is healthy, fast, flavorful — and inexpensive.

SKILLET TILAPIA WITH WARM AVOCADO SALSA

Yield: 4 servings Time: 25 minutes

- 1/2 pounds tilapia fillets — about 4 pieces, thawed if frozen
- 3 tablespoons butter, melted
- 1/2 tablespoons lime juice (See tip)

For Salsa:

- 1/2 cups, or one large, or two

- small avocados, diced
 - 2 tablespoons green onion, sliced
 - 2 tablespoons cilantro, minced; or substitute parsley or your favorite herb
 - 1/2 tablespoons lime juice
- *TIP — If limes are cheap, juice fresh lime and add the zest. If they're off-season, use lime juice from concentrate. Both are delicious!

1. Heat a large non-stick skillet to medium. Mix melted butter with lime juice and brush both sides of the fish. Sprinkle with salt and pepper to taste. You won't use all the butter mixture. Place the remaining butter into the skillet. Add tilapia and cook for 4 minutes and carefully turn over. Cook 4 minutes more or until the fish is done. Remove to platter and keep warm.

2. Place the avocado, green onion, cilantro and lime juice into a small bowl, stir to combine. When you remove the fish, put the salsa into the skillet and stir it around to mingle with the pan juices until just warmed through. Serve the salsa over the fish. I like to serve this with brown rice and a green vegetable, or with warm tortillas like a fish taco.

NOTE: According to the FDA, 6 ounces is a serving, so 1 1/2 pounds makes four servings. My family's appetites are bigger than this, so I double the recipe and enjoy any leftovers for lunch the next day. Bon Appetit!

Learning to Love Cold-Weather Camping and Trekking

— StatePoint Media —

Do you identify as an outdoor enthusiast -- but only during three seasons of the year? Here are some tips and recommendations for learning to love cold-weather camping, trekking and more:

- Take up a new sport: Whether it's ice climbing, snowshoeing or cross-country skiing, there are certain sports that can only be enjoyed in cold conditions. Challenge yourself to take up a new athletic endeavor this winter. The thrill of trying something for the first time may prove sufficiently distracting from the chill, plus you may discover a new passion in the process.
- Let durable tech support you: Your wearable tech should be as tough and intrepid as you are. So if your current outdoor watch doesn't support high-level performance or stand up to the toughest of conditions, it's time for an update. Consider Casio's line of Pro Trek and G-SHOCK watches, which have built-in technology to ensure your fun doesn't turn to frustration. For example, those in G-SHOCK's Mudmaster series feature a digital compass, barometer, altimeter, thermometer and step tracker to help you reach your goals, even when challenges seem insurmountable. The Base model is the MUDMASTER GGB100, which uses carbon material that delivers a new level of shock-, water-, dust- and mud-resistance. The watches in the Pro Trek series are also equipped with quad sensor technology, and in some cases, Smartphone connectivity. Using Bluetooth and Casio's Smartphone Link functionality, wearers can connect to a designated app for access to additional useful data for your outdoor adventures, such as route log, calories burned, location indicator, altitude, longitude, latitude and more.

- Embrace a mind over matter attitude: Hate the cold? Consider the approach of extreme, cold-weather athlete Wim Hof, whose famous outdoor feats of endurance in subzero temperatures (and in little clothing) have earned him the apt nickname, "The Iceman." You don't need to forgo shoes and a shirt like he does to take a page from his cold weather playbook, which involves controlled breathing. Dip a toe into the icy waters of his technique by checking out the Wim Hof Method Mobile app.
- Get prepped for nighttime: While you may prefer to spend the night in a cabin or other shelter in winter, and that's totally respectable, if you do plan a more rustic adventure, be sure that your tent and sleeping bag are specifically engineered for winter use. A sleeping pad placed beneath your sleeping bag can provide a valuable layer between you and the cold ground. Most importantly stay healthy and safe. Change your plans if there are unsafe conditions in the forecast and know the signs of hypothermia and frostbite. If you are a novice, you may also consider bringing along a friend who is well-versed in cold weather outdoor adventures until you get the hang of it.

If you go all out during summer, spring and fall, but shy away from outdoor adventures in winter, let new gear and a new mindset help you embrace the cold.

Hunters Can Comment on Proposed Changes for 2022 Deer and Elk Seasons through March 13th

— Fish and Game —

Hunters and other interested parties can comment on proposed changes to the 2022 deer and elk seasons now through March 13th. Proposals are in response to the first-ever detection of Chronic Wasting Disease in Unit 14, as well as a recurrence of another disease that unexpectedly reduced whitetails herds in Clearwater Region. The commission is scheduled to decide on changes at its March 23rd-24th meeting at 600 S. Walnut St. in Boise.

Most hunt changes are prompted by CWD detection

Fish and Game officials discovered six cases of CWD in deer and elk in Unit 14, and wildlife managers are proposing hunt changes there to slow the spread of CWD. The goal is to keep the prevalence low, which is the number of animals within herds that have the disease, and prevent, or slow, its spread into other areas.

Fish and Game's 2021 CWD testing showed the amount of disease – or prevalence – is estimated to be less than 2 percent for deer and likely less in elk. Research from others states has shown that keeping the prevalence rate less than 5 percent can slow its spread, but when CWD prevalence rates increase above 5 percent, the disease is more likely to rapidly spread within a herd and also expand geographically.

"Structuring hunts to achieve lower densities of deer, and younger age classes within herds, has also shown to slow the geographic spread of CWD and hold prevalence at current levels or lower," Fish and Game State Game Manager Rick Ward said.

Proposed hunt change options

Increase mule deer harvest in Unit 14

- Option 1: Increase antlered mule deer controlled hunt tags from 180 to 400 tags with the hunting season running from Oct. 10th – Nov. 20th.
- Option 2: Replace existing antlered controlled hunt (180 tags) with a general-season, antlered-only hunt from Oct. 10th – Nov. 20th.

Add antlerless mule deer hunt in Unit 14

- Add new mule deer extra antlerless hunt with 200 tags from Oct. 10th – Nov. 20th. "Extra tags" allow hunters to harvest an additional animal in addition to a regular or controlled hunt tag.

Add White-tailed deer extra tags in Unit 14

- Option 1: In addition to the existing general season, either-sex whitetail hunt, add a new extra antlerless whitetail hunt with 250 tags, and a new whitetail, extra antlered tag with 250 tags. Each hunt would run Oct. 10th – Nov. 20th.
- Option 2: Extend the existing general, either-sex hunt from Oct. 10th – Dec. 31st.

Increase elk tags

Increase elk tags in one land owner permission hunt in

Controlled Hunt Unit 14-1 from 50 tags to 80 tags and extend the southern boundary of the hunt unit about 3 miles. Here's more about proposed changes to manage for CWD:

Epizootic Hemorrhagic Disease hit white-tailed deer herds in 2021

During the summer of 2021, the white-tailed deer in the Clearwater Region experienced an outbreak of Epizootic Hemorrhagic Disease (EHD) primarily in Hunt Units 8, 8A, 10A, 11, 11A, 14 and 16. EHD differs from CWD, and EHD periodically occurs in Central and North Idaho during hot, dry summers and can quickly kill large numbers of deer.

After reviewing harvest data and previous changes to hunting seasons in response to EHD outbreaks in 2003 and 2015, big game managers are recommending eliminating 1,500 deer tags in five "Extra Antlerless Deer Hunts" in the following Controlled Hunt Units:

- 8-1X (Youth), (200 tags in 2021)
- 8-2X, (350 tags in 2021)
- 8A-1X, (350 tags in 2021)
- 10A-1X, (300 tags in 2021)
- 11A-1X. (300 tags in 2021)

Big game managers said it is likely that white-tailed deer numbers will rebound within 3 years in these units, especially with the availability of high-quality habitat and increased carry capacity from herds thinned by EHD.

"Eliminating extra antlerless tags could prove important in allowing the white-tailed deer populations to recover quicker by reducing harvest on an already reduced deer herd," Fish and Game Deer/elk Coordinator Toby Boudreau said.

People can comment on the proposals on the public comment webpage.

Fish and Game will continue testing for CWD and managing the disease

Now that CWD is known to occur in the state, wildlife managers will ramp up testing. Hunters in Unit 14 and surrounding units are encouraged to have their animals tested for CWD, and Fish and Game will work with them in 2022 to make it more convenient to get animals tested.

Statewide, Fish and Game tested more than 2,500 animals for CWD in 2021. Fish and Game has been testing for the disease since 1997 and sampled more than 20,000 animals during that time.

CWD is a neurological disease that affects deer, elk, moose and caribou. There is no practical live test for the disease, so only samples taken from dead animals can be used. Although new to Idaho, CWD is found in 29 U.S. states and four Canadian provinces, including neighboring states Montana, Wyoming and Utah. Learn more about CWD in Idaho at idfg.idaho.gov/cwd.

CWD affects the nervous system in deer, elk, moose and caribou and is caused by abnormal, misfolded proteins called prions that accumulate within the spinal column and brain, causing progressive damage to those cells and brain damage. CWD has a very long incubation period (time between infection and observable disease) that typically takes at least 10 months for a deer or elk to show signs of illness.

Shed Hunt Responsibly to Protect Big Game Animals

— Fish and Game —

On Feb. 2nd, Punxsutawney Phil – aka, the fuzzy little varmint that miraculously forecasts the winter-spring transition on Groundhog's Day – indicated there would be six more weeks of winter this year. The bigger takeaway from Mr. Phil is an important reminder that winter is not over for wintering deer and elk, so keep that in mind before you start shed hunting.

Shed hunting is a popular activity and an exciting remedy for cabin fever. Armed with nothing more than a good set of eyes, looking for a deer or elk's shed antlers in late-winter and early-spring is a highly accessible hobby for those squirming like bird dogs for the next outdoor adventure.

Shed hunting is accessible for all types of folks, hunters and nonhunters, youngsters, etc. You can bring your friends, your family and enjoy a day outdoors and maybe come home with a natural prize.

But unlike other hunting seasons, there aren't set open and close dates or daily bag limits. Being respectful of wintering wildlife is part of the sport. Chances are, if it feels too early to start shed hunting, it probably is.

"Wintering big game animals are very susceptible to any kind of disturbance whether it is from passing motorists, domestic dogs or shed hunters in late winter and early spring," said Toby Boudreau, Fish and Game's deer and elk coordinator. "There's growing concern over shed hunters putting additional stress on wintering big game in many areas of the state."

Chalking up a winter season as "mild" is no excuse to hit the hills early, either. Deer and elk still rely on fat reserves to get through winter, mild or not, and with nutrient-dense spring vegetation still weeks away, bumping deer and elk off their winter ranges while looking for sheds can have potentially lethal effects.

Shed hunters can alleviate potential negative impacts by following these simple steps while still enjoying the activity.

1. Leave them alone

Deer and elk are often found in small and large herds at lower elevations. Many will be loafing or eating, and it's important that they be allowed to rest undisturbed.

It's no secret that deer and elk spook easily. When one whiffs a human wandering through their winter range, their instinct takes over to head off for the next safe drainage, which can deplete their energy stores, especially if those disturbances are constantly repeated by the next person, or group of people.

Shed hunters are often big game hunters themselves, and responsible ones recognize that not pressuring deer and elk in winter is not only the respectful thing to do, it also increases that herd's chances of carrying over more animals into spring, summer and hunting season in the fall.

2. Respect private lands and follow all road and area restrictions

Like all hunters, shed hunters should check with a landowner before venturing on to their property in search of antlers.

Access permission doesn't just apply to private land. Some public lands are temporarily closed during winter and early spring to provide deer and elk with disturbance-free wintering grounds.

The same goes for motorized vehicles. Certain public lands, including Fish and Game's Wildlife Management Areas, are often closed to unauthorized motorized vehicle traffic and can only be accessed by foot or on horseback.

In addition, even if motorized access is allowed on designated roads and trails, shed hunters should also seriously consider the potential impact to wildlife and damage they may cause to roads and trails when the ground is wet. Keep in mind that just because you can drive somewhere doesn't mean you should.

For questions about travel management plans or areas protected, contact your local U.S. Forest Service, Bureau of Land Management or Fish and Game regional office.

3. Control your dog, or leave it home

You may have trained Rover to ignore deer and elk, but that's no reason to let your pooch run hogwild through the foothills. If deer and elk can sense a human tiptoeing through the sagebrush a half-mile away, they can definitely sense a bounding Labrador retriever with a jangling collar. And they're likely to see all canines as predators, so in their eyes, your friendly, harmless dog is no different than a coyote or wolf seeking its next meal.

If shed hunting with your dog, keep it close, under control, and if you see big game animals, head elsewhere.

4. Hunt a place to hunt

Glassing for sheds and wildlife from a hilltop can be a useful tool in a shed hunter's toolkit. Using a spotting scope or even just binoculars can save a person some time and energy combing the hillsides with their eyes instead of their thighs.

Modern optics can be your friend for shed hunting just like they are when hunting. You can use them to spot shed antlers from a distance, but you can also use them to spot far away herds and know to avoid those areas, at least for the time being. When the animals have moved on, you can return and look for sheds.

Also remember that during winter, the bucks (and by association, their antlers) typically aren't hanging around the does, which tend to be down at lower elevations. Utilizing optics to find far-off bucks or bulls up at higher elevations can be a good strategy for shed hunters scouting locations where antlers might drop later in the season. For mule deer, that means around December and January, and for bull elk, March and early April.

The main point of this shed hunting story

It's not complicated. Next time you're out hiking around or hunting for antlers, if you see wintering wildlife, find another route. Glass the hillsides from the trailhead, or look for recent sign like fresh hoof prints or scat on the ground. Chances are, if you're seeing does and cows, you're in the wrong area anyways. Be patient, those higher-elevation sheds will still be there later in the season.

So trust your gut, sharpen those eyes and avoid putting stress on wintering deer and elk.

National Employee Appreciation Day

— National Today Calendar —

Launched in 1995 by Workman Publishing, National Employee Appreciation Day, on March 4th, reminds managers that strong employer-employee relations are at the core of any truly successful business. Having a great relationship with your employees is an important aspect of being a manager, and appreciating their efforts can go a long way towards making workers feel valued. Take some time on National Employee Appreciation Day to connect with your employees, offer authentic praise, and listen to their experiences. If you can, give your employees part of the day off, or treat them to a special lunch or group activity.

History of National Employee Appreciation Day

As the basis of the capitalist economic system, wage labor can be a mutually beneficial relationship between employer and employee. But, too often, workers feel exploited, underpaid, and just not appreciated by their managers or bosses. Strong and trusting employer-employee relations can go a long way towards ensuring a company's long-term success and retaining a satisfied and dedicated workforce.

The American labor movement has its origins in the earliest years of the republic when artisans banded together to maintain wage levels. The earliest strike in the U.S. happened in 1768 when New York tailors stood their ground against wage reductions. After that, American craftsmen started organizing guilds and unions to protect wages and benefits for their respective trades. American trade unionism was born.

Today, most American workers enjoy basic labor protections like an eight-hour workday, minimum wage laws, and overtime protections. Many employers understand the importance of maintaining good relations with their employees and the positive impact of a happy workforce, but labor unions continue to fight for those workers who still experience abuse and exploitation. Workers employed in agriculture, garment work, factory farming, and other low-wage industries all face poverty wages, high injury rates, and exploitative practices.

Employee Appreciation Day is gaining strength in the U.S. and other countries, with many companies using the day to show appreciation to their employees through some time off, a small token of gratitude, or a special event. Most of all, employers can celebrate Employee Appreciation Day all year long by instituting living wages and fair policies. Employee appreciation can boost workers' satisfaction and the company's retention rate, increasing the productivity and profitability of the company and creating a happier and more pleasant work environment for all.

Idaho Fish and Game Commission will consider proposed hunting season changes for Unit 14 in response to five deer and an elk testing positive for Chronic Wasting Disease. Hunters and other interested parties can comment on the proposals starting Feb. 22nd, and the deadline to comment is March 13th. The commission is scheduled to decide on changes at its March 23-24 meeting at 600 S. Walnut St. in Boise.

The comment period will include a virtual public meeting in early March where Fish and Game staff will share information about CWD and the department's plans for CWD management. The intent of proposed hunting season changes is to stop or slow the spread of CWD and keep the prevalence low, which is the number of animals within herds that have the disease.

Fish and Game's 2021 CWD testing showed the amount of disease – or prevalence – is estimated to be less than 2 percent for deer and likely less in elk. Research from other states has shown that keeping the prevalence rate less than 5 percent can stop, or slow, the spread of the disease. When CWD prevalence rates increase above 5 percent, the disease is more likely to rapidly increase within the herd and spread geographically.

Also, structuring hunts to achieve lower densities of deer and younger age classes within herds has shown in other states to slow the geographic spread of CWD and hold prevalence at current levels or lower.

Fish and Game officials intend to increase the number of animals tested during regularly scheduled hunts during traditional hunting seasons. The proposed season changes are consistent with Fish and Game's CWD management plan.

Proposed change options for public comment February 22nd through March 13th

Increase mule deer harvest

- Option 1: Increase antlered mule deer controlled hunt tags from 180 to 400 tags with the hunting season running from Oct. 10th – Nov. 20th.
- Option 2: Replace existing antlered controlled hunt (180 tags) with a general-season, antlered-only hunt from Oct. 10th – Nov. 20th.

Add antlerless mule deer hunt

Add new mule deer extra antlerless hunt with 200 tags from Oct. 10th – Nov. 20th. "Extra tags" allow hunters to harvest an additional animal in addition to a regular or controlled hunt tag.

White-tailed deer extra tags

- Option 1: In addition to the existing general season, either-sex whitetail hunt, add a new extra antlerless whitetail hunt with 250 tags, and a new whitetail, extra antlered tag with 250 tags. Each hunt would run Oct. 10th – Nov. 20th.
- Option 2: Extend the existing general, either-sex hunt from Oct. 10th – Dec. 31st.

Increase elk tags

Increase elk tags in one land owner permission hunt in Controlled Hunt Unit 14-1 from 50 tags to 80 tags and extend the southern boundary of the hunt unit about 3 miles.

CWD is new in Idaho

Fish and Game received notification in November that two mule deer bucks taken in Unit 14 tested positive for CWD, which were the first-ever known cases in the state. Subsequent testing showed four more positive cases, including three in white-tailed deer and one elk, all in Unit 14, which is in Idaho County roughly east of U.S. 95 between Riggins to the south and Cottonwood to the north.

Statewide, Fish and Game tested more than 2500 animals for CWD in 2021. Fish and Game has been testing for the disease since 1997 and sampled more than 20,000 animals during that time.

CWD is a neurological disease that affects deer, elk, moose and caribou. There is no practical live test for the disease, so only samples taken from dead animals can be used. Although new to Idaho, CWD is found in 29 U.S. states and four Canadian provinces, including neighboring states Montana, Wyoming and Utah. More about CWD in Idaho at idfg.idaho.gov/cwd.

CWD affects the nervous system in deer, elk, moose and caribou and is caused by abnormal, misfolded proteins called prions that accumulate within the spinal column and brain, causing progressive damage to those cells and brain damage. CWD has a very long incubation period (time between infection and observable disease) that typically takes at least 10 months for a deer or elk to show signs of illness.

Tech-Free Experiences and Gift Ideas for Kids of All Ages

— Brandpoint —

Less stuff and more memories - this is what many parents are striving for with their families. This goal is inspiring a new approach to gifts that bypasses toys and screen time, and instead focuses on activities that make a lasting impression and get kids out of the house.

Experiential gift giving is one of the year's hottest trends. Not only do these types of gifts create memories that last, but there's no need to worry about supply chain issues or delivery delays when you're gifting an experience. Need inspiration? Here are some of the most popular experiential gift ideas for kids, tweens and teens:

Explore Mother Nature

Give them a reason to get outdoors and explore the natural world with a thoughtful gift related to Mother Nature. For example, consider gifting an annual pass to a national park or state park. If you live in areas with snow, another good idea is a season pass to a ski area or lift tickets. If your loved one has no experience on skis or a snowboard, consider gifting a lesson, too.

Jump for joy

Indoor trampoline parks give kids of all ages adrenaline-

pumping, laughter-filled fun. Sky Zone, the creators of the world's first indoor trampoline park, is a choose-your-own adventure with something for everyone, from the Little Leapers program for kids 6 and under to neon dance parties after dark at GLOW for kids, tweens and teens. With a wide array of active entertainment experiences, you can test out your ninja skills on the Ninja Warrior Course, slam dunk like a pro on SkySlam, play Ultimate Dodgeball and much more. Give the gift of a Sky Zone gift card. Many locations offer memberships as well, so the fun never has to end.

Theater tickets

In a world full of screens, live theater stands out as a unique form of entertainment. Do a little research to see what's available and consider gifting tickets to an upcoming show. Select a theater or show based on kids' ages and interests. You could even make a day out of going to the theater and dress up for dinner as well. Whether a big city theater or a small local troupe, this experience is sure to delight.

Classes

Is your child curious about a hobby or always eager to continue learning? Art, dance, woodworking, sewing, singing, robotics - there are so many options to explore either in-person or virtually. Gift a child a class and you may inspire a passion that they'll have for the rest of their life. Is Mom or Dad interested as well? Take the class with them and make memories together.

Museum discovery

Kids are naturally curious, so gift them tickets to a local museum and you give them a reason to explore and learn. Some examples include a science museum, zoo, aquarium, children's museum or animal sanctuary. Want to splurge? Some locations offer special behind-the-scenes tours that you can schedule for the kids in your life.

Whether a holiday, birthday or any other reason to give a gift, consider opting for experiences like these over traditional gifts. They'll help kids explore new activities and create treasured memories.

NIC to Present 'Of Dreamers and Dreams' Concert

— North Idaho College —

North Idaho College will present the concert, "Of Dreamers and Dreams," at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 8th, in Boswell Hall Schuler Performing Arts Center on the college's main campus in Coeur d'Alene. This concert is free and open to the public and features performances by the NIC Cardinal Chorale and NIC Chamber Singers.

"Of Dreamers and Dreams" will celebrate the beauty and optimism of the human spirit through the music and poetry of W.A. Mozart, John Tavener, Lodovico Viadana, Eric Whitacre, William Blake, Langston Hughes, and many others.

"After a challenging couple of years, it is important to remember that the human spirit can be uplifted with the power of our dreams and hopes," Mendez said. "Additionally, with so much division in today's world, music can be a strong source of healing where we can all connect. I wanted the choirs to celebrate these ideals in song."

The NIC Cardinal Choral and Chamber Singers will join forces at the beginning and end of the concert.

Mendez is in his 17th year as Director of Choirs at North Idaho College. Under his direction, NIC choirs have traveled to Mexico City, San Francisco, and New York City to perform concerts. In addition to the NIC Cardinal Chorale and Chamber Singers, he also directs Cardinal Voices, NIC's Commercial Music ensemble.

The NIC choirs and instrumental ensembles comprise NIC students, faculty, staff, and community members. To join any of these ensembles in the fall, contact Max Mendez at 208-769-3275 or Bryan Hannaford at 208-769-3258.

F&G and ID Power Company Test Hatchery Snake River White Sturgeon to Ensure They Can Reproduce in the Wild

— Fish and Game —

The first year-class of white sturgeon reared in the new Niagara Springs Sturgeon Hatchery recently underwent genetic testing to ensure that all fish released into the Snake River are capable of reproducing. These fish are unique from a typical hatchery fish, like rainbow trout, which are typically sterile when they are stocked so they can't successfully spawn with wild fish.

The main goal of sturgeon conservation efforts at the Niagara Springs hatchery is to ensure sturgeon populations in the Snake River are healthy and can continue to support recreational sport fishing.

Eggs for this hatchery program are collected from natural spawning sturgeon in the Snake River between Bliss Dam and CJ Strike reservoir. Once collected, the eggs are brought back to the Niagara Springs Sturgeon Hatchery where they are reared for one year.

Prior to release, all sturgeon raised at the hatchery are marked by removing a single scute, or bony plate on their side and a small PIT tag is inserted under the skin. The mark will identify the fish as having a PIT tag which will give biologists, who may handle the fish years later, information about their age, stocking date and size at stocking.

During marking, blood is drawn from each fish that will allow biologists to determine the "ploidy", or sets of chromosomes the fish has, which then determines if the fish is capable of reproducing or if the fish is sterile.

Sturgeon with 8 sets of chromosomes are capable of reproducing, which helps ensure the sturgeon hatchery achieves its conservation goal. While sturgeon with 10 or 12 sets of chromosomes can still reproduce, the majority of their offspring will either be sterile or future generations of fish from these adults will be sterile.

After testing, 13 of the 1613 fish tested had abnormal ploidy levels and were culled. Although this is a very small percentage, it is important to remove these individuals from the population given the long life span of sturgeon and the high survival rates of stocked fish in some of the Snake River reaches.

By only stocking fish with normal ploidy levels we will ensure that if these hatchery fish spawn naturally in the coming years, that their offspring will be viable, meeting the conservation goal of a healthy white sturgeon population in the Snake River.

The majority of the sturgeon will be stocked at one year of age into the Snake River after they have grown to a size of one foot or longer and weigh at least 7 ounces (200 grams).

The Niagara Springs hatchery, located south of Wendell, is a partnership between Idaho Fish and Game and Idaho Power Company. The hatchery, which came online in 2021, is designed to provide additional fishing opportunity to anglers who enjoy fishing for these native fish in the middle sections of the Snake River where natural production is low, and to build sturgeon populations so that additional reaches of the Snake River will have naturally reproducing populations.

Generally speaking, there are two schools of bidders. The first is composed of those whose chief goal in bidding is to reach the best possible contract for their side. This group represents the overwhelming majority of bridge players.

Members of the second school are those whose chief purpose is to try to prevent the opponents from reaching their best contract. The tactics employed by these players can take many forms, but the aim is always the same -- to do as much damage to the opponents' bidding structure as possible.

HEAVY TRUCK MECHANIC wanted, good pay. 208-818-3504

It is evident from this deal, played in the 1978 women's world pair championship, that North-South, who shall remain nameless, were both full-fledged members of the second school.

South opened the bidding in third seat with one diamond, presumably because it was her turn to bid. West doubled, and North, attempting to muddy the waters, bid one spade! East entered the fray with two hearts, employing her partnership's peculiar system of bidding what you have rather than what you don't have.

West raised two hearts to four, and this rolled around to South, who apparently thought she had not yet expressed the full value of her hand. Accordingly, she bid four spades! West, who no doubt could not believe her ears, found a double, and North retreated to five diamonds, also doubled.

Then came five spades and six diamonds, both doubled, at which point the bidding mercifully came to a grinding halt. Declarer finished down six -- 1,700 points -- and North-South were left with a gnawing feeling that perhaps something had gone wrong with their system.

Worst Roommate Ever (S1) — They say the scariest thing is a brilliant psycho. When that psycho is renting a room in your apartment, that fear is multiplied. Far worse than the lying, emotional hypochondriac roommate of my own freshman year, the subjects in this original miniseries found themselves living with evil personified. All seemed normal at first: the sweet grandmother type who turned out to be a killer, the fun-guy-turned-scammer, the quiet man who used his vast knowledge of the law to ensure he couldn't be evicted while becoming ever more menacing. It'll make you think twice about placing that Craigslist ad. (Netflix)

Joe vs. Carole (NR) — Joe the Tiger King is the gift that keeps on giving. For those who watched the original series, the year-later follow-up, and Joe's sad phone interviews from jail, we now have a satirical dramatic scripted series featuring the craziest characters of the big cat bunch. Based on the podcast "Over My Dead Body," the series centers on the feud between rival wild-cat breeders/rescuers Carole Baskin and Joe Exotic. "Saturday Night Live's" Kate McKinnon is brilliantly cast as Carole, and "Girls" actor John Cameron Mitchell takes on the role of the Tiger King. (Peacock)

Brad's Status (R) — Ever since Greenberg I have had an affinity for Ben Stiller's dramatic endeavors playing the annoying-yet-familiar middle-ager. This Amazon Original stars Stiller as Brad, a GenX dad taking his high school-aged son on prospective college tours. Along the way Brad has a crisis of not just identity but also of life success rank, comparing his career and finances to those of his own college pals. Projecting his regrets on his son, he creates more stress for the boy, who of course has a few astute observances for his dad, leading him to a full-circle conclusion. Somewhat predictable, but Stiller again gives a skilled, nuanced performance. (Prime Video)

Race Across the World (NR) — Remember back when we had to read paper maps and ask strangers for directions, pay cash for everything, and if you couldn't afford a plane ticket you might just hitch a ride? Apparently those practices are so far removed from our collective psyche that someone made a reality competition show out of them. In this series, teams of two are challenged to get from point A to point B faster than the other teams, and the starting and end points are in different countries. They are given cash, maps and a GPS, but no cellphones are allowed and they are forbidden from flying. The fastest journeyers win a handsome monetary prize. (Discovery+)

Mark Taylor/Peacock

John Cameron Mitchell in "Joe vs. Carole"

Three Identical Strangers (PG-13) — In a twisted psychosocial experiment, a New York adoption agency conspired to separate and adopt out three male triplet babies to three different families, without ever telling any of the families involved. As young adults the triplets found each other by chance, and their truth slowly unraveled. As it did, the joy of discovery gave way to disbelief and anger at having been so manipulated. (Hulu)

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On March 17, 1601, the first parade honoring the Catholic feast day of St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland, is held in what is now St. Augustine, Florida. The first St. Patrick's Day parade in New York City was held in 1762.

• On March 20, 1823, Ned Buntline, the "dime millionaire" and discoverer of Buffalo Bill, is born. More than any single writer, Buntline was responsible for creating a romanticized and misleading image of the American West. He once said, "I found that to make a living I must write 'trash' for the masses."

• On March 18, 1852, in New York City, Henry Wells and William G. Fargo join with other investors to launch their namesake business. In July 1852, their company Wells Fargo shipped its first loads of freight from the East Coast to mining camps in northern California.

• On March 15, 1901, paintings by the late Dutch painter Vincent van Gogh are shown in Paris, causing a sensation across the art world. Van Gogh had died by suicide, and in his lifetime he had sold only one painting.

• On March 19, 1916, eight Curtiss "Jenny" planes of the First Aero Squadron take off from Columbus, New Mexico, in the first combat air mission in U.S. history. They flew in support of the 7,000 U.S. troops who invaded Mexico to capture revolutionary leader Pancho Villa.

• On March 16, 1945, the west Pacific volcanic island of Iwo Jima is declared secured by the U.S. military after weeks of fierce fighting. More than 6,000 Marines died fighting for the island, along with almost all the 21,000 Japanese defenders

• On March 14, 1950, the FBI institutes the "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives" list. Since its debut, hundreds of criminals on the list have been apprehended or located, many as a result of tips from the public.
