Alma Mater

*Close beside the winding Cedar's
Sloping banks of green,
Spreads thy campus, Alma Mater,
Fairest ever seen.*

CHORUS

*Swell the Chorus! Let it echo
Over hill and vale;
Hail to thee, our loving mother,
M. S. C. all hail.*

*First of all the race, fond mother,
Thus we greet you now,
While with loving hands the laurel
Twine we o'er thy brow.*

*Fold us fondly to thy bosom
Alma Mater, dear,
Sing we now thy endless praises,
Sounding cheer on cheer.*

The Fatal Duel

In 1804, as part of an erratic plot by Federalist extremists to cut New England and New York from the Union, Aaron Burr, their complacent tool, was nominated for Governor of New York. Alexander Hamilton denounced Burr's motives in no uncertain terms. Then Burr, giving vent to an insensate jealousy dating back to the Revolution, when his own brilliance was outdazzled by Hamilton's military, intellectual and social genius, eagerly challenged him. As TIME would have reported the Burr-Hamilton duel, had TIME been issued July 16, 1804:

... Hamilton spent the night putting his house in order. At dawn, he, his second (Nathaniel Pendleton) and one Dr. William Hosack, were rowed from Manhattan to the Weehawken Palisades. It was hot, hazy. The river's oily swell made Mr. Pendleton sick, so Hamilton humorously held his head. Landing, they sought the well-secluded dueling ground not far above the river.

Burr and his second (William Van Ness) were clearing the summer's underbrush. Hamilton and Burr nodded each to the other with a pleasant "Good morning." While the seconds conferred, Hamilton stood gazing across the Hudson, where his family lay still asleep. He was remembering his son's death on this very spot three years before at the hands of General Baker. Burr sat on a rock smoking a segar. Finally Pendleton asked: "Gentlemen, are you ready?" Burr rose. His beady eyes sparkled but his face was immobile. Pale but resolute, Hamilton took his post, his face a cameo against the green background. Pendleton handed each a loaded pistol. Again: "Gentlemen, are you ready?" "Present!" both replied. Burr fired on the instant. Hamilton rose slowly to his toes, clenched his hands, so unwittingly discharging his pistol, and fell heavily face downward. His bullet flew over Burr's head, clipped a cedar twig which fluttered to his shoulder.

Hamilton, agonizing, was carried to his boat. He murmured: "Take good care of that pistol. It's undischarged. Pendleton knows I didn't intend to fire..."

So, in part, TIME would have reported the fatal duel, noting also how Hamilton died the next day at the Greenwich Village home of William Bayard, how his burial in Trinity churchyard was a signal for an unprecedented outpouring of public grief. TIME too would have shown how the duel brought Burr's political ruin in the East, turned his schemes toward Louisiana and Mexico.

Cultivated Americans, impatient with cheap sensationalism and windy bias, turn increasingly to publications edited in the historical spirit. These publications, fair-dealing, vigorously impartial, devote themselves to the public weal in the sense that they report what they see, serve no masters, fear no groups.

THREE and four story buildings are the rule at comparatively pastoral universities where land is not so valuable, as contrasted with Columbia, Northwestern, and other metropolitan universities where the buildings commonly run up to a dozen stories or more. Of course the most conspicuous example is the new tower building of the University of Pittsburgh, called "The cathedral of learning."

ARE the real he-men vanishing from our colleges and universities these days? Recently we were looking through a portfolio of student photographs taken by a Chicago photographer—photographs of campus heroes from various universities. Possibly one face out of twelve seemed to have any great promise of masculine force and virility. Change the coiffure and the neckwear on almost any of them and they would pass for women anywhere. Their pictures call to mind the prettified male movie stars, the high-lighted collar-ad kids, and other such curiosities, rather than the rugged men of tomorrow who are going to get out and do things. The beauty photographer would surely have an awful problem on his hands if such men as, say, John Dewey, G. K. Chesterton, and Julius Rosenwald, came in for sittings.

IF there is one thing above another that makes the old-timer grad go up in the air and come down on his derby, it is opposition to his fond belief that the college isn't what it was when he was here. But—

"The horseless carriage of '98—was a success in '98," says an advertisement in the Engineering & Mining Journal. . . . "You know from accumulated experience that the successful policies of yesterday are soon made obsolete by the ever-changing demands of business."

THERE has always circulated, especially among non-college men, the barest suspicion that college men do not live very long. They usually follow sedentary occupations, and disease and death in the mind of the muscle-bound is associated with the latter. The American Student Health association comes forth with the report, however, which not only frustrates that assumption but turns the tables. The vital history of 40,000 graduates from eight colleges, 1870 to 1905, of 5,000 athletes of 10 colleges, and 6,500 honor men from six colleges from graduation until 1925 was collated. The college graduate mortality rate was 8.8 below the national average, taking the latter as 100.

Old Days and Early Authors of M. S. C.

The spring number of the Michigan History Magazine contains a unique contribution from Henry A. Haigh, '74, entitled "Old Days and Early Authors of Michigan State College." This article was read before the Michigan Authors' association at a meeting on the campus. In addition to presenting with comments an incomplete list of books written by Michigan State men and women, Mr. Haigh dips into his recollections of College life as he lived it in the early seventies.

"We were so young and everything seemed so new! Even the State of Michigan was young and the old College was crisp and new. Its founders and its first great faculty of teachers were in vigorous hey-day. Their eyes were set upon a goal beyond our sight. And giants walked in our world unknown. They didn't realize it and we didn't know enough to know it, but measured by environment and by achievement and results they were big, strong, fearless, far-seeing men!

"And this great College, where we meet tonight, measured by the limitations of those early, meager, doubtful days, its limited plant and mean equipment, but with an inspired governing board, and a faculty small but approaching close to genius, and with a band of students, a few brilliant but all devoted,— this College was as really great then as it ever has been since."

The article is illustrated by reproductions from photographs taken during the period covered by Mr. Haigh's sketch.

Through the generosity of Dr. Fuller, secretary of the Historical Commission,

I have been able to send a copy of the magazine to all living graduates from the first years up to and including 1895. There are a few copies remaining which will be distributed to members of later classes as they may apply until the supply is exhausted.

Michigan State Men Behind The Fisher Building

HE part which three Michigan State alumni, engineers, who were graduated in 1905 and 1906, have played in the construction of the new Fisher building, in Detroit, one of the most ornate commercial structures in the country, reflects credit not only upon the men themselves, but also upon their Alma Mater, and upon all alumni of M. S. C.

The three alumni identified with this project are O. W. Burke, '05, president of H. G. Christman-Burke company; M. G. Stephenson, '05, engineer in charge of the estimating department; and J. E. Fisk, '06, general superintendent in charge of construction.

These men are graduates of the engineering division and have been connected with building work almost constantly since graduation. O. W. Burke was a member of the Eclectic society and played on the varsity baseball team. He taught physics at M. S. C. the first year after graduation, following which he worked one year for Truscon Steel company in the concrete engineering department.

When the H. G. Christman company of South Bend, Indiana, was awarded the contract to build the Agricultural hall at M. S. C., Mr. Burke was employed as superintendent for Architect Bowd of Lansing. This was in 1908. The following year Mr. Burke went to South Bend to work for the H. G. Christman company, and has been associated with this company continuously since that time. Mr. Burke worked for two years in South Bend, as building superintendent. In 1912, a branch office was opened in Hamilton, Ontario, and Mr. Burke was made manager of this office. When the World War broke out, this office was discontinued. This same organization had started an office in Detroit in 1915; Mr. Burke still acting as manager of the company until 1927 when he was made president of the Detroit office with offices now at 1010 Fisher building; the firm name being changed to H. G. Christman-Burke company. This company constructed the superstructure of the Fisher building in nine months. Mr. Burke's achievement is the result of honest industry and hard work. His business ethics are of the highest character. His all around knowledge of the building business is phenomenal; he is at home in the field as well as in the office—therefore he is president of the company.

Mr. Fisk was a Eunomian during his college days. His first building project was with Architect James Bowd of Lansing, as superintendent on the first Olds Hall of Engineering. In 1907 he went to Chicago in the same capacity with Pond & Pond, architects, and then with Holabird & Roche, also architects, who designed the first skyscraper in this country.

Mr. Fisk served this firm for nearly five years, then becoming superintendent for a Chicago contractor, after which he was employed by the Cavell Construction company of Ionia, Michigan, who built the Northville high school in 1915. In March of 1916 Mr. Fisk moved to Detroit, as construction superintendent for H. G. Christman company and has served this company constantly since. For the past eight years he has been general superintendent of construction. During his service with the Christman company, Mr. Fisk has built various types of construction jobs, among them being blast furnace foundations, heavy concrete trestles for ore cars, blast furnace pits for Ford Motor company; factory buildings for Hudson Motor company; Yost Field house, James Couzen's music home, engineering building, and other school buildings in Ann Arbor; Fisher Nurse's home, Standard Accident office building, Fisher building, and many others in Detroit.

Mark G. Stephenson was a member of the Olympic society, and after graduation, was employed by Truscon Steel company in their main office at Detroit for three years, the last year of which he was in charge of the estimating department. In the latter part of 1909, he joined the Turner Construction company at Buffalo in the capacity of designing engineer, doing designing and estimating for their Buffalo office.

In December, 1912, Mr. Stephenson became affiliated with H. G. Christman company, in their Hamilton, Ontario, office. He was transferred to Detroit in 1915; since that time he has been in charge of the estimating department of this company, the name of which was recently changed to H. G. Christman-Burke company.

Mr. Stephenson's all-around knowledge of estimating makes him very valuable to his company. He is one of the best men in his line of work in Detroit, and his even, cheerful disposition has won him many friends.

THE FISHER BUILDING. Located at West Grand boulevard and Second boulevard, Detroit is one of the most artistic as well as the most unique commercial structures in the nation.

This building aptly typifies the spirit of dynamic Detroit. It was made possible by dynamic men who live in Detroit, seven Fisher brothers. It is built for the ages of non-perishable material. The first unit or about thirty per cent of the building is now completed. This unit includes a ramp garage of 1000 car capacity; a theater seating approximately 3000 persons; the office portion of the building also includes shops and a professional wing.

The contract required that this building be completed in nine months, ready for tenant occupancy. The garage was to be completed in six months. Ten years ago this would have been considered a two-year job. Through careful organization, the Christman-Burke company, together with the loyal support of its subcontractors, completed the job on September 1, 1928, exactly on schedule. Albert Kahn, Inc., architects of the building, had much to do with the progress of the construction work through cooperation by means of prompt service in every respect.

The Fisher brothers organization, through their representative, Mr. Blake, assisted tremendously through their cooperation. In fact, this was a "good will" job with everybody's shoulder at the wheel. The job had to be completed in nine months. It was. The exterior of the building is a monument in granite, marble, and bronze. No other material adorns the exterior arcades. The window frames and sash are all bronze. To be appreciated, this building must be seen. Space does not permit sufficient description.

O. W. BURKE, '05

The interior is treated with thirty-eight different kinds of marble. All exterior and interior window and door openings in the lower three floors are equipped entirely with bronze. There are one and a quarter miles of bronze electric reflectors for lighting arcades, and elevator lobbies. The arcade on the main floor is a most marvelous study in marble which extends to the spring line of the arched ceiling. The ceiling of the arcade is decorated in gold leaf.

The cabinet work throughout is of the highest grade known to this craft.

It is executed in such woods as English burlled oak, Australian lace wood, Japanese ash, American walnut, rosewood, teak, and other woods.

One of the main features of this unit is the theater. Graven & Mayger of Chicago were the architects. The Fisher brothers desired a theatre unlike any that had ever been built, and without a doubt, they have succeeded. The treatment is an adaptation of the architecture of the Mayan Indians, who over thirty centuries ago, lived in Yucatan, Mexico, and existed there before the time of the Aztecs. The ruins of the city of Chiccan Itza still remain, and are being unearthed by the Carnegie Foundation at the present time. Much time could well be spent in this theater, studying the interior decorative scheme which is a most harmonious blending of Indian color with ancient Indian architecture.

Very briefly, you now have a picture of the present unit or portion of the Fisher building. Here in this building, you may park your car, bank, shop, shave, eat, drink, go to the theater, and be merry, under the same roof where you conduct your business. Everything is provided for the taste of the most aesthetic

Legislature Fails to Consider Bill Dealing With Union Bond Issue

College Appropriations Very Satisfactory

THE work of another legislature has passed into history. While the combined efforts of the senate and the house and the governor passed very favorable bills for the activities of the educational institutions, they failed to bring to a vote the bill having to do with the bond issue on the Union Memorial building.

For some months the alumni committee of the Union had worked with the governor, and during the session requested that steps be taken by the legislature to pave the way for a satisfactory cancellation of the bond issue. A bill was drafted and introduced in the house by A. C. MacKinnon, '95. This was referred to the college committee by Speaker Ming and this body immediately returned it to the house requesting that it be passed. As the bill carried a tax clause it was necessarily referred to the ways and means committee. Members of that committee can now testify that there was a deadlock on reporting the bill out of committee. On Friday night before the session closed it was announced that no further consideration could be given the bill and it died a hard death along with many other important documents.

The status of the Union bond issue remains the same as on January 1. Interest and payments on the principal of the bond issue remain unpaid and the total continues to mount. The outstanding and overdue pledges of alumni and former students if paid promptly would wipe out the indebtedness. This is the only course left to pursue.

The appropriation bill finally passed by house and senate and sent to the governor, even though it required conference committees and caused an excited state of suspense, will give to Michigan State approximately $1,640,000 from the mill tax, $335,000 for agricultural extension and $25,000 for research. These are annual appropriations for 1930 and 1931. The appropriation for the biennium for buildings and improvements is $550,000. College officials and the State Board are well pleased with the allowances made.

The "hike cabin," constructed by coeds of the women's athletic association of the College, was formally dedicated with an impressive service May 10. Dean Elizabeth Conrad, president and Mrs. R. S. Shaw were guests of honor. The cabin, located about a mile and a half south of the campus, in a clearing in the college woods, was constructed to serve as headquarters for weekend and hiking and canoeing trips.

Marshall Shearer, '16, president of the Berrien county alumni club, reports that plans are being made for an M. S. C. party to be held at the Wico Beach, at Bridgeman, Friday evening, May 31. Alumni Secretary Stewart and Dr. John W. Crist of the College will speak. All former M. S. C. folks are urged to attend.

Gerrit Masselink, '95, Claimed by Death

GERRIT Masselink, president of Ferris Institute, outstanding citizen of Big Rapids, Michigan, and a genius in the educational field of the state, died at the Butterworth hospital in Grand Rapids, Saturday, April 20. Death was due to typhoid fever aggravated by pneumonia. Besides his widow he leaves two sons and one daughter.

Born July 3, 1872, at Overisel, a small village of Allegan county, his early years were associated with farm life in which hard work predominated. After attending the rural schools of Allegan county, he spent one year at Hope college, and entered Michigan State in 1891. Virtually working his entire way through college, earning most of his board, room and tuition money, he still found time for campus activities. His most outstanding athletic pursuit was wrestling, and being able to throw every man of his weight who contested, he was accorded the honor of college champion. He was a member of the Union Literary society and a prominent member of the debating team.

Following graduation in 1895, Mr. Masselink accepted a position as superintendent of schools at Cass City. Here he married Miss Lavina MacArthur, a sister of his college roommate. In 1898 he became associated with Ferris Institute, and with the exception of 1903-04 when he returned to Michigan State to become the first editor of the RECORD, he was continuously in the service of Ferris Institute.

He was a great admirer of Woodbridge N. Ferris, and Mr. F...

gled him out as the one who should ultimately succeed him in the management of his school. This he started in reality when Mr. Ferris was first elected governor. Mr. Masselink was elected head of the Ferris Institute about a year ago, following the death of Mr. Ferris.

Day and night, night or day, he was always ready to answer the call of duty and proceed to render service. In civic and church affairs Mr. Masselink always played a leading part. His political activities were statewide in scope, and in 1926 he was the democratic candidate for lieutenant-governor.

His life's work was the moulding of a code of ethics and the building of a philosophy that was fundamentally based on hard work and Christian ideals.

Survey Shows State Religious Melting Pot

MICHIGAN State college may not be like the United States, a melting-pot of races—for in spite of an admixture of a few students from foreign lands, the majority of men and women attending the College are thoroughly American—but it certainly is a melting-pot of religions. This much is revealed in a study of the religious preferences and memberships of the present student body.

Perhaps one reason why the students are so frank about expressing their religious preferences, as they are asked to do when they register each fall, is the influence of the interdenominational Peoples church. Here all denominations are welcome.

At any rate, under the heading of "miscellaneous" in the files of State college religions, are to be found such affiliations as, Church of the Covenant,

Hudson, '07, Develops Prize Horses Here

IT WAS as a short course student that Ralph S. Hudson first entered Michigan State college several years ago. Besides completing his short course, he graduated from the four-year course in 1907, specializing in animal husbandry. In his class also was Professor George A. Brown, of animal husbandry fame. Both men were retained by the college at graduation.

Mr. Hudson became superintendent of the college farm, which at that time was much smaller than it now is. As superintendent he came in close contact with the horses which furnished the necessary farm power. Because of his interest in and unusual care of the work horses, he was also given charge of the horse department. The farm has increased in size to over 1,700 acres.

The first purebred draft mares to be purchased by the college were personally selected by Mr. Hudson. His keen judgment enabled him to select young stock which later developed into outstanding individuals. Because of this, the majority of prizes won during the first few years were on purchased stock. During the last two years the majority of winnings have been made with college bred and raised stock.

One of the most important of Mr. Hudson's achievements has been the introduction and use of multiple hitches on the college farm, using four, five, and six horses in one team. He has cooperated closely with the Horse Association of America in the development and improvement of methods for successfully driving several horses as a unit. Since man labor is the most expensive item in production costs, this plan is well worth while.

"Close Beside the Winding Cedar"

Violets are making their appearance in some of the more secluded spots on the campus.

Arnold G. Scheele, head of the art department, has been granted a leave of absence during the summer months.

Michael Press, Russian violinist and head of the violin department of the Michigan State Institute of Music, recently received citizenship papers from the United States government making him a citizen of this country.

Dr. I. Forrest Huddleson, '25, of the bacteriology department of the agricultural experiment station, has been made a special agent of the U. S. public health service, treasury department, Washington, D. C. In this capacity he left for the northern part of Africa about May 1. He is to make a study of Malta or undulant fever in Tunis and Mediterranean countries.

A booklet, "On the Campus," is being prepared for publication by Keith Humebaugh, '28, of the publications department. It is to be illustrated with numerous views of the campus. The purpose of the booklet is to acquaint the prospective student with the college, its courses, its purpose, and the general life and atmosphere about the campus. It is planned to reach every high school senior in the state. Copies will be released sometime in May.

Amid the shooting of guns and the clank of log chains, the annual Forsters' Shindig went over with a bang. Lumberjacks, cowboy maids, wood-rangers and scouts upon arrival at the old armory the evening of April 27 found a perfect woodland scene carried out. Boughs and other green foliage about the edge of the room gave the dance floor the appearance of a clearing in a dense forest. The unusualness of the party in contrast to other campus functions makes it one to be long remembered.

About 450 students from rural schools in Saginaw county and 50 Kiwanians from Saginaw were on the campus Tuesday, May 7.

Wednesday, May 8, was senior swing-out on the campus. After the procession the students adjourned to the Union for the first informal senior party of the term.

Edwin Markham, recognized through virtue of his "Man and the Hoe" poem as one of America's finest contemporary poets, spoke before a large crowd April 29 at the Peoples church in an informal discussion of poetry. Besides his discussion of poets and poetry, he read a number of his own poems.

In following a tradition in force at the University of Oxford, vocal organizations at the College welcomed May Day at 7 o'clock in the morning. Three choral groups took places in the Beaumont Memorial tower and sang, accompanied by the chimes and a group of trumpet players. The program concluded with the playing of Alma Mater on the chimes.

The legislature passed a bill authorizing the highway department to take over the building and maintenance of the main four miles of campus roads, the cost to come out of the gas tax. In all probability the new roads will be of the macadam type. G. C. Dillman, '13, has the matter under consideration and the project may be started this summer.

Alumni officers have been elected by members of the 1929 graduating class, and are as follows: Robert McInnis, Royal Oak, president; Lucile Bunge, Oak Park, Illinois, vice-president; Philip Olin, East Lansing, secretary-treasurer; Warren Shook, Grand Rapids, and Pauline Massey, Jonesboro, Indiana, directors. There are 415 candidates for degrees in the senior class.

June 13 and 14 have been set as the dates of the water carnival to be staged by the senior class on the Red Cedar. "Cosmopolitan Night" will be the theme of the water fete. The theme calls for a pageant of floats, each representing some nation, and accompanied by appropriate music. Canoe tilting contests, canoe races, and several special events not yet decided upon will also be included in the carnival.

Students of geology are taking trips to points of interest about the state where they study rock formations, evidences of the glacial period and other examples of the work they have been getting in the classroom.

Verification of the appointment of Col. Edward Davis, detailed to succeed Lieut. Col. T. L. Sherburne as commandant of the College R. O. T. C. post, was provided recently by the war department.

Dr. John Timothy Stone, president of the McCormick Theological seminary and pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church of Chicago, will give the baccalaureate sermon at the Peoples church on June 23.

Dr. Charles McKenny, '81, president of the Michigan State Teachers' college at Ypsilanti, will be the principal speaker on the commencement day program that will take place in Demonstration hall June 24.

Early evening broadcasting from the College station, WKAR, is now possible due to longer days. The Union is sponsoring the dinner-hour program every Thursday evening from 6 to 7, and campus talent is being utilized.

The 72nd anniversary of the establishment of the College was celebrated at a special Founders' Day convocation held in the gymnasium Monday, May 13. Wilber M. Brucker, state attorney general, and Dr. F. S. Kedzie, college historian, were the speakers. "Uncle Frank," celebrating his own birthday too, reviewed the establishment of the College in 1857, lauding John C. Holmes of Detroit for his efforts. Mr. Brucker praised the college and spoke generally to the students of the benefits they should derive from a college education.

A new publication, with Fred Henshaw, '23, East Lansing, as editor, made its appearance recently in Lansing and East Lansing. It is "The Magazine of Michigan," and its purpose, according to the editor, is to "Tell about Michigan—her resources, her beauties, her history, her opportunities for recreation and business, the activities of her people." Henshaw was formerly on the editorial staff of the Detroit News. Mrs. Dorothy Maxson Henshaw, '25, is business manager of the magazine. A. H. Maxson, '25, of Flint, is vice-president, and Richard K. Rosa, '25, of Detroit, is secretary-treasurer.

East Lansing Welcomes You to the Reunions and Commencement of 1929!

If, for some reason, you may not have made definite plans to come, there is still time if you will act at once. There are many years ahead in which to regret your move should you pass up this opportunity to hob-nob with that beloved old gang. The chances are that most of them will be here.

So make those reservations now and come along. And don't forget to give us a chance to make your visit an enjoyable one when you get here. We'll see you in East Lansing during re-union week!

The College played host to nearly 5,000 Michigan high school students May 2 and 3. Fifteen hundred were here for the annual junior Farmers' week, while about 3,500 were competing in the state music contest finals.

Edward L. Austin, dean of men and professor of education at the State Teachers' college at Muncie, Indiana, has been chosen to head the College department of education. Professor Austin will take up his duties September 1, succeeding Professor John Rufi who resigned a few months ago.

Chester L. Brewer, director of athletics at the University of Missouri, and former athletic director at M. S. C., paid a hurried visit to the campus, May 9. Brewer came east primarily to study the field houses that have been built by universities and colleges in this section. He indicated that Missouri is planning on such a project to cost half a million dollars. He left for Ann Arbor with Coach Harry G. Kipke.

Resignation of John Adendorff, assistant professor of mechanical engineering, was recently announced by the board of agriculture. Professor Adendorff has been at the College about six years and will leave East Lansing September 1 to take a position as professor of industrial engineering at the University of Akron. He will do cooperative work with the Ohio university and the industries of the city.

Dr. Marie Dye of the division of home economics and Dr. John W. Crist of the department of horticulture are co-authors on several interesting articles relating to vitamin A. The first is a paper on "Relation of Soil Fertility to Vitamin A Content of Leaf Lettuce," which appeared in the Journal of Nutrition, March 1929, Vol. 1, No. 4. The second article is entitled "The Association of Vitamin A With Greenness in Plant Tissue," and appeared in the Journal of Biological Chemistry, March 1929, Vol. 1, No. 3. Reprints of the two articles may be secured from either of the authors.

International Bible Students, Four Fold Gospel, Russian Orthodox church, Nazarene, Anglican church, Church of Zion, the Gospel Assembly, and the Salvation Army.

Of course, as usual, the Methodist church leads all the others in the number of students affiliated with it. The Presbyterian is second; Congregational, third; Catholic, fourth; Baptist, fifth; and Lutheran, sixth.

Lutheran barely edges out Episcopal for the sixth place. However, the number of non-affiliated students actually is fourth, exceeding that of the Catholics by exactly 100.

To be exact, there are 777 Methodists, 306 Presbyterians, 300 Congregationalists, 279 non-affiliated students, 179 Catholics, 178 Baptists, 140 Lutherans, and 138 Episcopalians.

An interesting comparison may be made between these figures and those compiled for the college year 1927-28. Last year, there were 829 Methodists, 344 Presbyterians, 320 Congregationalists, 319 non-affiliated students, 200 Baptists, 122 Lutherans, and 123 Episcopalians.

Early Slump Costs Spartans Defeats By Luther, Colgate and Notre Dame

Average Success Expected in All Sports

By Ted Smits, w'27

WITH the spring sports campaign now well under way, Michigan State seems destined to at least average success in its four intercollegiate fields of endeavor—baseball, track, tennis, and golf.

Following a successful southern trip, Coach John Kobs' baseball team returned to East Lansing and dropped into a slump that cost it defeats at the hands of Luther college of Iowa, Colgate, and Notre Dame. One-sided victories were scored over Kalamazoo, Adrian, and Hope colleges.

Failure of many of the men who hit and fielded so impressively on the southern invasion to live up to their abilities upon their return to East Lansing has told heavily on the Spartan nine. Coach Kobs, who has turned out winning teams at State for the past four years, has been working diligently on the problem and in all probability the next few weeks will see a complete reversal in the Green and White team's form.

Byrne, veteran pitcher, has been flashing splendid style this spring, but unsteady support cost him victories, particularly in the Colgate and Notre Dame games at East Lansing. Among the bright spots of early season was the development of Kahl, a big sophomore, into a capable twirler.

During the next few weeks the Sparfirst places at either the Ohio or Pennsylvania Relays, although the individual performances of several of the men were most satisfying to Head Coach Ralph H. Young and his assistants, Mort Mason and Mike Casteel. Among those who stood out were Lewis Hackney, quarter-miler and half-miler; Lauren Brown and Clark Chamberlain, distance runners; and Harold McAtee, pole vaulter.

In its dual meets this spring, State crushed Detroit City college to begin the season, and then lost to Notre Dame at South Bend, May 11, by almost a reversal of the score—84 1-3 to 41 2-3. State grabbed off four first places in its annual clash with the Irish. Lauren Brown set a new all-time Cartier field record in the two-mile at 9:44.6 despite a terrific gale. So far this season he is undefeated in the two-mile, having set four new records and grabbed off the Central Intercollegiate championship in the five races he has entered. Hackney took the quarter-mile at South Bend in his first appearance at that distance, McAtee won the pole vault, and Jim Hayden, reserve catcher on the baseball squad, tossed the javelin out 186 feet and 10 inches to break his own college record.

Following State's defense of its Michigan Intercollegiate title at East Lansing on May 18, the Spartans will prepare for three big intercollegiate meets—the Central Championships at Milwaukee on May 25, the I. C. A. A. A. meet at Philadelphia on June 1, and the National Intercollegiate at Chicago on June 8. Hackney, Meredith Clark, Brown, and Chamberlain in the distances, McAtee in the pole vault, and Hayden in the javelin are the Spartans with the best chance to cut a wide swathe in the "big time" competition.

TENNIS

Coach C. D. Ball's tennis team, at present on a barn-storming trip through the middle west, will wind up its season with the State Intercollegiate at East Lansing on May 23, 24, and 25, and following that a dual meet with Ypsilanti Normal, also at East Lansing, on May 30. State has flashed good form in its meets so far this year, winning better than half of them. Captain Swan and Kane are the stars of the team.

GOLF UNDER KIPKE

Golf, still an informal sport at the college, may be added to the athletic program next spring if this year's team is successful, according to Assistant Director of Athletics L. L. Frimodig. Harry tans face some formidable foes. Before May 18 State will have met Albion, Notre Dame, and Coe college, playing the Irish at South Bend in a change in schedule plans, and the other two nines at East Lansing.

Important games that lie ahead of the team are those with the University of Michigan on May 21 at East Lansing, with Oberlin on May 29 at Oberlin, with Ohio State May 31 at East Lansing, and with the University of Michigan on May 14 and 15 at Ann Arbor. The scheduling of three games with the University of Michigan is a tribute to the ancient rivalry between the institutions.

GREENS WIN IN FOOTBALL

Coach Kipke wound up his spring football practice at the college last week with a game between the Greens and Blues, which was won by the Greens, 13 to 0. The Blues were composed of new men while the winning team was made up of the veterans on the squad. The co-captains, Danziger and Dickeson, flashed good offensive ability, while the work of Handy and Hahn among the newcomers stood out.

CLASS NOTES

Class facts do not have to be bald facts. They can have color, personality, and charm. Have you just met the only girl in the world, had a baby, gotten a divorce, or had a raise? If so, tell us. Or possibly you know the facts on someone else if your own life has been devoid of thrills.

1879

Ray Sessions, Secretary
419 Graceland Ct. N. E., Grand Rapids, Mich.
Our next reunion is coming soon—be ready!

Ray Sessions writes: "I have written to all members of the class (only eight remain) to meet this year, it being our fiftieth anniversary, and have received favorable reply. Have also asked class '80 to join with us, as they were closely related to '79, being a part of '79 until the latter part of the last year."

1887

George J. Hume, Secretary

Over Sixty-Five Years in Business

CLASS OF 1914

June 22 will be a BIG DAY in the history of the class of 1914. Being our fifteenth birthday, we are expected to be official hosts to the rest of the reuniting classes. There is to be a regular old time feast at noon and we hope to perfect a permanent class organization. This will be a day that any man or woman of the class of '14, still having a spark of love for his Alma Mater, will not want to miss. A class letter with full details will reach you soon. Plan now to COME BACK for the BIG DAY!

"The '19 Rally will be different—10 years out you know."

It's bad news, folks, bad news, so we'll whistle the patter quickly. Take it easy, don't dodge. Here it is—1919 are ten year grads now—ten years ago we went out into the cold, gray world, and Cripes, all of us are poor yet. In another ten years or twenty—gosh! why think about it?

Five years ago we had a slam bang reunion, at least a lot of people said so. We had fire crackers, fire water, fire engines, and some got fired from—you know! There were quite a few back then but this time we want many more. Why not? There are a bunch of you bumming around that can take a trip over to East Lansing to look the gang over. There's a great kick in it just to find out that everybody else is also having a dickens of a struggle raising kids and mortgages.

Yes, we intend to have a party. Saturday noon we will eat at the Union and Saturday evening at the Sunset Supper immediately after the baseball game. We need encouragement just now to know who will be here. Write the alumni office TODAY that you're coming.

Fine Enough for All Interior Work

FOR interior as well as for exterior use, architects use Indiana Limestone. The all-stone exterior, so much admired, is not prohibitively expensive. New methods and large scale production of Indiana Limestone make this beautiful, light-colored natural stone moderate in cost.

The texture of Indiana Limestone varies from the almost invisibly fine to rather granular. This stone, while not too hard to be cut with the greatest ease into any required shapes, yet is tough enough to be deeply undercut and carved into the most delicate ornament and tracery. When exposed to the air for a time in a building, it becomes seasoned and is then quite hard and practically everlasting.

Let us send you our illustrated booklet showing samples of school and collegiate buildings of the better type. Many trim as well as all-stone buildings are shown in its pages. A reading of this booklet will give you a clear picture of what is being done the country over in college buildings. For the booklet, address Dept. 855, Service Bureau, Bedford, Indiana.

If you travel to any extent you should have in your possession at all times an introduction card to the managers of Intercollegiate Alumni Hotels...It is yours for the asking...It assures courteous attention to your wants and an extra bit of consideration that frequently means much.

Your alumni association is participating in the Intercollegiate Alumni Hotel Plan and has a voice in its efforts and policies. At each alumni hotel is an index of resident alumni for your convenience in looking up friends when traveling. Other desirable features are included.

If you wish an introduction card to the managers of Intercollegiate Alumni Hotels, write to your Alumni Secretary or use the coupon.

The Only True Test of Performance is Personal Experience . . . Take the Wheel and

DRIVE THIS CAR

Until you actually get behind the wheel and drive the 1929 Oldsmobile yourself, you cannot really know its versatility—its steadiness and stamina—its brilliant abilities in every phase of performance.

You'll have thrilling speed at your command, swift, sure acceleration and a tremendous power reserve. Further, Oldsmobile is easy to drive. Quick-acting, positive four-wheel brakes bring you to a smooth, safe stop. You can steer with your finger tips and park without effort, even in small spaces. The easy action of Oldsmobile's spring-cushioned clutch—the noiseless, effortless gear-shift—the four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers—the comfortable driving position afforded by its new Fisher adjustable front seat and adjustable steering wheel—all add to driving enjoyment.

Oldsmobile's smooth, quiet, high-compression engine now develops 62 horsepower. All working parts are held within exacting limits of accuracy. Even the piston pins are pressure-lubricated—a feature heretofore characteristic of high-priced cars.

The only true test of performance is personal experience. Take the wheel and make your own performance tests. Then you will know why owners everywhere praise Oldsmobile performance.
