New uniform order details Station grooming standards

The Marine Corps has certain standards of appearance that have become the hall mark of who and what we are. Our legendary prowess in battle is supposed to be matched only by our sharp and well-groomed appearance in peace, whether in uniform or in liberty attire.

In keeping with these traditions, a revised Air Station Order 1020.41, has been released that outlines uniform regulations and personal appearance standards for all Marines and sailors here. The regulation concerning personal appearance also applies to family members and guests aboard the Air Station.

The order covers, in detail, regulations for the wearing of military uniforms; special clothing items; leave and liberty uniforms; civilian attire; and personal appearance and grooming standards for patrons of Station facilities.

According to the order, all NCOs, SNCOs and officers are tasked with making themselves familiar with this order and enforcing it.

The Marine Corps does have a certain image, and that image was a major factor in getting most people to enlist in the first place, so why stop looking good now? Just obey the regs and stand proud.

The new order will be out soon, and it doesn't do anything more than reiterate grooming standards that everyone learned at basic training. As for personal appearance standards, it is all common sense: If it looks sloppy or unmilitary, don't do it. It's that simple.

See future issues of the Hawaii Marine for excerpts of the new order.

Anti-smoking drive successful

DoD reports smoking on decline

AFIS — Not all the results are in, but so far, DoD's anti-smoking campaign looks successful.

A lot of military people still smoke, and they'll be able to keep buying cigarettes on military installations. But the number of uniformed smokers is steadily headed in the desired direction — down.

The number of smokers in the Air Force in 1986 was 31 percent, a 20 percent reduction from 1985. The Army is down to 41 percent — compared with 52 percent in 1985. Final figures for the other services are not yet available, but monthly dollar sales of tobacco products in commissaries have decreased by 18 percent since November 1986.

In last year's report to Congress on smoking in the military, Assistant Secretary of Defense (Health Affairs) Dr. William Mayer reported that 47 percent of military members smoked in 1985. Although that was a drop from 52 percent in 1982, it was still much higher than the rate for the general population — about 30 percent.

In March 1986, DoD published a health promotion plan establishing policy on smoking and other health risk behaviors. At the same time, Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger ordered an intense anti-smoking campaign to encourage "people who are now smokers to quit, and ... to discourage people who are not smokers from becoming smokers." At the time, Weinberger said he would continue to allow cigarettes to be sold in commissaries and post exchanges, but would review the policy after the anti-smoking campaign had been in effect for a reasonable period of time.

Tobacco sale policies will be re-evaluated following the release of the 1988 Worldwide Survey of Substance Abuse and Health Behavior among Military Personnel. The only change in the tobacco sales policy is that this October, commissaries will no longer sell tobacco products to anyone under 18.

But for now, tobacco prices should remain the same, recommended DoD's June 1987 updated report to Congress on smoking and health in the military. It also recommended continuing the current anti-smoking campaign.

Weinberger set a goal for DoD to reduce smoking rates by 10 percent per year and to get military tobacco use significantly below civilian levels within five years. Mayer believes that continued efforts will meet that goal.

The service smoking reduction programs all have three main components: information and motivation activities (anti-smoking education is part of many military training programs); smoking cessation assistance; and making smoking off-limits in all but a few designated places.

These messages appear in "commercials" included in Armed Forces Radio and Television programming for overseas troops and print and audiovisual materials obtained from voluntary and federal agencies.

In addition, DoD-wide information programs constantly remind DoD people of the department's anti-smoking stand.

Smoking commentary on A-2

New Station smoking order out

Military personnel and government employees working at Marine Corps Air Station Kaneohe Bay and Camp H.M. Smith are now subject to new orders that have cutback on the places where smokers can light up.

The new orders, Air Station Order 6200.2A and Battalion/Camp Order 5103.1 are the result of findings by the Surgeon General that report that passive, or second-hand, smoke poses a significant health hazard to non-smokers.

As outlined in the orders, smoking is now prohibited in all common workspaces unless adequate ventilation exists to provide each worker with fresh air.

The orders also prohibit smoking in theaters, auditoriums, child care and youth activity centers, conference and counseling rooms, classrooms, libraries, and eating facilities. Corridors, stairwells, restrooms and lobbies are now also no smoking areas.

The prohibition extends to government-owned and leased vehicles. This includes aircraft, unless smoking is permitted by the operational directives for a particular type of aircraft, and then only at the discretion of the mission commander.

The orders also state that billeting arrangements should be made to preclude putting smokers and non-smokers in the same room if at all possible.

The only areas where smoking will be permitted is in private offices, designated smoking areas, and outdoors, unless the area is off-limits due to fire or explosive hazard.

The new orders are applicable to all Air Station, 1st MAB and Camp Smith personnel. They also apply to all civilian employees at both installations, including non-appropriated fund employees, military family members, contractor employees, and visitors in Air Station/1st MAB or Camp Smith occupied buildings, facilities, vehicles and aircraft.

For more information about the new smoking regulations, refer to ASO 6200.2A or Battalion/Camp Order 5103.1.

A reminder from SecDef:

Concerned about the security of U.S. personnel currently serving in the Middle East, Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger recently released a message requesting that all military personnel be alert concerning what they say on the subject and where they say it.

"We have an important mission under way in the Persian Gulf, a mission in support of important U.S. and free-world interests. It is not intended to be or be seen as in any way provocative; nonetheless, it is one that puts our forces at some risk," said Weinberger.

"I wish to remind all in the Department (of Defense) of our obligation to protect operational information so as to ensure the security of this mission and the well being of our personnel," said Weinberger. "Please give your support and coordination in maintaining security and remembering 'loose lips sink ships.'"

1st MAB to CAX 9-87 to 'fight, win wars'

MCAGCC, 29 Palms, Calif. — Their training area is more than 300 square miles larger than the island of Oahu.

And their training area is, well ... DIFFERENT from Hawaii, with daytime temperatures around 130 degrees, raging sandstorms, rattlesnakes, scorpions, and mountain-moving flash floods always possible.

More than 8,000 1st MAB Marines from 1/3, MAG-24 and BSSG-1 began to arrive here last week to conduct a Combined Arms Exercise (CAX). They will spend 21 days at the Marine Corps Air Ground Combat Center here training to do what Marines do best: fight and win wars.

The Marines conducted intensive staff planning and troop training prior to flying to the Combat Center — training that included a recent exercise at PTA on the Big Island. This training has become more intensive since their arrival here. For about 15 days they will conduct "building block" training, primarily focused on combined arms coordination.

Coordinating the combined arms of a Marine Air-Ground Task Force is no simple task. It can be likened to conducting a symphony orchestra in that each of a complex number of instruments must play at exactly the right time and in the right way, or the performance will be a disaster.

So it goes with a CAX: the airstrikes must come through the right corridor at the right

'Warriors'

The primary goal of Marine Corps leadership is to instill in all Marines the fact that we are warriors first. The only reason the United States of America need a Marine Corps is to fight and win wars. Everything else is secondary.

— Marine Corps Manual

time or they may be knocked out by their own artillery, the artillery must be on time and on target or their lead tanks may be destroyed by an enemy ambush. The tanks must be in position to fire "marking" smoke rounds properly or the F-4a — screaming in over the sand dunes at more than 500 knots at 500 feet for a popup strike — may not see their targets. And the lance corporal firing the 81mm mortar must have his rounds on target or he may hit his own advancing infantrymen.

So, while the "symphony conductor" analogy may be

'cute,' it is not entirely accurate: no one dies if the flutist screws up.

Short of an actual battlefield, the Combat Center provides the only training area in the world where Marines can exercise their full range of combined arms assets. The Center covers 932 square miles — it is just smaller than the state of Rhode Island. More than 50,000 Marines and other servicemembers are trained here each year, including ten active duty and reserve Marine infantry battalions participating in CAX's.

The SNCOs and officers will spend their initial days here refining their combined arms coordination skills in the Combat Center's "Combined Arms Staff Trainer."

Meanwhile, 1/3 Marines will brush up on their desert warfare skills, night operations, NBC defense, and field communications skills.

Aviation Marines will learn how to operate from an "expeditionary airfield," and how to keep their aircraft flying in the intense environment of a Mojave Desert summer. The air combat element here is larger than normal for a CAX, with a full F-4 squadron (VMFA-235), and support from 3rd MAW and a Navy F/A-18 squadron.

The build-up training will culminate in a three-day battalion-level exercise which will be evaluated by controllers on the MCAGCC staff.

Commentary

A non-smoker's view from inside a cloud

By Sgt. Stephen Frank

There's a new order out, Air Station Order 6200.2A, that specifically prohibits smoking in just about every indoor location where two or more people gather.

But before we get too deeply involved in this story, let me first explain that I don't have anything against smokers in general. Some of my best friends are smokers, as is my mother.

True, as a non-smoker, it bothers me to see someone that smokes upwards to two packs a day blow past me on a PPT, but I console myself with the thought that they could probably run even faster if they didn't smoke. The fact that I'd rather give birth than run may also have something to do with it.

I do have to admit however, that the smoke emitted by those smoldering butts does bother me a little. My wife is convinced that I smoke at work because my uniform always reeks of smoke by the time I get home. I half-expect to look up one day to find her peering at me through the office window, trying to catch me at it.

So now a new order comes out prohibiting smoking in all those former bastions of cancer inducement. Places like restrooms, conference rooms, corridors, restaurants, auditoriums, and large workspaces, once smoke-filled and hazy, are once again safe for breathing. At least the orders say they're supposed to be.

The reason for these new regulations is simple. The Surgeon General recently published an exhaustively researched study that found out that passive, or second-hand smoke is detrimental to the health of non-smokers, something that non-smokers knew all along.

For those of us that don't smoke, this all comes as great news. As for smokers, well, I guess there's always the great outdoors, or the designated smoking area. But what's going to happen to the traditional cigar at Mess Nights?

HMM-265 'Dragons' back home after 6-month Far East tour

Marines from HMM-265 prepare their CH-46 helicopters on the U.S.S. Okinawa mission during Exercise Team Spirit '87.

By Sgt. Stephen Frank

The "Dragons" of HMM-265 are back home following their six-month deployment to the Far East under the Unit Deployment Program.

The squadron, which completed 3,200 flying hours without accident during the deployment, returned to the Air Station Aug. 4.

During deployment, the squadron was stationed at MCAS Futenma, Okinawa as part of MAG-36, and participated in numerous training operations at Okinawa's Central and Northern training areas. They also trained at Camp Fuji as well as pulling duty aboard the USS Okinawa.

While aboard the USS Okinawa, the Dragons took part in Exercise Team Spirit '87, in the Republic of South Korea. They also helped evaluate a new technique for shipboard recovery being developed by the 1st MAW.

The Dragons spent the rest of their deployment, performing missions such as 14 battalions-size lifts in support of Marine units in Korea, the Philippines, and Japan.

"This deployment was a different experience for some of our pilots, since it gave them more chances to work with the infantry," said Maj. Tom Harris HMM-265 operations officer.

"Here at K-Bay we've got four medium helicopter squadrons, which support three infantry battalions; while over there, we were one squadron supporting five battalions. So, it turned out to be a good experience for some of our newer pilots and crew chiefs," continued Harris.

"This was a good deployment for us and we're happy with it, but then we're also happy to be back," he concluded.

Interservice rifle tourney

Hawaii shooters take 2nd in 1000-yard match

By Cpl. L.M. Galneau
MCDEC, Quantico, Va. — Hawaii

Major General J.B. Conaway, director, Air National Guard, National Guard Bureau, presents a medal to GySgt. Dana Dennis.

Marines, competing in the 26th Annual Interservice Rifle Championship Matches at the Calvin A. Lloyd Rifle Range here recently, took second place in the 1000-yard team match.

Marine Corps rifle teams dominated the long range events, taking first, second and third place in both the Interservice 600-Yard Match and the Interservice 1000-Yard Team Match, Special High Post or Station.

The team from the 2nd Marine Aircraft Wing, Cherry Point, N.C., took first place in the 1000 Yard Team Match, shooting 1030-12X. The Hawaii Marines followed with 1024-11X and Quantico's Gold took third, shooting a 1019-13X.

Gunnery Sergeant Dana Dennis set a new interservice record in the 600-Yard Match.

Firing a 200 12X, Dennis broke the 200-11X record set last year by Marine Corporal R.J. Tomasik.

More than 290 shooters from throughout the United States competed individually and with teams during the week-long match.

The match was hosted by LtGen. Frank E. Petersen, commanding general, MCDEC, and the opening ceremonies were attended by the Commandant of the Marine Corps. The match is traditionally supported by the Marines of Weapons Training Battalion here.

The interservice flavor was maintained during the awards banquet July 28, when distinguished general officers and retired officers from each branch of service presented awards.

Marine 1stLt. William J. Cook III made three trips across the stage honored for winning the Interservice Air Force Match, the 1000-Yard Match and the Individual Long Range Championship Match.

At 600 yards Dennis took first with his record breaking score and Cook followed closely behind, shooting at 199-7X. Staff Sergeant James A. Houston took third with the same score as Cook.

When two shooters are tied, match officials begin looking backward into the match to determine which has the most number of Xs (hits in the center of the bulls eye). That shooter is awarded the higher placing.

Of the 14 individual awards presented for the Excellence-In-Competition Rifle Match, Marines earned one gold, four silver and three bronze medals.

The Commandant of the Marine Corps presented trophy cups to the All-Guard rifle team for winning both the High National Guard Team, Reserve Team or Service Academy Team, and the coveted Interservice Rifle Team Championship.

Teams representing the Marine Corps included the Quantico based USMC Rifle Team and rifle teams from MCDEC; and Hawaii: 2nd Field Service Support Group, Camp Lejeune, N.C.; 2nd Marine Division, Camp Lejeune; Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego, Calif.; MCRD, Parris Island, S.C.; and Marine Barracks, Annapolis.

Military legal jurisdiction expanded

AFIS — Five U.S. Supreme Court justices have overruled an 18-year-old legal precedent by voting to allow courts martial to try all offenses committed by service members against the Uniform Code of Military Justice, regardless of the relationship of the offense to the member's military service.

The decision doesn't affect cases overseas, which are governed by Status of Forces Agreements.

"This is the most significant military justice development in more than 18 years," said MGen Keith E. Nelson, the Air Force's deputy judge advocate general.

Restoration of the authority to prosecute service members for all crimes "simplifies military law, and reinforces the authority of commanders to enforce disciplinary standards for personnel," said Chester Paul Beach Jr., a staff attorney in DoD's Office of General Counsel.

The high court agreed in the case of Solorio v. United States, during which Coast Guard attorney Lt. Cmdr Robert W. Bruce Jr. argued on behalf of the appellant. Former Coast Guard Yeoman First Class Richard Solorio was convicted of sexually abusing the daughters of fellow Coast Guardsmen.

The decision means that any service member on active duty can be court-martialed for offenses committed off base.

Historically, the armed forces had jurisdiction over all offenses against military law committed by service members until the Supreme Court's decision in O'Callahan v. Parker in 1969. In that case, the court decided that without such constitutional guarantees as a grand jury indictment and trial by a jury of "peers," military jurisdiction had to be restricted to "service-connected" cases, according to Beach.

"The O'Callahan decision limited our jurisdiction to require a showing of 'service-connection' and other factors before a service member could be court-martialed for a crime committed off-base," said Nelson. "It was a nightmare trying to anticipate where appellate courts stood.

"I remember how easy it used to be, and we're overjoyed with the return to an easy-to-understand rule; if you wear the uniform, you're subject to the Uniform Code of Military Justice," said Nelson. "There are no fancy rules or facts to interpret. It's easy for military personnel to understand the rules and for lawyers to work out the prosecution.

"What it does for the commander is enable him to have the same rules for crimes committed off-base and on-base," Nelson emphasized. "We don't have two classes of military anymore. We have the same rules for everybody.

"The Solorio decision is an endorsement that the Supreme Court has confidence in our military justice system," said LtCol Alex-

Marines help fight PTA blaze

By Sgt. Stephen Frank

When Marines and sailors from the 1st MAB traveled to the Big Island for PTA 2-87, they knew they were going to be getting intensive hands-on training. However, they hadn't counted on becoming firefighters.

Just as PTA 2-87 was wrapping-up and the troops were getting ready to head back to Kaneohe Bay, a call came from local authorities requesting military assistance to help fight two fires that had broken out on the northwest coast of the Big Island.

In response, personnel from 3d Marines, 7th Comm BN., BSSG-1, 3d AAVs, MWSS-173, and MAG-24, along with some Army personnel, began fighting the fires that had already damaged or destroyed several homes, and were threatening several more, to include acres of pastureland.

The first group to arrive, was a detachment of approximately 50 Marines from BSSG-1 led by 1stLt. Sherry McConnell, the operations officer for Landing Support Co., accompanied by 50 Marines from 3d Marines. At the fire site they relieved local firefighters who had been working for at least 36 hours, according to McConnell.

With shovels supplied by the Army, the Marines built firebreaks in an effort to contain the fire that roared through the dry grass and kiawe bushes.

"The wind kept changing directions and blowing sparks, so we had to have people patrol the area to identify new fires, and then they used the shovels to try to put them out," said McConnell. "What we really could have used were

New Medical shelter being tested here

By Sgt. Stephen Frank
Medical units here are currently engaged in a one-year evaluation of a new shelter system that could replace general purpose tents as field medical facilities in the future.

The new shelters, known as the Marine Corps Expeditionary Shelter System, are solid structures that resemble cargo containers. Measuring 8-by-8-by-20 feet, they are equipped with air conditioners, electric wiring and permanently installed lights, as well as plumbing.

The shelters are currently being tested in the field by medical units throughout the FMF in a variety of environmental conditions.

"We were issued four shelters here to evaluate and we plan to set them up in as many places as we can over the next year," said Senior Chief Gary Ekstrom, senior enlisted advisor for the 21st

Dental Co. "As far as I know, we are the first dental unit in the Pacific area to use them."

The shelters come in two versions, one is rigid, while the other is collapsible for transport by helicopter. Either version can be hooked together to create a medical complex. According to Ekstrom the shelters can be used for any medical purpose, to include clinics, wards, operating rooms, or pharmacies.

"These new shelters sure beat the GP tents," said LtCmdr. Ray Shelko, a reserve dentist from the 24th Dental Co., in Atlanta, Ga., "The GP tents have a tendency to fill up with dirt, so the shelters are going to be a much cleaner atmosphere to work in, especially in bad weather," added Shelko. "It's almost like working in a regular dental facility."

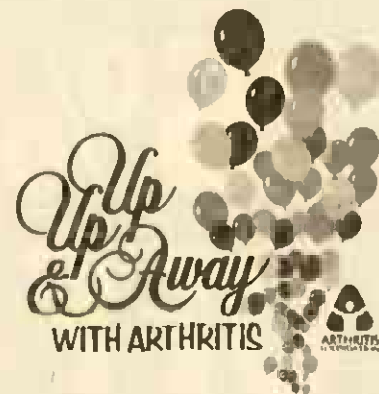

The new Marine Corps Expeditionary Shelter System, currently being tested by medical and dental units here, is scheduled to replace general purpose tents as field medical facilities.

Arthritis charity plans balloon launch

On Admissions Day, Aug. 21, more than 15,000 balloons will be launched at the Arthritis Foundation's Annual Summer Craft Fair at Ala Moana Park. The "Up, Up & Away..." balloon launch is part of a nationwide effort to launch millions of balloons to raise money for arthritis research and patient services. Each balloon will symbolize a person with arthritis and represent a $1 contribution to the Foundation.

Volunteers are needed to help with balloon-net security, and release the balloons during the event. Twenty-five men are needed Friday and 12 men on Saturday, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Free lunch and T-shirts will be provided for all volunteers.

According to Jeanne Park, the event's chairperson, "just in Hawaii alone, there are 150,000 persons who are suffering the effects of arthritis, and our ultimate goal is to launch a balloon to represent each of these people. Last year, our chapter launched 10,000 balloons and this year our goal is 15,000."

Besides the exciting drama of having the skies filled with thousands of red, white and blue balloons, there will be lots of activity on the ground. The Arthritis Foundation's Craft Fair will offer for sale items from more than 100 of Hawaii's finest handicrafters on Aug. 21, and 22, 9 a.m.-4 p.m. There'll also be Hawaiian entertainment and exhibition skydiving on both days, KGU's Mike Buck will be the emcee, and Governor Waihee is expected to present an Admissions Day Address.

Marines participate in LOGEX '87

By Sgt. J.G. Wickwire

Fort Pickett, Va. — Marines from HQs, FMFPac and 1st MAB joined Marines from six other major commands, here, to take part in one of the largest joint — combined logistics exercises to be conducted since World War II.

Sponsored by the Department of the Army, LOGEX '87 was a Command Post Exercise (CPX) which involved nearly 1,800 U.S. Army, Army National Guard, Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps personnel, both active duty and reserve, as well as allied participation.

Previous exercise scenarios were oriented primarily toward NATO and the European theaters. LOGEX '87, however, focused on the Korean peninsula and marked the first time that members of the Republic of Korea armed forces participated in this large-scale logistic exercise.

The exercise was designed to evaluate theater logistical support of tactical operations conducted by the Combined Forces Command Field of the (fictitious) 10th U.S. Corps and the III Marine Amphibious Force (III MAF).

"The Marine Corps was given the opportunity to validate logistics procedures in a joint command environment," said Col. Charles N. Adams, Installations & Logistics, HQMC and III MAF exercise Chief of Staff. "We also had the opportunity to test and evaluate our interoperability with our ally, the Republic of Korea."

The exercise included active support from the Navy's Military Sealift Command and the U.S. Air Force's Tactical Air and Military Airlift Commands. In addition to III MAF, other Marine Corps commands involved in the exercise included HQMC; MCDEC and Quantico, Va; I MAF; 4th FSSG and 4th MAW.

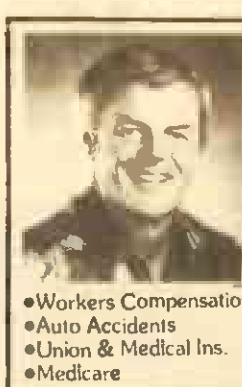

The exercise began 36 days after Orange forces attacked the Republic of Korea and the Blue forces of the Combined Forces Command. "The mission of the U.S. Marines was to support the 10th Corps, Combined Forces Command," said LtCol. George Brown, exercise G-3, III MAF. "We were very much a part of the war and were having to interface in all areas with other services and ROK forces."

For exercise purposes, the III MAF headquarters was comprised of the 7th Marine Division and the 7th Marine Aircraft Wing which were reactor-manned to provide command and control. They provided realistic training situations for the logisticians in the player-manned 7th Force Service Support Group and the 57th Marine Wing Support Group. This was accomplished by generating imaginary battle losses which, in turn, forced joint-service logistical interplay.

A key member of the III MAF staff was LtCol. Sim See LOGEX A-5

From A-4

Han Sub, Republican of Korea, and the only member of the ROK Marines participating in LOGEX'87. "This exercise has helped the Republic of Korea to refine and develop doctrine which will enhance combined operations," he said. "It has been very beneficial."

Exercise control, through the use of an elaborate data-processing system, not only kept track of all allied action, but also provided enemy reaction. Criteria upon which the logisticians made their decisions included recovering from the last battle, preparing for the next battle, and planning for the next 30 to 90 days of sustained combat.

During the exercise, III MAF elements conducted an amphibious operation on the northern portion of the Korean peninsula, encountering heavy resistance from Orange forces. To establish its tactical area of responsibility and generate significant logistics play during the exercise, the MAF expended large portions of its combat supplies early. As a result, III MAF required logistical support from the Theater Army Area Command's Corps Support Command to enable them to conduct sustained operations in support of the Combined Forces Command.

Working at this level is somewhat new to the Marines. LOGEX started more than 40 years ago as a map-reading exercise at Fort Lee, Va., but the Marine Corps has only participated during the last decade. Initial Marine Corps involvement was not as a fully integrated unit, but as a rear guard.

Prior to last years exercise, Marine general officers observing the exercise suggested that Marine Corps participation be expanded to include the use of game boards and advanced data-processing equipment. It was decided that the Marines would be totally involved in LOGEX, or not at all. As of last years exercise, Marine Corps participation in the LOGEX program is rotated bi-annually between the FMFLant and FMFPac commands. This year saw a 35 percent increase in Marine Corps personnel over last year and is an indication of the Marine Corps commitment.

Also playing a large part in the exercise were U.S. government civilian employees of the U.S. Army Logistics Doctrine Center at Fort Lee, Va. Much of the 12-month preparation for the exercise was conducted by them, and they proved to be an invaluable resource for the Marine participants.

One of these employees, Mr. Larry Flynn, has assisted the Marine Corps LOGEX planners with all facets of exercise development and execution for the past four years. At the beginning of this year's exercise, Flynn was awarded a Marine Corps Commendation for Meritorious Civilian Service, the civilian equivalent of the "Legion of Merit," for his continued support and dedication.

The exercise exposed participants to training opportunities designed to better prepare them for their wartime missions. Though specific objectives differ each year, emphasis remains on joint operations, materiel management, reconstitution of forces, rear area defense and early deployment of troops.

"The thrust of the exercise," said Col. Tony Roszak, USMCR and head exercise controller for Marine Corps play, "was to further enhance the total force policy of total integration of participating active duty and reserve units for exercise play. We did and it worked out very well."

Lost, Found at PMO

Numerous unclaimed items are at the Military Police Department waiting to be identified and picked-up by the owners. Currently, there are 18 bicycles, a golf bag, nine sets of keys, a ring, two license plates, three wallets, two stereos, a cassette box, a tool set, two checkbooks with credit cards, two articles of clothing and a patio umbrella.

Items in the lost and found, as well as abandoned vehicles, are held for 120 days, and are then released to the Defense Reutilization and Marketing Office for disposal. For further information, contact the Lost and Found NCO at 257-2103.

Beware of Leptospirosis

Leptospirosis, a disease similar in symptoms to influenza, meningitis and hepatitis, occurs in Hawaii more often than anywhere else in the world. The disease is carried by animals, most notably rodents and mongooses, and is transmitted through skin or mucous membrane contact with water, moist soil or vegetation contaminated with the urine of infected animals.

Symptoms include fever, headache, chills, vomiting, vague feeling of bodily discomfort, muscle pain, and occasional yellowing of the whites of the eyes and the skin.

The illness can last up to three weeks, and can be fatal. The period of time from first contracting the disease to when the first symptoms appear runs from four to 19 days. Treatment consists of medications and possible hospitalization.

Prevention is based on not drinking from, or swimming or wading in any potentially contaminated water, which includes all fresh water streams in Hawaii.

Supreme Court overturns ruling

From A-2
 Under M. Walczak of the Army Judge Advocate General's Criminal Law Division. "There are not any particular benefits to service members, except possibly in some minor offenses that would be handled by a country district attorney where a defendant may not have rights to counsel. In the Army, you can see a military defense counsel for any problem... at no cost."

The new law doesn't mean that military defendants can't be tried by civil authorities. It doesn't require state or local courts to surrender a defendant to military officials. Nor does a trial in a state or local court necessarily bar a subsequent trial by court-martial, if the offense also violates the Uniform Code of Military Justice. But, Beach noted that military and civilian authorities will coordinate to determine which should dispose of cases where both have jurisdiction.

"The civilian structure will probably continue treating military defendants as in the past," said Nelson. "In certain categories of offenses, where civil courts are not interested, such as in some drug-related cases, it enables us to apply the same rules to all members and not be limited by what a district attorney thinks of a certain crime."

"The bottom line is that service members come out the winner because these are rules they can understand, and the command has rules that are equitable," the general said.

Military jurisdiction includes drunk or reckless driving, involuntary manslaughter, negligent homicide or lesser forms of assault that can be committed by drivers. "But routine traffic offenses, such as speeding, failure to yield, running a red light, which happen off a federal installation and do not rise to the level of reckless driving, are not brought within court-martial jurisdiction by the Supreme Court's decision," Beach explained.

Officials don't expect a large increase in the prison population at the U.S. Disciplinary Barracks, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., as a result of the Supreme Court decision. Drunk driving and child and spouse abuse cases will probably show the greatest increase because "both military and local state governments have an interest in prosecuting these cases," said Capt. Robert H. McLeran, the Navy's duty assistant judge advocate general for military justice. "A lot of states are jumping on the bandwagon against drunk driving cases."

Coast Guard Capt. William B. Steinbach of the service's Military Justice Division sees another plus for the Supreme Court decision: "I think this will improve relationships between local military and civilian law enforcement officials. In some cases they would rather have the services take care of the discipline."

Using drunk and perhaps disorderly conduct as an example, Steinbach said, "As a commander, I would rather handle it in our own system than have one of my crew sitting drunk tank over the weekend."

Steinbach added, "I hope commanders will exercise some discretion and not routinely run parking tickets and speeding violations through the court-martial system," Steinbach said. "This could bog down the military justice system."

Such a dramatic change in the law may take a lot of time and coordination with civilian authorities.

"From a practical standpoint, it's troubling, because we've learned to live with the 1969 O'Callahan decision," said a spokesman for the Marine Corps judge advocate office. "Now we have before us, theoretically, unlimited courts-martial authority for active duty. After living with the previous constitutional interpretation of the law, we have to come to an agreement with federal prosecutors, the FBI, local and state police and other law enforcement authorities as to which cases they'll take, which we will.

"Commanders will still handle minor infractions with Articles 15," he said.

gas masks though, because the smoke was really thick," she added.

On the following day Marine detachments from BSSG-1 and B. Co, 7th Comm. Bn., under the command of Capt. Judith Shaw, reported to the South Kohala area where another fire had ignited, destroying seven homes.

Again relieving the exhausted firefighters, Marines manned hoses to battle flames that sometimes reached as high as 90 feet.

In some instances the Marines used garden hoses to try to save houses whose yards had begun to blaze. "At some of the places the fire would only be a few feet away, so all we could do was use hoses to water the houses down and hope they wouldn't go up," said Cpl. Robert McAllister, another 7th Comm. Marine.

"The hardest part of fighting the fire was the smoke; it was so thick at times we couldn't see," continued McAllister. "Another problem was that the wind would shift and we'd end up having to run just to get out the fires path," added Warder, "We were lucky no one was hurt, considering the circumstances."

The heroic—and humorous—highlight of the day, according to the 7th Comm. Marines, came when Capt. Shaw rescued a number of chickens from a burning hutch, only to watch them run back into the fire once they were released.

In some places firefighters weren't able to get to the fire and were forced to rely on water drops from helicopters from HMM-364, HMM-262, and HMM-463, as well as Army CH-47 Chinook helicopters. A Crash Fire & Rescue truck from MWSS-173, also provided assistance.

Other Marines involved in fighting the fire included a group of 20 trackers from 3d AAV Bn. who, of their own accord, showed up to help fight the fire.

None of the Marines involved were injured during the fires, which authorities believe were started by some careless campers. The Marines and firemen, who eventually brought the fire under control, were credited with saving $20 million worth of property.

Cries of 'GAS!' ring out as MAG-24 hosts 'NBC County Fair'

Story and photos by Sgt. Joe Jascur

When the words "NBC training" are mentioned, everyone squirms in their seats. With a few "choice words," many indicate how much they're not looking forward to the training.

Every Marine received a good dose of gas in boot camp, and though they probably would like to forget it they probably never will. This was the training objective of getting gassed in the first place.

During the past two months, eight NBC instructors from MAG-24 have conducted training, dubbed "NBC County Fair," to more than 1,600 Marines from MAG-24.

More than 400 Marines from Marine Air Control Squadron-2 and Marine Wing Support Squadron-173 attended a "hands on" NBC training course recently which took the less-than-exciting classroom routine outdoors to Fort Hase Beach where they received the classes in a more realistic atmosphere.

"We began taking Marine units from MAG-24 out to the beach for the eight-stage NBC training course in June," said CWO-2 T.C. Ashley, MAG-24, NBC, OIC, who has been involved with NBC training in various units throughout the Marine Corps since 1972.

"Within the Marine Corps, and MAG-24, there has been a greatly improved level of NBC training. The Marines understand the course better with 'hands on' training than in a classroom environment," said Ashley, who was a member of the first NBC platoon in the Marine Corps, based on Okinawa with the 1st MAW in 1983.

The training course lasts one and one-half to two hours, consisting of eight stages beginning with the M-17A2 field protective mask, followed by Mission Oriented Protective Posture (MOPP) gear, decontamination procedures of field equipment, symptoms and treatment of chemical agents, and movement through contaminated areas.

"This training helps the Marines realize that it's not only good enough to be able to accomplish the mission, but to accomplish their 'individual mission' under an NBC environment," Ashley said.

Using the "buddy system," Marines learn how to properly remove contaminated MOPP gear.

An NBC instructor instructs the class to run in place to demonstrate how to breathe while being "gassed."

Lance Corporal M.D. Bremmer, NBC instructor, MAG-24, teaches Marines skin and equipment decontamination.

Frampton gets 2nd win

Air Station site of 5th Windward Triathlon

Competitors in the 5th Annual Windward Triathlon hit the water at the start of the first leg of competition, the 1-mile swim in Kaneohe Bay.

Linda Vallance, top female finisher in the 5th Annual Windward Triathlon, comes across the finish line at 3:44:14.

Story and photos by Sgt. Stephen Frank

Rory Frampton, winner of last year's Windward Triathlon, blazed his way to a repeat victory in the 5th Annual Windward Triathlon held Sunday at the Air Station.

Frampton beat his own course record despite heavy rains and high winds which caused problems during both the bike and run segments of the race.

Frampton set the record last year when he finished in 3:37:08. This year he had an awesome finish of 3:30:15, two minutes ahead of the nearest competitor.

The triathlon, hosted for a fifth year by the Air Station, consisted of a one-mile swim in Kaneohe Bay, a fifty-mile bike ride that started at Hangar 101 and stretched out to Hawaii Kai and back, followed by a ten-mile run that threaded throughout the Air Station to finish at Dewey Square.

More than 250 athletes from Hawaii, the mainland, New Zealand, and Japan competed in the triathlon, which is one of nine qualifying events for the Budlight Ironman competition to be held in October on the Big Island.

Other top finishers included Nancy Vallance from Isla Vista, the overall female finisher with a time of 3:44:14, and Kevin Childre, a Navy man who won the military category finishing in 3:34:47.

Brett Schmidt, a squad leader from Co. E, 2/3, was the first Marine finisher, completing the course in 3:45:31, placing third in the military category and eighth in his age group.

In all, 36 competitors accepted invitations to the Ironman competition, which will consist of a 2-mile swim, 112-mile bike ride, and a 26-mile run.

Triathlete Jim Bedwell, won in his age group, the 1-24 category, with a time of 3:32:35.

Rory Frampton, winner of the 1987 Windward Triathlon, heads for the bike corral after completing the 50-mile bike portion of the triathlon.

Island Marines volunteer for MDA camp

Marines have the reputation of being a tough fighting force who take care of their own. However, what most people don't realize is that Marines are also community oriented. Recently, several Hawaii Marines showed their community spirit by serving as counselors at Oahu's annual Muscular Dystrophy Association summer camp.

Of the 70 volunteer camp counselors more than half were military, many of whom took leave to attend. Staff Sergeant D.G. Laird, NCOIC of Special Services' gyms, here, was one of the Marine volunteers at the YMCA's Camp H. R. Erdman on Mokuleia Beach.

"Even though most of the 55 campers, ages 5 to 73, were confined to wheelchairs, we treated them as campers, not as people with disabilities," said Laird.

Upon arrival at the camp the Marines and their fellow counselors were teamed-up on a one-to-one basis, with their respective camper.

"The first night at camp was filled with uncertainty," pointed out Laird. "The counselors were wondering whether their camper would like them and if they were prepared to handle his/her physical limitations while the campers simultaneously had the same doubts. But, by sunrise, the campers and counselors had built up a camaraderie and confidence in each other," he added.

During their week of camp, the campers had excursions to Pearlridge Center and Hickam AFB. Some of their other activities included a costume party, casino night, wheelchair football and water pistol fights.

Laird explained that even though camp is fun for everyone involved, it is also hard work. Most of the campers can't perform everyday tasks that others take for granted. They can't put themselves to bed, change position while they sleep or take a shower. It is up to the counselors to meet the needs of their camper.

Corporal Alicia Weekes, Marine Barracks, Pearl Harbor, says a tearful good-bye to Mary Costales after a week long summer camp sponsored by the MDA at the YMCA's Camp H.R. Erdman.

ASYMCA

Citizenship Class

Citizenship Class, sponsored by the Windward School for Adults and the Armed Services YMCA Outreach, is scheduled to begin Sept. 15. Class meets for eight weeks on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m., down the sidewalk from the 7-Day Store.

This class is open to all active duty servicemembers and their families. Registration fee is $5.00. To register and for more information, call 254-4719 and 254-4965.

Self Defense For Women

Avoid being an easy target! Enroll in a 16-hour self-defense class taught by Dave Lockhart, martial arts instructor. This class will be on Thursday from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., starting Sept. 10. Enrollment is open to all interested girls and women for a fee of $25.00. Payment is made prior to the first class or by arranged payment schedule.

This class teaches awareness and use of nerve centers, not strength, to free oneself from an attacker. Even the smallest female can learn how to protect herself!

Call the Armed Services YMCA Outreach for information and to sign up, 254-4719 or 2544965.

Prenatal Exercise

The Armed Services YMCA Outreach is offering a specialized prenatal exercise class under the direction of a registered physical therapist. This class emphasizes stretching, flexibility, and low impact aerobics designed for maternity moms. A doctor's permission is required.

Class begins Sept. 9, and is from 1 to 2 p.m. for eight weeks. The fee is $10.00.

Dog Obedience

Does your dog ignore you when you call him? Does your dog destroy your favorite possessions? Does your dog bother your neighbors and guests with his obnoxious behavior? If so, you need to enroll him in the Armed Services YMCA Outreach Dog Obedience Class starting Sept. 10, from 5-6 p.m. In six weeks your dog will learn to sit, heel, lie down, and yes, come when you call! Steven Lavelle Kennel Master at MCAS Kaneohe, will accept dogs six months or older, with owners 13 years or older. The first class will be an orientation without dogs.

For more information and to sign Fido up, please call 254-4716 or 254-4965. The class fee is $12.00.

Sex Abuse Prevention

A special program on the prevention of child sexual abuse will be offered by the Armed Services YMCA Outreach and Family Service Center, Sept. 16, from 9 a.m. to noon at the Family Service Center, down the sidewalk from the 7-Day Store.

Joanne Little and Michelle

Hill, island experts on Child Sex Abuse, will talk to parents and professionals about teaching children how to prevent being sexually molested or abused. It does happen and we need to know how to teach our children to prevent it from happening to them.

This free program will include: Warnings signs of sex abuse, myths and facts, how to teach kids to take care of themselves, preventive strategies and questions and answers.

Please call for more information, Armed Services YMCA, 254-4719 or 254-4965. Child care and transportation available.

TELEPHONE RESEARCH INTERVIEWERS
Ask a few easy questions for our market research surveys and make $5-6 per hour phoning from your home. There's no selling involved and you don't need previous experience. If you are pleasant, enthusiastic, organized, have a clear speaking voice and enjoy talking on the phone, then this may be an ideal part-time job requiring 8-10 hours a week. Our company, a subsidiary of Control Data, is a national research firm recruiting in your area.
For more information call collect 1-808-259-5075. Calls accepted today ONLY, from 9am-12 Noon and 2pm-4pm. Equal Opportunity Employer M/F/H/V.

What's a smart person like you doing in a crazy economy like this?
Looking for help, probably. And that's why you should look into something new like John Hancock's Variable Life Insurance. Because it could do more for you than the plan you now have. On one hand, it guarantees the face amount of your plan like any life policy. But on the other hand, it puts your money to work in investments giving you the opportunity to increase the value and help keep up with inflation. Send us the coupon for more information. It could turn out to be one of the smartest things you'll do in this crazy economy.

For more complete information about John Hancock Variable Life Insurance, including charges and expenses, please write or call for a Prospectus. Read it carefully before you invest or forward funds.

Station Library

The Station Library has the book, Intruders: the incredible Visitations at Copley Woods by Budd Hopkins. In September 1983, UFO investigator Budd Hopkins received a letter that would trigger a two-and-a-half-year investigation into certain extraordinary events at Copley Woods. Ultimately, this investigation would provide the most significant evidence to date that are not only true of the abduction of humans by aliens but that there is a specific and profoundly disturbing purpose behind such abductions.

For more information, call the Station Library at 257-3583.

Fabric Dying

Learn to create stunning fabric designs using wax, dye or your imagination. There will be a two-week session starting Aug. 20 and 27 from 7-9 p.m. This activity is open to all military family members. Materials are included in the registration fee. Projects include pillows, tablecloths, napkins, wallhangings, and clothing.

For more information, call Dependent Recreation at 254-2963 or stop by Bldg. 1391 behind the 7-Day Store.

Teen Dance

The Teen Club will be sponsoring a dance on Aug. 22 from 7-11 p.m. at Dependent Recreations Family Gym. This activity is open to all military family members ages 13-19 identification cards are required. Friends and guests are welcome.

Upcoming musical revue

The musical revue group "Coming Attractions" will be giving a free concert at 7 p.m., Sept. 3, in the Station Theatre. The six-member group has performed for thousands in more than 25 states. Their revue consists of highlights of many current musical hits and comedy routines.

Sports Shorts

Canoe Challenge

The third annual Ala Wai Canoe Challenge will be held Jan. 16, 1988. The quarter-mile course is a "fun race" sponsored by the Waikiki Jaycees. Proceeds of the race will go to benefit the Waikiki Community Center.

Any group or individual is welcome to sponsor a five-man team or join the race; the cost is $275, and tax-deductible. Entry deadline is Sept. 30.

Entrants will receive a T-shirt, refreshments, and certificates. Door prizes will also be given and the winning teams will receive plaques. For more information call Joan Malama or Lisa Poulos at 923-1802.

Marines show each other the ropes.

Having friends who look out for you and who you look out for in return comes with being a Marine. Simply put, you count on the Marine next to you.

The sense of community you experience as a Marine isn't duplicated in the civilian world. It's more or less every man and woman for themselves. Which only makes sense when you think about it. After all, they don't have that much in common. They've never gone through tough training together. Very few have had to show their inner fortitude in difficult situations.

And those are probably some of the reasons why Marines have the pride they do. In themselves, their families, their Corps and country. Marines have a lot of experiences and training in common. Think about that if you're thinking about becoming a civilian.

You can count on the Corps.

NOVENA TO ST. JUDE
Oh, Holy St. Jude Apostle and Martyr, great in virtue and rich in mercies, dear to the heart of Jesus Christ, faithful intercessor of all who invoke you in time of need. To you I have recourse from the depth of my heart and humbly beg to whom God has given such great power to come to my assistance. Help me in my present urgent petition. In return, I promise to make your name known and cause you to be invoked.
Say three Our Fathers, three Hail Marys and three Glorias.
Publication must be promised St. Jude, pray for us all who invoke your aid. Amen.
This Novena has never been known to fail. This Novena must be said for 9 consecutive days. C.S.
