ON THE COVER:

Originally built in 1899, Lexington's Historic Courthouse building in the heart of downtown had been vacant for most of the last decade, while the public and city officials decided what to do with the facility. In 2015, the decision was made to rehabilitate the building, and the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government used funds combined with federal and state historic tax credits to complete the project. Following a renovation of the building's interior and exterior, the Courthouse re-opened in the summer of 2018. The transformed facility includes a restaurant and bourbon bar, a new Visitors' Center, an event space, and the offices of VisitLEX and The Breeders' Cup. [Commerce Lexington Inc. Photo]

Welcome to the Bluegrass!

What makes Lexington, Kentucky, unique is its variety – the variety of its landscape, educational opportunities, health care choices, family activities, arts and culture, businesses, and economy. Our region is among the smartest, most affordable, job friendly, entrepreneurial, most inspiring, and innovative places in America.

A lot has been happening here over the last few years – from streetscape improvements to new and enhanced bike and walking trails to many hospital expansions to a rapidly-growing high-tech sector. There's a perception among many residents here that Lexington is on the move, and the city you are experiencing today is far different than that of even a decade ago.

Whether you're coming here to live, work, start a business, or play, you'll find the Bluegrass full of charm and hospitality. It's an experience like none other, and you'll find yourself wanting to come back again and again or perhaps you'll just decide to stay.

History

Lexington is rich in tradition and history. Well-known explorer Daniel Boone established nearby Boonesboro, one of the first settlements in the state, in 1775. It helped pave the way for others to follow and settle an area known as McConnell Springs, Lexington's birthplace. The settlers later named the area after the site of the opening battle of the Revolutionary War at Lexington, Massachusetts. Fayette County was named in honor of Marquis de Lafayette, France's largest supporter of the American Revolution in 1780.

Once a part of Virginia, Lexington was granted 710 acres by the Virginia General Assembly in 1782. Ten years later, Virginia released Kentucky, and it assumed statehood, making Frankfort its state capital.

In 1812, Henry Clay, who is known as "The Great Compromiser," built Ashland, a 400-acre estate. Lexington opened its first city school in 1834. When the 1890's rolled around, tobacco replaced hemp as the major cash crop in the Bluegrass. By the early 1900's, Lexington became the world's largest burley tobacco market.

Historic Keeneland Race Course opened to huge crowds in 1936, while planes began taking off from nearby Blue Grass Airport in 1942.

In 1974, the city of Lexington and Fayette County merged, creating Kentucky's only urban county government until recently, when Louisville merged its city and county governments.

The housing choices for a resident of Fayette County are as diverse as the people and the economy. From newer suburban neighborhoods like Andover or Masterson Station to older, historical areas such as Henry Clay and Chevy Chase, Lexington truly offers something for everyone. Residents can choose from downtown living, farms, apartments and duplexes, million-dollar homes, and suburbia, as well as the small-town atmosphere of communities like Midway, Paris, Versailles or Winchester.

According to the Fayette County Property Valuation Administrator's office, the median home sales price in 2018 was right around $190,000, making the region an attractive and affordable place to live. With thousands of college students descending on the area each fall, a plethora of options are available to renters, such as apartment complexes, townhouses, duplexes, and even older homes near campus.

Housing By-The-Numbers:

*ACCRA Cost of Living figures: 2018 Annual Averages

ABOUT THE INDEX: The ACCRA Cost of Living Index measures price levels for consumer goods and services in participating areas. The average for all participating places, both metropolitan and non-metropolitan, equals 100 (i.e. the national average equals 100). Each participant's index is read as a percentage of the average for all places. The index does NOT measure inflation. The index reflects cost differences for a mid-management standard of living, and actual cost of living differences can change based on your residential location. Because the number of items priced is limited, it is not valid to treat percentage differences between areas as exact measures. The index does NOT take taxes into consideration.

Central Kentucky

Many of the national economic rankings recognizing Lexington-Fayette County are based on statistical information from the entire region (Metropolitan Statistical Area or MSA). While Lexington grabs many of the headlines, the impact of people throughout the Bluegrass Region is substantial due to the close proximity of Fayette County to the surrounding communities.

Lexington's closeness to cities like Winchester, Berea, Richmond, and Versailles allows for easy trips to and from those communities to enjoy shopping, arts and crafts fairs, festivals, golfing, and much more. The following is a sampling of key cities that are just a hop, skip, and a jump from Lexington.

Berea

Located 35 miles south of Lexington just off I-75 where the Bluegrass meets the mountains in northern Madison County, Berea is known as the "Folk Arts and Crafts Capital of Kentucky." It is home to the Kentucky Artisan Center, where people can explore Kentucky artisan works and their stories in the center's exhibit and retail areas, and shop for a wide range of Kentucky products. For more information, visit www.visitberea.com or www.bereachamber.com.

Georgetown

Located just north of the crossroads of I-75 and I-64, Georgetown and Scott County are ideally located ten miles north of Lexington. Georgetown is one of Kentucky's fastest-growing communities and is the home of Toyota Motor Manufacturing, Kentucky, and Georgetown College, the first Baptist college founded west of the Allegheny mountains. For more information, visit www.georgetownky.com or www.gtown.org.

Midway

The city of Midway in Woodford County was built by the Lexington and Ohio Railroad in 1831. The site was also known as Middleway. Midway is the home of Midway College. In the heart of the Bluegrass Region, Midway is noted for its scenic beauty, its economic health, and the commitment of its citizens to preserving its community assets through careful and proactive planning and strategic action. For more, visit <http://meetmeinmidway.com>.

Nicholasville

Located less than two miles to the south of Lexington, Nicholasville in Jessamine County is another one of the state's fastest-growing places. It is home to the R.J. Corman Railroad Group, which was founded in 1973 and now operates in 22 states. Meanwhile, nearby Wilmore is home to Asbury College. For more information, visit www.jessamineco.com, www.jessaminechamber.org, www.nicholasville.org and www.wilmore.org.

Paris

About 17 miles northeast of Lexington, Paris is the county seat of Bourbon County, which was one of the original nine counties that comprised Kentucky when it became a state in 1792. Downtown Paris includes one of the most intact Victorian-era Main Streets in the state, and Bourbon County is one of the leading producers of Thoroughbred horses in the world. For more information, visit www.pariskytourism.com or www.parisbourbonchamber.com.

Richmond

Founded in 1798, Richmond is now one of Kentucky's fastest-growing cities and is home to Eastern Kentucky University. With over 100 buildings on the National Register of Historic Places and three National Register Historic Districts, downtown Richmond is considered one of the state's finest restored 19th Century commercial districts. For more information, visit www.richmondchamber.com.

Versailles

The seat of Woodford County, Versailles is located on U.S. 60 and U.S. 62. The town was established in 1792, and later incorporated in 1837. Versailles offers a wealth of historic southern homes and buildings listed on the National Register of Historic Places. Many of the residents built impressive homes early in the 19th Century, making Versailles one of the most architecturally interesting communities in Kentucky. For more information, visit www.versailles.ky.gov or www.woodfordcountyinfo.com.

Winchester

The city of Winchester in Clark County sits in the middle of Daniel Boone country just 20 miles to the east of Lexington. The legendary pioneer founded Fort Boonesborough in 1775, and the city of Winchester commemorates the occasion annually during its Daniel Boone Pioneer Festival held during Labor Day weekend. The area boasts many beautiful, fun and educational tourism spots all within a day of travel. For more, visit www.winchesterky.com or www.tourwinchester.com.

The Bluegrass Region is a focal point in Kentucky for trade, service, and government functions. Inside the Bluegrass, the city of Lexington is the center for finance, insurance, and real estate activities. Lexington and the surrounding communities are also very successful in attracting and retaining manufacturing employment.

Cities With High Salaries & Low Costs of Living

- GoBankingRates.com

The largest employer in the Bluegrass Region is the University of Kentucky, employing nearly 13,000 educators, administrators, and support staff. Toyota is the largest manufacturer in the region. The Fayette County Public School system and Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government are the largest single public entities in the area.

The Bluegrass Region has successfully avoided much of the high unemployment rates that have manifested themselves in the state of Kentucky, as well as the U.S. during the recent recession. A diverse economy that includes government, education, and health care, as well as a highly educated labor force have helped to shield the Bluegrass from seeing the worst of the worldwide economic crisis.

Labor Force Analysis

Employment in the eight-county Bluegrass Region is centered in Fayette County (Lexington). Overall, 58% of the jobs in the Bluegrass Region are in Fayette County. Although Fayette County has the highest number of workers making more than $3,333 a month, Scott County has the highest percentage (51.7%). This can be attributed to the presence of Toyota Motor Manufacturing.

Around 32% of the Bluegrass labor force resides outside the region. Most notably, about 4% of the Bluegrass labor force resides in Jefferson County (Louisville). Fayette and Woodford counties both import 28.6% of their labor force from outside of the Bluegrass Region - the fewest of the eight Bluegrass counties. On the other end of the scale, Franklin (43.2%) and Clark (39.1%) counties import the highest percentage of their labor from outside of the Bluegrass Region. In keeping with its status as the employment center in the Bluegrass Region, Fayette County (Lexington) both houses and imports the highest number of workers of all the Bluegrass counties.

The Academies of Lexington are changing the way students are educated. This Career Exploration Event connected 50-plus employers with over 1,300 ninth grade students. For more information, visit <https://academiesoflex.com>.

Kentucky's commitment to education over the last 20-plus years has made it a model for the nation. The catch phrase, "Education Pays," has been embraced throughout the region. The Fayette County Public Schools has made major strides in teacher pay, student testing, teacher training, administration, and school safety. The county continues to set high standards for education, with students consistently scoring above state and national averages on both the SAT and ACT. A majority of high school graduates in Fayette County later attend college.

Fayette County Public Schools are consistently listed among the nation's best for cities of Lexington's size. It is also one of the only districts in the nation that offers three languages in grade K through 12. With 67 schools and other academic and alternative programs, as well as 42,000-plus students, the district is governed by a five-member school board. The district employs just over 5,500 people, including full time teachers, student support and administrative/office staff.

Public School Registration

Kentucky law requires children between 6 and 18 years old to attend school, and the birthday cutoff for enrolling in kindergarten is age five on or before August 1. Also, families may apply for preschool if their child turns four on or before August 1 and is income-eligible. Three- and four-year-olds who have a special need may also apply for preschool in the Fayette County program. To enroll a new, first-time student in grades K-12, a parent or guardian may start the process on-line at www.fcps.net/registration or by visiting the school their neighborhood is assigned to and filling out a registration packet.

FCPS Preschool Program

The Fayette County Preschool Program is the state-mandated preschool offering in Fayette County Public Schools. The Fayette County Preschool Center, headquartered at 465 Springhill Drive, houses four classrooms. Other preschool locations are at elementary schools, the Family Care Center, and the UK Early Childhood Lab. A child who meets the following guidelines is eligible for preschool: Lives in Fayette County; Is four years old on or before August 1; and falls under federal income guidelines. For registration packets or more information, call (859) 381-4105 or visit www.fcps.net/preschool.

Lexington Christian Academy

In 1989, the leadership of The Lexington Christian School and The Academy came together to form what would become one of the largest, independent Christian schools in America. Lexington Christian Academy (LCA) offers a Christ-centered, world class education. To prepare students to serve Christ in this competitive, global world of the 21st Century, LCA's administration, teachers and staff are deeply committed to academic excellence. Its academic program is comprehensive and taught within a Christian framework. Lexington Christian Academy is an accredited preschool through 12th grade school with a 16:1 average student-to-teacher ratio. With more than 1,300 students, LCA offers a broad, comprehensive curriculum including 17 AP courses. In addition to its outstanding core curriculum, including Bible and Chapel, students have elective opportunities including fine arts and robotics. School activities are designed to be fun, challenging, and educational. LCA wants to educate the whole student, so they can learn how to connect better with others, how to serve, how to grow in their relationship with Christ, and how to handle success.

The Lexington School

The mission of The Lexington School is to provide an education of the highest quality to students in preschool through middle school. In a structured, nurturing environment, The Lexington School seeks to instill integrity, a life-long enthusiasm for learning, and a strong work ethic. Offering preschool through eighth grade, The Lexington School's nearly 600 students are challenged with high academic standards, receive individualized attention through small class sizes (The student-to-teacher ratio is approximately seven-to-one), and are part of diverse and vibrant student communities. With more autonomy within the classroom, The Lexington School teachers are able to develop a full understanding of how each student learns and what interests and motivates each individually. The student-teacher relationship is a key element. The Lexington School uses the Mission Skills Assessment to measure the character traits of resilience, ethics, creativity, curiosity, time management, and teamwork, giving the school a way to measure how well students are assimilating these skills. The Lexington School was recently listed at #2 among The 50-Best Private Elementary Schools in the U.S., according to The Best Schools.

Sayre School

Founded in 1854 in downtown Lexington, Sayre School provides an innovative and inclusive learning environment in a vibrant urban setting. The academic program from preschool through twelfth grade empowers students to achieve academic excellence, embrace challenge, and cultivate integrity. Teachers know their students well and tailor instruction to maximize individual achievement in an atmosphere where students feel safe to take intellectual risks and respectfully express opinions. Students develop skills including collaboration, critical thinking, and creativity through rich content and experiential learning. Excellent campus facilities, technology embedded in the curriculum, and opportunities to excel in the arts and athletics support a broad range of student talents and interests. Sayre graduates are independent thinkers and creative problem solvers who are well-prepared to succeed in any college environment. A warm and welcoming school community fosters close relationships among faculty, students, and parents. Visit the website and schedule a campus tour to discover The Sayre Difference. Child Care

Lexington offers many licensed day care centers or day care homes for parents with preschool children. Many local churches and hospitals offer child care services.

Kentucky recognizes four basic categories of child-care and has recently begun a rating system for certified day care facilities. The categories include: non-regulated care (private homes with 3 or fewer children), certified family day care homes (up to 6 children), type 2 licensed family day care homes (7-12 children), and type 1 licensed family day care facilities (12 or more children).

To find a licensed childcare facility in Fayette or surrounding counties, call (877) 316-3552 or visit www.kentucky-partnership.org/Services/child-care-referral. More childcare resources are also available through the Kentucky Partnership for Early Childhood Services, a multi-project consortium housed at the University of Kentucky Human Development Institute. The partnership's goal is to provide research, training and outreach to support and enhance quality early care and education. Services are provided through a variety of state and national grants and contracts. For more details, visit www.kentucky-partnership.org.

Child Care Checklist

A private, non-profit resource and referral agency for both parents seeking childcare options and providers looking for training and professional development opportunities, the Child Care Council of Kentucky outlines certain things that parents should consider when evaluating child care options. According to the Council, one of the first things a parent should look for in any setting is the amount of playtime provided to the children. Young children learn best by using all their senses to explore the world around them. Through play, children develop and master basic skills.

Determine your family's needs in terms of hours, location, days of year (including holidays and vacations) and transportation. Determine what type of setting is best for your child. Call the Child Care Council at (859) 254-9176 or visit www.childcarecouncilofky.com to find child care programs in your area that are specific to your family's needs. Then, visit at least three places and LOOK, LISTEN and ASK.

LOOK:

- Are the surroundings safe, clean, and attractive?
- Are the caregivers talking and playing with the children?
- Are there a variety of toys and learning materials available?
- Count the number of children in a group. A small number of children per adult is very important for babies and young children.

LISTEN:

- What does the child care setting sound like? A place that is too quiet may mean not enough activity. A place that is too noisy may mean there is a lack of control.
- Are the caregivers' voices relaxed and reassuring?

ASK:

- It is very important that adults who care for your children have early childhood knowledge and experience.
- Ask about the background of all staff who will have contact with your child.
- Ask about the training the staff will receive.
- Ask about the state license or certification Ask to see their statement of deficiencies.

Higher Education

The abundance of higher education institutions within the Bluegrass Region brings an infusion of students each fall, and with it comes big dreams and big ideas. The impact of which has produced a very well-educated workforce leading to the area's diverse economy.

In fact, according to U.S. Census Bureau data, Lexington is among the smartest cities in the nation. For cities with a population of 300,000 or more, Lexington ranked 14th overall in percent of population (41.8%) age 25 and older having earned a bachelor's degree or higher. When considering those with advanced degrees (master's, professional or doctorate degree), Lexington also ranked eleventh (18%) among cities of comparable size. That educational attainment trend extends across the entire Bluegrass Region, because the area is blessed with so many quality colleges and universities.

Anchored by the state's flagship university, the University of Kentucky, the Bluegrass boasts 10 colleges and universities within 40 miles of Lexington. In addition, Lexington has five other professional and technical colleges. Nearly 53% of Lexingtonians between ages 18 and 24 are enrolled in college or graduate school, ranking the city ninth in college enrollment rates among cities with a population over 300,000.

Altogether, institutions of higher learning in the Bluegrass continue to fuel our economy with total enrollment of nearly 67,000 and graduating over 17,000 annually. The economic impact of many of these schools is huge, from student enrollment to faculty to workers to the infusion of research funds.

No matter what your schedule, budget, or career choice, the Bluegrass has a college or university to meet your needs. Contact one of the institutions listed in this publication or visit them on-line to learn more.

Getting Around

It is often said that in business, location is everything. Lexington's economic success is due in large part to its prime location within the state of Kentucky, as well as the nation. Because the city sits at the crossroads of two major Interstate highways, I-64 (East-West) and I-75 (North-South), both visitors and businesses have easy access to many other U.S. cities in the East, South, and Midwest. In fact, Lexington is within a day's drive of two-thirds of the United States' population.

This accessibility makes the area a great spot for companies that need distribution capabilities, such as manufacturers and fulfillment corporations. Travelers can also navigate around the state with ease using the Bluegrass Parkway (located near Versailles), which takes you to the western part of Kentucky, and the Mountain Parkway (starting near Winchester), which leads to eastern Kentucky. In addition, the city is just a hop, skip, and a jump from Cincinnati, Louisville, Nashville, Knoxville, and Charleston (WV).

Air Travel

Located at the corner of Man O' War Boulevard and Versailles Road, Lexington's Blue Grass Airport continues to introduce new flights and customer conveniences. With a record number of more than 1.36 million passengers in 2018, the airport has reported passenger records in each of the last four years. Offering approximately 80 daily flights, Blue Grass Airport is served by five major airlines, which provide convenient non-stop service to 17 destinations, including Atlanta, Charlotte, Chicago (ORD), Dallas, Destin, Detroit, Ft. Lauderdale, Houston, Minneapolis, Myrtle Beach, New York (LGA), Orlando (Sanford), Philadelphia, Punta Gorda, Fla., Tampa Bay, and Washington, D.C. (Dulles & Reagan). Passengers can check flight schedules at www.bluegrassairport.com.

Public Transit

Lextran serves people and the community with mobility solutions. Lextran's fleet includes compressed natural gas, battery-electric, hybrid-electric, and diesel buses. Lextran operates 23 fixed routes, a door-to-door paratransit service and a vanpool/ridesharing program. Regular bus fare is $1.00, and there are a variety of reduced fares and pass programs available to individuals who qualify. All buses are equipped with bike racks and are wheelchair accessible. For more information about routes, services, reduced fares or passes, call (859) 253-4636 or visit www.lextran.com.

Bicycling in the Bluegrass

Over the years, bicycling has become a popular mode of transportation in Lexington, and the local government has made great strides to keep bicyclists safe as they share the roads with automobiles. Lexington continues to invest in new and better marked bike lanes, as well as the development of more shared use trails. To learn about safe bike riding, bike parking, or to find out about the “bikeability” of Lexington, visit www.lexingtonky.gov/trails.

Parking in Downtown

Coming to downtown Lexington? There are estimated to be more than 10,000 parking spaces in the downtown area. The Lexington & Fayette County Parking Authority is committed to making parking more visible and accessible to visitors and residents, offering real-time availability in its parking garages at www.parkme.com/map and on-street parking using the convenience of LEXPARK’s PayByPhone mobile app. Find out more at www.lexpark.org.

Finding Your Way

Getting around Lexington can be daunting at times, but one of the best ways to remember where you need to go is to envision the hands of a clock, with the following numbers representing main roads in Lexington: 1:00 – Newtown Pike; 2:00 – North Broadway/Paris Pike; 3:00 – Winchester Road; 5:00 – Richmond Road; 7:00 – Nicholasville Road; 8:00 – South Broadway/Harrodsburg Road; 9:00 – Versailles Road; and 10:00 – West Main Street/Leestown Road.

The outside of the clock is represented by New Circle Road, a 26-mile stretch, which encircles the city. Just below the southern part of New Circle Road lies Man O’ War Boulevard, which extends for 16 miles from Interstate-75 (Exit 108) near the Hamburg Pavilion to Versailles Road near Blue Grass Airport and the entrance to Keeneland Race Course.

Arts & Culture

Whether you're in the mood for great musicals, national and international museum exhibits, charming children's productions, outdoor performances, or touring Broadway plays, Lexington hosts a variety of arts and cultural opportunities that fit many interests.

Leading the way for the advancement of the arts locally is LexArts, Lexington's cultural development, advocacy and fundraising organization. As both the area arts council and united arts fund, LexArts (www.lexarts.org) provides a wide range of programs and services designed to integrate the arts into our community. On the third Friday of every other month, LexArts HOP enables the public to stroll, socialize, sip, shop and buzz about what's new and now at 40-plus galleries, studios and out-of-the-box exhibit spaces just about everywhere in the city.

Meanwhile, the Lexington Art League (LAL) housed at the historic Loudoun House features 5,000-square feet of gallery space and artist studios that bring contemporary art to life. LAL collaborates with more than 1,400 contemporary artists annually in diverse media from painting to print-making, sculpture to photography and more. LAL also annually presents the Woodland Art Fair (Aug. 17-18, 2019), an outdoor, weekend-long juried art sale.

Theater buffs have several well-known facilities from which to choose to watch performances, including the Lexington Opera House and Rupp Arena, the Lyric Theatre and Cultural Arts Center, ArtsPlace, Lexington Children's Theatre, Singleton Center for the Arts on the University of Kentucky campus, and the Pam Miller Downtown Arts Center.

Great arts education opportunities are available at The Living Arts & Science Center (LASC), which inspires participation of youth and adults in art and science by engaging the community through education, discovery, exploration, and creativity. Celebrating 50 years, LASC's newly-expanded facility includes a teaching kitchen, a dedicated ceramics studio, a digital media lab, new classrooms and art galleries, and Lexington's only Planetarium!

The Bluegrass Region is proud of its arts and cultural component, and support of the arts stretches to both the public and private sectors.

The health care sector has been one of the driving forces of growth and stability in the Bluegrass economy, with nearly 14-percent of the area's workforce employed in health care and social assistance fields. In fact, the region's health care industry is a big reason that Lexington-Fayette County typically weathers national economic recessions better than many other communities.

Lexington's health care supply is consistently ranked among the best in North America and the world, while the industry's constant expansion is evident in hospital and clinic construction, as well as renovation projects throughout the city.

Offering a diverse range of services, including hospitals, clinics, blood banks, and emergency care, the region provides a variety of health care options. Area hospitals are prepared to handle everything from emergency surgery to newborn babies. Lexington is home to many innovative and unprecedented medical efforts in the state, nation and the world.

Because of its central location in the Commonwealth, Lexington has become the hub for health care services in Central and Eastern Kentucky. In fact, a large portion of patients admitted to hospitals in Fayette County are from outside the metropolitan area. The quality of health care is second to none, and people throughout the state recognize it to be among the best.

Senior Living

Lexington was the first city in the nation to implement adult day-care programs. Its high quality of life has made the area increasingly popular for those seeking a retirement community. Area facilities provide everything from skilled care to essentially independent living. The Lexington Senior Citizen Center provides social services, recreation, specialized health services, and education to the older members of our community.

Over the years, Lexington has worked hard to meet the needs of its expanding older population, as it was among the first in the country to see the beginning of a dementia-specific day center in 1984. The area includes a variety of programs and services targeted at those older than age 50.

The University of Kentucky offers two programs for older adults. The Osher Lifelong Learning Institute (OLLI) at UK offers a wide variety of educational and enrichment courses, shared interest groups, forums, daytrips & events for adults aged 50 or older. OLLI has sites in Lexington and Morehead with a curriculum that varies each semester. The Donovan Fellowship waives tuition and fees for academic university classes. To be eligible you must be 65 years of age or older and a resident of Kentucky.

From adult day-care services to retirement planning to retirement communities/nursing homes within the Commerce Lexington Inc. membership, senior citizens will find plenty of options and assistance during their "golden years." The region serves as a health care, retail, and cultural center for both Central and Eastern Kentucky. Whether you're seeking employment or looking to start a business, Lexington is among the top cities in the nation for entrepreneurs. Lexington was recently named among the Best Places for Business & Careers (FORBES), cities with the lowest cost of living (Niche), the Fastest Growing Rate of Startups (FiveThirtyEight), and the Top 10 Best Cities for Entrepreneurs (The Penny Hoarder).

Despite a solid base of manufacturing and automotive suppliers, the Bluegrass Region is mainly a service-based economy. By itself, manufacturing is one of the larger employers and the highest wage payer in the Bluegrass. However, when combined, the various service sectors easily outpace manufacturing in both employment and wages. Especially strong in the areas of health care and education, the service sector continues to be the main economic engine for the region.

The Bluegrass is a $30 billion economy marked by consistent, sustainable growth. Between 2001 and 2017, the Bluegrass Region's economy (GDP) grew 72.6% overall, translating into a real compound annual growth rate of 3.4%.

In terms of median and per capita income, the Bluegrass easily outpaces the state of Kentucky as a whole. It matches up much more favorably with the U.S. average on median household, family, and personal income, as well as per capita income.

Because of its relatively low utility costs, Lexington has remained a very affordable place to do business. Kentucky enjoys a tremendous competitive advantage in the provision of energy, natural gas, and water supply. This was certainly a contributing factor when the city was named #6 among Cities with the Lowest Startup Costs (SmartAsset).

The University of Kentucky, Toyota Motor Manufacturing, Fayette County Public Schools, and Eastern Kentucky University are among the major employers within the Lexington MSA. Citizens also enjoy strong employment opportunities in equine related businesses, health care, retail and services. Principal manufactured products include automobiles, automobile parts, peanut butter, cutting tools, heating and air conditioning equipment, paper cups and products, software, sunroofs, and military equipment.

The University of Kentucky is not only Lexington's largest employer, but it also has a huge impact on the economy locally and regionally.

Shopping & Dining

If you've got time to shop, then the Bluegrass is ready with all you can handle in the way of diverse shopping opportunities. Whether you enjoy indoor malls, unique shopping areas, quaint family-owned stores, farmers' markets, or downtown shops, the variety of shopping environments is certainly overwhelming. People come from miles around to see what the Bluegrass has to offer.

Lexington is home to one of the state's largest malls, Fayette Mall (Nicholasville Road), as well as Kentucky's largest shopping, convention and sports arena complex located at The Shops at Lexington Center. One block from Lexington Center across West Main Street is The Square. A little further out Nicholasville Road just into Jessamine County is a newer shopping and dining area called Brannon Crossing. Other area malls and shopping areas to hit include The Mall at Lexington Green (Nicholasville Road), the Lansdowne Shoppes (Tates Creek Road), the many shops and restaurants at Hamburg Pavilion (I-75 & Man O'War), and the recently-opened area called The Summit at Fritz Farm located at the corner of Nicholasville Road and Man O'War.

Also in Lexington, you'll find unique shopping areas (similar to districts), such as Clay Avenue, Chevy Chase Village, the Greentree section of Short Street, North Limestone, Old Vine Street, as well as South Limestone near the University of Kentucky campus. Regionally, you'll find the small-town shopping atmosphere in downtown areas like Georgetown, Midway, Winchester, Richmond, Berea, Paris, and Versailles. Even further up the road on I-64 in Simpsonville are The Outlet Shoppes of the Bluegrass.

If you're looking to shop in the Bluegrass, come with a lot of energy and plenty of space in your vehicle, because you certainly won't leave empty-handed.

When people are finished shopping in and around Lexington, they can take a break at one of over 600 area eating and drinking establishments. From local favorites to chain restaurants, residents and visitors alike enjoy local traditions such as Derby Pie, hot browns and burgoo, as well as a wonderful mix of choices from seafood to Japanese to Italian, Mexican, and many more. New restaurants continue to pop up all over Lexington, catering to the area's insatiable appetite for great food and drink.

What to See

PumpkinMania on the campus of Transylvania University invites the public for an evening of trick-or-treating, live music, food trucks & children's activities.

As the "Horse Capital of the World," the Bluegrass Region has no shortage of horse-related activities – from horse farm tours to a day at the races to elegant equestrian events. One place you won't want to miss is historic Keeneland Race Course, which offers world-class Thoroughbred racing April 4-26 and October 4-26, as well as horse sales throughout the year.

In northern Fayette County, you'll find the Kentucky Horse Park, which is home to the International Museum of the Horse, American Saddlebred Museum, Hall of Champions and the Parade of Breeds, and annually hosts the Land Rover Kentucky Three-Day Event (April 25-28) and the National Horse Show (October 26-November 3). Closer to downtown Lexington is The Red Mile, which is the second-oldest harness track in the world, and features simulcasting, horse sales, and instant racing.

Even if you aren't into horses, there are plenty of other things to do in and around the region that are fun and won't break your budget – from visiting a winery to riding a zipline, or perhaps taking a tour of a historical site, local candy shop, or one of the area's many historic homes.

If you're into spectator sports, there are plenty of college and professional options in the area. The most popular outings include University of Kentucky basketball and football, the South Atlantic League champion Lexington Legends professional baseball, and hard-charging NASCAR racing at Kentucky Speedway in Sparta.

Although Kentucky's Bourbon heritage dates back many years, recently it has seen quite the "revival" in terms of the economic impact on the state. Kentucky produces and ages about 95-percent of all the Bourbon in the world. Distilleries around the Commonwealth continue to welcome growing numbers of visitors, including Commerce Lexington members Buffalo Trace in Frankfort, Beam Suntory in Clermont, Alltech's Town Branch Distillery - the first to be opened in Lexington in more than 100 years, and the James E. Pepper Distilling Co., also in Lexington. To enjoy tours and tastings along the Kentucky Bourbon Trail, contact a specific distillery or visit www.kybourbon.com.

Craft breweries have also become popular in the region, with fourteen now included on VisitLex's Brewgrass Trail.

Lexington offers an abundance of recreational opportunities to keep you and your family moving and grooving in the Bluegrass. From parks to golf courses, nature sites to walking trails, swimming pools to skate parks, fitness centers to YMCA locations, the opportunities to maintain an active lifestyle are numerous. There are also a variety of options for fitness and exercising – from large fitness centers to those only for women, and personal trainers located all over Lexington.

Parks & Recreation

Whether it's skateboarding, swimming or jogging, Lexington's Parks and Recreation has a lot to offer. Currently, there are more than 100 parks consisting of more than 4,000 acres in Lexington. The parks system includes athletics, after school programs, aquatics, community centers, cultural arts, day camps, dog runs, equestrian, fitness trails, golf, gymnasium, natural areas, playgrounds, rental facilities, senior adult programs, special events, therapeutic recreation and open spaces for passive recreation. To find out more, call (859) 288-2900 or visit www.lexingtonky.gov/browse/recreation.

Walking & Bike Trails

The city has made a commitment in recent years to adding and enhancing its trail system for the health and activity of its citizens. Whether you enjoy hiking, walking, running or biking, our trails allow individuals the opportunity to rejuvenate and maintain one's mind and body all while having fun. To view a full list of trails throughout the city, visit www.lexingtonky.gov/trails.

Skate Parks

- Berry Hill Skate Park (3489 Buckhorn Dr.)
- Kirklevington Skate Park (369 Redding Road)
- Valley Park Skate Spot (2077 Cambridge Dr.)
- Woodland Skate Park (600 E. High Street)

Bluegrass State Games

The Bluegrass State Games (www.bgsg.org), organized by the Bluegrass Sports Commission, are designed to provide Kentuckians of all ages and skill levels a wholesome avenue for positive development through sports and physical activity, to promote and develop amateur athletics, and to provide them an opportunity to showcase their talent and receive statewide recognition. The event is the largest amateur participatory event in Kentucky, and its size and scope annually rank among the top three State Games in the country.

Swimming Pools

Lexington Parks & Recreation operates seven aquatic facilities throughout Lexington. For specific pool schedules and daily hours of operation, visit www.lexingtonky.gov/neighborhood-pools.

- Castlewood Aquatic Center (320 Parkview Ave.)
- Douglass Pool (701 Howard Street)
- Picadome Pool (469 Parkway Drive)
- Shillito Pool (300 Reynolds Road)
- Southland Aquatic Center (625 Hill-n-Dale Rd.)

Driver's Licenses:

Persons with out-of-state licenses must apply for a Kentucky license within 30 days. Persons with no license must apply and pass written and vision tests to obtain a learner's permit. After a waiting period of six calendar months, a road test can be taken. Once passed, the driver is then issued a Kentucky driver's license. Kentucky is making significant improvements to increase the security of the identity credential you rely on most through the Confident Kentucky initiative. Following a statewide rollout starting in March 2019 and ending in May, all driver's licenses, permits and personal IDs will have new security features, arrive in the mail 5-10 business days after residents apply at their local Circuit Court Clerk's office, will be moving to an eight-year lifespan and have new pricing. Until new credentials are offered in the applicant's county of residence in 2019, standard credentials will be offered at their existing price. To check updated ID and driver's license costs, visit <https://drive.ky.gov/confidentKY/Pages/Cost-information.aspx>.

Driver Insurance:

An owner may not operate a vehicle in Kentucky until insurance has been obtained. An owner who fails to maintain insurance on his vehicle shall have his vehicle registration revoked according to statute. In addition, the vehicle owner as well as the vehicle driver are subject to a fine of $500.00 to $1,000.00, up to 90 days in jail, or both. All owners of motor vehicles in Kentucky are required to carry minimum liability coverage. This means liability coverage of $25,000.00 for all claims for bodily injury damages sustained by any one person and not less than $50,000.00 for all bodily injury damages sustained by all persons as a result of any one accident, as well as $25,000.00 for all property damage as a result of any one accident. Alternatively, a policy with a single limit of $60,000.00 is acceptable. In addition, the policy must provide basic reparations benefits, unless the insured vehicle is a motorcycle. For more information about state insurance laws, contact the Kentucky Department of Insurance at (502) 564-3630 or visit <http://insurance.ky.gov>.

Vehicle Registration:

When a vehicle or vessel is sold from one citizen or business to another in Kentucky, the title must be transferred to the new owner within 15 days. All motor vehicles operated upon Kentucky roadways must be titled and registered. Those moving into Kentucky should make an application for title for their vehicle within 15 days after establishing residency. License plates can be obtained from the Fayette County Clerk's office at 162 E. Main Street in downtown Lexington (Room 108). Your vehicle must be made available for inspection when obtaining plates. Registration renewal is required annually. A six percent (6%) Kentucky road usage tax is collected on the trade-in value of vehicles registered for the first time in Kentucky. Credit will be allowed for qualifying tax paid in the other state. Individuals can renew their vehicle registration at the County Clerk's office in Room 102. For information about taxes, application fees, handicap license plates, and motorcycle licenses, call (859) 253-3344 or visit www.fayettedocountyclerk.com.

Voter Registration

To vote, a person must be a U.S. citizen, a Kentucky resident, and at least 18 years of age before the next General Election. In Kentucky, the potential voter must be registered in the county where they live. The registration books close 28 days before each election. Since January 1995, Kentucky citizens can register to vote at the time of vehicle registration or driver's license renewal under the "Motor-Voter" Program. Voter registration can be handled by mail or in person at the County Clerk's office at 162 East Main Street in Lexington, driver's license offices, K-TAP, food stamp, Medicaid, WIC, and state funded offices serving those with disabilities (if you are a client of these offices), and Armed Forces Recruitment offices. For voter information and deadlines, call (859) 255-8683. For a mail-in voter registration form, visit www.fayettedocountyclerk.com.

Government

Lexington and Fayette County merged into a single urban county government on January 1, 1974. The merger was a culmination of an effort to develop a more cost-effective and efficient use of resources for joint programs in planning, public education, parks and public safety. A mayor and a 15-member legislative body administer the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government. The Urban County Council includes 12 district representatives elected for two-year terms and three at-large members elected for four-year terms. For general information about city services, call (859) 425-2255 or visit www.lexingtonky.gov.

Pets

In Fayette County, all dogs and cats must be licensed annually starting at six months of age and rabies vaccinated at four months of age. Proof of rabies vaccination is required for the city license. Licenses are valid for 12 months from the last day of the month the license was issued. A license for an altered (spayed or neutered) dog or cat is $8. For unaltered dogs and cats, a license is $40, with $25 of this fee going to the LFUCG Spay & Neuter Grant Program. Dogs and cats must wear their license and rabies tags at all times. Assistance dogs are exempt from annual licensing.

Licenses are issued seven days a week at the Lexington-Fayette Animal Care & Control office. There is also a mail-in license application and hours of operation available on-line at www.lfacc.org/general-information/licensing. Rabies vaccination with license purchase is $5. Fayette County also has a pooper-scooper law. For more information about pet laws and licenses, contact Lexington-Fayette Animal Care and Control (1600 Old Frankfort Pike) at (859) 255-9033 or www.lfacc.org.

Recycling & Trash

City of Lexington:

Residents and businesses with city waste collection service are provided a green roll cart for landfill-bound waste and a blue roll cart for recycling materials. To request carts, call Lex-Call at 311 or (859) 425-2255 or on-line. Material placed in the green cart must be bagged. If it will not roll, the 200-pound weight limit has been exceeded. Overloaded carts will not be picked up.
