PREFACE

The publications included in this issue of the Numerical Lists and Schedule of Volumes for the second session of the Ninety-sixth Congress, herewith presented, number 1,593 divided as follows: 40 Senate documents; 26 Senate executive documents; 154 House documents; 510 Senate reports; 28 Senate executive reports; and 835 House reports.

Congressional reports and documents have been numbered and bound into a unique set since 1817. This bound set is popularly referred to as the "Congressional Serial Set."

Beginning with the Eighty-fourth Congress, and continuing through the Ninety-fifth Congress, Senate and House reports on public and private bills were bound separately in volumes entitled, "Miscellaneous Reports on Public Bills" or "Miscellaneous Reports on Private Bills." In 1964, at the beginning of the second session of the Eighty-eighth Congress, special reports of committees and delegations were also bound separately in volumes entitled Special Reports.

At the direction of the Joint Committee on Printing and beginning with the Ninety-sixth Congress, Congressional publications are being bound in a new format. All reports and documents, both Senate and House, are being bound in numerical sequence. For the first time, the Senate executive reports and executive documents are included in the bound set.

Prior to the Ninety-sixth Congress, documents which originated in Executive departments and agencies were not furnished to Depository Libraries and International Exchange Libraries as Congressional documents. They were furnished only in the format used by the issuing department or agency.

Beginning with the Ninety-sixth Congress, only one edition of the Congressional Serial Set will be bound. The complete bound set of Congressional documents as listed in the Schedule of Volumes is now sent to both Depository Libraries and International Exchange Libraries.

Each volume for the Ninety-sixth Congress has also been assigned its own distinctive serial number in the numbering system.

Binding of the volumes is on a definite work schedule and every effort is being made to expedite distribution.
