Haaland welcomes totem pole honoring sacred Native American sites

Cross country journey culminates in Nation's Capitol

Staff report RED ROAD TO DC

Tribal leaders and Native American grassroots activists today delivered a totem pole honoring sacred Indigenous sites to Washington, D.C., to the Biden administration. In an event on the National Mall, the totem pole was welcomed by Secretary of the Interior, Deb Haaland; President Biden's Chair of the Council on Environmental Quality, Brenda Mallory; and PaaWee Rivera (Pojoaque Pueblo), Senior Advisor for Intergovernmental Affairs and Director of Tribal Affairs at the White House.

Tour organizers were also joined at the final stop of the Red Road to DC, a cross-country tour highlighting Indigenous sacred sites at risk, by tribal leaders from across the country.

Leaders and activists brought the totem pole carved by the House of Tears Carvers of Lummi Nation to places sacred to Native peoples that are at risk from infrastructure projects and resource extraction. A permanent location for the totem pole will be announced later.

"The totem pole holds the prayers of all who blessed it along its journey to D.C.," said Jewell James, a member of the Lummi Nation and master carver at House of Tears Carvers. "Across Indian Country, our places where we pray, gather food and medicine, and hold our ceremonies, are being threatened by the greed and carelessness of corporations. We wanted to bring attention to this crisis."

With stops in Snake River, Bears Ears, Chaco Canyon, Black Hills, Missouri River, Standing Rock, Line Michigan, the tour organizers say their ultimate goal is to see a significant change in policy.

"Native people must have a seat at the decision-making table if we are to see real change happen," said Judith LeBlanc (Caddo), executive director of Native Organizers Alliance, one of the tour hosts. "We need a system of consultation that engages our Tribal Nations and gains their consent at every stage of projects that impact the wellbeing of our land, water and communities."

Fawn Sharp, president of the National Congress of American Indians agrees.

"When the federal government considers any action that impacts tribal communities, the United States must acknowledge and recognize the political standing and equality of Tribal Nations to be at the table and heard in good faith government-to-government negotiations," said Sharp. "We possess the inherent right as sovereign nations to speak decisively in all matters which affect our citizens and lands before any action by the United States is taken. Free, prior, and informed consent must be the governing policy for all federal agencies."

Leaders say the absence of this policy has not only threatened sacred places, but exacerbated the climate crisis.

"It is time for the United 3 in Minnesota, and Line 5 in States to honor treaties with will keep seeing gatherings sovereign Tribal Nations," said Whitney Gravelle, day. We have an obligation president of the Bay Mills to defend this sacred land-Indian Community in Mich-

Enough is enough. As my ancestors long before have taught my people, if we do not protect the land and water, we risk destroying a way of life for our people and we risk destroying the heart of Turtle Island [North America]."

Dozens of speakers on the National Mall, representing tribes across the nation, shared a similar sentiment. They called on the Biden administration to take immediate action to protect Indigenous sacred sites.

"The places where our ancestors once walked, fished, and prayed is what sustains us as Native people," said Daniel Tso, member of the Navajo Nation Tribal Council. "But oil and gas companies look at our land like it's there for the taking. It's just Indian land, not anything important. But this is our way of life. And until the federal government changes how it does business, vou and rallies like this one toscape and we won't stop unigan. "For too long tribal til it's protected."

Tribe's foster care program searches for families

By McKayla Lee THE SOUTHERN UTE DRUM

The Southern Ute Indian Tribe's Division of Social Service's Foster Care Program is actively searching for more families to provide a safe and stable home environment for tribal children. The program currently only has two fully licensed foster care families who are serving the local community and youth.

Interested parties can begin the fostering process by completing the application, doing a home safety inspection, and interviewing with the program to determine Background checks on all members in the household will be conducted as well as mandatory foster care training. Foster Families can be made up of anyone who is single, married or in a domestic partnership. They must be over 18 years of age, any gender, race/ethnic group, and any religion. They can be homeowners or renters with biological children in the home or not.

"We're kind of looking at tribal members first, because the most important thing for us is to keep families connected in the community both with cultural and traditional values as well," Foster Care Program Coordinator, Morgan Olsson said. The program currently offers three different types of fostering, there is the traditional, emergency and respite forms of care. Traditional care is when foster parents provide care and support for children until a permanent plan is implemented for family reunification. specific to caregivers who stated. "My counseling is can provide short-term care for children placed in protective custody, usually up to 72 business hours, or until a relative/foster family placement can be found.

Just like any other parent, fostering parents need time to rest and recharge, respite care provides this shortterm care. The care is usually offered during evenings or weekends; and is for children currently living with another foster family. As a respite caregiver this opportunity is a great way to see if full time foster parenting is right for you.

"We are looking to expand outwards to families in Durango and Bayfield - it all starts with a call to me," Olsson explained. "I want families to know that there is an option for everyone who has the heart to help, long and short-term placements are available."

Foster families play a fundamental role in meeting the developmental needs and well-being of youth. By offering a safe and nurturing home environment children can remain within the tribal community and stay lies should expect to work connected to their cultures

As the family therapist, Whitehorse is responsible for counseling families and offering education that will support and strengthen those bonds from within. Families are encouraged to work with the family therapist to prevent children from out of home placement as well as working towards family crisis stabilization.

"Our work essentially never stops, it's 24 hour services - we as a division offer support and referrals to help foster parents and families whenever they need us," Whitehorse said. "We really want to keep children within their family systems, kin is very important to us, supporting them in terms of how to maneuver through the system, and really trying to keep the children out of the system and with that comes a lot of need for support within the community."

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE AWARENESS

True or false: Abuse against men

There are many myths around intimate partner violence, particularly around victims who identify as men. Myths about violence are harmful. Myths keep people silent, add to shame and guilt, make people doubt the violence and can even perpetuate violence. The truth is anyone can be a victim of intimate partner violence.

FALSE: Abuse only happens to men who are in same-sex relationships.

TRUE: Abuse can happen to anyone. Abuse happens when one person uses a pattern of violent and coercive tactics to gain and keep power and control over another partner. Sexual orientation does not dictate abuse. Men can be abused by a person of any gender. 26 percent of gay men, 37 percent of bisexual men and 29 percent of heterosexual men have experienced physical violence, experienced rape and/or stalking by an intimate partner in their lifetime (Ncadv.Org, 2021).

FALSE: Men will always be mistaken as the abuser if they report the violence, and they won't be welcome at domestic violence shelters or programs.

TRUE: While women are more likely to be the victims of abuse than men, that is not always the case. When there is abuse in relationships between men and women, it is untrue that men are always the abusers.

It is well documented that there is a need for more Native-specific shelters throughout the couna victim of violence, including men. Some shelters may provide accommodations for men outside of their traditional shelter, such as at an extended stay hotel. StrongHearts advocates can help male victim-survivors find a shelter that is safe for them and their dependent children.

TRUE: This myth is parof violence and perpetuates harmful ideas about rigid gender roles.

Tribal gender roles were once as diverse as the Tribes and cultures themselves. During colonization, Native peoples' understanding of their place within their tribal community was disrupted and destroyed. Traditional gender roles were lost, harming future generations.

Predominant American culture teaches boys a harmful definition of masculinity. They are often taught to suppress their emotions and that controlling others is strength. This toxic messaging harms men who are experiencing intimate partner violence, as it discourages them from seeking the support they need and further makes them feel inadequate because of the abuse. The impacts and experiences of violence are very real. In addition to physical harm, victims may experience depression, anxiety, disconnection from friends, family and themselves and post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) as a result of abuse. These impacts and experiences cannot just be toughed out.

FALSE: Native men are "wife-beaters."

TRUE: Native women experience a disproportionately high rate of violence; however, studies most violence against Native women (and men) is not caused by Native men. Of all Native women who have experienced violence, 97 percent had an interracial perpetrator, meaning the violence was done by someone who is not Native. (National Institute of Justice, 2021).

Christian Thompson/TTA Native American Program

The SunUte Community Center awarded several lifeguards, Junior lifeguards, and one, off duty SUPD officer on June 5, 2006 for saving the life of a SunUte swimmer who would have drowned if it was not for their quick response to the situation. Lifequard Nick Joswick was awarded the Award of Valor Excellence, Joslyn Rowley was awarded Quick Responder, Officer Scott Webster was awarded First Responder Award and J.T. Aldarez, Christopher Mooney, and Ben Young were all awarded for Junior Lifeguard of the Year.

After graduating high school, Mooney applied to be a SunUte lifeguard. He currently attends college in Grand Junction, Colo. at Colorado Mesa University. He will be returning to school this fall for his final year.

"I was a really young kid and experiencing something so traumatic like that scared me, but also gave me a deeper appreciation for life," Mooney said. "I was being praised for being a hero, but I think I was just in the right place at the right time."

According to the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, the percentage of first responders who resign after experiencing a traumatic event averages at 30 percent, and that is after having witnessing or helping in the prevention of neardeath episodes.

"Even though this specific incident was a non-fatal drowning, to have a young kid like Chris go through something like that and still want to have the responsibility to become a lifeguard is extraordinary," SunUte ming experience. Community Center Director, Robin Duffy-Wirth said. "[When this happened], it was the most terrifying thing I've ever been through in my life."

Since the near fatal drowning 15 years ago, SunUte has implemented multiple procedures to keep patrons safe in the aquatic areas.

Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act to improve tribal access to clean water

Heinrich (D-N.M.), John right," said Warren. Hickenlooper (D-Colo.), and Elizabeth Warren (D-Mass.) applauded funding in the Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act (IIJA) that will improve Tribal access to clean last month.

Alaska Native villages currently lack access to it," said Bennet. "I'm thrilled the bipartisan infrastructure bill draws heavily on our Tribal Access to Clean Water Act. This is the first step of many to reduce this shameful dis-Tribal communities have access to safe, clean water."

"In New Mexico, we know that water is life. And when communities don't have access to clean drinking water - especially during a pandemic they suffer," said Heinrich. "That's unacceptable, and it's about to change. We are going to follow through on the federal government's responsibility to sovereign Tribal nations and make meaningful investments in water infrastructure projects that will finally deliver clean water to all families in Indian Country."

"Too many Tribal communities lack access to clean water, something every community must have. This much-needed investment will bring improved water infrastructure to Native Americans across the country and is an important step in making clean water access to all," said Hickenlooper.

In March, Bennet, Heinsustaining healthy commu- rich, and Warren introduced a resolution reaffirming the federal government's responsibility to provide access to clean drinking water for Native American communities.

"The Senate's identification of the necessary funding to build needed infrastructure so Native American homes enjoy clean drinking water is welcome and imperative. The Senate's actions may mark a new era in the relationship between the federal government and Indians. "Water access challenges have existed for decades in tribal communities, threatening the livelihood of thousands of Americans. Quinney College of Law, University of Utah, lead author of the report on Universal Access to Clean Water for Tribes in the Colorado River Basin.

"The funding proposed by S. 2369 for tribal clean water infrastructure would benefit public health, create jobs, and address longstanding racial injustice. Should I be concerned about the Delta Variant?

The Delta variant of the virus that causes COVID-19 is surging in the United States. New data show Delta is different than past versions of the virus; it is much more contagious. While rare, some vaccinated people can get Delta in a breakthrough infection and may be contagious. Unvaccinated people: get vaccinated and wear a mask until you do. Everyone in areas of substantial or high transmission should wear a mask, even if they are vaccinated. http:// www.cdc.gov/coronavirus

Staff report COLO. DEPT. OF TRANSPORTATION

The Colorado Department of Transportation and contractor Lawrence Construction will build a new alignment for CR 220 where it connects with US 550 just south of Durango. This construction of a new segment CR 220 will replace the two existing CR 220 legs which both connect with US 550 at acute angles - with an alignment that meets the highway at a right angle. This new T intersection of CR 220 and US 550 will create a much safer junction, particularly as the future US 550 alignment will have acceleration/deceleration lanes at CR 220 as well.

To facilitate construction of the new CR 220 alignment, as well as accommodate the US 550 traffic switch onto the temporary detour, CDOT, in coordination with La Plata County, will be closing CR 220 between CR 301 and at US 550 for one week. From Saturday, August 14 at 6:30 a.m. to Saturday, August 21 late evening, that segment will be closed to through traffic - with signage and a barricade in the westbound lane - and open to local traffic at CR 301 only (no public traffic will be able to turn onto CR 220 from US 550).

Saturday Morning, Aug. 14: CR 220 closed to through traffic.

Crews will stripe the new two-lane, 1,400-foot paved shoo-fly detour that was built adjacent to the US 550 southbound lanes at CR 220. US 550 traffic will be switched onto this detour. The US 550 detour will be in place for about a year, while the new US 550 northbound lanes are constructed.

To tie into the temporary US 550 detour, CR 220 will be closed to construct the new 1,000-foot alignment that will extend across the existing US 550 alignment to connect with the detour.

Saturday Evening, Aug. 21: CR 220 re-opens.

On August 21, the new leg of CR 220 will be striped and ready to open for traffic by the evening. Traffic will be switched onto the newly constructed final alignment of CR 220, which temporarily will connect with the US 550 detour.

Date TBD: CR 220 closed to through traffic for one to two days

On a date yet to be determined, CR 220 will be closed to through traffic again (for one to two days), between CR 301 and US 550, to enable crews to erect a temporary construction traffic bridge over the county road.

General Construction Travel Impacts

The construction access road that was built north of CR 220 – along what will become the new US 550 alignment - greatly limits traffic impacts and interruptions for motorists on US 550 and CR 220. And the new 1,400-footlong detour near CR 220 will carry north-south US 550 traffic while the new northbound lanes are under construction, also limiting impacts to traffic.

US 550 travelers may encounter intermittent stops for construction equipment entering and exiting the road, from about 6:30 a.m. to 6 p.m., from Monday through Saturday (most weeks).

Project Background

The total cost of the project is $98.6 million (this includes both CDOT project management and contractor costs). CDOT is constructing this project using the design-build process, partnering with a contracted team led by Lawrence Construction Company and RS&H, Inc. The interchange is scheduled for completion by the spring of 2023.

As we are returning to work, things are going to be different. Some are not returning or have different expectations. Many will return to their offices and business travel as the world turns on again. In other cases, businesses will retain their hybrid or remote models, both to cut costs and maintain flexibility and productivity

So, how do we leap forward when we've discovered transformational elements that are beneficial? What are the human elements that are critical for a healthy, functional workforce environment? Rehumanizing Work sets out to provide answers to this very question. In order to facilitate this transformation opportunity, leaders must navigate a changed market and internally focus on making human engagement and wellbeing of the workforce top of mind.

At the 2021 Alliance Summit, we will have a strong, healthy conversation with leaders who have the ability to make some lasting beneficial changes to their organizations. Our common goal is to enable the recalibration of our businesses and our workforce to a new landscape.

Steve Cadigan- Steve is a talent strategist and company culture expert responsible for building world-class teams and company cultures at some of the world's most respected organizations. He is the author of a book just published called "The Workquake", whose mission is to build a better, more honest, employer-employee relation ship. What employers need and what employees want has evolved; however, many have yet to build a model and a contract that feels safe and inspirational to both parties.

Kerry Siggins – Kerry is the CEO of StoneAge. She is one of Colorado's Top 25 Most Influential Young Professionals and was a finalist for Colorado's CEO of the Year in 2017. StoneAge is recognized as a Top 100 company to work for by Outside Magazine. She is an author and a blogger and has a two successful podcasts. Kerry is all about showing up, doing the work, sharing experiences and helping other with their leadership journey.

Cory Richards - Cory is an explorer and a visual storyteller. His adventurous expeditions have taken him to the peaks of Antarctica and the Himalayas of Nepal as well as the war zones of Angola, Uganda and Pakistan, and he was named one of National Geographic's Adventurers of the Year in 2012. He has pursued projects focused on adventure, geopolitical and social impact and tells a story of personal realization and mindset of leadership.

Jessica Matlock- Jessica is CEO of La Plata Electric Association (LPEA), a utility in Colorado, and its first female CEO in the company's 80-year history. Under her leadership, Matlock is helping LPEA transition to a clean energy company and a "utility of the future." Jessica worked as an energy expert for the U.S. Senate and advised the U.S. Congress and the Executive Branch or renewable energy and cyber security challenges related to the electric grid.

Oklahoma Indian Nation Powwow

Tribal veterans and chiefs carry in the flags during Grand Entry at the 31st annual Oklahoma Indian Nation Powwow on Saturday, July 31.

The 31st annual Oklahoma Indian Nation Powwow was held in Concho, Okla. this year from Friday, July 30 through Sunday, August 1. Each evening Grand Entry was held just as the sunset and dancers made their way into the powwow circle. Lights from food trucks, regalia supply tents and native craft vendors surrounded the powwow grounds each night. Royalty, veterans and contestants shared conversations and laughter as they enjoyed the tribal event for the first time since the COVID-19 pandemic canceled the Summerfest celebration a year ago.

It's real and it has taken a toll on so many of us. The interactive training will include three sessions per day via Zoom. Self-care tools and strategies will be provided for individuals as well as how to bring these tools to your staff.
- September 16-17: Being Trauma and Healing Informed (nativewellness.com) from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. (2 days). Historical and inter-generational trauma continues to impact tribal and urban communities. We can see the unhealthy cycles of trauma repeat themselves over and over again. How this affects our places of work, individuals, and families is the behavior associated with trauma- chronic negativity, people working in silos, addictions, people taking their own lives, lateral oppression, violence, hopelessness, and more. Trauma keeps many of us in a place of deficit-thinking, often keeping us from thinking like our ancestors- from a place of abundance-based ideas, thoughts, and actions.

"Where there has been trauma, healing is the answer." This two-day interactive training will focus on providing an understanding of trauma on the brain, on behavior, how it plays out in the workplace and community and how to begin to address trauma and healing in your community. The training will also include how programs in their policies and delivery of services can be trauma and healing-informed.

Delta variant is surging in the U.S. Vaccination is more urgent than ever.

Unvaccinated people are at higher risk for severe illness, hospitalization, and death

Getting vaccinated helps prevent severe illness, hospitalization, and death from COVID-19, including the Delta variant. It can also help reduce the spread of the virus in communities.

COVID-19 and Long-Term Physical Health: What Community Members Need to Know

While most people get better within weeks of getting sick with COVID-19, some people experience post-COVID symptoms long after they are recovered and can no longer spread the virus. Post-COVID is also referred to as "long COVID" or "long-haul COVID". Post-COVID symptoms can be new, returning or ongoing health problems that occur four or more weeks after becoming sick with COVID.

THE BEST WAY TO PREVENT POST-COVID IS TO GET VACCINATED

LOCATION		SYMPTOM
WHOLE BODY	_	Tiredness, joint or muscle pain, sleep problems, fever, rash, symptoms that get worse after physical or mental activity
BRAIN	A	Difficulty thinking or concentrating ("brain fog"), headache, dizziness, mood changes
NOSE AND TONGUE	B	Change in smell or taste
LUNGS	0	Shortness of breath, cough, difficulty breathing
HEART	0	Chest pain, fast-beating or pounding heart (heart palpitations)
INTESTINES	E	Stomach pain, diarrhea
FEMALE REPRODUCTIVE SYSTEM	_	Change in period cycles
FINGERS AND TOES	F	Pins and needles feeling (showing poor blood circulation)

Post-COVID conditions can happen whether you experience mild or severe COVID-19 disease. We don't know yet why people get post-COVID conditions or how long they can last.

Get vaccinated with all necessary shots to prevent post-COVID conditions and to prevent the spread of new strains of COVID-19. Follow all local guidelines to further protect yourself and others, which may include wearing a mask or avoiding indoor gatherings. If you have any symptoms of COVID-19, get tested as soon as

Southern Ute Tribal Members Protecting our Past, Present & Future

The strength to overcome obstacles is demonstrated throughout the history of our people. Today, we are faced with new challenges that require us to come together to keep each other safe. The pandemic has lasted more than a year, which means a year without our ceremonies, social gatherings, and a year without being able to spend time with our loved ones that allow us to do the very things that define us as Ute people.

We must continue our safe practices so that we can overcome these obstacles to continue our culture and traditions in the safest ways that we can. Help us encourage and protect our people, by educating the importance of becoming vaccinated. Your personal perspective can help explain how vaccinations ultimately protect our culture and afford us an opportunity to continue our traditions.

The Southern Ute Incident Management's Communication Team will accept video, recorded and written testimonials encouraging the safe health practices, getting vaccinated & tested, or any encouraging message to promote a positive and healthy mental and physical environment to our tribal membership and surrounding communities.

COVID-19 outbreak at Nissan of Durango updated

12 positive cases and 3 fatalities

The SJBPH outbreak investigation is ongoing, community strongly urged to wear masks in public indoor settings and receive vaccination for COVID-19.

San Juan Basin Public Health (SJBPH) has updated the number of positive COVID-19 cases associated with the Nissan of Durango outbreak to 12 and the number of fatalities to three. A fourth individual passed away after contracting COVID-19, however it does not meet the Colorado Department of Public Health and Environment's (CDPHE) case definition to be added to the outbreak fatality list. The first case was identified on June 19. Five cases of the Delta variant have been confirmed in association with the outbreak through full-genome sequencing conducted by CD-PHE. As of August 9, two of the 12 cases associated with the outbreak have been confirmed as "breakthrough" cases identified in fully vaccinated individuals.

Over the course of the investigation, SJBPH and Nissan of Durango have implemented mitigation response plans for the business, including testing and contact tracing. All positive cases associated with Nissan of Durango have been put on isolation and those identified as unvaccinated close contacts were put on quarantine.

The outbreak at Nissan of Durango followed one of the largest outbreaks SJBPH has investigated to date in Archuleta County at the Pagosa Springs Walmart. By Joel Priest SPECIAL TO THE DRUM

Following a disastrous 2017 in which then-skipper Matt Phelan's team which surrendered 60 or more points four times and never fewer than 41 – went 0-9 overall and 0-5 in the 2A Western Slope, Roaring Fork elected to mothball varsity football.

With faint interest preventing the program in Carbondale from flat-lining altogether, an 11th-hour players' vote kept the Rams on life support as a JV-grade squad at the eight-man level, with well-traveled Dave Close - previously of RF-HS fame and later stops at 2A Bayfield and 1A Buena Vista, amongst others brought in from eight-man force Norwood to oversee the survival.

With all schools in the Roaring Fork Valley and Garfield County choosing to wait until Spring 2021 to churn out something of a pandemic-delayed 2020 season, RFHS returned to 11-man life and will be Ignacio's first gridiron foe set for 2 p.m. Saturday,

Now representing the 1A Western Slope, skipper Eric Bollock's bunch expectedly struggled this spring as overmatched members of the COVID-cobbled '2A West.' Completing a conference-only slate standing 0-6, the Rams were shut out three times including a season-ending 44only 20 points offensively, a morale-boosting six did come in a 48-6 home loss to Manitou Springs - which would go on to stun Westminster Flatirons Academy in double-OT, 31-30, to snatch the Spring 2021 State Championship. It was the 7-1 Mustangs' third win by three or fewer points.

After hosting Roaring Fork, IHS (3-2, 3-2 1A Aug. 10, Dolores athlet-Southern Peaks in Fall '20) will travel to 3A Newcomb, N.M., for a 7 p.m. start Sept. 3. BOBCATS VOLLEYBALL

Volleycats facing travel-heavy Fall '21

By Joel Priest SPECIAL TO THE DRUM

Having stepped off the volleyball court only a few months ago, following a 2020 season pushed back by the coronavirus pandemic to Spring '21, Ignacio's already back in action with their first Fall '21 match just two weeks away.

So in that regard, one could say a return to the sport's traditional - as laid out by the Colorado High School Activities Association - timing will be akin to striking while the metaphorical iron is hot. Considering the squad's schedule released this week to the media, that could prove more beneficial than perhaps anything else.

For including a mid-season trip to the Sept. 24-25 Simla Invitational, and another long haul out to the Rye Invite wrapping up the regular-season grind, IHS will be away from home ten times - eleven if one counts 3A Pagosa Springs' Pirate 4 Corners Scrimmages slated for this Sat., Aug. 14.

Officially picking

IHS Volleyball officially got the Fall 2021 season going with practices beginning Monday, Aug. 9. The Volleycats' first regular-season match is set for the 27th when they head north to Ridgway, Colo.

get everything underway at 4 p.m. Fri., Aug. 27, at graduation-wracked Ridgway, with a trip to Mancos following four days later. After getting their first look at a couple 2A-level rivals in the 2A/1A San Juan Basin League, Ignacio will welcome Montezuma-Cortez Thurs., Sept. 2.

UTE HISTORY BOOK

I have come to the conclusion of writing an accurate book about the Ute people of Colorado. I have worked over 30 years identifying sacred places of the Ute people, identifying the Ute trail around Colorado, seen many Ute burial tree scaffolds, Ute paint sources, bend trees, and bark scraped off as food by the Ute people during hard times.

I have given lectures to the various museums across the U.S. from the Smithsonian Museum, the Museum in Milwaukee, Wis. which houses a large native display, and the Burke Museum in Seattle, Wash. regarding the returning and proper handling of human remains, and sacred artifacts, lecturing to various colleges, universities, towns, civic groups including native tribes as well as lectures to the American Anthropological Association. (AAA) and the Society for American Archaeology (SAA) both of which have memberships of professionals from around the world.

I have trained federal and state agencies including certifying them in the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation (NAGPRA) Act of Nov. 16, 1990, including training Tribal Historical Preservation officers. I have created a cheat sheet identifying sacred archaeological sites which includes burials, vision quest sites, paint sources, trails, the meaning of bend trees, and many other Ute sites.

Upon completion of college with a background in Museology (study of museums) and archaeology. The late Eugene Naranjo asked me to help construct a museum in the old Sky Ute Lodge. I was in charge of the display and assisted in purchasing jewelry and beadwork for the general public. Mr. Naranjo saw the need to have me trained as an appraiser as well as trained in the identification of various turquoise. The museum in the Sky Ute Lodge made a profit and was seen by many visitors around the nation.

On April 22/23, 1993, I brought all three Ute tribes back to the Glenwood Spring area as it had been 128 years when the Ute people were kicked out of the area. We held a training session on the importance of the land, protection of Ute sites around Colorado with federal agencies of the U.S. Forest Service, Bureau of Land Management (BLM), U.S. National Parks, Army Corp of Engineers, State Agencies of Colorado, Wyoming and the Dakotas regarding the management and importance of the lands they now administer.

It was at this meeting with the three Ute tribes which I was appointed as the Ute liaison of the three Ute tribes between the U.S. federal agencies, states, colleges, and universities by a tri-Ute resolution. Signed at this meeting was an agreement between the Ute tribes to co-manage the White River National Forest written by Bill Kight and myself which is still in effect today. I was also instructed to care for the Ute sites and various hot springs by the three tribal chairmen of the Ute tribes.

Why am I writing a book? Many books are written by non-natives. I've worked with the late Clifford Duncan who traveled to Colorado in the protection of Ute sites and the late Alden Naranjo who was six years behind me seeing the various sites I've identified. Sadly this knowledge is now gone with their passing. To the natives and museum personnel in Colorado they regard me as the authority of the lands of Colorado regarding Ute sites and history.

With the advancement in camera technology. I will attempt to go to all parts of Colorado to photograph Ute sites and document the history of the area. This will be an out-of-pocket expense for me. I realized this must be done. The Smithsonian Museum in Washington, D.C., and the Ute Museum have already asked for this book yet to be published.

May our story of the Ute people be told correctly.

FLY FISHING

The wait was worth it

By Don Oliver Special to the Drum

Remember when waiting for Christmas morning to arrive seemed like it took an eternity. You hoped that that long package was a new bamboo fly rod, or the small package held the keys to a new bass boat. I know many of my friends think I'm delusional, at this age, to believe such things could happen, but I do. Since neither of those items and woolly buggers. Kim appeared on Christmas cast the buggers until I conmorning, my next hope was that the Southern Ute Indian Tribe would open the Reservation to fishing in in her box. 2021, and they did. Proof positive, if you believe in nymphs and strike indicators in your stocking.

Since many of the fish were over two years old Christmas, you won't get and hadn't seen many artificial flies cast to them over the past year, we were I have been fly fishing on treated to a great day of fly fishing. The bass and trout were large and aggressive. I hope they stay that way. As the rivers slowed

One of the reasons is the lack of presand I headed to Lake Capote sure from other people to do some fly fishing from fly fishing. While fishing the Piedra we did not Lake Capote hadn't seen see one other person fishmuch pressure in over a ing. That's not say I havyear, and there were an en't seen other people, but abundance of fish, bass it's not unusual to have and trout, that hadn't seen large sections of the river to yourself. While we didn't catch as many fish as we did on Lake Capote, there were trout to be had. I stayed with my dry flies, while Kim switched from of us found a pattern that the trout would eat consistently, so pattern changes were frequent. That's why it's good to have a variety of patterns in different sizes and colors with you at all times.

Our next venture, with another friend, was the Animas River at Weasleskin Bridge. The area downstream from the bridge had us catching small rainbows on both dry flies and nymphs; see if you can guess who the dry fly fisherman was. As the morning wore on, we made our way upstream. As one moves upstream, you'll find longer, slower-moving sections of the river. Here we caught larger fish. Again, the fish hadn't seen any fly fishers in a year, so they were not shy about taking a fly. Also, while Weasleskin Bridge is close to town, and easily accessed, we did not see another person.

As summer ends, and fall begins, my two friends and I will be fly fishing more of the Animas and Piedra rivers and Lake Capote. Also, the Pine and San Juan Rivers, on the Reservation, have numerous locations to fish. I suggest you get a copy of the 2021-2022 fishing proclamation for the Southern Ute Indian Reservation. Then plan as many days as you can fit into your fly fishing schedule to enjoy the fly fishing on the Reservation. You'll be glad you did. Oh yea, don't forget, you have to have a Southern Ute license to fish the rivers. For Lake Capote you just need a dayuse permit, obtained at the back to nymphs. Neither lake. Have fun.
