NO. 5

The Present Status of Codes

For the Information of Locals and Members

By JOSEPH N. WEBER
President American Federation of Musicians

In addition to the information contained in former issues of the INTERNATIONAL MUSICIAN in reference to Codes which are of immediate interest to our organization, locals and members are hereby advised that the NRA is now working to perfect the Motion Picture Theatre and Radio Codes and both, no doubt, will now become effective within a short time. The Hotel Code is pending and our efforts to have it made satisfactory to the extent, at least, that it may not be used to lower the standard of wages of our locals governing services of musicians in hotels, have not as yet terminated. The situation in each individual Code is, or eventually will be found to be, as follows:

THE MOTION PICTURE THEATRE CODE

A great number of hearings, both public and in committees, concerning this Code continued for many weeks. The stipulations in same in reference to musicians, proposed by theatre exhibitors, classed them as contract labor and provided a wage of 40 cents per hour. Although the exhibitors who represented the larger theatrical corporations were opposed to such a low minimum, they were outvoted by the independents. The latter appeared at all hearings in overwhelming numbers. The representative of the larger corporations agreed with the representative of our organization that he should make a statement at the public hearings on the Code that these large corporations represented an investment of six hundred and forty-six million dollars, employed twenty-six thousand workers, were opposed to the low minimum proposed by the independent exhibitors, and that same was inserted in the Code against their wishes.

However, the independent exhibitors stubbornly continued to contend for such a low wage. This, of course, was resisted by our organization. Finally a stipulation was prepared for the Code to the effect that to all members of organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor who were directly and regularly employed in theatres as of August 23, 1933, the wage prevailing on said date should be paid them during the entire tenure of the Code. Furthermore, that if a controversy arose concerning the prevailing wage, then same should be decided by arbitration. There is no doubt in my mind that this stipulation was prepared with the intention to protect the wages of musicians, however its application would have had the opposite result. To realize this we need but consider the nature of our employment in theatres, which cannot be considered regular and always remains highly speculative, as a sound house may be turned into a vaudeville house and vice versa during the same season or year.

In addition to this, in a great number of theatres, musicians are dispensed with during the summer, hence they cannot be considered regularly employed, and therefore, the prevailing wage did not apply to them, and moreover never would have applied to musicians in theatres who were not employed before or during 1933 up to August 23rd thereof, but were thereafter employed. Under these conditions almost all local unions would have been obliged to submit their scale to arbitration as under the conditions as above explained the question could almost always have been raised as to what actually was our prevailing wage.

From the foregoing it can be seen that the stipulation in the Code as proposed by the Administrator—and I especially emphasize proposed by him in good faith with the object to be fair to us—would, instead of benefitting our organization, have done us incalculable harm by denying to us the opportunity of collective bargaining, obliging us to continually submit wage questions to arbitration, and to continue to work in the theatres no matter how irksome, or unjust to us the result of the arbitration might have proven to be.

As a result of the position taken by our organization in reference to the stipulation in the Code above explained, it was finally agreed that insofar as the musicians are concerned, the Code should provide the following:

"By reason of the professional character of their employment, the minimum wage and maximum hours of employment of employees performing the duties of musicians shall as heretofore be established by prevailing labor agreements, understandings or practices."

By the foregoing you will see that we will not have to contend with an extremely low minimum wage which would have the tendency to become the maximum wage, and therefore such minimum cannot be used as the pretext for tearing down the higher minimum scales which our local unions, through efforts of many years, have been successful in establishing; and, furthermore, our organization will not be prevented from relying on its own economic strength to procure the best possible working conditions for its members and will not be obliged to submit all questions concerning wage and working conditions to arbitration.

THE RADIO CODE

In this Code musicians were not named, however they could be held as coming under its stipulations which provided the conditions under which employees at radio stations, not otherwise mentioned in the Code, should work. Said stipulations, however, did in no wise fit the conditions under which members of our organization are now, and have in the past been, employed at such stations. Therefore it became necessary to prevent the eventuality that in future the same might be applied to us.

In addition to this and before public hearings on this Code were held, our organization considered the following demands in the event same lend themselves to Code regulations, to wit:

- A—The increase of the employment of musicians at more radio stations.
- B—A safeguard against the development of a few central stations, with huge networks, from which the entire country could be supplied with radio programs.
- C—The division of employment of musicians among all local unions having radio stations.
- D—The question of free services by remote control.
- E—The selling of sustaining programs for commercial purposes by receiving stations.
- F—The demand of booking agents or artists' bureaus controlled by radio stations that in hotels, restaurants and cafes, certain bands and orchestras must be employed or else radio facilities would be denied them.
- G—The employment of musicians on more stations, and many other questions.

Many of the above questions such as dividing employment among members in all jurisdictions maintaining radio stations, the increasing of the number of musicians employed, the decentralizing of radio centres so that the country may not be eventually served by only one or two of them, etc., could not be regulated by the Code as they fall within the authority of Congress or the Radio Commission. However, those that came properly within the objects of the Code were insisted upon and an agreement has been reached concerning them, to wit:

- A—As to working conditions, we continue to exercise our own economic strength without being hampered by an exceedingly low minimum wage.
- B—Booking offices or other agents of radio stations can no longer demand that hotels, restaurants, cafes, etc., should employ orchestras named by them.
- C—The selling of sustaining programs for commercial purposes will in future be unlawful.

The provisions of the Code concerning the above read as follows:

"It shall be considered an unfair practice under this Code for any station or network to destroy fair competition among bands and orchestras by causing booking offices, artists' bureaus, or agents, to demand that any hotel, night club, restaurant, or similar establishment, employ any specific band or orchestra.

"Where a station or network is broadcasting a sustaining program utilizing the services of any band or orchestra, it shall be deemed an unfair practice, under this Code, to make any commercial announcements, advertising any commodity, either before, during or after the program, the effect of which is to create falsely the impression that the music is furnished or paid for by any person or firm other than the actual employer of such band or orchestra.

"Nothing herein contained shall be construed to apply to employees whose rates of wages, hours and/or weekly full-time wages are established by labor agreement, understandings or practices now in force, where such minimum rates are higher or hours are less than those set forth herein above."

THE HOTEL CODE

To begin with, this Code contained no reference to musicians at all, but covered them nevertheless, as the Code provides that for all other employees not especially mentioned, a minimum wage of 28 cents per hour in cities of 500,000 and up, and 23 cents per hour in cities of less than 500,000 should prevail. Furthermore, if the employees be females, the wage should be 2% less and in all Southern cities above wage should be reduced 20% for all employees. Here, as we did in all similar cases, we rightfully protested at the public hearing of the Code that such a low minimum should not apply to musicians, and this is our position now.

Several weeks after the public hearing, I requested information as to the present status of musicians under the Code and was advised that inasmuch as we had a strong organization, such a low minimum could not be forced upon us and therefore we would not be named in the Code at all.

We contend and contend now that inasmuch as musicians could be considered employees of hotels, the minimum wage provided for in the Code for them could be held also applying to us, that this low minimum might be used to tear down the structure of the higher minimum wage established by our organization for many years. We insisted that the Code should at least carry with it the provision that wages provided for employees therein should not apply to us. In other words, if the Code did not protect our present wage, it should at least not have the effect of proving an obstacle to us to enforce same. We maintained that our organization is on record to be 100 per cent with the NRA in its efforts to better safeguard in future the economic welfare of the people, but that under the Hotel Code, as suggested, we would not be beneficiaries under the NRA, but would rather be continually placed on the defensive to avoid the lowering of the economic standard of our members. To this we were answered that lower wages for musicians were certainly not intended by the Code and as we had a strong organization we could protect our own wage. Answer was made to the effect that if such was the final opinion, the Federation would immediately inform all its local unions and members that the Hotel Code does not apply to them. To this we received answer that doing so could be held against the spirit of the NRA and, therefore, be actionable. Upon the query how such could be the case if the minimum wage provided for under this Code did not apply to us, I was notified to further discuss the matter with them on some future date and this is the status of the Hotel Code at the present time.

The possibility is that the Code as finally adopted may carry no reference to musicians, but as they, without any doubt, could be considered to be employees of hotels, employers will, no doubt, attempt to use the extremely low Code minimum to lower existing minimums. If not, why do they object to musicians being named in the Code? The future may see a final determination of this question in our favor, but if so it will be the result of developments which no one can either conjecture or foresee at the present time.

I do not desire the following statement to be considered as challenging the sacred right of our convention and that of the delegates thereto, to hold to their opinion or to vote on any question as they think best, or the convention's decision as the supreme law of our Federation, but in the interest of our organization and for the full information of members concerning Code matters I am constrained to call attention to the fact that the 30 per cent law was responsible for the highly embarrassing, unfavorable and wearisome position in which we find ourselves in reference to the Hotel Code, and had it not been for this the present situation in same would no doubt be vastly different.

The Moving Picture and Radio Codes are not as yet law. They must meet with the approval of the President of the United States. However, it is confidentially expected that such will ere long be the case.

The position of the Hotel Code I have explained. The Code governing Burlesque Theatres is pending and public hearings thereon will be held sometime in November.

The Shipping Code is likewise pending, and is of interest to us as many of our members find employment on Coastwise and Trans-Atlantic and Trans-Pacific Ships. However, this Code presents difficulties which may make it advisable that the Federation not insist that its provisions include musicians, as to do so might have the result of causing a lawful wage to be established, which in most cases would be far below the wage actually paid them now. The reason for this cannot be discussed now as open hearings have not yet been held. Neither can all the arguments and ramifications on the questions concerning the several Codes of interest to us be fully discussed in an article of this kind. Participants in Code proceedings are not left entirely free to discuss the arguments, propositions and conditions as proposed, made or aired before the administrator. In all Code matters we must realize that first of all it is the prime duty of our Organization to guard against having the use of its economic strength prevented through Code stipulations that wages of members must be submitted to arbitration, and to guard against the establishment of an extremely low minimum wage, which could be used by employers for the purpose of tearing down our higher and established minimum wage.

In connection with all the above, I again request that in order not to be misled to form an erroneous opinion concerning the creating of work for musicians by a Code, that members should keep in mind the fact that additional employment for workers can only be created through the reducing of working hours and that the prevailing reduction of such hours to forty is of no benefit to us. However, reducing working hours to forty proved of benefit to workers in industries in which working hours were formerly considerably more. In these cases it made the employment of additional workers necessary and, as a result, approximately four million unemployed have now found employment.

However, it can be held that hearings concerning the Codes in which your representative was present convinced him that the employers, when agreeing upon fair competition among themselves, did with forethought establish an extremely low minimum wage for the workers in the hope of eventually having same become the maximum. If they should be successful in this, the skilled workers, and this includes almost all members of International organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor in addition to many others, will find themselves in the position of being continually forced to defend their accustomed union scale because employers will attempt to substitute the lower minimum Code wage in its place. It was expected, and no doubt it was the purpose of the NRA, that the minimum wage in Codes should only apply where sweatshop conditions formerly existed and should not result in the tearing down of a higher minimum or union scale. The minimum wage stipulated by Codes in industries, wherein sweatshop conditions prevailed, has improved conditions there, and no longer can women and other workers be paid a wage of $3, $4, $5 and $6 and even less a week, but they must receive from $12 to $15 and in addition to this, child labor is no longer permitted. So the NRA did prove a blessing in the direction of correcting these inhuman conditions, let us hope, forever. So nothing hereinbefore stated is to be understood as challenging the lofty purpose of the NRA to improve the economic conditions of the masses in general, but is to be understood as merely describing the position in which our own organization finds itself in the matter.

Our members can well hope for additional employment through any activity of the NRA, if its object to increase mass purchasing power is achieved, as people are grieving for diversion and with improved economic conditions will surely again seek same.

For a clear understanding of the Code situation, and inasmuch as many members are still of the opinion that they can agree among themselves or with their local organization as to what their Code should be, I repeat what I have so often stated, namely, that as the principal requisite of a Code the employers must first become organized. If they do so, labor can inject itself and attempt to come to an agreement with organized employers concerning labor provisions in a Code. This can also be attempted locally, provided an industry is not covered by a National Code. It has also been held that our leaders or contracting members can be considered as employers and that if a Local Union would organize them, then agree with them as to wages and conditions which, of course, should be those prescribed by the Union, that would go a considerable way toward bringing about fair competition among all the leaders, and result in union wages being paid to musicians. There is no objection to our locals entering into such an experiment. In fact, same has been considered as a National possibility for many, many months, but the expedience of same is very questionable. However, locals which in co-operation with the NRA in their district or city attempt such an arrangement should not forget that if employers organize, and in this case they would be leaders or contractors, that then every leader or contractor, whether a member of our organization or not, has a right to become a member of such organization, and has a voice in what their Code should contain. Furthermore, such organization would then have the opportunity, as do all employers' organizations under the NRA, to request a reopening of a Code for the purpose of amending same, and, in order to be successful in this, they would not be subject to the control or desire of the local. I leave it to the discernment of the local unions as to whether under these conditions it is advisable for them to enter into such experiment.

More than ever it is necessary that our members be fully informed as to their exact position in Codes and the possible benefits that may come to them from same.

The Federation keeps continually active in matters of the Codes, so much so that for a period of seven weeks the President established a branch office in Washington and at the present time commutes between New York and Washington so as to remain in touch with anything and everything that may necessitate the attention of the organization to maintain it in the best possible position in all that pertains to the interests of our members in the laudable efforts of the NRA to further drag our country from the brink of the economic abyss which confronted it. In conclusion we all subscribe to the patriotic duty that in its efforts the NRA should have the 100 per cent assistance of all Americans and surely in this our membership is as one.

Further developments in Code matters will be explained in the next issue of the INTERNATIONAL MUSICIAN.

WHY YOU SHOULD Recommend P-A TO YOUR STUDENTS

AS advertised, Pan-Americans are "moderately priced." But they are not cheap in quality. Their chromatic accuracy and tone quality are not exceeded by any other instrument, regardless of price.

Your students will appreciate your recommending so fine an instrument at such moderate price and they will progress more rapidly with its fine free blowing, responsive, tone-sure exactness. P-A includes everything in brass and woodwind, sold by leading music merchants, on easy terms. See your dealer, or write direct for literature, mentioning your instrument. Use the coupon below.

FREE Send coupon now, today, for your free copy of this complete pocket catalog, fully illustrating latest improved models. No obligation. Send today.

Buy NOW and Save Money

Buffet CRAMPON

Foreign exchange rates are up 55% with no decrease in sight. The prices of all imported instruments may go up—including the famous Buffet Clarinets made in Paris.

While our present stock of Buffets last—we make you this attractive offer. We will fill your order at the same low prices that prevailed 60 days ago. That will save you many dollars over the new prices which may soon go into effect.

Act quickly and get the benefit of this limited-time offer.

In France—the home of the Clarinet—Buffet has been the leader for nearly a century. Now winning added fame in the symphonies of Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis and San Francisco. A favorite in the finest bands—among opera and radio stars—everywhere.

Late, Improved Models Goldbeck Tested

Now is the time to buy a Buffet. And be sure to get a genuine Buffet with guarantee card signed by Arthur Goldbeck and with case bearing the Buffet Crampon seal shown above.

These are the latest models. Every instrument personally tested by Arthur Goldbeck, famous woodwind expert. One year free service against cracking. Many new improved features. Complete line to meet every requirement.

Decide now to own a Buffet—while you can still buy at our low prices. Write for free literature and full details today.

What America's Foremost Cornet Soloist Says About VELVET-SLIP VELVET OIL COMPANY Boston, Massachusetts. Gentlemen: I have used your VELVET-SLIP for a period of six months and find it to be the only valve oil which has given me absolutely perfect results. My action is faster and smoother than I ever believed it possible for an instrument to attain. If all cornetists and trumpeters will only try this wonderful oil I am sure they will be converted to its use. Sincerely, WALTER M. SMITH.

Still Going Up!

THE swing to trade unionism shows no signs of abating and officials of the American Federation of Labor believe the paid-up membership has risen considerably above the high record of 4,078,740, set in 1920. Exact figures will not be available until the end of the year.

Secretary Frank Morrison reports that 706 A. F. of L. charters have been issued since July 1. Applications for charters are being received every day and more were issued in October than in July and August, when the union tide first began to rise strongly.

Federation officials expect the total membership will be above 5,000,000 by January. The next immediate step will be 10,000,000 after the 5,000,000 mark is reached.

Untrue Bank Statements

SOME people suspected long ago that bank statements do not always tell the truth. The depression confirmed their suspicions. As bank after bank failed, it was revealed that in many cases their actual condition had not been shown in their statements.

Now it is being admitted by conservative business organs that banks sometimes stray from the paths of strict accuracy in purporting to report their true condition. The Annalist, well-known journal of finance, commerce and economics, published by the New York Times, says in an article by its editor, D. W. Ellsworth:

"It is perfectly true that in recent years, especially in the latter part of the Hoover administration, banks were permitted and even encouraged to publish bank statements which did not reflect true conditions. In this connection, a well informed Annalist reader, taking exception to my remarks on this subject recently, writes that he has had considerable experience in interpreting the 'condition statements' of many banks, but that the point with which he has been most impressed is the fact that they do not by any means reveal the truth to the casual reader, and not even to the trained reader."

In the face of such revelations, bankers still profess to be grieved at public lack of confidence in their business. They say they cannot understand the public attitude. They seem unable to see that they are fortunate the public has not lost all its faith in banking. Their wisest move would be to frankly repent past shortcomings and do their utmost to set their house in order.

Final Victory Certain

ATTACKS on the Child Labor Amendment by newspaper publishers and their attempt to line up the public against ratification indicate that labor and other forces favoring the amendment are in for a hard fight.

Next year and 1935 will be crucial years in the fight for the amendment. In 1934 eight States which have not acted favorably will meet in regular legislative session and others will very likely call special sessions. In 1934 most State legislatures will be in session.

Pointing out the necessity for every friend of the amendment to bestir himself or herself and work as never before for final victory, the American Child, organ of the National Child Labor Committee, says:

"If the goal of thirty-six ratifications is reached in 1935 it will make possible Federal legislation in time to replace the child labor restrictions in industrial codes which will expire that year, according to the terms of the Recovery Act. If it be not ratified—then we must expect a return to old conditions of child exploitation. For previous experience indicates that when a period of unemployment begins to abate, the number of children entering industry tends to increase."

There is no doubt that the Child Labor Amendment will be ratified and made part of the Federal Constitution, however hard a fight is made to defeat it. That is settled. Labor has made up its mind child labor must be permanently abolished and will see that this is done by ratification of the amendment.

Veterans Live to See New Day

IF Frank Morrison had time to remember—between his multiplied tasks of keeping the record straight and making necessary announcements during the A. F. of L. convention—his mind doubtless reverted to the "times when"—

For instance, there was the time when the bosses in the Danbury strike were trying to put Sam Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison in jail.

Then, there was that other occasion, when a man named Baer declared that God had, in his infinite wisdom, committed the coal business to Baer and his associates, thus winning for himself the sobriquet of "Divine-Right Baer."

Later days must have been easy to remember, when the war profiteers were calling all members and leaders of organized labor by the handy term of "bolsheviks."

Against this background, going back almost half a century, he saw and heard Senator Robert A. Wagner, in warm, friendly and sympathetic terms, giving credit to the labor movement for its accomplishments during the Great Depression; and the brusque but not unfriendly declaration of General Hugh S. Johnson, that there is no need now for strikes.

And then there was the impressive moment, when William Green accepting the re-election to the office he has so honorably filled for years, accepting the responsibility of Labor for making a success of the campaign of N. R. A. for the benefit of the nation's peaceful continuance, and giving notice to the foes of the new industrial and social order, in the spirit of the guardians of another Verdun, that "They shall not pass!"

It was worth fifty years of labor and battle, to the veterans of the labor movement, to have lived to see the new place accorded to their organization and its leaders, in the most vital affairs of the nation.

No Place for "Interpretations"

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S ruling on "interpretations" of the collective bargaining section of the Recovery Act should end "merit clauses" in Codes and other attempts to modify or nullify Section 7 (a).

The President points out that Section 7 (a) means just what it says, that it guarantees the rights of free organization, designation of representatives and collective bargaining and that it clearly prohibits attempts to limit these rights. He declares "interpretations" have no place in Codes and lead only to controversy and confusion.

Gen. Johnson and other high officials have said the same thing as the President, but the efforts to insert "merit clauses" in Codes have persisted. Now that the President has spoken, in words that cannot be misunderstood, the issue, if issue it ever was, has been settled. Employers who seek to "interpret" Section 7 (a) will be only wasting their time and will have themselves to blame if they head into trouble.

Labor Queries

Questions and Answers on Labor: What It Has Done; Where It Stands on Problems of the Day; Its Aim and Program; Who's Who in the Ranks of the Organized Toilers.

Q.—How many union labels are there?

A.—There are fifty-two labels and ten cards issued by organizations endorsed by the American Federation of Labor. Four crafts are using the American Federation of Labor label.

Q.—Was anything said in the American Federation of Labor Executive Council's report on racial persecution in Germany?

A.—The report, in calling for a boycott of German goods by American labor, said: "We abhor racial persecution and we protest vigorously against the persecution of the Jewish people of Germany."

Q.—What was the purpose of organizing the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor?

A.—It was organized "to promote a greater demand for products bearing the union label and of labor performed by union workers; to investigate into, devise, recommend and, within the limits of its authority, carry into effect methods for the advertisement of union-label products."

Out Beyond the Surf

Where thought, un-hastened by necessity or trepidation, sometimes penetrates to truth. Here, where the shallows throw no spray, let us ponder and enjoy the lessons of the art and the work and play of life.

Into the midst of code hearings, senatorial investigations and the operations of the rumor mill, the American Federation of Labor convention took possession of Washington and brought the city down to realities.

First of all, it was the largest convention ever held. Second, it dealt with issues that go to the root of today's national struggle to win back to prosperity. Third, there was no useless fiddling around—talk was straight to the point.

And added to the serious work of the convention, there was the dedication of the magnificent memorial to Samuel Gompers. The memorial will take its place as one of the major attractions of Washington. Pilgrims from all corners of the nation will go to behold it. The dedication ceremonies were on a plane of dignity befitting the event.

The convention wrote important labor policies into the record. But over and above the actual work, there was the inspiration of getting together, the interchange of experiences, the contact that makes movements.

There came numbers of experiences about operation under N. R. A., there came experiences of organizers in building new unions—the convention was a clearing house, valuable far in excess of the printed record it left behind.

During the coming months the American Federation of Labor is destined to grow millions beyond all previous records. Because of this great gathering there will be more of cohesiveness about the coming growth, more of determination, more of discipline and more of the knowledge needed to participate with success in the new industrial civilization now being built.

The fact of organized labor's growth is the healthiest sign in America today. Take the unions out of industry in this critical hour and anarchy would reign. If there is to be government of industry from within industry there has to be organization. Take the political parties out of political life and try to hold an election! Organized society means ORGANIZATION and organization is worthless unless it is actually taken wholeheartedly into the total of the machinery and allowed to FUNCTION—to operate.

And there is the heart of one of the major issues of this hour, and that is one of the reasons why this convention, meeting at this time, next door to N. R. A., is one of the best things that ever happened for America.

If the new society now being built isn't built right, it will have to be done all over again. And it is easier to do it NOW than to have to do it over.

America is the greatest convention country on earth. A lot of fun has been poked at our convention habit by the highbrows who have all the knowledge there is under their own hats. Let them poke fun. The rest of us will keep on going to conventions, learning from the experience of each other, bringing inspiration periodically to the boiling point, preventing the team-work idea from sagging into uselessness.

This year's convention was the banner convention thus far. It will be out-stripped by next year's convention. There may be a thousand delegates next time. THAT will be something to behold.

And labor will have won vast new fields of influence and service in the common good.

There is nothing in all America like this labor movement, with its dramatic force and its unity for human betterment.

Press Freedom Not Endangered

SOME newspaper publishers are all excited over the alleged danger to freedom of the press in the N. I. R. A. They profess to see the death of press freedom in the act and are even conjuring up the bogey of press censorship by trade unions.

"The application of press censorship by organized labor is possible if the newspapers submit to the demand of unions as expressed in the N. I. R. A.," said E. H. Harris, secretary of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, in attacking the Recovery Act as a peril to the press.

Mr. Harris and others are talking sheer nonsense. Unions have never threatened the rights of free speech and there is no danger they will. Neither is there any danger of press freedom in the Recovery Act. Secretary of Labor Perkins emphasized this in rebuking a Labor Department conciliator accused of threatening an Alabama editor on the ground he was printing articles in violation of N. I. R. A. Said Miss Perkins to the conciliator: "Please keep in mind that you have no right to tell any editor what he may or may not print in his news or editorial columns. There is nothing in the N. I. R. A., or any other Federal statute, which gives you such a right."

The Federation of Labor Convention

Some of the High Lights and Important Happenings at Labor's Fifty-Third Annual Forum.

By CHAUNCEY A. WEAVER

WITH five hundred and forty-five delegates responding to roll call the Fifty-third Annual Convention of the American Federation of Labor convened at the Hotel Willard, in the city of Washington, D. C., Monday, October 2, 1933, at 10 A. M. The traditional glory of an October day enveloped the capital of the nation. While everyone seemed to realize the tenseness of the times, yet all hoped that the sunlight radiance might be accepted as an augury of better days to come. In the opening ceremonial there were no discordant notes, no hopeless misgivings, no moanings of despair. The spirit of the hour seemed to be reflected in the refrain of the song, "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise," and we are here to help celebrate the dawn.

OPENING SESSION

The convention was called to order by Richard A. Dickson, President of the Washington Central Labor Union. For a half hour preceding the first fall of the gavel, an orchestra composed of members of Local No. 161, and under the leadership of Leon Brusiloff, entertained and delighted the assembling delegates, and furnished musical accompaniment for the singing of "America." Invocation was offered by the Rt. Rev. John J. McNamara, auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore.

Addresses of welcome were delivered by President Dickson, Luther H. Reichelderfer, President of the District of Columbia Board of Commissioners, United States Senator William H. King of Utah, Chairman of District of Columbia Senate Committee, and President Thomas P. Littlepage of the Washington Chamber of Commerce. These messages of greeting were in good taste and made the delegates feel that in spite of the vast problems with which official Washington is concerned there was a genuine welcome for the representatives of the cause of labor.

The response made by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor left no doubt about the stand of the organization in adjustment of the New Deal which has been promised and which is now in process of inauguration.

It was a speech which eloquently voiced the yearning of labor for the enjoyment of a better day.

It pointed out that "we have definitely passed from the stage of innocuous quietude and inaction to a stage of action, action, and action all the time."

It boldly declared for a six-hour day and a five-day week.

It repudiated inflation as an economic cure-all and declared that "when the worker earns a dollar he wants to be sure that it stands for a real dollar and does not represent to him a reduction in buying power."

That President Green's speech struck a popular chord was manifest in the fine ovation tendered him at its conclusion.

WHAT THE CREDENTIALS DISCLOSED

On the opening convention day the Credentials Committee reported delegates representing 92 International and National Unions, 4 Departments, 32 State Branches, 234 Central Bodies, 40 Local Trade and Federal Labor Unions, and 4 Fraternal Delegates.

It may interest members of the American Federation of Musicians to know that there are only two units in the American Federation of Labor with a stronger voting power in convention deliberation than the Musicians. The two are: the Carpenters with 2,058 votes and the United Mine Workers with 3,000 votes. The Musicians voting strength is 1,000.

In a convention tug-of-war the possible combinations of strength to the advantage of the Musicians constitute an interesting appeal to the imagination.

THE CONVENTION TASK

There were one hundred and nine resolutions offered within the regular time limit, which usually expires at midnight on Tuesday of the opening week. A few resolutions were permitted later by unanimous consent of the convention. These resolutions form the basic work of the convention. The question is sometimes asked, Why does Labor require a two weeks' period when most conventions require less than one?

The question is not difficult to answer. A vast and varied assortment of topics are looked upon as legitimate matters of discussion. A large array of speakers representing various fields of endeavor and exploitation request a hearing. Jurisdictional disputes between crafts arise. Hence, a week is consumed in hearing arguments before committees and setting

Continuing United States Compensation Commission as an independent governmental agency.

Elevation of the standards of governmental employment.

Extension of labor legislation to insular possessions.

Calling for the release of Thomas J. Mooney and Warren K. Billings.

Favoring equality of all workers in employment opportunities without regard to sex.

Protesting discrimination against negro workers under the N. R. A.

Urging unrelenting warfare against labor racketeers.

To prevent transportation of strike-breakers.

Favoring unemployment insurance.

Condemning the use of injunctions in labor disputes.

The elimination of night work wherever possible as a means of creating greater employment.

Recommendation of old-age pensions or other security against want.

Advocating the establishment of credit unions.

Restriction of Canadian immigration at Detroit.

Demanding greater restrictions upon Oriental labor.

Opposition to discrimination against older classes of workers.

Demanding proper and adequate representation on all N. R. A. adjustment boards.

make no surrender of that which has been achieved and to exercise a clear and unambiguous voice in dealing with future necessities and demands.

THE GOMPERS MEMORIAL

In the calm glow of a perfect October day organized labor was permitted to witness the consummation of its long-cherished plans for a permanent memorial to the late Samuel Gompers—for nearly forty years the apostle of its cause, the defender of its rights, and the leader in its forward march.

More than 8,000 people attended the dedicatory ceremonial attendant upon the unveiling of the magnificent piece of bronze statuary which depicts Mr. Gompers seated against a background in which representative groups typifying Labor, Brotherhood and Fraternity are assembled. The sculptural work was executed by Robert Aitken of New York, who was present and occupied a place of honor on the speakers' platform.

President Roosevelt delivered an address in which he declared that capital and labor must put unselfish patriotism ahead of personal gain in the nation's recovery drive. The President reviewed his long acquaintance with the deceased labor leader, and in closing declared: "Like the duly constituted officials of your government, we must act in meeting the emergencies of the hour as would have been the order of Samuel Gompers if he were alive and with us today."

President William Green delivered one of the very finest addresses of his official career. In fact it was an oration in its able construction and scholarly finish.

The Gompers Memorial Monument is located on Massachusetts Avenue, Northwest, between Tenth and Eleventh Sts.

The actual unveiling act was performed by James Calvin MacKay, the great-grandson of Mr. Gompers.

The musical features of the program were furnished by a fine band under the direction of Leon Brusiloff.

The cost of the monument, over one hundred thousand dollars, was contributed by the membership of organized labor.

Following is the official program of the Gompers Memorial Service:

OPENING—Selection, Stars and Stripes Forever"
INVOCATION—The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, D. D. (Bishop of Washington).

SELECTION—"Trees" Rasbach
DEDICATORY ADDRESS—President Franklin D. Roosevelt. (Introduced by President Green.)

SELECTION—Pilgrims Chorus from "Tannhauser" Wagner
ADDRESS—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor.

SELECTION—Celeste Aida from "Opera Aida" Verdi
(Mr. Gompers' favorite melody)

BENEDICTION—Right Rev. John M. McNamara, D. D.
SELECTION—"America."

FRANCES PERKINS SPEAKS

There was much eager anticipation on the part of the delegates and visitors to see and hear Frances Perkins, Secretary of the Department of Labor in the Presidential cabinet. When she appeared on Wednesday of the opening convention week she was greeted by a large audience and given a most respectful hearing.

Secretary Perkins has a most gracious personality, takes her hearers into her confidence in an easy way, and convinces them of a deep personal desire to render high-grade service in the high position to which she has been called. In the opening paragraph of her address she said:

Mr. President, and may I say my friends, at the beginning of what I hope is a long friendship between all of you who are here and those of us who strive to serve your interests in the Department of Labor—I want to say this in opening what I have to say to you today, that this is a very great day in my life, one of the most important and solemn days and a day the stage properly for the debate which climaxes the second week.

The Washington convention convened on Monday, October 2, at 10 A. M., and adjourned at 10 P. M. on Friday, October 13. It was a working convention in every sense of the word and a review of the printed proceedings will fully substantiate the claim.

There will be a wide range of opinion as to which issue of discussion was uppermost in importance. The five-day-week and six-hour-day was a theme of animated interest. The contingent effects of the National Recovery Act in formal application were matters of deep concern. The German boycott proposal revealed the tense feeling which has developed under the Hitler regime, stressed appreciation of the European portent and its relation to American affairs. It would serve no worthwhile purpose to discuss the relative importance of these problems of wide national and international concern. We must be content with a brief summary of what was actually done in the way of legislation.

LABOR RESOLUTIONS RESUME

Enthusiastic endorsement of the imminent repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Endorsement of the Hawes-Cooper Convict Labor Bill.

Demand for legislation preventing public exploitation through the sale of spurious securities.

Call for act establishing resident commissioner in Canal Zone.

Extension of prevailing wage law to include painting.

SERIOUS ATMOSPHERE

Labor convention delegates realized that they were meeting in one of the most crucial periods in all American industrial history. With at least ten million men still out of work, with strikes and other manifestations of unrest in all parts of the country, with another winter with its incidental and acute responsibilities rapidly hastening on, it was in no spirit of hilarity that the representatives of organized labor entered upon their task.

The uppermost theme in all discussion was the National Recovery Act. Was it a genuine star of hope or a disillusionizing mirage? Was it an inspired document or a meaningless play on words? Was it a chart pointing a more direct pathway into the land of peace and plenty or a portal leading to wider realms of misunderstanding and despair?

There can be no dispute of the fact that the convention opened and closed in an atmosphere of uncertainty as to what the N. R. A. may be able to accomplish. Outwardly everyone was hopeful. Privately, there were many expressions of skepticism concerning the power of government under American institutions to successfully accomplish that which it has set out to do.

We are a nation of 120,000,000 people. Our diversities of occupation and interest are almost infinite. The spirit of independence is ever with us. We resent interference with that which we are prone to look upon as inherent right.

The final attitude of the convention, therefore, was one of general approval of the expressed governmental purpose, but with a plainly reserved determination to to which I shall look back for many years with a deep responsibility to you and the millions of people who are not here, but who, without organization, find their voice and find their opportunity for expression of their desires and their needs in this great industrial commonwealth through you and your organization.

And when she said—

I want to say at the outset that although I may not always know the truth, I shall strive to find the truth, and to find that truth through cooperation with you and with others who are in position to know what are the desires and needs of the working people of the United States—all possible barriers of suspicion were broken down and between speaker and hearers a spirit of genuine camaraderie was established. That Secretary Perkins is heart, mind and soul dedicated to the cause she represents is a conclusion from which there will be no dissent from any one fortunate enough to meet and talk with her or hear her speak. Her address was one of the high spots on the convention program.

ORGANIZATION REVOLT SQUELCHED

Perhaps the most spectacular battle precipitated on the convention floor was when the Committee on Law reported adversely on Resolution No. 11, introduced by the United Mine Workers, proposing to increase the number of vice-presidents of the national labor organization from eight to twenty-five. The star feature was the clash between John L. Lewis of the miners and Daniel J. Tobin of the teamsters. Lewis championed the proposed innovation, while Tobin stood for the maintenance of the status quo. The explosive proclivities were very much in evidence and President Green had his hands quite full in trying to hold the lid on its proper place.

The argument for the change was based on the premise that under the enlarged growth of the labor movement the various crafts were entitled to a larger representation on the Executive Council. The opposition insisted that increased numbers did not mean increased efficiency. The belief was also expressed that the rank and file of labor would not take kindly to such an enlargement of the administrative machinery in the peculiar period through which we are now passing. The real debate occurred on an amendment offered by Delegate George L. Berry, of the Pressmen, and seconded by Delegate Charles P. Howard, of the Typographical Union, to increase the Executive Council to fifteen instead of twenty-five. When the latter amendment was voted down by a vote of 14,143 to 4,410, the hopelessness of the proposition was seen and no further effort was made to press the issue.

LABOR STILL NON-PARTISAN

The first resolution offered was by Delegate M. F. Tighe of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, and carried the following proposition:

RESOLVED, That the 53rd Annual Convention of the American Federation of Labor go on record as favoring formation of an independent Labor Party, and that it abandon the traditional non-partisan policy and sponsor a genuine Labor Party.

The convention sustained the action of the Resolutions Committee in recommending non-concurrence in this resolution. The consensus of opinion was that as yet the voters, while assuming an independent attitude, are not in a mood to break entirely loose from all party standards; and that to make such an attempt at present would be simply a frittering away of strength which might be more effectively used elsewhere. Because a Labor Party has become a forcible factor in British affairs—it does not necessarily follow that such a program would soon flame into success here. There is still a great difference between American and British institutions, traditions and inclinations.

ORATORICAL ANVIL SPARKS

President William Green—We have refused to listen to the appeals of those who have asked us to accept a substitution for our great trade union philosophy, and I know that we will still refuse and we will stand here fairly and squarely upon the principles that have made our union great.

Miss Frances Perkins—We cannot stop with the present minimum wages and maximum hours of labor. We must go on with a unified purpose to an ever improving standard of living and assurance of economic security for all our people, and sufficient leisure to enable us to enjoy the blessings which our resources and our equipment can make available to all of us.

Elizabeth Christman—Over 284,000 women are engaged in the manufacture of electrical goods. About 435,000 women are employed in hotels and restaurants. I could multiply such examples of opportunity for organization among women in industry with adopted or pending codes, but too many statistics become distracting.

Rev. George Laekland—Don't ever have a union meeting where the only business is to read the minutes and communications. Have somebody stand up and tell that labor group what the present problems are, and instead of having 2 per cent attend your meetings you will have from 50 to 75 per cent if you impress upon them that they are missing something by not attending.

Delegate James Rowen, British Trades Congress—Can it be possible that Hitlerism is condoned by international capital, and by capitalist governments; even by the Communist Government of Russia, because Hitler is destroying democracy and liberty? He has already destroyed trade unionism and wiped out the workers' political organization in Germany.

Delegate Joseph A. Hall, British Trades Congress—But what is America doing now? America is attempting to build her fortunes and her progress upon rehabilitation acts. Britain is attempting to do the same thing, and I hope and trust we will meet with success in this great performing of our duties.

Fred J. White, Delegate Canadian Trade and Labor Congress—What does it matter to us if there are those who say that certain philosophies will undermine private initiative? Is there anything quite so damnable, quite so killing of initiative, as a system that asks men and women, 11,000,000 of them on your side of the line, over a million and a quarter on our side of the border, to tramp from factory to factory, mill to mill, and mine to mine, day after day, looking for and seeking employment, but unable to secure it? What do high-sounding phrases of individualism and initiative mean to them?

Rev. Francis J. Haas, Ph.D.—Open shop principles could yield no other fruits than those they have yielded. Disorganization means low wages. Low wages means low purchasing power. Low purchasing power means under-consumption, unemployment and human slavery.

Postmaster-General James A. Farley—Credit and confidence, and mutual esteem, mutual reliance upon one another, constitute, after all, the life-blood of our social and economic system.

Spencer Miller, Jr., Secretary Education Bureau—Industrially labor is elevated to the new status of a partner with government and management in business, and for the first time the police power of the government is thrown around the principle of collective bargaining.

United States Senator Robert F. Wagner—Despite the pleasing gains which have been made, they have been confined to preliminary encounters with the forces of depression. The real battle lies ahead, for there are over ten million men and women who are still walking the streets in an agonized search for the means of livelihood. If they are not helped quickly, our successes will be washed away in a deluge.

CONVENTION SIDE-LIGHTS

Members of the American Federation of Musicians delegation to the Washington Labor Convention were honored by President William Green with committee appointments as follows: Edward Canavan, Committee on Laws; Adolph Hirschberg, Committee on Organization; Chas. L. Bagley, Committee on Adjustment; John W. Parks, Committee on Education; Chauncey A. Weaver, Committee on Labels. President Joseph N. Weber, besides being a member of the Labor Executive Council by virtue of his vice-presidency in the A. F. of L., is also chairman of the Committee on Local and Federated Bodies.

No more commodious or well-arranged headquarters can be found anywhere than those owned and occupied by Local No. 161 at 1105 Sixteenth Street, Northwest. The officers have convenient working rooms. Board meetings and regular Local gatherings are well provided for. No burden of debt clouds the future prospects of the organization and the more than seven hundred members have ample cause for self-congratulation.

Brother A. C. Hayden, who serves both as member of the National Executive Board and President of Local No. 161, and has done so for more years than most can remember, kept in touch with the labor convention delegates from the A. F. of M., and had the cordial backing of the officers and members of the Local in making their sojourn in the national capital agreeable. To each and every one the labor delegation wishes to extend this note of appreciation.

One hundred and twenty-two drunks were reported in police court one morning during the convention period. Not one of them, however, wore a convention delegate badge. This small number of bibulous ones is looked upon as evidence that true temperance is on the way. In the hey-day of prohibition we understand the police court grist was much larger.

In order to be admitted to practice before the United States Supreme Court a personal visit thereto is necessary. Two members of the A. F. of M. delegation to the Washington Labor Convention—Chas. L. Bagley and Chauncey A. Weaver—concluded there would never be a better opportunity. Accordingly, on Monday, October 9, the trip to the Supreme Court was made. Bagley was presented to the court by General Ansell, Washington counsel for the A. F. of M., and Weaver by Interstate Commerce Commissioner Claude R. Porter. There were nineteen applicants in the class that day. The court convenes exactly at twelve and no encroachment on Federation time was involved. Incidentally, we had time to hear oral argument in the case of Jake Factor in which the British Government is trying to secure Factor's return to that country to answer to a charge of wholesale fraud in investment matters upon British subjects. Factor has had his habitat in Chicago for several months. Hon. Newton D. Baker argued the case for Factor and William D. Mitchell, attorney-general under President Hoover, represented the British Government. These nine Supreme Court judges are good listeners. Each one represents a distinctive type. It is a tribunal vested with great power, but the vast majority of Americans look upon the institution as the palladium of human liberty and human right and cheerfully acquiesce in its judicial findings. An hour spent within its portals is an interesting experience.

Seventy-five thousand government employes enter the great Federal ramifications every working morning and depart every evening. Uncle Sam is not backward in surrounding himself with plenty of help.

The official roster of members charged with the responsibility of making Local No. 161 function as one of the dependable and helpful units of the A. F. of M. organization shows the following names: President, A. C. Hayden; vice-president, Donald Wade; secretary, John E. Birdsell; treasurer, Harry C. Manvell; Board of Directors, Lou Bates, John D. Lockwood, Ralph Fox, Jack Powers and J. L. Vanpoucke.

Fresh from his victorious combat with the Federal courts, United States Senator James J. Davis appeared at the convention, as he has done for several years, and delivered a stirring address. He was the recipient of hearty congratulations. There has been such a strong suspicion of political coercion in these charges against the senator that few believed he would be convicted and his friends were gratified over a verdict which required a jury less than one hour to find.

The British Fraternal Delegates were James Rowen, J. P., General Secretary of the Electrical Workers, and Joseph A. Hall, J. P., Financial Secretary of the Yorkshire Mine Workers' Association. Fred J. White was present as Fraternal Delegate from the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress. The formal addresses of these Fraternal Delegates is always an interesting event in the convention program. They invariably speak with a conviction and fire which is impressive.

Secretary Frank Morrison, who has served the American Federation of Labor for thirty-six years, was unanimously re-elected. This was in accord with the eternal fitness of things. May he be found in the same place for many years to come.

Not every resident of Washington holds a white-collar governmental job. During the first convention week it was reported that there were 7,000 applications for 500 navy yard laboring jobs.

Miss Elizabeth Christman, president of the Women's Trade Union League and a fraternal delegate to the American Federation of Labor convention favoring an organization campaign which will bring 5,000,000 women into the union fold. There is no control of the feminine ambition to outdistance men in every line of human activity.

Federal employes are opposed to pay-cuts—thus easily exemplifying that touch of nature which makes the whole world kin.

The American Federation of Labor is for sound money—it will tell the world.

Washington is a beautiful city and she enjoys the advantages of having a liberal beautifier perennially on the job.

Washingtonians claim they are anxious to have the ballot. There must be times when they feel relieved at not being responsible for some things which happen on election day. Most every voter elsewhere can testify to having had that feeling.

The only other convention of the American Federation of Labor to be held in Washington was in 1885—forty-eight years ago. It is an interesting play upon the imagination to try and picture what the national capital city will be like in another nearly half century hence.

Impressions of Washington musical standards are highly pleasing. They reflect an exaltation of taste which is very complimentary to the national capital. Among the numbers played on the opening day of the labor convention, under the direction of Leon Brusiloff, there was not a particle of chaff. Standard compositions only were recognized. Washington supports the National Symphony Orchestra, which launched its regular concert series last month.

One of the pleasing episodes of the convention period was the action of the International Fire Fighters' Union, Local No. 94, of New York in presenting President William Green with a beautiful tie-pin as a special token of appreciation of the latter's helpfulness to that organization. The presentation was made by Delegate Vincent J. Kane.

If General Hugh Johnson had been a ball player he would have been a clever manipulator of the bat.

Convention delegates being naturally polite quite unanimously expressed desire to see the Washington team win the national series; but privately there was considerable betting on the Giants.

As a city planner the Father of His Country had an almost uncanny foresight.

The cry of "hard times" is heard on every hand; and yet when was railway travel running at a higher tide? Long, solid trains of Pullman cars; limited trains running in several sections; reservations secured far in advance of actual use—these are the indices of purpose to go and see and recreate—no matter what the sacrifice involved. We have been frequently informed through the press and other sources that the depression will evaporate and disappear like the morning mist. Anxious and weary multitudes are waiting to behold the transformation scene.

Autumn is a most auspicious time for Washingtonian visitation. The national capital was thronged with travelers from all parts not only of the nation, but of the world. It is an interesting city. Congress has dealt liberally with it. To appreciate what has been accomplished it is only necessary to read the story of poor accommodations and miserable streets which were so common in Daniel Webster's time and compare them with the wonderful evidences of civic improvement which are today visible on every hand. He who contemplates a visit to Washington merely in the light of a pleasure trip has missed the vital point. There is a wider lesson, and deeper significance, in the opportunity to visit scenes which are redolent with historic tradition, to visit legislative halls and Senate chambers where great battles of clashing ideas have been fought to permanent finish, to gaze upon monuments in every park and upon every street intersection—erected to perpetuate the name and fame of men who once loomed large in the public eye because of what they had accomplished and for the doctrines for which they stood—these are the golden opportunities which are open to every visitor. We pity the man who can visit Washington and then go away without the consciousness that his love of country has been intensified.

The Fifty-fourth Annual Convention of the American Federation of Labor goes to San Francisco. St. Louis put up a game fight for the honor of next year's entertainment, but the City of the Golden Gate gave an almost daily demonstration of desire to have the convention and her voluminous and insistent calling was finally affirmatively answered.

The final curtain of the Washington Convention proceedings fell at 10 o'clock on the Friday evening of the second week. It had been a period of intense earnestness, animated and intelligent debate, and yet at no time was there the slightest indication that the delegates would be swept away from sound moorings or rashly undertake the sailing of uncharted and unknown seas. The spirit of Samuel Gompers still lives.

She Wouldn't Need Them

English Passenger—Porter, two of my trunks are missing.
Ditto Porter—Yes, lady. But don't you worry your 'ead about them—this ain't a dressy place.—Ex.

COMMENT ON World Events

Lawyers steeped in the law and musty precedents, who regard the Constitution as a right thing, have so far found no comfort in the courts as they endeavor to attack the national recovery program. Federal Judge St. Sure heard the validity of the Agricultural Adjustment Act contested in the California packers' suit. He said: "To adopt the view that the Constitution is static and that it does not permit change from time to time to take such steps as may reasonably be deemed appropriate to the economic preservation of the country is to insist that the Constitution was created containing the seeds of its own destruction."

"This court," the judge continued, "will not subscribe to such a view."

States has virtually one universal language, spoken by all. Fifty years ago there were 526 telephones installed in India; and today there are 57,000 telephones in the whole country. At the end of 1930 there were over 20 million telephone instruments in the United States.

In India 250 million people are so far below the poverty line that they could not dream of paying for telephone service; and another 75 million with larger incomes could not afford it. For the 30 million whose incomes might afford telephone service, there is only one phone for every 526 persons. Only 10 per cent of India's population is urban.

In the light of what we have gained in America as to freedom of utterance, there are areas in which we sometimes say we do not have freedom of speech. Smedley Butler is hampered sometimes in his radio conversations. But it may help us to appreciate our blessings, if we take a good look at such places as India.

NINE STATES BAN LABOR INJUNCTIONS

Campaign of the American Federation of Labor Bears Fruit.

Tangible progress has been made in the campaign of the American Federation of Labor to have the various States enact anti-injunction laws similar to the Norris-LaGuardia Federal laws, declared the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor in their annual report to the Federation's annual convention at Washington.

The Norris-LaGuardia Federal anti-injunction law declares injunctions in labor disputes to be against the public policy of the United States and prohibits Federal judges from issuing them.

"Nine States: California, Colorado, Idaho, Indiana, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Utah, Wisconsin and Wyoming, now have anti-injunction laws as approved by the American Federation of Labor," the council said.

The New Hampshire Supreme Court declared the "anti-yellow dog" bill unconstitutional in an advisory opinion and, therefore, did not pass the legislation.

Numerous letters were sent by President Green to all state federations of labor where Legislatures were in session, urging the officers to use every effort to have anti-injunction laws enacted.

Six Legislatures enacted the laws this year.

"Have you any abandoned farms for sale?"

The Cherry Tree

Where with our Little Hatchet we tell the truth about many things, sometimes profoundly, sometimes flippantly, sometimes recklessly

Maxim Litvinoff is coming, to the United States and the high hat boys in the State Department are worrying mainly about what will be the social amenities. Should it be high hats and full honors, or something half way between that and the foot of the table?

Litvinoff is coming to the United States because he sees his main chance opening at last. It's too bad it has come to this, but it has come and that's that.

There is nothing at this hour to indicate that the Muscovite is due to have easy sailing, nothing to indicate that he will get away with any more than is necessary to accomplish the President's aim.

And until the conversations are over and the results announced there is nothing to kick about—nothing that will do any good.

General feeling among those who have fought recognition of the reds is that, since the ball is rolling it can't be stopped and there's no use trying. Like a lot of other things it's left "up to the President" with confidence that his eye is on the ball.

Chase National Bank on the witness stand. What a fine spectacle!

Financing of Dictator Machado, exposed in the labor press back in 1927.

Wall Street pays its pet tyrant plenty and gets in return the right to exploit an island full of people.

State Department was worried—but did nothing about it.

Dictator dipped into a trust fund of nine million dollars and helped himself, which agitated Wall Street and Washington and stopped right there.

No action until the workers of Cuba decided they had had enough and tied up the island with a strike that grew into revolution.

Chase National Bank's Wiggin was the boy who first tore loose for wage reductions. Nice little outfit.

Present policy of the United States government is designed to trim the sails of gents like Wiggin—and Morgan—and Rockefeller—and Mellon—and ad infinitum.

Not too much to look forward to public control of credit, demanded ten years ago by the American Federation of Labor. Credit is a public utility.

In some cities today you can't borrow money with which to build a house, no matter how good the investment.

Seems no question that big bankers are out to "get" NRA and holding back money is one way. "Liquidity" is only part of the reason and probably the smaller part.

Well, in a row between the bankers and the United States government, bet your money on the government—especially when the government speaks the language of the people!

NRA, with whatever faults it may have—and faults seem inseparable from the human race—is plowing along, working a change in the affairs of men, women and children, that perhaps lose some of their visibility because, looking for trees we are in the midst of a forest which obscures our vision.

During the American Federation of Labor convention in Washington, President Thomas F. McMahon of the United Textile Workers, told the convention he had 1,500 complaints of code violations.

That is a lot of violations and it betokens a situation not to be condoned, but to be corrected as rapidly as possible.

But there are two sides to every plate of ham and eggs and so there are two sides to this one. On one side the violations.

On the other side is a full page newspaper advertisement, the text of which is worth quoting. It follows:

"This shirt, and tens of thousands like it, were made and sold just a few months ago when the country was not as sound as it is today.

"The man that grew the cotton for it lost money. His cotton pickers were not paid with cash—they received canned goods and groceries so that they could eat and have strength to work. The workers in the mill where the cotton was spun into yarn and in the mill where the yarn was woven into fabric received starvation wages—$4.00 and $5.00 a week. The girls that fashioned it into a shirt tried to keep the wolf from the door with $5.00 a week and, in many instances, even less. Their employer lost money. Cut-throat competition, together with curtailed buying power, forced the retailer to sell it at a price which would attract you to buy it, but which netted him a loss.

"At 89 cents it was a bargain. A bargain built on misery—distress—losses—and suffering, all along the line. A bargain that threatened the very structure of this country.

"Here is another shirt—manufactured under the Code of the N. R. A. Looks just like the other one, but it's different.

"True, the cotton is the same, the machine-made material is the same, BUT—the workers now receive at least $13.00 a week. The workmanship, however, is different. Girls that are now receiving a living wage do better work than they did with hungry stomachs and with fear in their hearts.

"Yes, it's a different shirt. They will all tell you that—from the cotton picker to the one who sells it to you. Thanks to N. R. A it is different—and not a single child labored in its making.

"At $1.09 it is a real bargain, a sound bargain, sound for your welfare and sound for the welfare of our country. Which one do you prefer to wear?"

The argument is as old as the hills. How many times union men have offered that argument can never be known. With it they have battered at the doors of prejudice and sought to bring vision to eyes afflicted with blindness.

Now a nation is committed to the ideals so long preached by labor. Through decades it seemed that labor was preaching in a wilderness. Really, it wasn't a wilderness. Finally the seeds sprouted and grew.

Department stores have been regarded as the outlets for all of the bone-grinding "bargains" that a bone-grinding industrial world could produce. Like a breath from a world of new growing plants and flowers comes this advertisement by a department store, actually telling you why it is decent and right to pay a little more so that those who create the merchandise may live like human beings.

NRA has its faults, but NRA has justified itself over and over already. Read the advertisement again. It is true. It is filled with promise of even more.

True, there are the violations. Rome took a long while to build. No society can be remade into decency by the waving of a wand, with complete eradication of old abuses. The violations must be corrected.

Meanwhile there stands a monument of achievement—tremendous achievement. America actually is producing something like a miracle.

A Good Turn

"Where is the car?" demanded Mrs. Diggs.

"Did I take the car out?" ejaculated Professor Diggs.

"You certainly did. You drove it to town."

"How odd! I remember now that after I got out I turned around to thank the gentleman who gave me the lift and wondered where he had gone."—Ex.

LABORGRAMS

The humility complex which a lot of us suffered from, in the presence of the so-called "magnates," has been getting wholesome jolts by the queer spectacles some of them cut in the NRA hearings. There was that aluminum magnate, boss of fourteen corporations, who couldn't sell, any more than one of his puppets could, the meaning of a long and tricky paragraph which he had written into the aluminum code.

The appearance of earnest and friendly benevolence of the chief of the big hotel operators, as he emphasized the "family relationship" existing among the members of the big hotel service personnel, was almost convincing—of some things. He said it was a "domestic" relationship, that it savored of the "home atmosphere," and that it was peculiarly personal. In such a relationship, the idea of any mere wages—above pocket-money—seemed to be a betrayal of the patriarchal character of the scene.

Where do we go from here? What is the objective? The General Staff announced at the opening of the campaign: To lift the purchasing power to the point where it will equal production. Let's GO! President Roosevelt looked old Sam Gompers in the eye, as the latter sat on that monument, and said, "I have kept the faith!"
